Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK Government are extremely concerned by the humanitarian situation in Gaza. 64 per cent. of Gaza's population is at least partly dependent on food aid and 90 per cent. of mains water is polluted. Access through crossings between Gaza and Israel remains restricted although limited deliveries of emergency food aid, medicines and commercial items have been allowed in. However, the size and frequency of these deliveries are insufficient to meet the broader needs of the population.

The problem is not a lack of support from the international community, rather the continued restrictions on access to Gaza.

The European Commission (EC) created the Temporary International Mechanism (TIM) in 2006. Before the TIM was subsumed into the new PEGASE mechanism in March 2007, the EC and European Union members provided €455 million (£361 million) of funding through it. The TIM was a successful emergency assistance mechanism and PEGASE will continue to provide an effective means of supporting essential services and the livelihoods of key, frontline workers. Further international community support over the past two years has been channelled through UN agencies and NGOs providing humanitarian assistance and supporting basic services.

In response to restrictions on imports into Gaza the UK and others have consistently encouraged the Government of Israel to facilitate the provision of humanitarian support. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I released a statement to this effect on 8 February and we continue to raise the matter with the Israeli authorities.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether funding for public sector salaries and the maintenance of basic services in Gaza is being provided by the Palestinian Authority in the West Bank; and what contribution is being made from the UK aid budget. [200123]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Palestinian Authority provides funding for basic services such as health and education in Gaza, paying the salaries of public sector workers. During 2007-08, the UK contributed £38.45 million for Palestinian Authority services and employees in both Gaza and the West Bank through the Temporary International Mechanism, PEGASE and the new World Bank Reform Trust Fund.

India: Overseas Aid

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what funds his Department provided to the (a) Food and Drug Capacity Building Project, (b) Orissa Health Systems Development Project, (c) Second National Aids Control Project, (d) Malaria Control Project and (e) Tuberculosis Control Project in India in each year from 2001-02 to 2007-08. [203569]

Mr. Malik: These five projects are World Bank projects that were the subject of a recent World Bank Detailed Implementation Review (DIR) which found indications of fraud and corruption. All the projects were funded by the World Bank's International Development Association (IDA). The UK provided around 10.4 per cent. of donor funds to IDA during the period in question. The World Bank's Board of Directors discussed the DIR on 13 March and endorsed World Bank and Government of India Action Plans to address problems identified in the DIR.

The Department for International Development (DFID) separately supports health projects in India through its bilateral programme. During these years, DFID supported the second phase of India's National AIDS Control Programme (NACP), through a multi-agency programme with the Government of India, UN agencies and civil society organisations. Total expenditure on this project was £4,949,875, £19,996,646, £28,606,262 and £12,032,842 in 2004-05, 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 respectively. DFID is reviewing its support to NACP to ensure that any implications for DFID funding from the DIR are being robustly addressed.

Kenya: HIV Infection

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent in Kenya on HIV/AIDS control in each year from 2001-02 to 2007-08; and on what projects. [203570]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK Government's HIV/AIDS Programme in Kenya supports the implementation of a National HIV/AIDS Strategy which aims for universal access to prevention, treatment and care. In addition, our education programme has supported the integration of a successful HIV/AIDS prevention programme in 18,500 primary schools. Details of expenditure are detailed in the following table:

Projects	2001-02	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	£ million 2007-08
HIV and Aids Prevention and Care Project (HAPAC)	4.4	6.8	3.2	7.1	6.6	6.7	2.1
Primary School Action for Better Health	—	—	—	—	—	0.9	1.2

Latin America: Overseas Aid

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when his Department's regional assistance plan (2008-11) for Latin America will be published. [203716]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development's (DFID) future support to Latin America will be provided through civil society organisations and international institutions. We will also continue to work on Brazil's global role in development. A summary of our programme will be produced and made publicly available (although this will not be in the form of a regional assistance plan). This document will be available by the end of 2008.

Palestinians: EU Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the (a) budget, (b) objectives and (c) mechanisms for disbursement of aid to the Palestinians from the European Union's PEGASE fund are. [200076]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: For 2008 the European Commission has committed €300 million (£238 million) to PEGASE and member states are finalising their individual contributions.

There is no upper ceiling for PEGASE contributions. In March 2008 the UK provided £15.45 million through PEGASE to support public sector salaries.

PEGASE is designed to support the Palestinian Authority's three year Reform and Development programme (PROP). The PRDP will focus upon governance reform and development of the social, economic and public infrastructure sectors.

PEGASE covers the full European Commission programme of support to the Occupied Palestinian Territories, as well as the former Temporary International Mechanism (TIM). PEGASE will widen the scope of the former TIM to cover support for private sector arrears and funding provided directly to the PA. PEGASE will retain comprehensive and secure monitoring and control systems that were put into place under the TIM.

Sri Lanka: Overseas Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of whether UNICEF funds donated to educational projects in Sri Lanka are being properly spent on those projects; and if he will make a statement. [202495]

Mr. Malik: As Sri Lanka is now a middle income country, there is no UK bilateral aid programme of support to Sri Lanka. The Department for International Development's (DFID) bilateral programme ended in March 2007.

Instead, DFID works in conjunction with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and Ministry of Defence (MoD) to provide peace building support to Sri Lanka by pooling funds through the conflict prevention pool (CPP). DFID does not currently fund any UNICEF education projects.

Through the conflict prevention pool, the UK funds UNICEF's human rights and poverty programme called "Children Affected by Armed Conflict".

To ensure that conflict prevention pool funds are properly spent, projects are regularly monitored by the High Commission in Colombo and three UK Government Departments responsible for the pooled funds in the UK. Quarterly reviews are conducted jointly by the High Commission and the three departments in London. An internal annual review of projects is also conducted.

Sudan: Food Aid

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what reports he has received on the effect of increased levels of banditry in Darfur on the delivery of food supplies, and in particular the World Food Programme; and how many (a) people and (b) children this has put at risk. [202490]

Gillian Merron: Due to increased levels of banditry, the World Food Programme (WFP) is currently delivering 900 metric tons per day to WFP warehouses, only half as much food as is needed in Darfur

The WFP provided food to 3.1 million people in March, including 2.4 million in Darfur. 1.6 million of the total were children, including 1.2 million in Darfur. This is likely to rise as the rainy season begins in May/June. The WFP will cut rations of cereals, pulses and sugar for Darfur by half in May. Rations will therefore have 42 per cent. less calorific value.

To mitigate this, WFP will continue to provide blanket feeding for children under five in targeted areas in South and West Darfur, and plans to introduce this throughout North Darfur, where the highest malnutrition rates were reported in 2007. It will resume school feeding when schools reopen in June.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what arrangements exist for UK-based law enforcement agencies to investigate allegations of misconduct by (a) British nationals and (b) nationals of other countries, other than Iraq, who are employees of private military or security companies contracted to work in Iraq by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [203693]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

If any personnel employed by organisations contracted by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) were suspected of committing a crime in Iraq but appeared to be immune from Iraqi legal process, the FCO would refer them to the disciplinary authority of their employing organisation with a view to having them removed from our contract in Iraq and would also bring the matter to the attention of the UK police and/or the authorities of the individual's nationality. The decision whether to pursue a criminal investigation and ultimately whether a prosecution should be undertaken in an individual case would be a matter for the police and prosecuting authorities, acting independently from the Government.

In the case of suspected non-criminal misconduct, we would take up the matter with the employing organisation, and either investigate the matter or have the employing organisation do so and report back to us, depending on the circumstances and the nature of the allegations.

JUSTICE

Departmental Freedom of Information

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much (a) has been spent by the Information Commissioner's Office and (b) paid to the Commissioner's counsel in relation to the appeals to the Information Tribunal relating to freedom of information requests made by (i) Campaign Against Arms Trade (EA/2007/40) and (ii) Nicholas Gilby (EA/2007/71/78/79). [202721]

Mr. Wills: The Information Commissioner is an independent body created by statute with responsibility for handling complaints made to him under the Freedom of Information Act 2000.

The Commissioner's Office does not maintain separate records of the total internal cost incurred for handling each case where his decision on a complaint is appealed to the Information Tribunal.

The total paid to counsel by the Commissioner for the appeals made by the Campaign against the Arms Trade and by Nicholas Gilby was £12,337.51. Parts of the appeals were heard together as evidence was provided by the same witness. Therefore the amount paid to counsel covered both appeals and was not billed or invoiced separately.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many full-time posts in his Department were filled on a temporary basis for a period in excess of six months in each of the last three years. [200667]

Bridget Prentice: The number of unfilled permanent posts being filled temporarily is not recorded centrally and could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost. However, information on contractors, consultants and Agency staff excluding Public Sector Prison Service covering full-time and part-time vacancies or other posts engaged for more than six-months is reflected in the table as follows.

Ministry of Justice (excluding Public Sector Prison Service)—Contractors and Agency staff in posts in excess of six months over the past 3 financial years

Ministry of Justice total (excluding Public Sector Prison Service)	91	19	35

Notes:
1. The information held does not reflect these contractors, consultants and Agency staff filling permanent, vacant posts on a temporary basis.
2. The information reflects contractors, consultants and Agency staff excluding Public Sector Prison Service covering full-time and part-time vacancies or other posts engaged for more than six-months.

Electoral Register

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what evidence there is that a move to individual registration would increase under-registration of those who are legally entitled to vote. [203026]

Bridget Prentice: The only comparable evidence that a move to individual registration would increase under registration in Great Britain is what happened in Northern Ireland. The Electoral Commission report, 'Electoral Registration in Northern Ireland', published in 2004, found a decrease of 10 per cent. in the number of names included on the August 2002 register and the December 2002 register, equating to approximately 120,000 fewer names. Since this time the situation has improved, as demonstrated by ONS figures which confirm the number of electors for 2007 grew by 50,078 (4.7 per cent.) to 1,120,343 for parliamentary elections and by 50,857 (4.7 per cent.) to 1,125,935 for local government elections.

The report concluded that the system of registration could make it difficult for specific groups in society to access the electoral process. These included young people and students, people with learning disabilities and other forms of disability and those living in areas of high social deprivation.

Any new system of electoral registration in GB would need to be tailored to current circumstances, and in particular would need to address the challenge of under-registration in GB, where an estimated 3.5 million eligible electors are not registered to vote.

We are already committed to the principle of individual registration. But this would be a far-reaching reform, and it would need to be undertaken with great care—both to make sure a new system is robust, and to ensure that it properly tackles the problem of under-registration.

Our vision for electoral registration is clear: We want to protect the rights of every eligible person to participate in the United Kingdom's democratic process by ensuring complete, accurate and secure electoral registration.

Electoral Register: Information and Communications Technology

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the technical specifications of the Co-ordinated Online Record of Electors' database will allow the introduction of individual electoral registration. [203139]

Mr. Wills: Any work that is carried out in respect of individual registration will be done on its own merits, and is not reliant on the progress of the CORE Project.

A final decision as to the scope and specification of the CORE project will be made once an analysis of both the business and user requirements has been made. However, in accordance with good practice on the management of projects, any database that is developed will be, as far as is possible, capable of adapting to future requirements that may be anticipated.

Fraud: Elections

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions were brought against Commonwealth citizens for voting in UK elections when they did not have indefinite leave to remain in the UK in the last two years. [202922]

Bridget Prentice: Under the Representation of the People Act 1983, all Commonwealth citizens who are lawfully resident in the UK may vote in UK elections. It is a matter for local electoral officers to ensure they have included eligible persons on their electoral registers, and to take appropriate action where it is thought that electoral law has been breached. My Department does not hold central data on the numbers of prosecutions brought against persons voting at UK elections who are not eligible to do so.

Land Registry Board: Pay

David Wright: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what change in pay each member of the Land Registry Board received in each of the last five years, giving the percentage change in each case. [203160]

Mr. Wills: Pay for Land Registry staff in the Senior Civil Service (SCS), including Board members, is governed by a centrally determined pay system for which the Cabinet Office is responsible. Land Registry, along with all other departments and agencies, applies the pay system to its SCS members of staff in accordance with the guidance provided by the Cabinet Office. The level of SCS base pay awards and bonuses are recommended to the government each year by an independent review body, the Senior Salaries Review Body.

The following table, taken from the audited accounts of Land Registry's annual report and accounts from 2002-03 to 2006-07, covers the gross salary and bonuses received during the financial year for each executive member of the Land Registry Board. In accordance with the Financial Reporting Manual issued by HM Treasury, Land Registry discloses the salary details of each director, including any allowances, in bands of £5,000. Presentation in this form is required in order to comply with the provisions of the Data Protection Act 1998.

As the answer is necessarily restricted to pay bands, providing percentage changes year on year for individual directors is inappropriate. The salary details of Land Registry directors for 2007-08 will be available in similar bandings when this year's annual report and accounts has been audited. Copies will be laid before Parliament before the summer recess.

Legal Opinion: Standards

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what mechanisms are in place to improve the transparency of law firms' no-win no-fee offers. [203304]

Bridget Prentice: The regulation of agreements between solicitors and their clients is a matter for the Solicitors Regulation Authority (SRA). Under the SRA's Code of Conduct, solicitors are required to provide clients with the information necessary to make appropriate decisions about if, and how, their matter should proceed. Clients should also be given the best information possible about the likely costs and other charges both at the outset and, when appropriate, as the matter progresses. Where the code is not complied with the SRA can, and do, take regulatory action.

Members

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he plans to bring forward legislative proposals to prevent hon. Members from also being (a) members of a devolved legislature and (b) local councillors. [203661]

Mr. Straw: The Government have no current plans to amend the eligibility criteria for membership of the House of Commons as set out in the House of Commons Disqualification Act 1975.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he will reply to the letter, dated 28 March 2008, transferred from the Cabinet Office, on parliamentary elections. [203393]

Bridget Prentice: I replied to the hon. Member on 23 April.

Mortgages: Repossesion Orders

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many mortgage possession orders were made in each county court in England in each year since 1997. [203142]

Bridget Prentice: Copies of a table, showing the number of mortgage possession orders (including suspended orders) made in all county courts of England since 1997, have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

These figures do not indicate how many properties have actually been repossessed, since not all the orders will have resulted in the issue and execution of warrants of possession.

The civil procedure rules state that all claims for the repossession of land must be commenced in the district in which the land is situated. However, county courts' jurisdictions are not coterminous with administrative or constituency boundaries, and therefore a single court's repossession actions could relate to properties in a number of different constituencies or local authority areas.

Offenders: Deportation

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many foreign national prisoners were (a) released from prison and (b) removed from the UK in each of the last five years. [202234]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the number of adult and young adult foreign national discharges from determinate sentences on completion of sentence in each year between 2003 and 2007 from all prison establishments in England and Wales. Information on the numbers released from Scottish and Northern Irish prisons is the responsibility of the Scottish Executive and the Northern Irish Prison Service. Data have been rounded to the nearest 100.

Foreign national discharges from prison (England and Wales)

	Number

Data for 2007 have not been published, and as such are provisional.

The chief executive of the UK Border Agency has regularly updated the Home Affairs Committee with the most robust and accurate information relating to the deportation and removal of foreign national prisoners. Copies of her letters to the Committee are available in the library of the House. She advised the Committee during her appearance of 15 January that over 4,200 foreign national prisoners had been removed or deported from the United Kingdom in 2007. Information prior to April 2006 is not available due to data quality issues. Foreign national prisoners removed or deported in 2007 may have been discharged from prison in previous years.

Police Custody

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which police authorities or chief constables have notified his Department that they will not provide it with police cells after a specified date; what the date is in each case; and how many police cells are currently provided to his Department by those authorities. [202668]

Mr. Straw: Police cells are made available through Operation Safeguard under an agreement between ACPO and the National Offender Management Service. Those forces that do not participate in Operation Safeguard provide cells as ad hoc lockouts. No police force has advised my Department that they will not make cells available to hold prisoners.

Prison Service: Emergencies

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what operational emergencies were declared by each prison in each of the last 12 months; and what the date of each was. [202367]

Mr. Straw: An operational emergency is determined and may be declared locally by a prison governor in response to specific operational circumstances arising in an individual establishment or nationally by the director-general or chief operating officer of the National Offender Management Service (formerly DG and DDG of HM Prison Service) in response to wider concerns within the service.

There have been four occurrences when a clear operational emergency has been declared by the DG/COO under these procedures in the last 12 months. Three of these involved bringing into immediate use additional places at individual establishments. One was a national issue, to facilitate immediate staffing of court cells.

A central record of operational emergencies declared locally is not maintained and an exercise to collate these figures would be at disproportionate cost.

Date	Establishment	Reason for operational emergency
May 2007	National	Population pressures required the immediate staffing of court cells
June 2007	Blakenhurst	Population pressures exacerbated by flooding in the area required the immediate use of additional overcrowding places
April 2008	Bullingdon	Population pressures required the immediate use of additional overcrowding places
	Cardiff	Population pressures required the immediate use of additional overcrowding places

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his Department's definition of operational emergency is in relation to prisons and young offender institutions; and what such operational emergencies have taken place in (a) the Prison Service and (b) privately-managed prisons in each of the last 36 months. [202510]

Mr. Straw: The specific circumstances constituting an operational emergency within HMPS are not explicitly defined.

An operational emergency is determined and may be declared locally by a prison governor in response to specific operational circumstances arising in an individual establishment or nationally by the director-general or chief operating officer of the National Offender Management Service (formerly DG and DDG of HM Prison Service) in response to wider concerns within the service.

Within the terms of the Joint Industrial Relations Procedural Agreement (in place with the Prison Officers Association) and the Voluntary Agreement in place with the Prison Governors Association) an operational emergency is specifically defined in the following terms:

> "An occasion where staff will be required to act contrary to the terms of an agreement whether national or local, when events make such action necessary having been identified as a clear operational emergency. Management will aim to give as much notice as possible to the POA and such a situation can only be designated by the DG or DDG who will state the reasons for so doing in writing."

There have been 10 recorded occasions when a clear operational emergency has been declared by the DG/DDG under these procedures in the last 36 months. Eight of these involved bringing into immediate use additional accommodation or places at individual establishments. Two were national issues, one requiring immediate implementation of Prison Service Instruction 17/07—Maximising occupancy in the open estate, and one to facilitate immediate staffing of court cells.

A central record of operational emergencies declared locally is not maintained and an exercise to collate these figures would be at disproportionate cost.

Prisoners

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of the prison population was born in (a) Britain, (b) EU-15 countries, (c) EU A8 countries, (d) other EEA countries, (e) Africa, (f) North America, (g) Central America, (h) South America, (i) the Middle East, (j) Asia and (k) Oceania in each year since 1997. [200419]

Mr. Straw: Data on prisoners' country of birth are not available.

The following table gives figures and proportions for the numbers of prisoners by nationality held in all prisons in England and Wales from (a) Britain (b) EU 15 countries (c) EU A8 countries (d) other EEA countries (e) Africa (f) North America (g) and (h) Central and South America (i) Middle East (j) Asia and (k) Oceania with other categories in each year since 1997.

For the purposes of this table, and allowing for changes in EU membership over time, countries have been categorised in the following way.

EU 15 countries are: Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Finland, France, Germany, Greece, Ireland, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands, Spain, Portugal, and Sweden.

EU A8 countries are: Czech Republic, Estonia, Hungary, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Slovakia, Slovenia.

Other EEA countries: (i) In EU: Cyprus, Malta, Romania, Bulgaria, and (ii) not in EU: Norway, Lichtenstein and Iceland.

Cyprus and Malta acceded to the EU (and consequently the EEA) in 2004; Romania and Bulgaria in 2007. The table reflects these timings.

Other Europe: Albania, Andorra, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Bosnia-Herzegovina, Croatia, Georgia, Gibraltar, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Macedonia, Moldavia, Montenegro, Russia (or Russian Federation), San Marino, Serbia, (with Montenegro after 2002), Switzerland, Turkey, Turkmenistan, Uzbekistan, and Yugoslavia.

Figures for the West Indies and "Other Europe" are included in the answer for completeness.

All the figures in the aforementioned table can be found in Population in Custody 2007, Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2003-06 and Prison Statistics England and Wales 1997-2002, at the following website:

Prisoners Release: Wales

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners released before the end of their sentence returned to an address in Wales in each of the last 12 months. [202370]

Mr. Hanson: Under the Criminal Justice Act 1991, those sentenced to determinate sentences of four years or more are eligible for parole halfway through their sentence. If parole is not granted then release occurs at the two-thirds point of the sentence (or at a subsequent parole review if earlier).

The 'Home Detention Curfew' scheme (HDC) has been in operation since January 1999. Subject to meeting the eligibility criteria and passing a careful risk assessment, prisoners serving sentences of between three months and less than four years may be released up to four and a half months (135 days) early from prison subject to an electronically monitored curfew normally between 7 pm and 7 am.

The 'End of Custody Licence' (ECL) was introduced on 29 June 2007. Eligible prisoners serving between four weeks and less than four years may be released under licence from prison up to 18 days before their automatic release date.

The information requested could be produced only at disproportionate cost. The available information relates to the number of releases of prisoners on HDC, ECL and Parole from each of the four prisons in Wales: Cardiff, Parc, Swansea and Usk/Prescoed.

Figures showing the numbers of prisoners released on (i) Home Detention Curfew (2007) and (ii) End of Custody Licence (between 29 June and 31 December 2007) and (iii) releases on parole (2007) from prison establishments in Wales are in the following table:

	All	Cardiff	Parc	Swansea	Usk/ Prescoed
HDC releases from Welsh prison establishments, 2007	368	70	147	60	91
ECL releases from Welsh prison establishments, 29 June—31 December 2007	826	188	436	144	58
Parole releases from Welsh prison establishments, 2007	52	4	11	2	35

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Voting Methods

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what pilots of weekend voting have taken place to date; in which local authority areas; and on which dates. [203141]

Mr. Wills: Two local authorities have piloted weekend voting at local elections on both the Saturday and Sunday, in addition to voting on the traditional polling day. They were Manchester in 2000 and the London Borough of Camden in 2002.

15 local authorities have also piloted voting at the weekend at local elections which included voting either on a Saturday or Sunday or both, as well as other advance voting days, in addition to voting on the traditional polling day. These were:

Young Offender Institutions: Restraint Techniques

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many injuries were sustained by juvenile and young adult offenders held in (a) young offender institutions and (b) secure children's homes during restrictive physical interventions in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement. [197308]

Mr. Hanson: Young adults are not placed in secure children's homes. The Youth Justice Board has been collecting restraint data against common definitions across the secure estate since April 2007. The following table shows the requested information for the period 1 April 2007 to 31 January 2008 in relation to under-18 young offender institutions and secure children's homes. It comprises all cases where any treatment (however minor) was required. Information on injuries to young adults in senior young offender institutions is not collected centrally.

Secure children's homes	21

Young Offenders

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent representations he has received on the prevention of violence against children in the penal system. [203069]

Mr. Hanson: The Government have received a number of representations from Members of Parliament and members of the public relating to the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children's 'Children in Custody Deserve Care Not Cruelty' campaign.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Charities: Finance

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which charities receive funding from the public purse to increase the numbers of young volunteers. [202705]

Phil Hope: The youth volunteering charity v is funded by the Office of the Third Sector to commission third sector organisations to create volunteering opportunities for young people. Details of the projects funded by v can be found on their website at www.wearev.com.

Copies of the list of funded projects have also been placed in the Library for the reference of members.

The Office of the Third Sector, through its strategic partners programme, is also providing funding in this financial year to the following organisations that provide or promote youth volunteering opportunities: British Youth Council, Citizenship Foundation, National Youth Agency, Youth Action Network and Youthnet UK.

Official Residences: Income Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 13 March 2008, Official Report, column 592W, on departmental official residences, what guidance has been issued on the income tax liability on the benefit in kind of providing a ministerial residence to a person who is not a Minister of the Crown. [202936]

Mr. Watson: Income tax liability is a matter for HM Revenue and Customs.

Peers: Official Residences

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidance has been issued by the Cabinet Office on the eligibility of Ministers who are peers and who reside in an official ministerial residence in London to claim (a) Ministers' Night Subsistence Allowance and (b) London Supplement. [199278]

Mr. Watson: The allowances payable to Members of the House of Lords are set out in the "Members Reimbursement Allowance Scheme, General Guide, Sixth Edition (January 2007)". The determination of such allowances is a matter for the House of Lords.

V

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what mechanisms are in place to ensure that the charity v does not replicate the work of other charities when carrying out work at the expense of the public purse. [202704]

Phil Hope: The vast majority of central Government funding for young people's volunteering has been routed through v providing a more joined-up strategic approach to central Government funding for youth volunteering.

v aims to inspire a new generation of volunteers by working in partnership with other third sector organisations, building on the best of their existing activity to create new volunteering opportunities.

V: Educational Institutions

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster which charities work in partnership with v in schools and colleges on activities funded by the public purse. [202706]

Phil Hope: v will be working in partnership with local education establishments to engage 16 to 25-year-olds in volunteering through its network of vinvolved teams. v is directly funding some schools, colleges and universities to create and deliver vinvolved projects. The full list of recipients is available at www.wearev.com.

Nationally, v is working strategically with other third sector partners to increase opportunities for volunteering within the education system.

V: Finance

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what funding from the public purse is being provided for the charity v in 2008-09; and how much was provided in 2007-08. [202707]

Phil Hope: In 2008-09, £39 million will be provided by the Office of the Third Sector. In addition, v is able to draw down on Government match funding on a pound for pound basis, when they secure funding from the private sector, as set out in Budget 2005.

For the funding provided in 2007-08, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for East Worthing and Shoreham (Tim Loughton) on 20 February 2008, Official Report, column 743W.

V: Standards

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what objectives have been set for v involved teams which are working at the expense of the public purse; and what protocols govern such teams' working methods. [202708]

Phil Hope: The three priorities for the vinvolved teams are:

1. Creating new volunteering opportunities across all sectors;
2. Brokering young people into opportunities;
3. Championing youth-led action.

v will be monitoring the progress of its funded organisations and supporting them to achieve their targets. In addition, v has asked all of the vinvolved teams and projects to take part in the REACH quality assurance framework, developed by the Youth Action Network.

OLYMPICS

Olympic Games 2012

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what representations the Department for Culture, Media and Sport received in connection with the Olympic Legacy Masterplan in each of the last three years. [203344]

Tessa Jowell: The Legacy Masterplan Framework, which will set out a spatial vision for the Olympic Park and its surrounding areas after the Games, is being produced by the London Development Agency (as interim legacy client), working with Government, the Olympic Delivery Authority, host boroughs, local communities and other agencies. The process for developing this vision was launched in February 2008, and is being accompanied by a detailed programme of community engagement activities, to ensure that all members of local communities and other interested parties have an opportunity to get involved in developing and commenting on options for the Olympic Park site in legacy.

This community engagement will build on the work undertaken during the two rounds of consultation in 2006 and 2007 on the Olympic, Paralympic and Legacy Transformation planning applications, which related to proposals for the development of Olympic and Paralympic facilities and their post-Games transformation prior to the legacy phase. This earlier consultation process elicited 278 responses during Round 1, and 478 responses in Round 2, following the submission of further information from the applicant. These representations were submitted to and considered by the Olympic Delivery Authority Planning Authority as part of the planning process.

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what criteria have been set for projects and developments in the Olympic Park post 2012; and if she will make a statement. [203345]

Tessa Jowell: Our vision is for the Olympic Park to become the centre of a world class, sustainable and prosperous neighbourhood after the Games, with new homes, sporting and leisure facilities, high quality local services and greatly improved transport links, and 110 hectares of new parkland. We are committed to ensuring that the regeneration of the area meets the needs of local communities, is safe and sustainable and is closely tied in with the development plans for the wider Lower Lea Valley and Thames Gateway areas. This work is being developed through the Legacy Masterplan Framework process, led by the London Development Agency, working with Government, the ODA, host boroughs and local communities.

Olympic Games 2012: National Lottery

Pete Wishart: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) how much has been raised to date from all dedicated London 2012 Olympic Lottery games; [203645]

(2) how much was raised in 2007-08 from all dedicated London 2012 Olympic Lottery games; [203646]

(3) how much was raised in each quarter of 2007-08 from all dedicated London 2012 Olympic Lottery games. [203649]

Tessa Jowell: By 31 March 2008, £275 million had been raised for the Olympic Lottery Distribution Fund from the dedicated Olympic Lottery games. The following table gives the figures for each financial year. The figures include proceeds from Olympic Lottery games, unclaimed prizes and other operator-related income, net of operational costs. They exclude investment earnings on the balance held in the Olympic Lottery Distribution Fund.

2005-06	16.315
2006-07	112.516
2007-08[1]	146.206

Q1	29.475
Q2	37.962
Q3	39.165
Q4	40.504

Notes:

1. All the figures in the table are subject to audit. Numbers are based on the quarter that DCMS brought figures to account, and each quarter's data may not include income for an equal number of weeks for lottery sales across all games.
2. Both tables include provisional proceeds figures for the final quarter of 2007-08 which have not yet been validated by the National Lottery Commission.

Pete Wishart: To ask the Minister for the Olympics (1) how much has been raised to date from the Dream Number Lottery game to support the London 2012 Olympic Games; [203647]

(2) how much was raised in 2007-08 from the Dream Number Lottery game to support the London 2012 Olympic Games; [203648]

(3) how much was raised in each quarter of 2007-08 from the Dream Number Lottery game to support the London 2012 Olympic Games. [203650]

Tessa Jowell: I am advised by the National Lottery Commission that the sale proceeds going to the Olympic Lottery Distribution Fund (OLDF) are not available on a game by game basis. Returns to the good causes from the sale of all national lottery games are calculated in accordance with a formula set out in the national lottery operator's licence. In line with that formula, proceeds to the OLDF are based on the proportion of the total national lottery sales attributable to designated Olympic lottery games.

Olympic Games 2012: Schools

Harry Cohen: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether local schools have been consulted as part of the preparation of the Olympic Legacy Action Plan; and if she will make a statement. [202683]

Tessa Jowell: The Government Olympic Executive (GOE) is developing the Olympic Legacy Action Plan (LAP) in consultation with stakeholders including the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) and the five host boroughs.

The DCSF is the Department leading on the education legacy of the games as part of the preparation of the Legacy Action Plan. Working closely with LOCOG who are leading on the development and delivery of the London 2012 Education Programme, the following organisations have been consulted between them on how best to use the 2012 games to drive change within schools, colleges and other education providers.

DCSF's 2012 advisory group, (which includes organisations representing schools and head teachers); the implementation review unit (IRU) (a group of school practitioners with a remit to challenge and support the DCSF); national agencies such as the Independent Schools Association, the Girls School Association, etc.;

Government regional offices;

local authorities;

head teachers, teachers, other members of staff and young people from over 100 schools and colleges across the UK;

the Youth Sport Trust 2012 Headteacher Advisory Group; the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust Advisory Group; and the Podium Opportunities groups for colleges and universities.

LOCOG also delivered a series of workshops across the UK to encourage schools and young people to explore the opportunities provided by the London 2012 Education Programme. Representatives from Waltham Forest attended a number of these meetings.

LOCOG also works closely with colleagues in each of the five host boroughs to develop their education offer. Young people from Waltham Forest ('Waltham Forest Young Ambassadors') have also attended a consultation workshop at LOCOG to discuss plans for the London 2012 Education Programme.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan: Drugs

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps his Department is taking to tackle opium poppy cultivation in the provinces of Afghanistan where it is taking place; and what assessment he has made of the impact of drug-trafficking on the stability of the region. [201665]

Dr. Howells: The UK is supporting the Afghan Government in implementing its National Drug Control Strategy (NDCS). This includes work at a national level, through the Ministry of Counter Narcotics, and provincially, through the Independent Directorate for local governance and through provincial governors. Our efforts are focused on those areas where opium poppy cultivation is concentrated, notably in Helmand province. In support of the NDCS, UK assistance aims to: raise public awareness; promote international and regional co-operation; promote alternative livelihoods; reduce demand for drugs; support law enforcement; establish an effective criminal justice system; support targeted eradication of opium cultivation; and build effective Afghan Government institutions.

We remain concerned about the potential for Afghan drug-trafficking to undermine regional stability and are encouraging Afghanistan and its neighbours to take forward further regional counter narcotics coordination and cooperation. The UK will be participating as an observer in the Good Neighbourly Relations Declaration meeting scheduled to take place later this year, which is integral to this process.

Cuba: Sanctions

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons the Government supports EU sanctions against Cuba; and what representations he has received on the Government's position on EU sanctions against Cuba in the last 12 months. [199523]

Dr. Howells: The UK's policy on Cuba has been based on the EU Common Position since 1996. The Common Position is a policy framework which aims to encourage transition to pluralist democracy and respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms. The Common Position is reviewed each year in June and member states take into account any changes over the past 12 months.

Over the last year, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has received representations from the Cuban Government. As Cuba is of interest to many groups in society, my right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Foreign Secretary regularly receive letters, emails and petitions from many groups including; trade unions, members of the public and non-governmental organisations. Parliamentarians have asked questions on the subject throughout the year.

Food: Prices

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has received on rising food prices internationally, with particular reference to staples such as rice; and if he will make a statement. [202581]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary is acutely aware of the impact of rising food prices globally. He understands this is a critical issue for both the global economy and the UK economy. To date my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not directly received international representations on the issue. However, global economic issues, and their interface with foreign policy, remain a key theme in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) dialogue with partner governments and international institutions globally. Given the potential links between rising food prices and a number of foreign policy issues such as social stability, poverty reduction and conflict, the FCO will continue to monitor the situation closely. We are clear that an international solution is required and to that end my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister has written to the chair of the G8 group of industrialised nations and the heads of relevant international organisations calling for co-ordinated action. The letter is available at: http://www.pm.gov.uk/output/Page15234.asp. FCO posts will keep discussing the situation regularly with key countries and international organisations.

Iran: Arms Trade

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has received recent reports on British arms dealers trading with the government of Iran. [202489]

Dr. Howells: The export of arms and other related material to Iran is subject to UN, EU and national sanctions. We rigorously apply these controls to all export licence applications destined for Iran.

We are aware of recent media reports about British arms dealers attempting to trade with the Government of Iran. We take these reports very seriously. Where the Government receive information that an exporter has attempted to circumvent export control rules, the relevant Government Departments and agencies will take appropriate action. This was the case with the arms brokers John Knight and Mehrdad Salashoor. In both cases, the Revenue and Customs Prosecutions Office (RCPO) mounted successful prosecutions, which led to both individuals being given extended prison terms and large confiscation orders for breaches of export control rules.

These media reports also highlighted a number of on-going investigations. The relevant authorities are looking into these cases and if they uncover evidence of attempts to breach export control rules, they will refer appropriate cases to RCPO to consider prosecutions. This work, and the recent successful prosecutions, demonstrates that our export controls are robust. We will continue to take action against those who attempt to circumvent UK controls.

Iran: Politics and Government

Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Iran; and if he will make a statement. [202774]

Dr. Howells: Since I last made a statement to the House on the political situation in Iran on 26 November 2007, Official Report, columns 220-21W, the parliamentary elections have taken place. As feared, a large proportion of reformist candidates were prevented from standing. Altogether, a third of all prospective candidates who registered to stand were disqualified by Iran's Interior Ministry and Guardian Council, denying the Iranian people a genuine democratic choice about their country's future.

Following the elections, the EU expressed

"deep concern that election procedures in the Islamic Republic of Iran have fallen below international standards and that the electoral process did not allow for truly competitive elections".

The new Parliament will start sitting on 27 May.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what arrangements exist for any UK-based law enforcement agency to investigate allegations of misconduct by (a) British nationals and (b) nationals of other countries, other than Iraqis, who are employees of private military or security companies contracted to work in Iraq by his Department; and if he will make a statement. [203692]

Dr. Howells: If any personnel employed by organisations contracted by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) were suspected of committing a crime in Iraq but appeared to be immune from Iraqi legal process, the FCO would refer them to the disciplinary authority of their employing organisation with a view to having them removed from our contract in Iraq and would also bring the matter to the attention of the UK police and/or the authorities of the individual's nationality. The decision whether to pursue a criminal investigation and ultimately whether a prosecution should be undertaken in an individual case would be a matter for the police and prosecuting authorities, acting independently from the Government.

In the case of suspected non-criminal misconduct, we would take up the matter with the employing organisation, and either investigate the matter or have the employing organisation do so and report back to us, depending on the circumstances and the nature of the allegations.

Pakistan: Asylum

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with (a) HM Ambassador in Kabul and (b) the High Commissioner in Islamabad on UK immigration applications from Pakistanis claiming status as refugees fleeing Afghanistan. [201630]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had discussions with our ambassador in Kabul or our high commissioner in Islamabad on UK immigration applications from Pakistan claiming status as refugees fleeing Afghanistan.

We take issues of immigration from Pakistan, and the refugee situation within Pakistan, seriously. Senior officials recently visited Pakistan to discuss the UK's engagement with Pakistan on migration and we continue to support the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees' Tripartite process to tackle the long-term problem of Afghan refugees in Pakistan.

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether he has had discussions with the government of Pakistan on the repatriation of Afghan refugees in that country. [202577]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not had discussions with the Government of Pakistan on the repatriation of Afghan refugees in Pakistan. However we take the issue of the approximately 2 million Afghan refugees, many of whom have been in Pakistan for over 20 years, seriously. Last year the Department for International Development supported the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees' (UNHCR) repatriation programme with £500,000. We continue to work with the UNHCR Tripartite process to find a sustainable solution to this long-standing problem.

Pakistan: Blasphemy

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made in the case of Qamar David on trial in Karachi, Pakistan. [201919]

Dr. Howells: We have not made specific representations in the case of Qamar David. But we strongly support freedom of religion, and condemn instances where individuals are persecuted because of their faith or belief, wherever this occurs and whatever the religion of the individual or group concerned. Both bilaterally and together with our EU partners, we have raised our concerns over the situation of religious minorities in Pakistan, and the excessive punishments prescribed in cases of blasphemy, and the frequent abuse of the blasphemy legislation. The UN Human Rights Council is undertaking a universal periodic review on the human rights records of a number of countries including Pakistan in May. The UK is participating in this dialogue and will raise the treatment of minorities during the process.

We will continue to raise the concerns of minorities with the new government and encourage reform or repeal of discriminatory legislation through the newly formed National Assembly.

Pakistan: Human Rights

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Pakistan on the situation of the human rights lawyer Parvez Aslam Choudhry in Lahore. [201917]

Dr. Howells: We have not made specific representations on behalf of Mr. Parvez Choudhry but officials in our high commission in Islamabad and in London are aware of him through contact with Christian Solidarity Worldwide and Legal Aid for Destitute and Settlement about his situation.

The UK supports freedom of religion and condemns instances where individuals are persecuted because of their faith or belief. Through our regular contact with organisations working on behalf of religious minorities we continue to monitor and raise concerns about the treatment of minorities with the Government and encourage reform or repeal of discriminatory legislation through the National Assembly.

The UN Human Rights Council is undertaking a universal periodic review on the human rights records of a number of countries including Pakistan in May. The UK is participating in this dialogue and will raise the treatment of minorities during the process.

Pakistan: Nuclear Power

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Government of Pakistan on A. Q. Khan. [201916]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised the subject of A.Q. Khan with the new Pakistani Government during his recent visit on 20-21 April.

Piracy

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Ministry of Defence on tackling piracy on the high seas, with particular reference to the potential for asylum being claimed by arrested pirates; what guidance his Department has issued as a result of those discussions; and if he will make a statement. [203579]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and the Ministry of Defence (MoD) contribute to wider Government work on piracy issues and incidents that specifically affect UK citizens or assets. The FCO does not lead within Government on asylum issues and as such the Department has issued no guidance to the MoD on this matter.

Simon Mann

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he plans to take in the week beginning 5 May to monitor the (a) treatment and (b) risk of torture of Mr. Simon Mann in Black Beach Prison, Equatorial Guinea; and whether he has received reports on whether Mr. Mann is still being continuously shackled. [202156]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 28 April 2008]: Our consul from the British deputy high commission in Lagos was refused consular access to Simon Mann during his last visit to Equatorial Guinea in March. We have expressed our concern to the Equatorial Guinea authorities and are urgently seeking another consular visit. His welfare remains our primary concern.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Andrew Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to support the execution of the warrants from the International Criminal Court in relation to Darfur in respect of Ali Koshyb and Ahmed Harun. [202310]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 28 April 2008]: The UK sponsored UN Security Council Resolution 1593 (2005) referred the situation in Darfur to the International Criminal Court (ICC). The UK fully supports the ICC and my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary discussed Sudan's compliance with the ICC with the ICC President Kirsch on 8 November 2007.

We remain gravely concerned that the two individuals, for whom the court has issued arrest warrants, remain at large. The UK continues to press the Government of Sudan, at all levels, to comply with ICC requirements. We have raised Sudanese compliance with the ICC with partners who have influence over the Government of Sudan and will continue to reinforce these concerns.

Taliban

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to his recent comments in Pakistan, whether his officials are currently conducting talks with members of the Taliban or their associates in Afghanistan and Pakistan. [202645]

Dr. Howells: The Government support the approach of the Governments of Afghanistan and Pakistan in tackling Taliban and insurgent influence through a comprehensive method of addressing security, governance and development needs. We fully support President Karzai's efforts to bring disaffected Afghans into society's mainstream, providing they renounce violence and accept Afghanistan's constitution. As my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary made clear in his recent visit to Pakistan, we support the Government of Pakistan's plans to reconcile with people who are willing to participate in normal politics in a non-violent way. Such reconciliation should be designed to marginalise those who are using extremist means for ideological reasons.

USA: Lebanon

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the United States government on the deployment of US Navy warships along the coast of Lebanon. [202374]

Dr. Howells: Our officials discuss UK and US policy in Lebanon with their American counterparts on a regular basis, including the deployment of US naval vessels off the coast of Lebanon.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Responsibilities

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what work has been conducted by the Government Equalities Office on the Single Equalities Bill, excluding work conducted by the Equality and Human Rights Commission, the Women's National Commission, and the former Equalities Commissions. [201425]

Barbara Follett: Officials have been developing policy in light of the consultation on the Equality Bill's proposals and the Government plans to issue a formal response to the consultation in due course.

Equal Opportunities: EU Law

Lady Hermon: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what the timetable is for the implementation of the EU Gender Directive; and if she will make a statement. [201035]

Barbara Follett: The EU Gender Directive was implemented on 6 April 2008 by the Sex Discrimination (Amendment of Legislation) Regulations 2008. These regulations amended both the Sex Discrimination Act 1975 and the Sex Discrimination (Northern Ireland) Order 1976.

Lady Hermon: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government have taken to implement the EU Gender Directive. [201036]

Barbara Follett: The EU Gender Directive was implemented on 6 April 2008 by the Sex Discrimination (Amendment of Legislation) Regulations 2008. These regulations amended both the Sex Discrimination Act 1975 and the Sex Discrimination (Northern Ireland) Order 1976.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Bird and Bird

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what contracts were awarded by his Department to Bird and Bird Solicitors in each year since 2005; and what the (a) value and (b) duration of each such contract was. [201639]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions has not awarded contracts to Bird and Bird solicitors since 2005.

Children: Day Care

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of (a) pre-school age and (b) school-aged children in lower-income working families in England using formal child care in each year since 2004 as measured against the 2003-04 and 2004-05 averaged baseline; and what progress has been made towards meeting his Department's public service agreement target. [200819]

Mr. Timms: The data requested are not available.

Information relating to what progress has been made towards meeting this public service agreement target is available in the departmental Autumn Performance Report 2007. This is available in the Library and can also be viewed at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/publications/dwp/2007/autumnreport/full-report07.pdf

Figures showing progress towards public service agreement 3b will be available when the results of the 2007 Childcare Survey are published by the Department for Children, Schools and Families later this year.

Departmental Publications

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions on what date his Department published the Households Below Average Income annual statistics in each of the last six years; and on what date he plans to publish the statistics for 2006-07. [1] [199528]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The publication dates of the last six sets of households below average income statistics are given in the following table.

This year's statistics will be published in June. Publication has been delayed by additional validation and quality assurance checks of the data set. The date of publication has been announced on the National Statistics website, in line with the National Statistics Code of Practice.

Employment

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the employment rate of (a) lone parents, (b) ethnic minorities, (c) people aged over 50, (d) the 15 per cent. of the population with the lowest qualifications and (e) those living in wards with a benefit claim rate of 25 per cent. or above and wards in the 10 local authority districts with the lowest employment rates which have benefit claim rates between 20 and 25 per cent. was in each year since 2004 as measured against the baseline figures used to assess progress towards public service agreement target 4; and what progress has been made towards meeting this target. [200821]

Mr. Timms: Available information on the employment rate of lone parents, ethnic minorities, older workers, people with the lowest qualifications and people living in deprived areas in each year since 2004 as measured against the baseline figures used to assess progress towards public service agreement target 4 is shown in the following table.

The baseline for the targets set in the Comprehensive Spending Review 2004 was Quarter 2 2005. The Quarter 2 2004 data were measured against a different baseline.

Percentage

	Quarter 2 2004	Quarter 2 2005	Quarter 2 2006	Quarter 2 2007
Lone Parents	54.4	56.2	56.4	57.2
Ethnic Minorities	59.2	58.6	60.5	60.1
Older Workers (aged 50-69)	54.2	54.6	55.4	55.5

Deprived Areas	n/a	59.8	60.1	61.1

Notes:
1. The data are not seasonally adjusted so Q2 quarters are compared (as this is the baseline).
2. Quarter 2 2007 are the latest data available.
3. The data refer to Great Britain.
4. The PSA target covers people aged 50-69..

Information relating to what progress has been made towards meeting this target is available in the departmental Autumn Performance Report 2007. This is available in the Library and can also be viewed at:

Incapacity Benefits: Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the impact of (a) the Welfare Reform Act 2007 and (b) new guidance on the disability living allowance on the granting of benefits to people with myalgic encephalopathy. [201838]

Mr. Timms: The Welfare Reform Act 2007 contains provision for the creation of the new employment and support allowance. This will be supported by the new work capability assessment.

The work capability assessment will be a fair, robust and accurate assessment of limited capability for work which takes account of all conditions, including those that are long term and that fluctuate such as myalgic encephalopathy.

Employment and support allowance will replace incapacity benefits for new claimants from October 2008. No assessment of its impact can be made yet.

Updated medical guidance on myalgic encephalopathy for disability living allowance decision makers was published in July 2007. No assessment has been made of the impact of the guidance on entitlement to disability living allowance for people with myalgic encephalopathy.

Legal Profession

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the value of the contracts awarded by his Department to (a) Christine Lee and Co. solicitors, (b) Ward Hadaway solicitors, (c) Dean and Dean solicitors and (d) Lawford Kidd solicitors were in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [201635]

1. [Official Report, 15 May 2008, Vol. 475, c. 10MC.]

Mrs. McGuire: Information prior to 2005-06 is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Department for Work and Pensions has not awarded contracts to Christine Lee and Co. solicitors, Dean and Dean solicitors and Lawford Kidd solicitors in the last three years (2005-06, 2006-07, 2007-08).

Contracted expenditure with Ward Hadaway solicitors in each of the last three years was £28,520 in 2005-06, £5,979 in 2006-07 and £1,293 in 2007-08.

State Retirement Pensions

Mr. Quentin Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the incremental cost would be of allowing all those entitled to national insurance pensions to receive the annual increase in those pensions irrespective of place of residence. [202709]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The UK state pension is uprated for UK pensioners living overseas where there is a reciprocal social security agreement or a legal requirement to do so.

The current estimate to bring all frozen rate UK state pensions up to the current rate is around £440 million and this would be an ongoing cost increasing year on year.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what (a) surveys, (b) questionnaires and (c) other services were provided by polling companies for his Department in financial year 2007-08, broken down by company. [200008]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills was created as a result of machinery of government changes on 28 June, 2007.

From that date to the end of the financial year, the following services have been provided by polling companies for the Department. The research has informed the Department's information campaign to ensure potential students are aware of the financial support that is available.

Company name:	Type of research:
Continental Research	Two quantitative survey based projects
Define Research and Insight Ltd.	Three qualitative, focus group based research projects
Jigsaw	Two quantitative survey based projects. One to measure student and parent satisfaction with the student finance service and further work to inform the information campaign.
Seventy 2 Point	One qualitative survey based research project.

In addition to this SHM Ltd. organized five small "Student Jury" events (14-15 students per event) with current students to inform the work of the National Student Forum.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills with reference to the letter of 14 April 2008 to the hon. Member for Portsmouth South from his Department's Parliamentary Section, regarding the question tabled by the hon. Member on 1 April 2008 (198340), for what reason the question tabled by the hon. Member on 28 January 2008 (183633) on midwifery students, was not transferred to the Department of Health. [201944]

Mr. Lammy: The parliamentary team confirmed that they issued a notification of transfer to the hon. Member for PQ 183633 as with PQ 198340. Both of these PQs were transferred to the Department for Health and a response was sent to the hon. Member on 24 April, Official Report, columns 2084-86W.

Energy and Utility Skills Sector Skills Council

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Energy and Utility Sector Skills Council is taking to ensure that the UK has an adequate supply of people with the skills needed for the energy efficiency and renewable energy sectors. [202630]

Mr. Lammy: Energy and Utility Skills (E&U Skills) is one of several Sector Skills Councils (SSCs) which have a particular interest in the supply of skills needed for energy efficiency and renewable energy. E&U Skills is taking a number of steps which will help ensure that the skills needed in these areas are met.

In common with all SSCs, E&U Skills has developed a Sector Skills Agreement (SSA) which identifies the sector's current and future skills needs. The SSA, which is UK wide, provides a clear platform for education and skills agencies and providers to work with the sector on helping meet those needs. Following on from the SSA, E&U Skills, working with leading employers, are considering the case for a possible national skills academy for environmental industries, with initial discussions focussing on waste management and water. E&U Skills has also brokered the setting up of an employer-led Power Sector Skills Strategy Group, chaired by a senior manager from EOF Energy. Through these initiatives, EU Skills is engaging and consulting with its sector on developing arrangements that will lead to the renewable energy agenda being addressed throughout these industries.

On energy usage, E&U Skills is taking steps such as working with the Health and Safety Executive to ensure that the re-licensing of the gas registrar (currently CORGI) takes account of all the skills needs of gas installers. It is anticipated that the new registrar will be announced in the next few months.

Further Education: Finance

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether he plans to make intervention funding available to the Learning and Skills Council to support (a) further education colleges and (b) proposed mergers of further education colleges between 2008-09 and 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [202977]

Mr. Lammy: As the statutory planning and funding body for further education, it is for the Learning and Skills Council (LSC) to consider how it uses the funds it receives in line with stated priorities. The Department does not propose to make an additional budget available specifically for intervention at this point. Where it has been identified that a college may be underperforming, LSC will normally issue a notice to improve and support is provided to address the areas of weakness. This may be an improvement advisor appointed by the new FE improvement body or another support package drawn from other improvement services, depending on the circumstances. Strategic options, which may include formal collaboration with another institution, may also be explored. Intervention powers will apply only in the most serious cases of underperformance where a college has not made the required progress against the notice to improve, and the LSC and the governing body cannot agree a way forward.

While there is no specific fund to support merger proposals, the LSC may decide to support the development of proposals in a number of ways e.g. support for feasibility studies.

Ipsos MORI

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the answer of 2 April 2008, Official Report, columns 998-9W, on Ipsos MORI, what proportion of his Department's consultancy expenditure to date has involved payments to Ipsos MORI. [203110]

Mr. Lammy: The Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS) was created as a result of Machinery of Government changes in June 2007. The Department is in the process of producing the 2007-08 Resource Accounts. The accounts report both the 2007-08 outturn and 2006-07 comparatives. Until the accounts are completed we are unable to provide the proportion that Ipsos MORI expenditure accounted for as the total of consultancy expenditure for the Department, to do so would be at disproportionate cost.

Land Use

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether the Foresight Land Use Futures project will review (a) Green Belt protection, (b) other land use designations and (c) rural re-rating. [203134]

Ian Pearson: The Foresight Land Use Futures project will take a long-term (25 to 50 years), system-wide view, to explore how our use of land may need to evolve to meet future challenges and how it can deliver economic, social and environmental benefits sustainably.

By combining the most up to date scientific evidence with well-informed exploratory futures work it will assist policymakers in developing robust and resilient strategies, policies and priorities.

The project was announced by Professor John Beddington earlier this month and its detailed scope will be confirmed in June. It is a futures project and, as such, will not scrutinise specific existing policies or immediate policy questions. It will focus on developing an understanding of land use systems, the factors that may drive future changes and the opportunities and risks associated with those futures.

Further information as and when it becomes available will be posted at http://www.foresight.gov.uk/LandUse/LandUse.html

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what (a) processes and (b) criteria will be used to select the (i) high level stakeholder group and (ii) expert advisory group for the Foresight Land Use Futures project. [203135]

Ian Pearson: The information requested is as follows:

(i) Foresight Land Use Futures high level stakeholder group

The Foresight Land Use Futures project covers a wide range of issues. The process for selecting members for the high level stakeholder group has included consideration of the issues and range of interests potentially involved, consultation with the sponsoring Departments, DEFRA and CLG, consultation with expert and professional communities and UK Research Councils. The criteria were designed to ensure a balance of interests such as rural and urban, environmental and commercial, public and private sector. Details of membership will be posted on the website in due course.

There are a large number of other organisations who will contribute to and be communicated with on a regular basis as a wider stakeholder community for the project

(ii) Foresight Land Use Futures lead expert group

Foresight projects draw upon a large network of leading experts in the UK and internationally, from a wide range of scientific and other disciplines, in order to ensure that the work is of the highest technical and scientific standard. A small lead expert group, will work closely with the Foresight team throughout the life of the project to steer the technical work and contribute to the analysis. Members of the lead expert group demonstrate high academic standing in the relevant discipline areas and have capacity to commit up to four days per month to the project. Experience of bringing academic evidence to bear on public policy is also desirable.

The lead expert group for this project has not yet been constituted. The Government's Chief Scientific Adviser will invite individuals to join this group once the formal project scope has been confirmed by the high level stakeholder group and the key disciplines agreed. Again, the membership of the group will be posted on the website.

Learning and Skills Council for England: Finance

Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much intervention funding he plans to make available to each regional and sub-regional learning and skills council to support further education college mergers and other exceptional circumstances in each of the years of the current comprehensive spending review period. [203390]

Mr. Lammy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer to his question 202977. As stated in that answer, the Department does not propose to make an additional budget available specifically for intervention at this point and there is no specific fund to support merger proposals.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many academies use selection by (a) aptitude, (b) local banding and (c) area banding in admissions; and if he will make a statement. [201047]

Jim Knight: Academies must abide by the schools admissions code as it applies to maintained schools, which includes statutory requirements on selection by aptitude and selection using banding.

Over-subscription criteria are included in each academy's funding agreement. Of the 83 open academies, if over-subscribed, 17 academy funding agreements allow for selection of 10 per cent. of pupils by aptitude in a relevant specialism; 26 allow for banding by reference to the ability range of applicants and three allow for banding with reference to the national ability range. There are no funding agreements that allow for banding with reference to the ability range of pupils in the local area.

Children: Day Care

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children aged (a) three and (b) four years old were in daycare settings for more than 12.5 hours a week in (i) Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency and (ii) Bexley borough in each of the last 10 years. [203565]

Beverley Hughes: Information on the number and proportion of children aged three and four years old attending private, voluntary and independent settings for more than 12.5 hours a week was not collected prior to 2004. From 2004, data are available for four-year-old children only.

The available information about the number of three and four-year-olds in free early education, in private, voluntary and independent providers, by number of sessions and local authority area were published in Statistical First Release (SFR) 19/2007 "Provision for children under five years of age in England: January 2007", available on my Department's website at: www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000729/index .shtml The number of four-year-olds accessing five or more sessions can be found in table 6. Information for 2004-06 can be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which local authorities have not completed a sufficiency assessment of childcare provision; and if he will make a statement. [202139]

Beverley Hughes: I am advised that all local authorities have completed sufficiency assessments of childcare provision in their areas and have published them, as the Childcare Act 2006 requires, on their websites. I understand, however, that three local authorities have not yet published their assessments in final form because they are still awaiting formal clearance from the appropriate council body.

Children: Employment

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when the Government plans to publish new guidance on child employment. [201865]

Beverley Hughes: We plan to publish new guidance on child employment later this year.

Children's Centres

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many children aged (a) under one, (b) one year old, (c) two years old, (d) three years old, (e) four years old, (f) five years old and (g) more than five years old attended children's centres in each year for which figures are available; [202828]

(2) how many children attended each children's centre in each year for which figures are available; [202829]

(3) how many and what proportion of children attending children's centres were in the care of a local authority in each year for which figures are available; [202830]

(4) how many and what proportion of children attending children's centres were from socio-economic groups four to seven in each year for which figures are available; [202831]

(5) how many and what proportion of children attending children's centres were from black, minority or ethnic backgrounds in each year for which figures are available. [202833]

Beverley Hughes: Sure Start Children's Centres offer a wide range of services to children and families, including childcare, health and family support services. The Department does not collect data on all children attending children's centres. However the Childcare and Early Years Providers survey does provide some data on children attending full day care provision in children's centres.

The 2006 Childcare and Early Years Providers survey estimated that there were 40,050 children attending full day care provision in Sure Start Children's Centres in England. At 31 March 2006 there were 836 designated children's centres.

Table 1: Percentage of children attending full day care provision in Sure Start Children's Centres, by age—2006

	Percentage
Under 2 years old	21
2 years old	29
3 years old	28

Table 1: Percentage of children attending full day care provision in Sure Start Children's Centres, by age—2006

	Percentage
4 years old	16
5-7 years old	2
8 years old and over	2

Note:
Percentages may not sum to 100 per cent due to rounding.

The 2006 Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey estimated that there were approximately 10,250 children from a black and minority ethnic group attending full day care provision in children's centres, an average of 24 per cent. of children per setting.

The Childcare and Early Years Providers survey does not collect information about children in care or children's socio-economic groups.

Data for previous years are not available; children's centres were included in the survey for the first time in 2006.

Local authorities are responsible for the performance management of children's centres. To support them in this, and to encourage a systematic approach, we issued "Planning and Performance Management Guidance" in November 2006 including a framework of performance indicators reflecting the every child matters (ECM) outcomes, national public service agreement targets, and key activities for centres for example reaching excluded groups in their area; and a self evaluation form for centres to complete and discuss with their local authority. In line with the proposals in "Strong and Prosperous Communities", the local government White Paper published in October 2006, we are moving to a more streamlined and proportionate performance management regime with a new national indicator set which includes indicators relating to Sure Start Children's Centres.

Children's Centres: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the provision of children's centres in Bexley borough; and if he will make a statement. [203386]

Beverley Hughes: During the period 2003-08, Bexley local authority developed 12 Sure Start children's centres, offering a wide range of services to children and families including child care, health and family support services. Further centres will be developed over the next two years (2008-10), which will ensure that there are sufficient centres to meet the needs of all pre-school children in their area.

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people were serving on the boards of the non-departmental public bodies which his Department sponsors at the latest date for which figures are available. [203600]

Jim Knight: The Cabinet Office publication "Public bodies 2007" lists the number of people serving on the boards of public bodies as at 31 March 2007, the latest date for which figures are available. These figures are broken down by individual Departments. "Public bodies 2007" can be downloaded from www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp Copies are also available in the Library of the House. The Department was created in June 2007; the figures in "Public Bodies 2007" relate to the former Department for Education and Skills (DfES). The names of the NDPBs for which my Department is now responsible are listed on my Department's website at: http://www.dfes.gov.uk/ndpb/ The DfES's "Public Bodies 2007" is also on this website page.

Nurseries: Standards

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of (a) maintained and (b) independent nurseries were rated by Ofsted as (i) outstanding, (ii) good, (iii) satisfactory and (iv) poor in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [202182]

Beverley Hughes: This is a matter for Ofsted. HM Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and a copy of her reply has been placed in the Library.

Nursery Schools

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many nursery schools (a) opened and (b) closed in each of the last 10 years. [201853]

Beverley Hughes: The number of maintained nursery schools notified to the Department as opening and closing in each of the last 10 years are provided in the following tables.

Schools can be opened and closed for a number of reasons including: to meet demographic changes (population decline); as part of an amalgamation; to allow a Fresh Start school to replace a school in special measures; to allow a school with a religious character to replace a school without a religious character; or as part of another type of local reorganisation.

Local authorities were responsible for the registration and inspection of children's day care facilities until these responsibilities were transferred to Ofsted in September 2001. With the introduction of the National Day Care Standards and the transfer of responsibilities for registration and inspection of child care providers from local authority social service departments to Ofsted in September 2001, child care places were classified according to the type of provider.

Olympic Games 2012: Education

Jeremy Corbyn: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions he has had with the Minister for the Olympics on the educational legacy of the 2012 Olympic Games. [203346]

Jim Knight: I have had one meeting with the Minister for the Olympics to discuss the education legacy of the 2012 games.

Officials from my Department are currently in discussion with the Government Olympic Executive and the London Organising Committee of the Games on the development of a detailed Education Delivery Plan to support the successful delivery of PSA 22 and the Legacy Action Plan indicators for which the Minister for the Olympics is responsible.

TREASURY

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what arrangements exist for the Valuation Office Agency to make the council tax list for England and Wales available to third parties for value-added use; and if he will make a statement. [200842]

Jane Kennedy: Council tax valuation lists for England and Wales are available to search on the Valuation Office Agency's website at no cost. Full copies of lists are not otherwise available without a statutory gateway.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many dwellings in each local authority area in Wales have moved up one or more bands as a result of council tax band amendments subsequent to the 2005 council tax revaluation. [203116]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plot size attribute information the Valuation Office Agency's TENET mapping software provides for council tax valuations and revaluations. [203128]

Jane Kennedy: TENET mapping software can calculate plot size for domestic properties where that is relevant to the market value of a dwelling.

Departmental Consultants

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consultancy contracts his Department issued in each year since 2005; what the (a) value, (b) purpose and (c) contractor was in each case; and whether the consultant's report is publicly available in each case. [181895]

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what contracts were awarded by his Department to (a) KPMG, (b) PricewaterhouseCoopers, (c) Ernst and Young, (d) McKinsey, (e) Deloitte and (f) other consultancy firms in each of the last 12 months; and what the (i) purpose and (ii) value was of each of these contracts. [196591]

Angela Eagle: The Treasury awarded the following consultancy contracts in 2007:

Purpose	Supplier	Estimated contract value (£)
Managerial Training	Management Tests and Surveys Ltd.	13,000

Details of consultancy contracts awarded in 2005 and 2006 could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The Treasury's spending on consultancy since 2001-02 is set out in Table 7.4 on page 91 of the 2006-07 Annual Report and Accounts, available from:

Departmental ICT

Sarah Teather: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2579W, on departmental ICT, how many of the missing or stolen (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistants have been replaced by his Department; and at what cost. [202438]

Angela Eagle: It would be normal practice to replace these items, but there is no record kept which would distinguish an order for a replacement item from a new requirement. The estimated cost of replacement for all these items was given in the answer of 5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2580W on departmental property.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps he has taken to ensure that counterfeit routers and other counterfeit hardware are not utilised in his Department's computer networks. [203243]

Angela Eagle: Equipment installed on HM Treasury IT networks is subject to operational and security testing before it is introduced into live service. In addition HM Treasury procures computer hardware from reputable companies under framework agreements established and managed by OGC Buying Solutions (part of the Office of Government Commerce,).

Enterprise Investment Scheme

Stephen Williams: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans he has to review the (a) Enterprise Investment Scheme and (b) Enterprise Management Incentive to (i) meet the needs of entrepreneurial investment and (ii) retain the engagement of business angels and venture capital funds. [202817]

Jane Kennedy: Government keep all schemes that give tax relief under review. Evaluations of the Enterprise Investment Scheme (EIS) and the Enterprise Management Incentives (EMI) scheme have recently been published on the HMRC website.

Budget 2008 announced:

a consultation on how EIS could be made simpler and more accessible;

an increase in the annual investor limit of EIS from £400,000 to £500,000 to further stimulate investment in smaller, higher-risk companies; and an increase in the individual option grant limit of EMI from £100,000 to £120,000 to help smaller higher-risk companies recruit and retain key employees.

Gift Aid

Lady Hermon: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effect on charities of the change in the Gift Aid rate which entered into force on 6 April 2008. [202879]

Jane Kennedy: The precise impact on charities will depend on the behavioural reactions of donors and charities to the recent changes. Gross Gift Aid donations to charities are currently expected to increase year on year and were expected to do so even without the Budget 2008 announcements.

The Budget 2008 announcement of a transitional relief enabling Gift Aid to be paid at a transitional rate for 2008-09, 2009-10 and 2010-11 donations, will offset the effect on Gift Aid of the fall in the basic rate of income tax over the next three years. The estimated financial impact of this is published in table A.1 of the HMT 2008 Financial Statement and Budget Report at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/2/5/bud08_chaptera.pdf

Budget 2008 also announced a package of measures aimed at driving up Gift Aid including major reform to the auditing process; a programme for bringing more smaller charities into Gift Aid; redesign of guidance and outreach to 5,000 new charities through the launch of targeted marketing tools.

Government Departments: Land

Mr. Maples: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what requirements there are on Government departments to include a development uplift clause when they sell land which might be developed to provide for part of any gain in value from a grant of planning permission to be paid to the Government; whether moneys paid under such provisions are retained by the selling department; and whether there is a standard percentage of uplift in value which is included. [203653]

Angela Eagle: OGC supports departments engaged in the disposal of surplus land and property by providing detailed guidance, which helps departments to identify when and how to include uplift provisions in contracts for sale.

Treasury and OGC require departments to identify future disposals and plan to use the receipts, however, Treasury approval would be required if prior to disposal a department had not obtained Estimates cover for spending receipts.

Income

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of household income came from (a) tax credits, (b) means-tested benefits, (c) other benefits, (d) earned income excluding tax credits and (e) other sources in each year since 2003-04, broken down by (i) income quintile and (ii) income decile. [196462]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 26 March 2008]: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is given in the following tables. In all categories the percentage of household income made up of benefits is decreasing year on year as more people move into work and families can benefit from wages not benefits.

Notes:
1. The incomes used employ the same methodology as the Department for Work and Pensions publication 'Households Below Average Income' (HBAI) series, which uses disposable household income, adjusted (or "equivalised") for household size and composition, as an income measure as a proxy for standard of living.
2. Income has been equivalised using OECD equalisation factors.
3. The information shown is for the United Kingdom.
4. Quintiles are income values which divide the population, when ranked by income, into five equal-sized groups. The lowest quintile describes individuals with incomes in the bottom 20 per cent. of the income distribution. Deciles are income values which divide the population, when ranked by income, into 10 equal-sized groups. The lowest decile describes individuals with incomes in the bottom 10 per cent. of the income distribution.
5. All statistics are rounded to the nearest percentage point. Percentages may not sum to 100 because of this rounding.
6. Earnings exclude tax credits, but include income from self-employment. Remaining income includes incomes from investments, (non-state) pensions and remaining income not classified elsewhere.
7. Small changes in estimates from year to year, particularly at the bottom of the distribution, may not be significant because of data uncertainties such as sampling errors.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Lynne Jones: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what mechanisms he is considering for compensating people who are (a) carers and (b) retirees between the ages of 50 and 59 years who are paying more tax as a result of the abolition of the 10 per cent. starting rate. [202756]

Jane Kennedy: The Chancellor wrote to the Chairman of the House of Commons Treasury Committee on 23 April to outline that the Government intends to do more to help low-income households.

The letter made clear that a report into the issue will be published in time for the pre-Budget report and that the Chancellor will report back to the House of Commons in the pre-Budget report.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what compensation is planned for retired people over the age of 65 years who are adversely affected by the abolition of the 10 pence income tax rate. [203394]

Jane Kennedy: Budget 2007 announced increases in age-related income tax allowances for those aged 65 or over by £1,180 above indexation in April 2008, removing around 600,000 pensioners from paying tax. As a result of personal tax and benefit measures announced in Budget 2007, by April 2008 pensioner households will be, on average, £80 per year better off.

The Government have made clear that it intends to do more to help low-income households affected by the removal of the 10p starting rate of income tax, including pensioners aged 60-64. The Chancellor's letter to John McFall of the Treasury Select Committee made clear that a report into the issue will be published in the run-up to the pre-Budget report, and that the Chancellor will report back to the House in the pre-Budget report.

Insurance: VAT

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what value of VAT receipts have been received by his Department from insurance claims from the flooding in summer 2007. [202893]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs does not collect data on VAT from individual goods and services.

The extent to which spending related to the floods and funded by insurance claims might impact on overall VAT receipts is unclear given the need to take into account a broad and complex range of reclaim, offsetting and displacement factors over a reasonable period of time. As such, no assessment has been made.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he will reply to the letter dated 19 March 2008, regarding VAT paid by Mercia Inshore Search and Rescue on equipment and services (PO Ref: 1/55630/2008). [203395]

Jane Kennedy: I replied to the hon. Member on 30 April.

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to answer the letter of 10 March 2008 from the right hon. Member for Manchester Gorton, with regard to Mrs. N. Hussain. [203887]

Jane Kennedy: I replied to the right hon. Member on 24 April.

Revenue and Customs: Telephone Services

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has been raised by the introduction of the premium rate 0845 telephone number at HM Revenue and Customs; and if he will make a statement. [203310]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs do not operate any premium rate telephone services and raise no revenue through the use of 0845 business rate lines.

Tax Yields: Sustainable Development

Alan Duncan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what forecast he has made of the revenue which will accrue to his Department as a result of the (a) Carbon Emissions Reduction Target, (b) Renewables Obligation, (c) European Union Emissions Trading Scheme and (d) Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation in 2008. [201490]

Angela Eagle: No revenue is generated for the Treasury by the Carbon Emissions Reduction Target (CERT). The purpose of CERT is to help electricity and gas consumers in the household sector to reduce the carbon impact (footprint) of their home by using energy more efficiently, reducing consumption and using energy from renewable sources. Specifically, CERT is an obligation on energy suppliers to achieve an overall target of 154 $MtCO_2$ lifetime reduction in carbon emissions, equivalent to annual net savings of 4.2 $MtCO_2$ by 2010, and will stimulate about £2.8 billion of investment by energy suppliers in promoting carbon reduction measures. Suppliers must direct at least 40 per cent. of carbon savings to a priority group of low-income and elderly consumers, contributing to the alleviation of fuel poverty. Overall around £1.5 billion is expected to be directed at the priority group.

There are no revenues generated from the Renewables Obligation (RO). The RO places an obligation on UK suppliers of electricity to source an increasing proportion of their electricity from renewable sources. Suppliers can comply with their obligation either by presenting ROCs or by paying a buyout amount. Any revenue generated by these buyouts is redistributed to suppliers depending on the number of ROCs they present against their obligation.

In Phase II of the EU Emissions Trading Scheme, which runs from 2008 to 2012, Government will auction 7 per cent. of allowances. This equates to approximately 85 million allowances, plus those allowances from installations that close during Phase II and any unused surplus from the New Entrant Reserve (NER). The total amount cannot exceed 10 per cent. of the number allocated during Phase II according to the terms of the EU ETS Directive 2003/87/EC. The amount of revenue will be influenced by the market price of carbon at the time of the auctions.

The Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation does not generate revenue. It places a legal obligation on transport fuel suppliers to supply a specified proportion of their road fuel supplies to their customers in the UK from renewable energy sources. Suppliers demonstrate their compliance through a certification system using 'Renewable Transport Fuel Certificates' (RTFCs). Suppliers can choose to 'buy out' of their obligation, with moneys collected through this going into a 'buy out fund'. The fund will be recycled among obligated companies in proportion to actual fulfilment of the Obligation through the redemption of certificates.

Taxation: Land

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent research his Department has conducted into land value taxation. [203049]

Jane Kennedy: The Treasury keeps a range of tax options under consideration in the course of its policy making process.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 17 March 2008, Official Report, column 898W, on the Valuation Office, on what date the automated valuation model was last calibrated. [203120]

Jane Kennedy: Automated valuation model technology used by the Valuation Office Agency has allowed calibration to be undertaken at many and different times throughout the country with several models having been adopted. Accordingly, there is no single date that can be given.

Valuation Office: ICT

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency's Valuebill interface applies to (a) England or (b) England and Wales. [203114]

Jane Kennedy: It applies to England and Wales.

Valuation Office: Northern Ireland Land and Property Services

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what meetings representatives of the Valuation Office Agency have had with Northern Ireland Land and Property Services in the last 12 months. [203118]

Jane Kennedy: Representatives of the Valuation Office Agency have met with representatives of the Northern Ireland Land and Property Services on 8 occasions in the last 12 months. The meetings were to discuss valuation issues and practices common to the public sector.

Valuation Office: Procurement

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency's purchase orders are recorded in an electronic database. [203132]

Jane Kennedy: They are.

Valuation Office: Standards

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's customer services manual. [203129]

Jane Kennedy: The agency's customer service manual is currently being comprehensively rewritten, and this rewrite is expected to be complete next month, whereupon the updated version will be published on the VOA website.

VAT: Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much has accrued to the Exchequer from value added tax receipts on (a) home information packs and (b) energy performance certificates to date. [203126]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs does not collect data on VAT from individual goods and services.

VAT: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the revenue to the Exchequer from value added tax charged on repairs to flood-damaged property in 2007. [203117]

Jane Kennedy: No estimate has been made.

Welfare Tax Credits: Finance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will break down the prepared total managed expenditure 2006 to 2011 as included in Budget 2008 Table C9, for tax credits, by funding allocated for (a) working tax credit and (b) child tax credit, excluding the allocation for child allowances in income support and jobseeker's allowance. [202702]

Jane Kennedy: The figures in Table C9 are of net payments on a cash basis. The detailed information needed to break these down between child tax credit and working tax credit is not available.

However, Table 3.1 at Note 3 to the HMRC Trust Statement for 2006-07 shows the full breakdown for HMRC expenditure in that year on an accruals basis. Note that these figures exclude the payments of child allowances in income support and jobseeker's allowance, which are included in the tax credits figure shown in table C9, as explained in footnote 1 to that table.

Welfare Tax Credits: Telephone Services

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1691W, on welfare tax credits: telephone services, whether the staffing cost for 2006-07 is for both the claimants and the hon. Members' tax credit helpline. [202878]

Jane Kennedy: The staffing costs in my previous answer related only to the claimants tax credit helpline.

The other data are not available in the format requested as the information cannot be disaggregated from other costs. The number of staff on the tax credit office MP hotline fluctuates according to demand and advisers are assigned other tasks during less busy periods.

Working Tax Credit

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many and what proportion of people claimed working tax credit in (a) Basingstoke constituency, (b) Hampshire and (c) England in each year for which records are available; [203101]

(2) how many and what proportion of people claimed working tax credit in (a) Bexleyheath and Crayford and (b) the London Borough of Bexley in each year for which records are available. [203382]

Jane Kennedy: Tax Credit take-up rate estimates are not available at constituency or local authority level.

Estimates of Child and Working Tax Credit take-up rates for 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06, by country and region, are produced in table 9 of the HMRC publications "Child Tax Credit and Working Tax Credit. Take-up Statistics", which are published on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-take-up.htm

Estimates of the number of families with tax credit awards, by constituency, local authority and country, based on final family circumstances and incomes, are available in the HMRC publications "Child and Working Tax Credits. Finalised Awards. Geographical Analysis" for the years 2003-04, 2004-05 and 2005-06. These publications and provisional estimates for the number of families, by constituency, with tax credit awards as at selected dates up to April 2008 are available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

Working Tax Credit: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in Enfield North constituency receive working tax credit. [202859]

Jane Kennedy: In 2005-06, the average number of families receiving working tax credits in the Enfield North constituency was 2,500.

This information is from the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Annual Awards 2005-06. Geographical Analysis", which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

The same information for 2006-07 is due to be published on 20 May 2008.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which items are prohibited from being (a) posted, (b) shipped in military transport and (c) individually carried from (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan by (A) members of the armed forces and (B) departmental civilians. [203212]

Des Browne: All armed forces personnel and MOD staff are subject to stringent internationally recognised civilian standards with regards to posting, shipping in military transport and individually carrying items from any theatre of operations. The criteria are defined in the appropriate dangerous goods regulations. The nature of military operations necessitate for national security and operational reasons, some key exemptions such as movement of munitions by air, which are defined in Joint Service Publication 367 for postal and Joint Service Publication 800 for movements and transport.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of airbridge flights for personnel serving in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan have been delayed, broken down by number of hours delayed. [203219]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Punctuality data for airbridge flights to and from Iraq and Afghanistan over the last 12 months are set out in the following table:

	Op Telic (Iraq)	Op Herrick (Afghanistan)
		Percentage
On time or less than one hour's delay	83	72
Between one and three hours delay	11	11
Between three and six hours delay	3	7
More than six hours delay	4	11

Punctuality is measured against the scheduled time of arrival. Percentages have been rounded and may therefore not total 100 per cent.

The airbridge has provided a consistent and reliable service over the period, moving large numbers of personnel and material into hostile environments under difficult conditions and over strategic distances. Every effort is made to minimise delays.

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) fully-armed and (b) partially-armed personnel carriers have been lost due to (i) enemy fire and (ii) accidents in (A) Afghanistan and (B) Iraq since 2003. [203233]

Des Browne [holding answer 1 May 2008]: I am withholding the information requested as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of Taliban insurgents killed by British forces in Afghanistan since 2001. [203657]

Des Browne: We do not routinely collate data on the number of insurgents killed by UK forces in Afghanistan. Collecting accurate information would be extremely difficult, given the dynamic nature of the conflict. As we have repeatedly made clear, the long term means to defeat the insurgency in Afghanistan is through a wide range of military and non-military activities and not through an attritional military campaign. In many instances, therefore, the inevitable risks to our service personnel from trying accurately to collect the information required to answer this question outweigh the benefits from obtaining that data.

Aircraft Carriers

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he last reduced specifications on the new aircraft carriers. [203332]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Officials agreed the latest version of the ship specification for the new aircraft carriers with industry in January 2008.

Armed Forces

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the latest Chief of the General Staff Briefing Team Report. [200934]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Yes. I shall place a copy of the most recently published Chief of the General Staff's Briefing Team report, covering the second half of 2007 in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Graduates

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many university graduates joined (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Navy and (c) the Royal Air Force in each of the last five years. [203615]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Housing

Angus Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) rules, (b) procedures and (c) standards set up by his Department are for (i) quality evaluation, (ii) maintenance and (iii) allocation of housing; when these were last (A) reviewed and (B) modified; and if he will make a statement. [196972]

Derek Twigg: This Department keeps its estate under constant review to ensure that it is of the right size and quality to meet defence needs. All 70,193 Service Families Accommodation (SFA) properties worldwide are assessed by Grade for Charge (GfC), which takes account the physical condition of the accommodation and other factors such as location and closeness to amenities.

There are four levels of GfC, one being the highest and four the lowest. The "Four Tier Grading System" (4TG) is normally reviewed every four years and the Services agree how changes, which have taken place during the previous four years, will be reflected in the 4TG Regulations and whether the scoring criteria should be reviewed. However, this Department is currently conducting a review of the 4TG to ensure it is transparent and simple to understand.

Maintenance of SFA worldwide is carried-out under a number of separate contractual arrangements. The majority of properties are maintained by Modern Housing Solutions (MHS) who provide a response maintenance service to occupants via a freephone Helpdesk which prioritises calls on an emergency, urgent or routine basis. MHS also carries out planned maintenance, such as the replacement of items such as boilers and kitchens.

MHS is contractually required to provide this Department with monthly performance statistics and is subject to spot checks and percentage audits of work completed and in progress to ensure that contractual conditions and standards are being met.

Regulations governing the allocation and occupation of Service accommodation are set out in Tri-Service Accommodation Regulations (Joint Service Publication 464) which is reviewed continually, and was last updated in September 2007.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British service personnel were serving as part of (a) UN and (b) NATO forces at the latest date for which figures are available; and where such forces are stationed. [203656]

Des Browne: As at 28 April 2008 there were 300 UK service personnel deployed on UN operations, 280 of whom were located in Cyprus. Other locations include Georgia, Nepal, Sudan, Sierra Leone, Democratic Republic of Congo and Liberia.

As at 28 April 2008 there were 9,050 UK service personnel serving as part of NATO forces, of which 8,900 were located in Afghanistan and 150 were located in the Balkans region.

The figure for Afghanistan is artificially high due to the handover period while Relief In Place (RIP) is in operation. The number of personnel in theatre will naturally fluctuate on a daily basis for a variety of reasons, including leave (rest and recuperation), temporary absence for training, evacuation for medical reasons, the roulement of forces and other factors.

Armed Forces: Uniforms

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which country each part of the Combat Soldier 95 uniform is manufactured. [203405]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Combat Soldier 95 uniforms are part of the Cut and Sew contract awarded to Cooneen Watts and Stone Ltd. in June 2004. The majority of the items are manufactured in China, with some small quantities being made in the UK and Lithuania.

Armed Forces: Young People

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many school leavers joined the (a) Army, (b) Royal Navy and (c) Royal Air Force in each of the last five years. [203658]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

AWE Burghfield

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will propose changes to the (a) management and (b) procedures and systems at Atomic Weapons Establishment Burghfield to reduce the likelihood of any future necessary cessation of services on safety grounds; and if he will make a statement. [202083]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The nuclear site licensee at AWE Burghfield is AWE plc, which manages the site under Government owned/contractor operated arrangements. The external regulator, the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate (NII), is satisfied that operations are safe and has not taken action to stop live nuclear work at AWE Burghfield. Ministry of Defence officials maintain a constant dialogue with AWE plc and NII colleagues. There is therefore no reason for ministerial intervention.

Defence Estates: Charities

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his Department's policy on charging charities to host fundraising events on Ministry of Defence property is. [202383]

Derek Twigg: The Department's policy on charging is set out in JSP 368, the MOD Guide to Repayment, a copy of which is available in the Library of the House. Where services/facilities are provided to external organisations (including charities), the full costs of those services/facilities should normally be recovered. Consideration is given to abating charges if the benefit to the MOD justifies it.

Departmental Contracts

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which companies have been given strategic partner status by his Department. [202003]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Ministry of Defence has strategic partnering arrangements with BAE Systems, AgustaWestland and EADS. The latter is an agreement between EADS and HM Government.

Departmental Freedom of Information

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much has been spent by his Department on the appeal to the Information Tribunal in Campaign Against Arms Trade vs The Information Commissioner and Ministry of Defence (EA/2007/40); and what fees have been paid to his Department's counsel in this case. [202699]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Legal fees incurred up to the end of March 2008 in defending the appeal brought by the Campaign Against the Arms Trade were £35,155.12. These are made up of £26,391.29 paid to the Treasury Solicitor and £8,763.83 paid to counsel.

Departmental Information Officers

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 1 April 2008, Official Report, columns 796W, on what pay bands are applied to press officers in (a) his Department and (b) regional press offices; and how many press officers are in each band. [199668]

Derek Twigg: The Pay bands and number of Press Officers in each band is set out in the following table. This includes staff employed in the Central Press Office in London and Regional Defence Press Officers.

Pay Bands from 1 August 2007

Pay Band	Minima	Maxima	Press Officer Numbers
E2	12,694	19,315	0
D	19,315	26,626	0
C2	24,725	33,253	13
C1	31,650	40,515	4
B2	41,528	54,488	10
B1	50,958	68,048	1
SCS ML1	55,100	116,000	1
Total:			29

It does not include those employed as press officers in the Defence Agencies, the Permanent Joint Head Quarters, single Service Commands or at Unit level, some of whom have a press officer task in addition to their main role.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based; [200751]

(2) what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91; [200752]

(3) what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement; [200753]

(4) what the effect on his Department's expenditure would be of increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which his Department is responsible by 1 per cent.; and if he will make a statement; [200754]

(5) what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in his Department and its Executive agencies; and if he will make a statement. [200755]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence is only responsible for the Armed Forces Pension Scheme (AFPS). The Cabinet Office has responsibility for the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS). The information requested on the AFPS is contained within the AFPS resource accounts which are available in the Library of the House. The first set of resource accounts produced for the AFPS was for financial year 1998-99. These were un-audited as this was regarded as a 'dry run' for resource accounting within the MOD.

None was produced prior to this and therefore information is only available from this date. The first formal set of AFPS resource accounts to be published was in financial year 1999-2000.

It should also be noted that the AFPS is a non-contributory pension scheme and as such, the only contributions made are those made by the employer, which in this case is the MOD.

The total cash equivalent transfer value (CETV) for the pensions of the 11 highest paid members of the MOD totalled some £13.945 million as at 31 March 2008. Many of these individuals are named in the remuneration reports that form part of the MOD's resource accounts and the cash equivalent transfer value of their public sector pensions is therefore reported annually. The remuneration reports are already in the public domain. I have reported 11 highest paid members of staff because the 10th and 11th members of staff are on the same salary rate. The CETV figure given includes both armed forces and civilian personnel.

Departmental Sick Leave

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many working days were lost by his Department due to stress-related illness in each of the last 24 months; [198939]

(2) how many of his Department's staff took more than (a) five, (b) 10, (c) 15, (d) 20, (e) 25, (f) 30, (g) 35 and (h) 40 days leave due to stress in each of the last five years, broken down by pay grade. [198968]

Derek Twigg: The MOD reports sickness absence figures over a 12 month period on a quarterly basis and does not report working days lost on a monthly basis. The MOD does not have a specific sickness absence code for stress. Stress falls within the Mental and Behavioural Disorders ICD10 category, which includes anxiety, depression and stress. The following table shows the number of working days lost for Ministry of Defence Civilian personnel[1] which was attributed to Mental and Behavioural Disorders ICD10 category for the 12 month period preceding each quarter point.

[1] This includes all permanent and casual non-industrial and industrial civilian personnel, but excludes Trading Fund (except the 31 December 2007 figure), Locally Engaged Civilian and Royal Fleet Auxiliary personnel.

Total working days lost due to Mental and Behavioural disorders in the preceding 12 month period

Qtr ending	Industrial	Non-industrial	Total
31 December 2005	24,680	79,670	104,340
30 March 2006	23,070	76,620	99,690
30 June 2006	22980	75,390	98,380
30 September 2006	21,730	74,950	96,680
31 December 2006	24,730	74,640	99,370
30 March 2007	25,640	105,150	[1]130,790
30 June 2007	24,530	102,790	127,320
30 September 2007	25,510	102,990	128,500
31 December 2007	25,380	99,570	[2]135,040

[1] Figures from March 2007 onwards are calculated using the Cabinet Office definition of Working Days. Figures prior to this are calculated using the Standardised definition.

[2] Total includes Trading Fund personnel, due to a change in definition. Industrial and non-industrial totals may differ from previously published figures for 2007 due to this change in definition.

Data on the number of staff who took between five and 40 days sick leave due to stress could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Eco-Towns

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether his Department owns land in any of the 15 locations short-listed as possible eco-towns. [201840]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence (MOD) owns land in four of the 15 potential locations short-listed as possible eco-towns.

Serial	Proposed eco-town	MOD establishment
1	Bordon-Whitehill, Hampshire	Bordon Garrison
2	Weston-Otmoor, Oxfordshire	RAF Weston on the Green
3	Rushcliffe, Nottinghamshire	RAF Newton
4	Leeds City Region	RAF Church Fenton

The Department also has a residual legal interest in the land at former RAF Coltishall. This is being transferred under departmental agreement for use by the Ministry of Justice, but we have yet to convey the freehold to the new owner.

HMS Endurance

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of time HMS Endurance was (a) at sea and (b) undergoing maintenance in each year since 1997. [203404]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The percentage of time HMS Endurance spent at sea and undergoing support maintenance in each year since 1997 was as follows:

1997	42	15
1998	38	9
1999	26	49
2000	42	3
2001	42	11
2002	47	17
2003	51	11
2004	28	38
2005	47	9
2007	47	21

The remainder of her time was spent alongside training, self maintenance and periods of leave.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of medical personnel serving in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan were reservists in the latest period for which figures are available. [200940]

Des Browne: The proportions of UK medical personnel serving in Iraq and Afghanistan who are reservists, as at April 2008, are 7 per cent. and 31 per cent. respectively. There is a total of around 200 UK medical personnel deployed in each theatre.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what competencies and powers the Royal Military Police have to investigate allegations of misconduct by (a) British nationals and (b) nationals of other countries, other than Iraqis who are employees of private military or security companies contracted to work in Iraq by his Department and British armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [202976]

Des Browne [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The Ministry of Defence has no active contracts with Private Military or Security Companies (PMSC) in Iraq.

Under the Army Act 1955 the RMP has jurisdiction over individuals employed in the service of, (or accompanying, such as dependents in Cyprus and Germany), a body of the regular forces that is on active service. It does not matter whether the civilian is British or a national of another country or whether they are employees of PMSCs.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the most recent tour intervals are of those units serving in the next roulement for Operation Telic. [203203]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 31 January 2008, Official Report, columns 522-4W.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) required and (b) actual number of units serving in the next roulement for Operation Telic is. [203204]

Des Browne: I refer the hon. Member to my written ministerial statement on 24 April, Official Report, columns 107-109WS. There have been no changes since my statement.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 58W, on Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations, for what reasons his Department does not keep records of the nationality of individuals killed in engagements involving UK forces in Iraq or Afghanistan; and if he will make a statement. [203476]

Des Browne: It is not possible to maintain accurate records of the nationalities of individuals killed by UK forces in Iraq or Afghanistan. Although battle damage assessments are conducted following an engagement, insurgents frequently do not carry documents that reliably indicate their nationality. Additionally the circumstances of engagements mean that the risks to UK forces remaining at the scene would frequently outweigh any benefits from attempting to confirm nationalities; many engagements are also conducted at ranges where UK personnel are unable to reach any insurgent fatalities before they are removed.

Military Bands: Training

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in what circumstances bandsmen are being trained with live ammunition for active front-line service. [203333]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Musicians of the Royal Marines, Army and Royal Air Force receive the same initial training as any other recruit joining their respective Service. Part of this initial training package will cover weapon handling and shooting; including the firing of live ammunition. These skills are reinforced periodically through mandatory training and testing.

Service personnel, including musicians, receive theatre-specific training prior to deployment on operations. This training includes live firing and weapon handling elements. All Service musicians deploying on operations will be issued with a personal weapon. Most will deploy in medical support roles, where the need to provide armed protection of themselves and casualties may arise.

Navy: Piracy

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is on the Royal Navy (a) arresting pirates at sea and (b) rendering arrested pirates for justice before (i) United Kingdom and (ii) non-United Kingdom courts. [203580]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Royal Navy is prepared to meet the United Kingdom's obligations under international law with respect to piracy, in particular the United Nations Conventions on the Laws of the Sea.

Piracy

Mr. Brazier: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what guidance his Department issues to Royal Navy ships operating in or passing through areas where there is a risk of piracy on (a) intervention in and (b) taking active steps to prevent acts of piracy; [202712]

(2) what guidance his Department has issued to (a) UK-registered and (b) Royal Navy ships operating in or passing through areas in and near Somali territorial waters where there is a risk of piracy on (i) intervention in and (ii) taking active steps to prevent acts of piracy in the last five years. [203016]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Royal Navy provides Commanding Officers with classified policy and legal advice to enable them to fulfil the United Kingdom's obligations under international law, including in particular, the United Nations Conventions on the Laws of the Sea (UNCLOS).

The Department for Transport is responsible for providing advice to UK registered ships on piracy and maritime armed robbery. Up until December 2007, the Defence Intelligence Staff (DIS) produced the World Wide Threat to Shipping which was available via the Royal Navy website. Although this publication has now ceased, the DIS continue to provide assistance to the Department for Transport.

Royal Military Academy: Foreigners

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many overseas cadets were trained at the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst in each of the last five years. [203681]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 29 February 2008, Official Report, column 2016-20W to the right hon. Member for Richmond, Yorks (Mr. Hague).

Saudi Arabia: Defence

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when the memorandum of understanding with Saudi Arabia on the Saudi British Defence Cooperation Programme was signed; what the scope of the memorandum is; and whether it supersedes the al-Yamamah memoranda of understanding of (a) 1985, (b) 1986 and (c) 1988. [201672]

Des Browne: The UK and Saudi Arabian Governments agreed to close al-Yamamah at the end of 2006. It was further agreed that support for equipment already in service with the Saudi Arabian armed forces should be provided under a new and discrete defence co-operation programme funded through the Saudi Arabian Defence Budget. This new arrangement has been named the Saudi British Defence Co-operation Programme (SBDCP) and it has been in operation since the beginning of 2007. There is no separate memorandum of understanding governing the operation and structure of the SBDCP, which operates under the auspices of the 1986 MOU.

Territorial Army: Officers

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many potential Territorial Army officers are undergoing training. [203178]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Brigade Regional Training Centres are the primary source of young officers into the Territorial Army. There are currently 284 potential officers under training through these centres.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many Territorial Army (TA) officers were commissioned into the TA in each year since 1997; [203189]

(2) how many Territorial Army officers left the Territorial Army in each year since 1997. [203215]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following table shows the total intake and outflow for Territorial Army Officers during the period 1 October 2003 to 28 February 2007. October 2003 is the earliest date for which reliable TA inflow and outflow data are available.

Inflow and outflow of Territorial Army officers by calendar year[1,2,3,4]

Calendar year	Inflow[5]	Outflow[6]
2003[7]	130	80
2004	490	630
2005	390	560
2006	370	600
2007[8,9]	50	120

[1] The data exclude Full Time Reserve Service (FTRS), Non-Regular Permanent Staff (NRPS) and Mobilised TA.
[2] The data are based on flows during the period 1 October 2003 to 31 December 2003, calendar years 2004, 2005, and 2006, and the period 1 January 2007 to 28 February 2007.
[3] The data have been rounded to the nearest 10, numbers ending in '5' have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to avoid systematic bias.
[4] Figures are for officers only.
[5] Inflow figures include all inflow e.g. intake from civil life and intake from other parts of the armed forces, but does not include the inflow of personnel returning from mobilisation.
[6] Outflow figures exclude those officers who become mobilised.
[7] 1 October to 31 December 2003.
[8] 1 January to 28 February 2007.
[9] Due to the ongoing data validation following the introduction of the Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) System, there are no TA flows information available after 1 March 2007.

Veterans: Mental Health

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on the development of the community-based mental health programme for veterans announced on 23 November 2007; and if he will make a statement. [203327]

Derek Twigg: Four pilots have been launched for a new community-based veterans' mental health service, providing expert assessment and treatment within the NHS, and including input by ex-service charities. These pilots are located at Staffordshire and Shropshire, Camden and Islington, Bishop Auckland and Cardiff Vale. These will be followed shortly by two further pilots in Cornwall and Lothian. The pilots will run for two years. There will be an independent evaluation and the plan is to apply the lessons learned from them nationally. In the interim, for areas not yet covered by the pilots, veterans with mental health problems resulting from operations since 1982 may attend our Medical Assessment Programme based at St. Thomas' Hospital, London.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Archaeology

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the (a) terms of reference and (b) timetable of the review of the portable antiquities scheme are; who is to undertake the review; and if he will make a statement. [203898]

Margaret Hodge: The Museums, Libraries and Archives Council's (MLA) review of the portable antiquities scheme will examine the objectives of the scheme and options for its future management and delivery. The MLA will make an announcement about the timetable of the review and who will undertake it in due course.

Archaeology: Finance

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effect on the operation of the portable antiquities scheme of the decision to maintain funding for the scheme at 2007-08 levels in 2008-09. [203906]

Margaret Hodge: I have made no such assessment

The portable antiquities scheme (PAS) is funded by the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) and administered on their behalf by the British Museum. Any assessment regarding the scheme is, therefore, a matter for the MLA and the British Museum. The MLA recognises that the PAS is of national importance and will be conducting a review of the scheme in partnership with other stakeholders.

Architecture: Education

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been paid to Culture 24 for services relating to the Engaging Places project. [202343]

Margaret Hodge: Culture24 has been paid £23,500 to produce an Engaging Places editorial strategy and online web portal of heritage and built environment education opportunities that will be made available to schools later this year.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much funding he has allocated for the Engaging Places project; and how much of this has been allocated to the provision of online resources to accompany the project. [202344]

Margaret Hodge: In 2007-08 DCMS provided £75,000 of support towards research, piloting a network of learning providers and the development of an online website portal in partnership with Culture24. Other funding support came from the Commission for Architecture and the Built Environment (CABE) and English Heritage. Out of the total budget for Engaging Places £50,000 was allocated towards the research, design and development of a web portal. Culture24 is providing the web portal and consultancy services.

In 2008-09 DCMS will contribute £100,000 to support the next phase of Engaging Places. This will support the appointment of a new online editor for the Engaging Places website and the development of a network linking learning providers and schools with an interest in heritage and the built environment. Additional support will come from CABE and English Heritage.

Arts Council England: Art Works

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the value of works of art owned by Arts Council England was in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [203092]

Margaret Hodge: Arts Council England's (ACE) collection was formed in 1946 for the purpose of promoting and enriching the nation's knowledge and appreciation of contemporary art, through touring exhibitions and loans to galleries and public buildings throughout the country. The collection consists of over 7,600 pieces and its value was:

2006-07	68,220,000
2007-08	72,487,485

These figures have been provided by ACE. The figures for the years 2005-06 and 2006-07 are audited valuations; the 2007-08 figure is based on a valuation that has not yet been audited.

Arts Council England: Grants

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Arts Council England awarded in grants in each year since 1997. [203090]

Margaret Hodge: This information has been provided by Arts Council England (ACE) and is set out in the table. The figures have been sourced from ACE's published annual accounts. Aside from grant making, ACE also expends grant in aid monies directly on arts activities.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1137W, on betting shops, how much and what percentage of the Tote's revenue came from these terminals in each year since 1997. [202832]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Category B2 gaming machines (formerly called Fixed Odds Betting Terminals) in betting shops did not contribute to the Tote's revenues before 2002-03. Since 2002-03 their contribution to gross profit has been as follows:

2003-04	15.331	12.2

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what restrictions are placed on the number of slot machines in land-based casinos established under the Gaming Act 1968; and if he will review them. [203021]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 1 May 2008]: In October 2005 the number of category B gaming machines which casinos licensed under the Gaming Act 1968 are permitted to offer was doubled to 20. Alternatively, they are permitted to offer an unlimited number of category C and category D machines. There are no plans to revisit these allocations.

Coastal Areas: Finance

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will provide a break down of the sources of funding for the Sea Change programme. [202337]

Margaret Hodge: The £45 million Sea Change fund (£15 million a year over three years 2008-11) will come from DCMS departmental funds made available through the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review.

Partnership funding for large grants will come from regional development agencies and other public and private sources. Local authorities will be encouraged to seek partnership funding for projects eligible under the open application programme from a variety of public, private and voluntary sector sources.

Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what payments VisitLondon made to (a) Mandate Communications and (b) AS Biss and Co in each of the last five years; and on what dates and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202304]

Margaret Hodge: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport does not have responsibility for Visit London affairs; any matter relating to this body falls under the remit of the Mayor of London.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent estimate has been made of the value of those parts of Oceanic house for which his Department is responsible; and what progress has been made on a possible sale. [203000]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No valuation has been placed on the parts of Oceanic house that the Department had occupied as the areas were leased. The Department is not involved in the sale of the property but is at present negotiating its exit from the lease agreement with the landlord's agents.

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the cost of building services was to his Department in each of the last three years; and how much he expects them to cost in each of the next three years. [203098]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Building services have been taken to mean facilities management, catering, security, reprographics and mail room services. The total costs to the Department are as follows.

	Cost (£)	Actual/Estimate
2005-06	3,009,532	Actual
2006-07	3,156,969	Actual
2007-08	2,834,495	Estimate[1]
2008-09	2,471,000	Estimate
2009-10	2,541,000	Estimate
2010-11	2,533,000	Estimate

[1] Departmental resource accounts are still being processed and this estimate may be subject to minor change.

Departmental Cost Effectiveness

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what savings his Department has identified as part of the 2007 Comprehensive Spending Review value for money programme; and when he expects these savings to be realised. [202347]

Andy Burnham: The Department has identified £149.4 million value for money (VfM) savings. This exceeds our target from HM Treasury of £148 million savings. Further details of these savings, including when we expect to realise them, can be found in our VfM Delivery Agreement, copies of which are available in the House Libraries.

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what his Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201744]

Margaret Hodge: The Department has developed an energy strategy with a detailed action plan with key action dates and assigned responsibilities.

As part of the Department's refurbishment of its Headquarters at Cockspur Street we installed energy efficient light fittings. This is 30 per cent. more efficient than previous fittings. The Ground Floor was installed with the manufacturer's advanced light fitting which is 60 per cent. more efficient.

The Department is supplied with 100 per cent. renewable electricity supplied under the OGC Buying Solutions contract.

The Department was accredited to the Carbon Trust administered Energy Efficiency Accreditation Scheme.

2007-08	343,352

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the act came into force. [201722]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 75 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was 67, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the Answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1744W, on departmental public participation, what the (a) cost and (b) number of respondents was for each (i) survey, (ii) questionnaire and (iii) other service. [203103]

Margaret Hodge: The number of respondents and costs for each survey (including questionnaire development, data cleaning, analysis and presentation) are given as follows. For the 'other service' the number of respondents is not applicable as this is an online data manipulation tool.

Service	Respondents	Cost (£000)
Surveys and Questionnaires
Taking Part	26,500	2,818 50
Omnibus survey—Olympics legacy	22,115
DCMS staff survey	459	22
Non-departmental public body survey	104	4

Departmental Research

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department's joint research budget will be in each of the next three years; and what projects have been commissioned from the budget to date. [203093]

Margaret Hodge: The total value for the budget for conducting joint research for each of the next three years is as follows:

	Budget
2008-09	3,424
2009-10	3,431
2010-11	3,438

We have yet to commission anything from this budget, though we are in the final stages of contracting our national survey of participation ('Taking Part') which is covered by this budget.

Departmental Sick Leave

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many working days were lost by his Department due to stress-related illness in each of the last 24 months. [198938]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information requested can only be provided at a disproportionate cost to the Department. The Department has an additional responsibility to protect the identity of its staff.

However, I am able to provide the following information set out as follows.

Total days lost were 2,375. Of these 35.45 per cent. were due to mental disorders which included stress—related illnesses.

2006

Total days lost were 2,687. Of these 27 per cent. were due to mental disorders which included stress—related illnesses.

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many days sick leave were taken on average by staff in his Department in each of the last five years. [198953]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The years for which figures are available are:

	Annual working days lost (AWDL)	Total days lost
2007	4.6	2,375
2006	4.9	2,687
2005	6.6	4,560

Working Days lost per staff year
2004 5.6

Engaging Places

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to publish the Engaging Places research into heritage and built environment education; and how much this research has cost to date. [203008]

Margaret Hodge: DCMS expects to publish the Engaging Places research into the supply and demand of heritage and built environment education in England shortly. The research into heritage and built environment education has cost in total £53,618.36 (including VAT), and the evaluation of options to take Engaging Places forward cost £24,827.75 (including VAT).

English Sports Council

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place in the Library a copy of the new Sport England Strategy and Business Plan. [203882]

Mr. Sutcliffe: This report will be published shortly and I will arrange for copies to be placed in the Libraries of the House.

English Sports Council: Olympic Games 2012

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been raised by UK Sport towards the target of £100 million of private sector funding for elite sport programmes ahead of the 2012 Olympic Games. [203884]

Andy Burnham: The fund raising aspect of this project has not yet started. The Department continues to work with UK Sport and others in the development of proposals for raising £100 million of private sector funding for elite athletes. Further details will be announced in due course.

Fast Track

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what contracts his Department has with the marketing agency Fast Track; what the value of these contracts is; and what services are being supplied under them. [202342]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department does not have any contracts in place with Fast Track.

Gambling: Licensing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport whether gambling licences issued under the Gaming Act 1968 can be transferred to different premises within the designated local authority areas. [202887]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Existing gaming licences issued under the Gaming Act 1968 Act have now been converted into the relevant premises licence under the Gambling Act 2005. A converted casino licence can only be relocated to premises which are situated within the area of the licensing authority which issued the licence. A converted bingo premises licence cannot be relocated to different premises.

Lacrosse: Finance

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much the Youth Sport Trust spent on the development of lacrosse in the last 12 months. [203639]

Mr. Sutcliffe: As a registered charity, the work of the Youth Sport Trust is to help build a better future for young people through sport. They are working with the network of school sport partnerships and sports colleges across the country to ensure all young people have access to at least five hours of PE and school sport by 2012. Their remit is not to fund individual sports, so they have not spent any money directly on lacrosse.

Ministerial Steering Board on the Creative Economy

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport who sits on the Ministerial Steering Board on the Creative Economy; when it will first meet; and how often he expects it to meet. [203010]

Andy Burnham: The Creative Economy Programme Ministerial Steering Board will be chaired by my right hon. Friend the Minister of State. The Board will include Ministers from the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform and the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills and a number of high-level representatives from across the Creative Sectors. We are currently finalising the membership of the Board and will publish full details on www.cep.culture.gov.uk shortly.

The first meeting will be held by the end of June and will occur approximately quarterly thereafter.

National Lottery: Brass Bands

Jeff Ennis: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much has been given to brass bands from national lottery funds in each of the last five years. [1] [201218]

Margaret Hodge: The big lottery fund has been able to supply the following figures for the value of relevant grants across the UK in the last five years, including grants made under the Awards for All joint scheme:

	Total value of grants (£)
2003-04	144,293

In addition youth music (which distributes lottery funds on behalf of the Arts Council) has provided the following financial support to the National Youth Brass Band of Great Britain:

Mr. Sutcliffe: The information appears in the following table:

Playgrounds: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding his Department provided to the Department for Children, Schools and Families-led Sporting Playgrounds scheme in each of the last five years; and what contributions his Department plans to make in each of the next three years. [203095]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 10 March, Official Report, column 144W.

In April 2005 the Department for Culture, Media and Sport, announced a £2 million investment to extend the Sporting Playgrounds programme which is also funded through the DCSF. This scheme refurbishes existing primary school playgrounds to enhance opportunities for sporting activity. Over 600 primary school playgrounds have been developed since the programme began in 2001.

There are no plans for a Sporting Playgrounds programme over the next three years.

Recreation Spaces: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on parks and green spaces in the London Borough of Enfield in real terms in each year since 1997. [202861]

Margaret Hodge: The DCMS has not spent any money on parks and green spaces in the London borough of Enfield as the Department does not directly fund these amenities—funding at local level is provided to local authorities via Communities and Local Government.

DCMS mainly channels its Exchequer funding via its family of non-departmental public bodies, who provide a wide variety of services at national, regional and local levels.

S4C: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding his Department plans to provide for S4C in each of the next three years. [203099]

Andy Burnham: The grant-in-aid estimate for 2008-09 is £98,112,000.

The annual increase for S4C is calculated by a statutory formula under section 61 of the Broadcasting Act 1990 (as amended). As this formula refers to the Retail Price Index in future years, exact figures for future years have not yet been calculated.

Strategic, Necessary and Proportionate Test

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many of his Department's staff were involved in developing the strategic, necessary and proportionate test; and if he will provide a breakdown of the costs of developing the test by main budget heading. [203003]

Margaret Hodge: The strategic, necessary and proportionate test was developed following a series of staff and NDPB workshops and discussions as part of the DCMS transformation programme, responding to the DCMS Capability review. Discussions were led by a small volunteer taskforce of staff reporting to a DCMS Director. It is not possible to confirm exact staff numbers involved, or staff costs (although they are expected to be minimal). The test was developed to clarify the principles and factors DCMS should consider when choosing what work to pursue and how to approach it in order to maximise the 'added value' delivered by the Department and hence deliver the maximum possible value for the public.

Tourism Strategy Fund

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has to continue funding the Tourism Strategy Fund. [203015]

Margaret Hodge: As my hon. Friend the Minister for Sport set out in his reply to the hon. Member for South West Surrey on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1753W, the Tourism Strategy Fund was a time limited budget. It was used to fund a number of tourism support initiatives arising from the policy document Tomorrow's Tourism in 1999.

Substantial support for tourism from DCMS continues, and is now used to take forward the objectives set out last September in Winning, the DCMS Strategy for the 2012 Games. This work is funded from DCMS grant-in-aid to VisitBritain (£49.9 million in 2007-08), to the Regional Development Agencies (£3.6 million in 2007-08), and the Greater London Authority (£1.9 million in 2007-08).

Tourism: Finance

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his latest estimate is of the tourism deficit; and how this figure compares to the equivalent for 1997. [202088]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 28 April 2008]: The UK's tourism balance of payments deficit was £4.8 billion in 1997, and £18.4 billion in 2006.

This change reflects rising prosperity in the UK over the last decade, and easier and cheaper air travel. The Government are working with the industry to make holidaying in this country more attractive to UK residents and we published our strategy "Winning: A Tourism Strategy for 2012 and Beyond" last September. I hold regular meetings with the tourism industry as we work in partnership to implement the strategy.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcohol Disorder Zones: Finance

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department has spent on planning the national implementation of alcohol disorder zones. [192831]

Jacqui Smith: I refer the right hon. Member to my answer of 20 March 2008, Official Report, column 1274W.

Alcoholic Drinks: Crime

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the contribution of the Pubwatch scheme to reducing alcohol-related crime and disorder; and if she will make a statement. [203172]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 1 May 2008]: There has been no formal assessment of the contribution of the Pubwatch scheme in relation to the reduction of alcohol related crime and disorder.

The Home Office is aware that Pubwatch operates in a number of areas, some of which are more active than others. Pubwatch operates alongside other measures to tackle alcohol related disorder, and therefore it is not possible to quantify the contribution made by the Pubwatch scheme in isolation. However, the Government are of the view that where active, it may contribute to a reduction in antisocial behaviour and alcohol related crime and disorder. Additionally it will also positively contribute to the development of effective partnerships between the police and the alcohol industry.

Alcoholic Drinks: Public Order Offences

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) cautioned, (b) prosecuted and (c) given a penalty notice for disorder for being drunk and disorderly in a public place in each of the last two years. [191315]

Mr. Coaker: The number of cautions and penalty notices for disorder issued, along with the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts, for drunk and disorderly offences in England and Wales for the years 2005 and 2006 can be viewed in the following tables 1 and 2.

Table 1: The number of cautions issued and the number of persons proceeded against at magistrates courts, for drunk and disorderly offences in England and Wales for the years 2005 and 2006[1,3,4]

Criminal Justice Act 1967 Sec.91: Any person who in any public place is guilty, while drunk, of disorderly behaviour.
[4] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, other agencies, and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how alcohol confiscated during the two-week enforcement campaign against underage drinking in February 2008 was disposed of. [200917]

Jacqui Smith: In line with the legislation the alcohol confiscated during the campaign was disposed of in such a manner as considered appropriate by the confiscating officer.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer to my hon. Friend the hon. Member for Hornchurch (James Brokenshire) of 12 December 2007, Official Report, columns 666-8W, on alcohol drinks: young people, if she will publish equivalent figures for West Midlands Police force area on (a) the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts, (b) the number of offenders cautioned and (c) the number of penalty notices for disorder issued. [193918]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 12 December 2007, Official Report, columns 666-8W. Police force areas were not included in the table where there was no data for defendants proceeded against, cautioned or issued with a PND for illegal alcohol purchasing. This was referenced in footnote number 4.

Burglary

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of burglaries that go unreported in England and Wales each year; and if she will make a statement. [198190]

Jacqui Smith: The British Crime Survey (BCS) routinely collects information on whether or not crimes are reported to the police and this is presented in the annual Home Office Statistical Bulletin Crime in England and Wales, copies of which can be found in the House of Commons Library.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate her Department has made of the number of unreported burglaries and break-ins in the last year for which figures are available; and if she will make a statement. [200547]

Burglary: Greater London

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many burglaries were reported in each London borough in each of the last five years; and how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions there were for burglary in each such borough and year. [200548]

Jacqui Smith: The available data relate to the number of recorded offences of burglary and are given in the following table. I am informed that information on the number of defendants proceeded against or found guilty for an offence in each London borough are not separately identifiable from the data reported to the Ministry of Justice.

Crime: Internet

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many websites were closed down by the Serious and Organised Crime Agency's e-crime unit in 2006-07. [195539]

Jacqui Smith: The responsibility for closing down fraudulent or malicious websites rests with communication service providers, who act on a variety of information including that which may have been provided by SOCA. SOCA is only directly involved in the closure of the site in the event that the provider has failed to respond to a take down notice, or if data needs to be preserved or acquired for a statutory purpose.

During 2006-07, there were approximately 30 separate occasions where the e-Crime department was directly involved in the removal of such websites.

Crime: Young People

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans her Department has to include children under 16 years of age in future British Crime Survey statistics; and if she will make a statement. [200513]

Jacqui Smith: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer I gave to his question on 3 March 2008, Official Report, columns 2081-82W.

Crimes of Violence

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps are being taken by her Department to encourage the public to report a greater proportion of knife crime to the police. [200543]

Jacqui Smith: We are focusing considerable resources on highlighting the seriousness of knife crime. We will shortly be launching a public campaign to highlight to young people the risks of carrying knives.

We also support the work of Be Safe, who provide weapons awareness training to young people, and train others to deliver workshops on weapons.

CrimeStoppers are currently running a programme of outreach work, supported by the Home Office, which aims to encourage the reporting of crime, including knife crime.

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many crimes of violence against the person were recorded in the London borough of Bexley in each of the last five years. [203385]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office publishes statistics at Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) area level. The number of offences of violence against the person for each of the last five years for the Bexley CDRP is available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrpog.xls

Crimes of Violence: Young People

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of children under 16 years of age who were the victims of (a) gun, (b) knife and (c) all violent crime in each year since 1997. [200512]

Jacqui Smith: Relevant information on firearm offences (excluding air weapons) is available only for the years 2004-05 to 2006-07. It is not possible to identify offences involving knives from the data centrally collected on overall recorded crime. Since April 2007, police forces have been providing separate data on serious violence involving knives. As these are aggregate returns it will not be possible to determine the age of victims.

The age of all violent crime victims is not collected centrally. Available information relates to the number of homicides of persons aged under 16 years between 1997 and 2006-07, where the apparent method of killing was 'sharp instrument' or 'shooting'.

[2] Excluding air weapons. The age of firearm offence victims has been collected centrally only since April 2004.
[3] Data are not centrally collected.
[4] Homicide data are as at 12 November 2007, when recording closed down for the purpose of analysis, and will change as subsequent court hearings take place or other information is received. Offences are shown according to the year in which the police initially recorded the offence as homicide. This is not necessarily the year in which the incident took place or the year in which any court decision was made.
[5] Includes knives and other sharp instruments.
[6] Includes shooting by crossbows.

Criminal Conviction Certificates

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the cost to the Criminal Records Bureau (CRB) was of each criminal conviction certificate issued on an individual in each year since the inception of the CRB; what standard fee is paid by individuals requesting a check; how many certificates were requested in each year (a) from people wishing to work in the voluntary sector, (b) from unemployed people, (c) from disabled people, (d) from other individuals and (e) in total; and if she will make a statement. [198503]

Meg Hillier: The CRB issues higher level disclosures (both standard and enhanced) for employment and licensing purposes, as provided for in Part V of the Police Act 1997.

The cost to the CRB of each standard and enhanced disclosure issued in each financial year since its inception in March 2002 is provided in the following table. The fees charged to individuals that requested a check in each year are also provided.

Unit cost to CRB of each disclosure

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	£ 2006-07
Standard	27.76	24.94	22.73	19.94	18.34
Enhanced	34.40	31.05	28.09	26.86	24.30
Fees Charged by CRB for each disclosure
Standard	12	24	28	29	31
Enhanced	12	29	33	34	36

Fees for the financial years 2007-08 and 2008-09 have been frozen at the 2006-07 level, meaning the cost of a disclosure has not increased since April 2006.

The total number of disclosures requested in each financial year is shown in the following table. The number requested in respect of individuals wishing to work in the voluntary sector is also shown. The CRB does not capture data on whether applicants are unemployed or disabled.

Number of disclosures requested

	2002-03	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07
Total Standard	200,198	289,767	281,045	317,178	328,042
Total Enhanced	1,462,802	2,059,233	2,269,955	2,568,822	2,908,958
Overall Total	1,663,000	2,349,000	2,551,000	2,886,000	3,237,000
Volunteer Applications	272,732	418,122	571,424	574,314	653,874

The CRB has issued over 15 million CRB checks and has developed the capacity to process in excess of 300,000 checks every month. Approximately 20 per cent. of applications are from volunteers and disclosures for volunteers continue to be processed free of charge. This has resulted in a considerable saving for the voluntary sector in excess of £20 million a year for the last four years.

The unit cost to the CRB is the average cost of producing one disclosure, irrespective of whether the disclosure is paid for. As the CRB is self-funding, the processing costs for all the volunteer applications, processed free of charge, needs to be recovered through the fee paid by other applicants; consequently, the fee must be set higher than the unit cost.

Departmental Accountancy

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 602W, on departmental accountancy, what the (a) monthly, (b) year to date and (c) annual budget totals are for each budget line forecast for each month since September 2007, arranged by category of expenditure in her Department's annual report and supply estimates. [199849]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 21 April 2008]: Budget details for the whole year can be found in the 2008-09 Main Supply Estimates (HC 479) and will also be published in the Home Office departmental annual report, in May 2008. They show each area of spend—by estimate line and individual activity respectively, at a disaggregated level. Further detail could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the Answer of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 602W, on departmental accountancy, what the planned annual budget figures are for 2008-09 in each budget line, arranged by category of expenditure in her Department's annual report and supply estimates. [199850]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 21 April 2008]: Budget details for 2008-09 can be found in the 2008-09 Main Supply Estimates (HC 479) and will also be published in the Home Office departmental annual report, in May 2008. They show each area of spend—by estimate line and individual activity respectively, at a disaggregated level. Further detail could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Temporary Employment

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department has spent on agency staff in each of the last five years; and what the highest payment to a member of agency staff was in each of those years. [186923]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Department uses a variety of externally resourced staff to fill roles in the Department that cannot readily be filled by permanent staff. The figures given are drawn from our financial reporting systems and represent various categories of agency and other externally resourced staff, but exclude consultancy services.

Information on the Department's spend on agency staff for 2002-03 and 2003-04 is not held centrally and to provide this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Figures for expenditure on agency staff in the last three financial years 2004-05, 2005-06, 2006-07 is as follows:

Financial Year	HO Headquarters	IPS	CRB	Total Spend (£)
2004-05	37,000,000	5,626,207	703,756	43,329,963
2006-07	40,000,000	26,612,732	301,998	66,914,730

The increase in the IPS expenditure on agency staff in 2006-07 was due to the successful introduction of a number of new initiatives which necessitated the use of interim staff. The initiatives included biometric passports, the full roll-out of Personal Identity Process (PIP) to the regions, preparation for Interview Office Network (ION), and facial recognition systems. There was also an increase in costs as work on the National Identity Scheme (NIS) began to develop.

Information on the highest payment to a member of agency staff in each of the last five years is not held centrally and to provide this information would incur disproportionate cost.

Firearms: Crime

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many gun-related crimes were recorded by the Metropolitan police in (a) 2000-01 and (b) 2006-07. [196836]

Jacqui Smith: Available centrally collected data relate only to offences where firearms (excluding air weapons) have been fired, used as a blunt instrument against a person or used as a threat. The Metropolitan Police Service recorded 3,031 such firearm offences in 2000-01 and 3,327 in 2006-07.

The National Crime Recording Standard was introduced on 1 April 2002. Figures before and after this date are not directly comparable.

Frontex

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she plans to appeal against the judgments of the European Court of Justice in Case C-77/05 and Case C-137/05 on the UK's position on Frontex. [197052]

Jacqui Smith: We will not be appealing against the European Court of Justice's verdict on our challenge to the UK's exclusion from the Frontex Regulation. The position of the UK in relation to Frontex remains as previously: the Frontex Regulation does not bind nor apply to the UK, but the UK may take part in operations and activities on a case-by-case basis, with the agreement of the Frontex Management Board. The UK Government have a legitimate interest in the security of the external European border and we remain committed to working closely with our European partners and Frontex in strengthening that security.

Identity and Passport Service: Data Protection

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many breaches of data security there have been at the Identity and Passport Agency since its inception. [200544]

Jacqui Smith: Except in exceptional circumstances, when it is in the public interest, it has been the policy of successive Governments not to comment on breaches of security.

Immigration: Biometrics

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 610W, on immigration: biometrics, when she plans to establish the National Identity Register. [200624]

Jacqui Smith: The National Identity Register will be established when the first identity cards are issued under the Identity Cards Act 2006, starting in the second half of 2009.

Immigration: EC Action

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the outcomes for the UK of the EC Preparatory Action Migration Management—Solidarity in Action 2007 programme; and if she will make a statement. [196308]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 25 March 2008]: Preparatory Action Migration Management—solidarity in Action 2007 is an European Community funding stream whose awards were not granted until November 2007 onwards. The duration of projects funded under the programme can be up to 18 months. As no projects have been completed it is not yet possible to make a statement on the assessment of the outcomes.

Misconduct: Teachers

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many allegations of assault or professional misconduct against teachers by pupils were reported to the police in each year since 1997. [202071]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. The Home Office is responsible for the recorded crime statistics which includes data on offences of assault recorded by the police. However, it is not possible to identify the employment status of either the victim or the offender.

Mobile Phones: Theft

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what information is required from people who report their mobile phones as stolen to the police before it is recorded as a crime and issued a crime reference number. [201900]

Jacqui Smith: When a mobile phone is stolen, the victim should report the incident to the police. Unless there is evidence to show that the crime did not occur, a crime reference number will be given.

National Criminal Intelligence Service Annual Report

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the National Criminal Intelligence Service Annual Report for 2005-06 will be published. [196840]

Jacqui Smith: The NCIS Annual Report and Accounts for 2005-06 were laid before Parliament on 19 July 2006.

Offensive Weapons: Crime

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many knife-related violent crimes were committed in London in (a) 2000-01 and (b) 2006-07. [196837]

Jacqui Smith: It is not possible to identify those offences which are knife-related from the data centrally collected on overall recorded crime. However, since April 2007, police forces have been providing separate aggregate data on serious violence involving knives. Home Office statisticians will assess the quality of these data and it is planned that figures for 2007-08 will be published in the main crime bulletin in July 2008.

Available data from the Homicide Index relate to offences currently recorded as homicide where the apparent method of killing is 'sharp instrument'. Sixty-nine such homicides were recorded in London in each of the 2000-01 and 2006-07 financial years.

Offensive Weapons: Crimes of Violence

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when data on serious violent offences involving the use of knives and sharp instruments will next be published. [200589]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 23 April 2008]: It is not possible to identify those offences involving knives or sharp instruments from the data centrally collected on overall recorded crime. However, since April 2007, police forces have been providing separate aggregate data on serious violence involving knives. Home Office statisticians will assess the quality of this data and it is planned that figures for 2007-08 will be published in 'Crime in England and Wales 2007-08' in July 2008.

Available data from the Homicide Index relates to offences currently recorded as homicide where the apparent method of killing is 'sharp instrument'. Data relating to the period 1997-98 to 2007-08 are scheduled for publication in January 2009.

Olympic Games 2012: Security

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) when she (a) was first notified of and (b) approved the deployment of Chinese security personnel to accompany the Olympic torch procession on 6 April; [200594]

(2) what assessment she has made of the appropriateness of the actions taken by Chinese security personnel in preventing expressions of public protest interfering with the Olympic torch procession on 6 April; [200595]

(3) when the Metropolitan police were notified that Chinese security personnel would be deployed in central London to accompany the Olympic torch on 6 April; [200596]

(4) what her policy is on the use of physical restraint by foreign security personnel against UK citizens during processions in public places, with particular reference to the Olympic torch procession on 6 April; [200597]

(5) how many Chinese security personnel accompanied the Olympic torch on 6 April. [200598]

Mr. Coaker: The Chinese torch attendants were employed by the Beijing Organising Committee for the Olympic games (BOCOG). Every torch relay has torch attendants from the Olympic organising committee responsible for the flame after it has been handed over to the host city. These attendants are responsible for lighting and extinguishing the torches and accompanying and guarding the flame. They have no policing role and the Home Office accordingly had no role in approving their deployment.

20 Chinese torch attendants accompanied the flame. Their responsibilities were as described in the "Beijing Olympic Torch Relay Community Planning Guide" and the contract between BOCOG and the Greater London authority and the British Olympic authority in the document "Agreement—Olympic Torch Relay Services" dated 12 October 2007. The Chinese team did not have law enforcement authority, and, could "only protect the flame and the torch-bearer by placing themselves between the offender and the torch bearer."

The Metropolitan police service was responsible for policing the event, including protests associated with it and for dealing with any criminal offences committed.

The Home Office has not been made aware of any specific allegations of Chinese torch attendants preventing expressions of public protest.

Anyone who believes that a criminal offence has been committed should report it to the police in the usual way.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons Chinese security personnel accompanied the Olympic torch during its London relay on 6 April; and if she will make a statement. [201375]

Mr. Coaker: Every torch relay has torch attendants from the Olympic organising committee responsible for the flame after it has been handed over to the host city. The Chinese torch attendants were responsible for lighting and extinguishing the torches and accompanying and guarding the flame. The Metropolitan Police Service was responsible for the safety, security and safe passage of the torchbearer and torch as it travelled through London. The Chinese torch attendants had no policing role or executive power in London.

Olympic Games: China

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what representations she has made to the Chinese authorities about the deployment of members of China's security forces during the Olympic flame procession in London. [202126]

Mr. Coaker: As with all torch relays, the Olympic flame was accompanied by "torch attendants" employed by the Beijing Organising Committee for the Olympic Games (BOCOG) the Olympic organising committee responsible for the flame after it has been handed over to the host city. These attendants are responsible for lighting and extinguishing the torches and accompanying and guarding the flame

They did not have any policing or law enforcement responsibilities. Anyone who believes that a criminal offence has been committed should report it to the police in the usual way.

Organised Crime: EC Enlargement

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions have taken place between her Department and authorities in (a) Poland, (b) Romania and (c) Bulgaria on the sharing of criminal intelligence. [200511]

Jacqui Smith: Data sharing to enhance police cooperation is in all EU member states' interests for the purpose of protecting citizens against crime and terrorism. There are a number of EU-wide data sharing initiatives in use and planned, the negotiations for which involve all EU member states.

Passports: Interviews

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of face-to-face passport interviews since their introduction. [198628]

Jacqui Smith: The requirement for face-to-face interviews for adult passport applicants has been phased in gradually, and the Identity and Passport Service's network of interview offices only became fully operational from 66 offices from 28 January this year. The capacity of the network has been increased progressively since July last year. The final office is due to open in May.

The interview requirement has been well received by customers who see this as a positive move in terms of safeguarding their identity. Given that the full volume of interviews is only now being achieved it would be premature to make an assessment of the effectiveness of face-to-face interviews in deterring and detecting fraud.

Personal Records: Private Sector

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what legal or other constraints are imposed on private companies, including airport operators, in taking and storing fingerprints and other personal data from members of the public. [197292]

Jacqui Smith: The Government take data protection very seriously and keep the law on what measures are needed to strengthen the protection of personal data under continuous review.

The Data Protection Act 1998 (DPA) provides a comprehensive legal framework of protection (including legal redress) for personal data, including fingerprints and other personal data. The DPA applies to all organisations that handle information about people, in both the public and private sectors. Therefore, it would be a matter for private companies, including airport operators, to satisfy themselves that they are acting in accordance with the DPA and other relevant legislation, including the Human Rights Act 1998.

Police: Firearms

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many police officers are trained in the use of arms; and how many are available in the Metropolitan police area. [201901]

Jacqui Smith: At 31 March 2007 there were 6,728 authorised firearms officers in England and Wales. 2,584 of those authorised firearms officers were in the Metropolitan Police Service.

Proceeds of Crime

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department to what uses the £125 million of criminal assets recovered in 2006-07 was put. [200919]

Jacqui Smith: The Home Office paid back 50 per cent. of recovered criminal assets to the police and other front-line agencies under the asset recovery incentive scheme. The scheme is designed to reward past performance and drive up future asset recovery activity. The remaining 50 per cent. contributed to core Home Office expenditure priorities, including policing and other asset recovery measures.

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what amount of assets recovered in 2006-07 has been paid back to (a) the Serious and Organised Crime Agency, (b) HM Revenue and Customs, (c) the Crown Prosecution Service and (d) police forces in England and Wales under the Assets Recovery Incentive Scheme. [200920]

Jacqui Smith: The information requested is as follows:

		£ million
(a)	Serious Organised Crime Agency	1.53
(b)	HM Revenue and Customs	12.01
(c)	Crown Prosecution Service	8.11
(d)	Police forces in England and Wales	15.49

Rape

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many recorded instances of (a) rape and (b) domestic violence there were in (i) England and Wales and (ii) each police force area in each year since 1997; and what the clear-up rate for each was in each of those years. [200358]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 29 November 2007, Official Report, columns 642-46W.

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females aged (i) under 10, (ii) 11 to 15, (iii) 16 to 19, (iv) 20 to 25, (v) 26 to 30, (vi) 31 to 40, (vii) 41 to 50, (viii) 51 to 60 and (ix) 60 years and over were recorded as the victims of rape in each of the last 10 years. [203252]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not available centrally. The Home Office collects statistics on the number of rape offences recorded by the police but no information is available on the age of the victim.

Wildlife: Crime

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many wildlife crime officers there were in each year since 1997 for which figures are available, broken down by region. [202681]

Mr. Coaker: The requested information, on number of wildlife crime officers, is not collected centrally.

Decisions on how wildlife crime is addressed, including decisions on resourcing and staffing, are matters for the police service. These decisions will be made by the chief constable in the light of the competing demands on the force and the priorities of the local communities.

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many wildlife crimes were committed in each year since 1997 for which figures are available, broken down by region; and how many successful prosecutions there were. [202682]

Mr. Coaker: Data on the number of wildlife crimes committed nationally are not held centrally. However, data on the number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences under the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981, Protection of Badgers Act 1992, Deer Act 1991, Control of Trade in Endangered Species (Enforcement) Regulation 1997, and the Conservation of Seals Act 1970, by police force area, in England and Wales since 1997 can be viewed in the following table. This information is only held at a national level and cannot be broken down regionally.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offences for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

The number of defendants proceeded against at magistrates courts and found guilty at all courts for offences under the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981, Protection of Badgers Act 1992, Deer Act 1991, Control of Trade in Endangered Species (Enforcement) Regulation 1997, and the Conservation of Seals Act 1970, in England and Wales for the years 1997 to 2006[1,2,3,4]

1998	106	70

[1] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[3] Includes the following Statutes:
Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981
Protection of Badgers Act 1992
Deer Act 1991
Control of Trade in Endangered Species (Enforcement) Regulation 1997
Conservation of Seals Act 1970

[4] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Written Questions: Government Responses

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects to answer Question 182354, on the National Identity Register, tabled by the right hon. Member for Haltemprice and Howden on 24 January 2008. [193698]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 13 March 2008]: I replied to the right hon. Member on 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 610W.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Business: Grants

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many of the 3,000 business support schemes which the Government pledged in the 2006 Budget to reduce to 100 by 2010 have been closed down or amalgamated with other schemes. [199936]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government are on track to deliver no more than 100 schemes by 2010 and close or amalgamate existing schemes as the new products are launched. We announced the timetable in March.

New, more effectively targeted, products will become available to business, starting this year. Business Link is gearing up to be the primary access channel to give business one main source of advice.

The new product portfolio will be available no later than March 2009 and will address business issues:

Export Credit Guarantee (March 2008), Skills Solutions for Business, Capital Investment Grants, Preparing to Export, Investigating New Overseas Markets, Getting The Most from Foreign Direct Investment (October 2008), Business Collaboration Networks, Shared Business Support Environments (November 2008), Debt Finance, Risk Capital, Finance Awareness and Capability (January 2009), Business Creation, Business Expertise for Growth, Promoting Resource Efficiency and Sustainable Waste Management, Protecting the Natural Environment, Local Community Business Coaching, Innovation Finance, and Innovation Collaborations (March 2009).

Below regional level the only data available are that on the number of VAT registered construction businesses, which are published by BERR. These data are shown in the following table for Jarrow constituency, South Tyneside local authority, the North East Government Office Region and the UK. Data for 2008 will be published in November 2008.

Business Start-ups and Closures: VAT Registrations and De-registrations 1994-2006, available at: http://stats.berr.gov.uk/ed/vat

VAT registrations do not capture all business activity. Businesses are unlikely to be registered if they fall below the compulsory VAT threshold, which was £60,000 at the start of 2006. Only 221,000 out of 921,000 UK construction enterprises (24 per cent.) were registered for VAT at the start of 2006.

Departmental Information and Communications Technology

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 27 March 2008, Official Report, column 328W, on departmental ICT, what advice he has given to departmental staff on the protection and security of personal electronic devices issued to them by his Department. [198279]

Mr. Thomas: Personal electronic devices are only issued to users following mandated training, which covers use, protection and storage of the device.

Departmental Legislation

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what criminal offences have been created by primary legislation sponsored by his Department since July 2007. [198307]

Mr. Thomas: There have been no criminal offences created by primary legislation sponsored by this Department since July 2007.

Departmental Manpower

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many (a) permanent civil service posts, (b) permanent non-civil service post and (c) posts filled by temporary and agency workers there were in his Department in each month since May 2005. [199459]

Mr. Thomas: The Office for National Statistics publishes civil service employment statistics every quarter in the Public Sector Employment First Release. Table 6 of the publication provides a breakdown of employment by Government Department. It includes a breakdown of permanent and temporary/casual employees.

The latest statistics published are for Q4 (December) 2007. These can be viewed at:

CS_Employment_Qtr_4_2007.

Previous statistics are available going back to Q1 2006. These can be viewed at:

ONS Statistics

Prior to 2006 civil service employment numbers were available on only an annual basis.

Civil service statistics collected are the number of employees and not the number of posts. An employee covering multiple posts is counted only once and no information on vacancies is held.

The ONS does not publish statistics for non-civil service posts broken down by Government Department.

Information on employment agency workers could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based. [200701]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) is not directly responsible for a public sector pension scheme.

BERR's accounting officer has responsibility for the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority (UKAEA) Pension Scheme. The information for the UKAEA Pension Scheme is set out in the scheme's resource accounts.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91. [200702]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) is not directly responsible for a public pension scheme.

BERR's accounting officer has responsibility for the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority (UKAEA) Pension Scheme. The information on liabilities in present value terms are in the UKAEA Pension Scheme's resource accounts (since 2000-01), although these are produced under differing sets of assumptions (e.g. on longevity), so are not comparable across years.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement. [200703]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) is not directly responsible for a public sector pension scheme.

BERR's accounting officer has responsibility for the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority (UKAEA) Pension Scheme. Information on rate and cost of employer contributions is contained in the UKAEA Pension Scheme's resource accounts (since 2000-01).

Departmental Responsibilities

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what role the relevant shareholder executive has in determining the definition of the public tasks of his Department's agencies. [203464]

Malcolm Wicks: The shareholder executive has no remit for determining the definition of the public tasks of the Department's agencies. However, working with appropriate stakeholders, the shareholder executive ensures that, for each of the businesses in its portfolio, wholly or partly owned by Government, there are clearly articulated objectives reflecting both commercial and non-commercial aims.

Energy: Fees and Charges

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what steps the Government are taking to assist pensioners and vulnerable adults with rising energy costs; [202028]

(2) what steps the Government are taking to work with energy companies to minimise the effects of rising fuel bills for low income families, pensioners and vulnerable adults; [202029]

(3) what steps the Government plan to take to minimise further rises in energy costs. [202030]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 30 April 2008]: We are concerned about the impact of higher prices on vulnerable people and we continue to encourage energy suppliers to adopt initiatives to restrict price rises for the most vulnerable.

In Budget 2008, the Government said they would like to see the amount energy suppliers spend on social programmes increase to at least £150 million a year over the period ahead. A new voluntary agreement has recently been signed individually with the six major energy suppliers to treble their individual investment on social programmes in the next three years, reaching collective investment of £150 million by 2010-11. This will take spend to £100 million in 2008-09, £125 million in 2009-10 and £150 million in 2010-11.

In addition, winter fuel payments helped keep 11.7 million people warm in winter 2006-07 and Budget 2008 announced an additional one-off payment of £100 to over-80s households and £50 to over-60s households in 2008-09.

The Government do not interfere in commercial pricing decisions in the energy supply markets which are competitive markets. Ofgem's analysis suggests that recent energy price rises are due mainly to global demand for fossil fuels pushing up wholesale prices. The UK gas market is increasingly influenced by continental gas markets and the Government are supporting the European Commission's efforts to improve competition in those markets.

Increased gas storage can help to protect the UK gas market from price shocks. The Government are taking steps to improve and streamline the regulatory regimes for constructing gas storage facilities through the Planning and Energy Bills, now before Parliament.

Energy: Skilled Workers

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment the Government have made of current and future skills needs in the (a) nuclear waste industries and (b) energy efficiency and renewable energy sectors. [202513]

Malcolm Wicks: The nuclear industry began a comprehensive review of its skills base in 2002. The Sector Skills Council Cogent became responsible for nuclear in 2004 and used the review to develop the sector skills agreement for the industry. The sector has also developed and launched a national Skills Academy for Nuclear, which will lead on training and skills development. The academy plans, on behalf of employers, to start learners on 1200 apprenticeships and 150 foundation degrees, while providing 4000 shorter courses to re-train existing staff over the next three years. It will also lead on delivery of the passport system to record skills and competencies. The needs for nuclear waste management are fully factored in to the academy's and employers' plans.

Energy efficiency and renewables are mostly emerging technologies and it is hard to predict the exact timing of deployment. This makes it challenging to plan for skills delivery and, clearly, the production or large numbers of skilled people ahead of or behind demand for their services would be unhelpful. Employers and Sector Skills Councils are in early discussions about skills strategies (possibly leading to Skills Academies) for waste and environmental services, which would cover microgeneration and waste-to-energy, while the wind industry has just started discussions of its own. On the wider front, energy skills are largely generic and transferable, so people trained in the more developed skills programmes (nuclear, process and oil and gas) could provide a resource for renewable energy in the future.

Export Credits Guarantee Department

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what arrangements his Department has in place to monitor the extent to which support for carbon-intensive projects provided by the Export Credits Guarantee Department is consistent with Government policy on climate change. [200335]

Malcolm Wicks: ECGD's Statement of Business Principles, published in 2000, includes the commitment that ECGD:

> "will ensure [its] activities take into account the Government's international policies, including those on sustainable development, environment, human rights, good governance and trade".

The implementation of the Statement of Business Principles in relation to environmental issues is described further in ECGD's Case Impact Analysis Process (CIAP), which is published on the ECGD website:

http://www.ecgd.gov.uk/ecgd_case_impact_analysis_process_-_may_2004-4.pdf

Fuel Poverty

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 7 February 2008, Official Report, column 1447W, on fuel poverty, when he expects (a) fuel poverty figures for 2006 and (b) updated regional fuel poverty figures to be published. [202375]

Malcolm Wicks: Fuel poverty figures for 2006 will be available in the sixth annual fuel poverty strategy progress report later this year. Data used to estimate numbers of fuel poor households are derived from the annual English House Conditions Survey (EHCS). Regional figures (at Government office region level) will be published in an annex of detailed tables accompanying the 2006 report.

Industrial Diseases: Compensation

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much and what proportion of the total administrative cost of the coal health compensation schemes had been spent on (a) contractors and (b) external legal advice as at 31 March 2008. [202714]

Malcolm Wicks: With respect to Coal Health Compensation schemes, the Department's administrative costs are broken down as follows as at 31 March 2008:

These are cost that would normally be borne by the plaintiffs but which, for these schemes, the Department has agreed to meet.

Malcolm Wicks: The average settlement for Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD) and Vibration White Finger (VWF) by the 20 claimants' representatives who have submitted the greatest number of claims is shown in the tables as at 20 April 2008:

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many grant awards have been made under the domestic stream of the Low Carbon Buildings programme in each month since its inception. [199374]

Malcolm Wicks: Grant awards made each month under the domestic funding stream of the Low Carbon Buildings programme since its inception are shown in the following table:

Month	Number of grant awards
May 2006	389
June 2006	161
July 2006	509
August 2006	512
September 2006	402
October 2006	1078
November 2006	1051
December 2006	346
January 2007	266
February 2007	199
March 2007	191
April 2007	—
May 2007	299
June 2007	290
July 2007	240
August 2007	201
September 2007	213
October 2007	193
November 2007	196
December 2007	118
January 2008	234
February 2008	181
March 2008	174

There has been a decline in the number of grant awards being issued since the changes made at the re-launch of the household stream in May 2007, when amongst other measures, a pre-requisite to seek planning permission prior to applying for a grant was introduced to reduce the number of speculative applications being received. However the quality of applications being received to the programme is much improved with fewer offers being withdrawn or expiring now than at any time during the life of the programme.

More recently we have announced that the household funding stream will remain open to new applicants until the funds are exhausted or to June 2010, whichever comes sooner. With the £2,500 cap per household, we believe this provides a simple and fair way of allocating funds to householders across all technologies and to increase the number of installations, which is an important aim for this demonstration programme. We believe with the extension, we will see increased take up, supported by easing of planning requirements implemented in April.

Nuclear Power Stations: Decommissioning

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether trustees appointed to oversee the implementation of a funding arrangement plan for the approved funded decommissioning programme for a new nuclear plant will be eligible to become a trustee for another nuclear plant decommissioning fund. [202077]

Malcolm Wicks: The "Consultation on Funded Decommissioning Programme Guidance for New Nuclear Power Stations" document, published on 22 February 2008, states that the Secretary of State will wish to be satisfied that suitable arrangements are in place for the governance of a fund. The governance arrangements will depend on the fund structure adopted and such arrangements should be set out in the Funding Arrangement Plans submitted to the Secretary of State for approval.

Oil

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the Government's estimate is on when global oil production will peak; and what information has been used to arrive at that estimate. [203516]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government do not estimate the timing of peak in global oil production. However, it is our assessment that the global oil reserves are sufficient to prevent total global oil production peaking in the foreseeable future provided sufficient investment in both upstream and downstream is forthcoming in order for production to keep pace with the growing global oil demand. This is consistent with the assessment made by the International Energy Agency (IEA) in its 2007 World Energy Outlook (WEO).

Public Houses

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent assessment he has made of the financial viability of public houses. [202446]

Mr. Thomas: My Department has made no such assessment.

Public Houses: Closures

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will commission research to determine whether there is a relationship between tied lease agreements and the number of (a) pub closures and (b) landlord bankruptcies; and if he will make a statement. [202924]

Mr. Thomas: The Insolvency Service has a limited budget available for research and evaluation, working co-operatively with stakeholders and other parts of Government. It regularly reviews the priority areas for research funding and at present the relationship between tied lease agreements and pub closures/ landlord bankruptcies is not an area targeted for research.

Renewable Energy: Finance

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the reasons for the level of applications for the UK Export Credits Guarantee Department's £50 million credit line for renewable energy projects; what steps he is taking to encourage more applications; and if he will make a statement. [202011]

Malcolm Wicks: ECGD's renewable energy initiative has generated a number of approaches since its introduction in 2003, though there has been no take up of ECGD cover so far. The main reason would appear to be that most opportunities to date for exporters in the emerging UK renewable energy sector have arisen in OECD markets where ECGD cover is not generally required.

ECGD officials continue to work alongside colleagues in BERR, UKTI and relevant trade associations to promote awareness of the ECGD cover availability. As a result of contact with the British Wind Energy Association, ECGD is currently following up approaches for potential wind turbine exports with a combined value of up to £10 million.

Shares: Sales Methods

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the role of Companies House is in combating illegal share sale boiler room operations. [203628]

Mr. Thomas: Companies House fulfils the following functions under company law:

The incorporation, dissolution and restoration of limited companies.

The maintenance of a register of information filed by companies under the Companies Acts and related legislation, which it makes available for public inspection.

This means that information from the companies register is available to law enforcement agencies, with whom Companies House has a working relationship.

Companies House does not have a role in regulating sales of shares or in pursuing people who may have committed financial crime.

Small Businesses: Beer

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what support his Department makes available to micro-breweries, with specific reference to (a) new businesses and (b) social enterprises. [201253]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform does not have any specific measures to address the needs of micro-breweries. However, Business Link has been created to act as the primary channel for all businesses providing them with access to the help and support they need to start and develop their business. The service provides business with information, helps diagnose their needs and then identifies and connects them to appropriate public and private sector solutions.

Businesses can access the service in a number of ways. The national website http://wwvv.businesslink.gov.uk, provides a wealth of information and tools designed for all types of business. This is supported by a network of advisers across England managed by the Regional Development Agencies but delivered locally. Advisers offer a mix of "light touch" and in-depth support services tailored to meet the specific needs of individual businesses. Access to these face-to-face services can be obtained by calling the national helpline on 0845 6009006.

Responsibility for Social Enterprises now rests with the Office of the Third Sector (OTS). Officials in BERR, OTS and the Regional Development Agencies are working together to ensure organisations delivering Business Link services are aware of the needs of Social Enterprises and can identify suitable solutions specifically designed to meet their needs.

In addition, on 12 March, Government published a renewed enterprise strategy which aims to make the UK the most enterprising economy in the world and the best place to start and grow a business. The strategy contains a number of measures to help small businesses, such as micro-breweries, to grow. These include measures to reduce regulatory burdens, for example by considering exempting small firms from new regulations, and measures to help businesses to access the finance they need to grow, for example the strengthening of the small firms loan guarantee scheme, which is available to businesses regardless of sector. The strategy is available at www.berr.gov.uk/enterprisestrategy.

Sustainable Development: Education

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what reports he has received of the Centre for Alternative Technology's Wales Institute for Sustainable Education initiative; and if he will make a statement. [201295]

Malcolm Wicks: To the best of our knowledge no reports are listed, following checks on our electronic management record and correspondence systems, as being received by the Secretary of State or other Ministers on the Centre for Alternative Technology's Wales Institute for Sustainable Education initiative.

Lembit Öpik: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will provide £1.2 million of funding to the Centre for Alternative Technology to support completion of the Wales Institute for Sustainable Education; and if he will make a statement. [201296]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Blaenau Gwent (Mr. Davies) on 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 1976W.

Veterinary Services: Prescriptions

Anne Moffat: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he plans to extend the prohibition on veterinary surgeons charging for prescriptions when it expires in October 2008. [202765]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The Office of Fair Trading (OFT) will be monitoring developments closely once the three year prohibition on prescription charges for veterinary medicines end in October 2008. It is a matter for the OFT to consider whether any farther regulatory action may be needed to ensure effective competition in this market.

World Trade Organisation

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will make a statement on progress of the Doha round of talks at the World Trade Organisation. [203031]

Mr. Thomas: Negotiations are continuing among World Trade Organisation members in Geneva. The WTO is expected to issue revised negotiating texts on agriculture, non agricultural market access (NAMA) and services in May. This may enable Pascal Lamy, Director General of the WTO, to hold a ministerial meeting to reach agreement on agriculture and NAMA that could pave the way to signing an overall Doha deal by the end of this year.

The Government are working with the EU Trade Commissioner, other EU member states and other WTO members to achieve an ambitious, pro-development outcome to the Doha Round before the end of 2008.

Written Answers to Questions

PRIME MINISTER

Engagements

14. Mr. Steen: To ask the Prime Minister if he will visit the UK Human Trafficking Centre in Sheffield to discuss trends in human trafficking into the UK from other EU member states. [203752]

The Prime Minister: The Government deplore all forms of human trafficking. The UK has led the way on human trafficking: the EU plan on preventing and combating trafficking in persons was adopted during the UK presidency in 2005; and, the UK and Poland are leading a project with a number of EU partners to undertake more practical co-operation on human trafficking.

The UK's action plan "Tacking Human Trafficking", published in March 2007, sets out the Government's strategy. Copies are available in the Libraries of the House.

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Prime Minister on how many occasions he visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [204389]

The Prime Minister: A list of my UK visits will be published in the usual way following the end of the financial year.

Speeches

Greg Clark: To ask the Prime Minister who his Office has employed as a speechwriter since he took up office as Prime Minister. [203890]

The Prime Minister: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 29 October 2007, Official Report, column 625W.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Community Assets Programme

8. Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what progress has been made on the community assets programme; and if he will make a statement. [203762]

Phil Hope: The £30 million Community Assets programme is making excellent progress. Last month it announced 37 in-principle awards to refurbish assets that will be transferred to third sector ownership. The projects are imaginative and varied: from inner-city spaces offering alternative education for young people to cutting edge theatre and art, and health and keep-fit services.

Charities and Community Groups

9. Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he is taking to reduce the burden of administration on charities and community groups. [203763]

Phil Hope: The Government are tackling administrative burdens affecting the third sector in a number of ways. For example the Charities Act 2006 includes a range of de-regulatory measures that particularly help the smallest charities, and the Charity Commission has introduced a simplified annual return form which is already benefiting 65,000 charities.

Social Enterprise

10. Ms Butler: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what steps he is taking to promote social enterprise amongst young people. [203764]

Edward Miliband: The Government are committed to promoting social enterprise among young people as part of the 2006 Social Enterprise Action Plan and the 2007 Third Sector Review. Programmes with a focus on young people include the Social Enterprise Ambassadors programme, raising the profile of social enterprise, and embedding social enterprise in the school curriculum, such as GCSE Business Studies.

Social Change

11. Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidance he provides to the third sector on campaigning for social change; and if he will make a statement. [203765]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Slough (Fiona MacTaggart).

14. Paul Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the Government's policy is on third sector organisations which campaign for social change. [203768]

Edward Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave earlier today to my hon. Friend the Member for Slough (Fiona Mactaggart).

Social Inclusion

12. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent steps he has taken to promote social inclusion in rural areas. [203766]

Phil Hope: The Socially Excluded Adults Public Service Agreement and the Families at Risk Review will help to promote social inclusion in rural areas. They will support the Government's wider work on building strong rural communities and ensuring that public services meet the needs of the most vulnerable rural residents. The Government are providing over £50 million a year to support rural bus services, are ensuring that 95 per cent. of the rural population are within three miles of a Post Office, and have committed to deliver over 10,000 affordable homes in settlements of less than 3,000 inhabitants by 2011.

Hospitality: Senior Civil Servants

13. David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recent assessment he has made of compliance with the civil service management code's rules on the registration of hospitality received by senior civil servants. [203767]

Edward Miliband: The rules on the registration of hospitality are set out in the "Civil Service Management Code". The Government are committed to publishing, for the first time, an annual list of hospitality received during 2007 by members of departmental boards. The information is currently being compiled, and it will be published shortly.

Conditions of Employment

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what progress has been made in removing the two-tier workforce. [203754]

Phil Hope: In 2005 the Government introduced a Code of Practice on Workforce Matters designed to prevent the development of a two tier workforce in public services. The code's implementation is currently being reviewed as part of the work programme of the Public Services Forum. The code also explicitly encourages employees and trade unions to alert Government to any problems with its implementation.

Departmental Press

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what weekly publications the Prime Minister's office subscribes to or purchases each week; and at what cost. [203891]

Phil Hope: The Prime Minister's office forms an integral part of the Cabinet Office.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Fareham (Mr. Hoban) on 9 October 2007, Official Report, column 530W.

TRANSPORT

Aviation: Noise

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) when the Government adopted the 57dBLeq contour as the threshold for problematic aircraft noise; [194002]

(2) if she will review the effectiveness of the 57dBLeq contour as a threshold for problematic transport-related noise. [194003]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In September 1990 the Department for Transport announced the replacement of the noise and number index (NNI) with Leq (16 hour) dBA as the daytime index for aircraft noise. 57 dBA Leq (measured over 07.00-23.00 period) was adopted as representing the onset of annoyance, although the Government acknowledged that there can be no absolute measure of disturbance from aircraft noise given the variation in individual reactions.

This decision followed publication of the report "United Kingdom Aircraft Noise Index Study" (ANIS) in 1985 and subsequent consultation on its findings.

In 2001 the Department commissioned the "Attitudes to Noise from Aviation Sources" (ANASE) study to update the ANIS research. The conclusions of this study (which were announced by the Secretary of State on 2 November 2007) indicated that whilst it is highly probable that annoyance with a particular level of aircraft noise is higher than found in the ANIS study, it showed no evidence of a particular threshold at which it becomes a serious problem.

However, in terms of making quantitative comparisons between the results from ANASE and the earlier ANIS study, expert peer reviewers of the ANASE study advised that "reliance on the detailed outcome of ANASE would be misplaced" and that they would "counsel against using the detailed results and conclusions from ANASE in the development of government policy".

Although the report does not provide evidence for replacing the figure of 57 dBA Leq (16 hours) with a lower or higher figure, we believe it is right to retain this figure as a safeguard for those who are most affected by aircraft noise. In the "Future of Air Transport" White Paper the Government gave a commitment that further development of Heathrow could only be considered if it resulted in no net increase in the total area of the 57 Leq dBA noise contour compared with summer 2002, an area of 127 sq km. That commitment stands and the ability to meet it is a key consideration, in the "Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport" consultation.

Additionally, as we announced when the ANASE study was released, pending the availability of a better alternative we will apply existing valuation for road and rail noise when assessing the economic impact of noise in the cost- benefit analysis of future aviation projects. We have taken this approach in the case of "Adding Capacity at Heathrow Airport" consultation.

The Department is taking forward work to follow up the ANASE findings with the Aircraft Noise Monitoring Advisory Committee (ANMAC), whose role is to advise the Department on policy relating to aircraft noise at Heathrow, Gatwick and Stansted.

The significance of the 57 dBA (16 hours) contour—as representing the onset of annoyance—specifically relates to aircraft noise. Noise annoyance criteria from other transport sources will reflect research, as appropriate, specific to those modes.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether training flight movements are included in data collected on air traffic management movements and consequential noise at UK airports. [200671] listing non-commercial movements amongst which are test and training flights.

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Civil Aviation Authority collects statistics on air transport movements at the larger UK airports and these are published on their website. The published statistics include a table:

(http://www.caa.co.uk/docs/80/airport_data/2007Annual/Table_03_1_Aircraft_Movements_2007.csv)

The CAA also produces annual noise contours maps for the three London designated airports (Heathrow, Gatwick and Stansted). However similar maps for other airports are not produced.

Biofuels: Asthma

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the likely effects on incidence and severity of asthma of increased use of biofuels. [202837]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1432W.

Dartford Tunnel: Tolls

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what factors she took into account in deciding the level of discount to local residents for Dartford Crossing tolls. [203572]

Ms Rosie Winterton: Final decisions have not yet been taken on discounts from Dartford Crossing charges for local residents. Our proposals are currently out to consultation, and the rationale for our proposals is described in the consultation document.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what role her Department has in setting toll charges for (a) the Mersey Tunnel and (b) the Dartford Crossing. [203574]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Mersey Tunnels are not directly a matter for central Government. The Mersey Tunnels Act allows Merseytravel to increase tolls based on a Retail Price Index formula. Charges at Dartford are established by Order of the Secretary of State in exercise of powers conferred by the Transport Act 2000.

Departmental ICT

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2533-34W, on departmental ICT, how many of the missing or stolen (a) laptops, (b) mobile telephones and (c) personal digital assistants have been replaced by her Department; and at what cost. [202439]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The cost for the replacement of the laptop computers, mobile telephones and personal digital assistants reported as lost, missing or stolen since 2002, as referred to in the answer of 5 March 2008, Official Report, columns 2533-34W, was:

£79,370 for lost, missing or stolen laptops;

£2,852 for lost, missing or stolen mobile telephones; and

£4,918 for lost, missing or stolen personal digital assistants.

For the purposes of this reply, it is assumed that all lost, missing and stolen mobile devices were replaced by the Department for Transport. Complete records of whether any single lost or stolen item was actually replaced are not available. Where accurate replacement costs are not available, the replacement costs for these items have been estimated.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Disclosure of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will make it her policy to require the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Authority (DVLA) to release information to companies making manual requests only if such companies are members of a DVLA-accredited trade association. [203951]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The requirement for private car parking companies who submit requests for vehicle keeper information via electronic channels to be a member of an Accredited Trade Association (ATA) was introduced following public consultation in 2006. The British Parking Association is the only existing ATA for the parking industry. Following the consultation, it was not considered necessary to extend this requirement to those who apply via the manual, paper-based channels due to the fact that each application is considered individually and additional to the evidence that must be provided.

The DVLA will shortly be undertaking a review of all the new measures introduced in 2006. This review will consider the effectiveness of the current requirements, and all other options available.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many requests for information in respect of the registered keeper of a vehicle were made to the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Authority (DVLA) in the last month for which figures are available; how many of those were received by (a) electronic and (b) manual requests from (i) DVLA-accredited trade associations, (ii) non-DVLA-accredited car park operators, (iii) individuals and (iv) others; and how many in each category were (A) accepted and (B) refused. [203952]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Regulation 27 of the Road Vehicles (Registration and Licensing) Regulations 2002 provides for the release of information from the DVLA's vehicle register to the police, to local authorities for investigation of an offence or a decriminalised parking contravention, and to anyone who can demonstrate 'reasonable cause' for having the information made available to them.

The requirement for unregulated companies who submit requests for vehicle keeper information via electronic channels to be a member of an Accredited Trade Association (ATA) was introduced following public consultation in 2006.

Following the consultation, it was not considered necessary to extend this requirement to those who apply via the manual, paper-based channels due to the fact that each application is considered individually and additional to the evidence that must be provided.

The latest figures available for requests for information processed by the DVLA under the 'reasonable cause' provisions are for March 2008.

During March, 100,828 requests were received and responded to electronically. During the same month, 24,106 manual requests for information were received and processed and an additional 2,659 were refused.

The aforementioned figures show 'all' requests for vehicle keeper details under the 'reasonable cause' provisions. These include requests from insurance and finance companies, private car park enforcement companies, members of the public and solicitors, etc., for keeper details at a specific date of event. It also contains requests where the current keeper requires the full history of his vehicle and from mileage companies for investigations into vehicle 'clocking'.

DVLA does not keep separate figures for each category of requests, so it is not possible to advise how many requests were made by individuals, members of DVLA Accredited Trade Associations (ATA), non-DVLA accredited car park enforcement companies, or others.

It is possible to confirm, however, that all electronic requests would have been made either by companies with a statutory regulator or members of an ATA.

Jim Fitzpatrick: Risk registers are a routine feature of programme and project management and are used widely within the Department for Transport (DfT) to help ensure that potentially relevant issues are anticipated and addressed. The Heathrow Project Board regularly reviewed risks as part of the process leading to the recent Heathrow consultation, and the information requested is listed as follows, by date of meeting, risk number and descriptor:

M20: Noise

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1445W, on M20: noise, how many sites identified as being a high priority for resurfacing have been resurfaced in each of the last five years; and how many her Department plans to resurface in each of the next five years. [203881]

Mr. Tom Harris: The resurfacing of the high priority sites commenced in financial year 2004-05. The number of high priority sites which have been resurfaced in each financial year to 2007-08 is:

	Number
2004-05	2
2005-06	4
2007-08	3

No information is available for the planned resurfacing of the remaining high priority sites by individual financial years. However, four sites are currently planned to be resurfaced before the end of financial year 2010-11. The remaining 10 sites are planned to be resurfaced after 2010-11.

Mersey Tunnel: Tolls

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations she has received on providing a discount for Mersey Tunnel tolls for local residents. [203573]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department for Transport is not aware of any representations relating to discounts for local residents for use of the Mersey Tunnels.

Passengers: Borders

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent estimate she has made of the projected number of passenger movements across UK borders in (a) 2008 and (b) 2009. [203943]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available.

However, the Department for Transport's latest forecasts of air passenger demand at UK airports are reported in "UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts" (November 2007), available at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/aviation/environmentalissues/ukairdemandandco2forecasts/

Railways: Postal Services

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment her Department has made of the merits of reopening the MailRail postal transport system under central London for mail or other purposes. [203954]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Department for Transport has not carried out any assessment into the merits of reopening the Post Office Underground Railway system. Decisions on the future of the system are a commercial matter for the Royal Mail.

Railways: Sales

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many miles of dismantled railway track bed have been sold by the British Railways Property Board since 2001; and if she will make a statement. [202921]

Mr. Tom Harris: BRB (Residuary) does not record the length of trackbed that it disposes of. However, since 2001, the number of sites containing trackbed that have been sold is limited as most disused railway lines that were owned by the British Railways Board had been disposed of by then.

Railways: Watford

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many passengers used the Watford-Gatwick service operated by Southern in each year since the service began; what the Government's plans are for the service; and if she will make a statement. [199349]

Mr. Tom Harris: A survey carried out during 2007 showed that some 8500 passengers per day use the Watford-Gatwick service, of whom fewer than 30 per cent. were making journeys from one side of Clapham Junction to the other, and fewer than 3 per cent. were making journeys to and from Gatwick airport.

I understand that Southern (the train operator) intend to make an announcement about plans for this service shortly.

Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to ensure that fuel counting towards the renewable transport fuel obligation is sourced only from sustainable and local supply chains; and if she will take steps against those producers, wholesalers and retailers which do not meet these requirements. [203637]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Under the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO), which came into effect on 15 April, transport fuel suppliers are required to report on the sustainability of any biofuels in respect of which they wish to earn renewable transport fuel certificates. Details of the reporting requirements are available via the Renewable Fuels Agency's website at http://www.dft.gov.uk/rfa.

The Government have set various targets to encourage transport fuel suppliers to source sustainable, low carbon biofuels. The Renewable Fuels Agency will report regularly on the performance of different transport fuel suppliers against these targets.

In parallel, the Government are pressing for EU-wide mandatory sustainability standards for all biofuels: these could be in place by April 2010.

Roads: Tolls

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what research her Department has (a) commissioned and (b) plans to commission on enabling technologies for road pricing schemes; and what timetable is planned for such research in each case. [199522]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Government have invited the private sector to demonstrate how they might run a system of charging for road use according to time of day and route chosen. On 12 March we issued, to eight pre-qualified bidders, the first invitation to tender in this two-year demonstrations project, for the framework for road user service providers. We expect that this framework agreement will be established during June 2008, with the first trials involving volunteers getting underway this autumn.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how her Department takes into account the average income of local residents when deciding on the level of tolls for river road crossings and tunnels for which it is responsible. [203582]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The only charging regime for which the Department for Transport is responsible is the scheme for the Dartford Crossing. Income of local residents is not specifically taken into account in setting charges.

Roundabouts

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will issue guidance on providing pedestrian crossings at roundabouts that at night can be decoupled from the traffic lights that control their operation to increase traffic flow and reduce noise at such junctions at night. [203700]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The type of crossing and use of traffic lights depends on the type of roundabout and its location. The local highway authority is responsible for deciding the most appropriate type of crossing and junction control.

Department for Transport advice on pedestrian crossings is given in two Local Transport Notes, LTN 1/95 The Assessment of Pedestrian Crossings and LTN 2/95 The Design of Pedestrian Crossings. LTN 2/95 provides advice on pedestrian crossings on the approaches to roundabouts and at traffic light controlled junctions. This advice includes the need to consider linking crossings with other nearby traffic lights to co-ordinate when the lights change and ease traffic flow.

The Department has commissioned research to examine options for traffic lights at roundabouts. We will consider the need for further guidance when that research is complete.

Traffic Management Act 2004

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she expects to issue guidance to local authorities in respect of the issuing of fixed penalty notices under the Traffic Management Act 2004. [201263]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Traffic Management Act 2004 amends the New Roads and Street Works Act 1991 to allow the use of fixed penalties for certain offences, as an alternative to prosecution in the magistrates court. The "Code of Practice for the Co-ordination of Street Works and Works for Road Purposes and Related Matters" which was released in July 2007 and re-issued in the 31 March 2008, included a chapter on fixed penalties.

WALES

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what council tax band amendments in Wales were made subsequent to the 2005 council tax revaluation; and how many homes were moved into a higher band after the revaluation came into effect. [202920]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much his Department spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204096]

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department has offset its carbon emissions for the last two years.

The costs, to the Wales Office, of offsets were:

April 2007—£4307.80

March 2008—£747.20.

On both occasions the carbon offsetting was through "PURE the clean planet Trust".

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Disease Control

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which animal disease preventative measures the Government plans to include in cost-sharing arrangements with farmers. [203488]

Jonathan Shaw: A consultation on responsibility and cost sharing for animal health and welfare closed on 15 April. Responses to that consultation will inform a further public consultation on specific proposals later this autumn.

Animal Welfare

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the devolved Administrations on a UK-wide animal health and welfare strategy. [203487]

Jonathan Shaw: An Animal Health and Welfare Strategy for Britain was launched in 2004. Northern Ireland has a similar strategy and is currently consulting on a draft all-island strategy. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has appointed an advisory body, the England Implementation Group, to oversee delivery of the strategy in England. This group maintains links with its Scottish and Welsh counterparts to review British wide strategy implementation issues.

Badgers

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many cage traps for catching badgers his Department holds in store. [203082]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA does not hold in storage any cage traps for catching badgers. The traps that were used during the randomised badger culling trial have been disposed of.

The Central Science Laboratory (an agency of DEFRA) holds over 600 badger cage traps which are being used as part of DEFRA-funded research.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the estimated badger population was in England and Wales in each of the last 10 years. [203083]

Joan Ruddock: Surveys of badger populations in Great Britain were undertaken in the mid-1980s and mid-1990s. In the mid-1980s the badger population was estimated to be 250,000 and in the mid-1990s a survey estimated the population had increased by 77 per cent.

DEFRA is not aware of any national surveys which have attempted to estimate badger populations in England and Wales.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice he has received on the potential effectiveness of a tuberculosis vaccine for badgers if given to an already infected animal. [203084]

Jonathan Shaw: Vaccination evokes an immune response to prevent an uninfected animal from contracting the disease. The effect of Bacille Calmette Guerin (BCG) vaccination on already TB-infected badgers is unknown, but work is under way to determine this. It may have no effect, may delay or reduce excretion of TB bacilli, but is not expected to have any adverse effect.

Ecologists have advised that the turnover in a badger population is 30 per cent. per annum and modelling has shown that in a relatively short timescale there would be a mostly naïve uninfected population in which vaccine would become more effective.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what information (a) is held by and (b) has been provided to each Divisional Veterinary Officer on the relocation of badgers from urban and suburban areas to rural areas. [203085]

Jonathan Shaw: This information is not collected centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost to the Department.

Biofuels: Environment Protection

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department is undertaking on the environmental impact of biofuels. [202824]

Mr. Woolas: The Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO) includes a reporting mechanism under which any transport fuel supplier wishing to claim a certificate in respect of any biofuel must submit a report detailing its environmental impacts. These reports will enable the Renewable Fuels Agency (RFA) to report regularly on the progress that is being made towards meeting targets under the obligation, as well as on the carbon savings and sustainability impacts of the policy.

In response to Government concern about the indirect impacts of biofuel cultivation, the chairman of the Renewable Fuels Agency is leading a study commissioned by the Department for Transport (the Gallagher Review) which is looking at effects of biofuels on land use change and the consequences for greenhouse gas savings. It is also examining the effects on international food prices and food security. The results of the review will inform the development of future UK biofuel policies and targets, including proposed EU targets for future biofuel consumption.

Birds: Conservation

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds' plans for sites of special scientific interest land in Castle Point constituency; and if he will make a statement. [203665]

Joan Ruddock: Natural England is DEFRA's delivery body for sites of special scientific interest (SSSIs) and it has received no proposals from the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds in relation to plans for SSSIs in Castle Point.

Bluetongue Disease: Disease Control

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what procedures are used to ensure that imported exotic livestock which are susceptible to or may be infected with bluetongue disease are kept in an insect-free environment for the duration of their quarantine. [203079]

Jonathan Shaw: The UK fully implements EU legislation with respect to imports of exotic ruminant animals from outside the EU. These rules take into account the full range of disease risks and are consequently very restrictive. In practice, such imports rarely occur so the question of quarantine does not arise.

Movements of exotic ruminants within the EU are subject to the same rules as those for farm livestock. There are a number of options based on combinations of protection from insect vector attack, blood testing and vaccination, all of which are carried out before departure and certified by the official veterinary services of the exporting country. These rules are kept under constant review in the light of experience and emerging science.

Once animals have arrived in the UK, they are restricted to the premises of destination and tested for bluetongue within two days of arrival. In exotic species, testing is carried out on the basis of a risk assessment.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with manufacturers of Bt8 vaccine other than Intervet on supplying the UK market. [203080]

Jonathan Shaw: Since the Government decided to place an order with Intervet for 22.5 million doses of BTV-8 vaccine following a tender issued last year, DEFRA officials have met representatives from Merial and Fort Dodge to give them feedback on the tender process.

We are considering with the farming industry how best to secure future supplies of vaccine and will keep our options under review in the coming weeks.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Compensation

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) from which individuals and organisations his Department has sought advice on modifications to the table valuation system for compensation for cattle culled as a result of bovine tuberculosis in the last 12 months; [203451]

(2) what options for modifications to the table valuation system for compensation for cattle culled as a result of bovine tuberculosis he has considered; [203452]

(3) when he expects to make modifications to the table valuation system for compensation for cattle culled as a result of bovine tuberculosis. [203453]

Jonathan Shaw: The Government recognise that the new compensation system, based on table valuations, which was introduced in February 2006, is not supported by many in the farming industry.

DEFRA has not ruled out the possibility of changes to the current compensation system, but any changes would need to be justified and take into account the interests of all parties, including taxpayers. They would also need to take account of the extensive evidence in the level of over-valuation experienced under the previous system based on individual valuations. DEFRA held discussions with members of the Cattle Compensation Advisory Group about possible modifications to the new system without reaching any consensus. Discussions have also taken place with representatives from the organic farming sector to consider their view that system enhancements are needed for organically produced cattle.

A Judicial Review challenge concerning the table valuation system will be heard in the High Court in early June and any decisions about modifications to the system will take into account the judgment in that case.

Burbots: Imports

Sir George Young: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he will reply to the request from the University of Southampton, London Zoo and the Environment Agency for an import licence for burbots. [203816]

Jonathan Shaw: We are in dialogue with the University of Southampton, London Zoo and the Environment Agency and are working collaboratively to find a solution to this situation.

Climate Change

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with (a) wildlife trusts and (b) gardening associations on their evaluation of the impact of climate change; and what encouragement he is giving to them to measure that impact. [198240]

Joan Ruddock: I am in regular contact with a wide range of interest groups on the impact of climate change.

The England Biodiversity Group, chaired by DEFRA, oversees the delivery of the England Biodiversity Strategy which has several workstreams including Climate Change Adaptation. A number of national and local members of Wildlife Trusts are active members of different workstreams within the strategy and have the opportunity to offer their views on climate change and to influence the workstreams plans towards adaptation. In 2007 the UK Biodiversity Partnership Standing Committee published "Conserving Biodiversity—the UK Approach" a new strategic framework for the UK biodiversity action plan, which identified shared priorities for action for priority species and habitats, acknowledging the need to help biodiversity respond to climate change. The Wildlife Trusts belong to the Wildlife and Countryside Link who are members of the UK Biodiversity Partnership Standing Committee.

DEFRA has had discussions with members of the Growing Media Initiative (GMI), an industry-led group which has been set up to meet targets for the reduction of peat use in horticulture/gardening. A new project has also been funded by DEFRA to examine the greenhouse gas emissions associated with the extraction, production, processing, transport and use of growing media used by this sector and members of the GMI are involved in the Project Steering Group. In addition, DEFRA is aware that a number of growing media manufacturers and retailers are undertaking work to determine the carbon footprint of their products. DEFRA funds the UK Climate Impacts Programme, which will be hosting a stall at this year's Chelsea Flower show to promote awareness of current and projected climate change impacts.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs which offices of (a) his Department and (b) its agencies are outside London; how many staff were employed in each pay grade at each location on (i) 1 October 2001 and (ii) 1 April 2004; and how many are planned to be employed at each location on 31 March 2008. Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people were serving on the boards of the non-departmental public bodies which his Department sponsors at the latest date for which figures are available. [203597]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 6 May 2008]: The Cabinet Office publication "Public bodies 2007" lists the number of people serving on the boards of public bodies as at 31 March 2007. These figures are broken down by individual Departments. "Public bodies 2007" can be downloaded from www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp.

Copies are also available in the Library of the House.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many full-time posts were filled on a temporary basis for a period in excess of six months in his Department in each of the last three years. [200661]

Jonathan Shaw: Posts may be filled temporarily by a variety of means, eg using short-term appointments, temporary promotion, employment agency temporary staff or interims. Consequently, it is not possible to identify all posts filled temporarily for longer than six months without incurring disproportionate cost.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by him in the last six months. [201758] Jonathan Shaw: Information to the level of detail requested is obtainable only at disproportionate cost.

The available information is set out in the following tables.

	Total written questions received	Total number of PQs answered within five sitting days	Percentage
November	559	357	63.9
December	359	220	61.3
January	425	265	62.4
February	407	286	70.3
March	371	256	69

	Total named day questions received	Total number of PQs answered on time	Percentage
November	133	49	36.8
December	67	27	40.3
January	143	61	42.7
February	69	33	47.8
March	71	20	28.2

My ministerial colleagues and I are committed to answering written parliamentary questions promptly. Unfortunately, this is not always possible.

Energy Saving Trust: Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what payments the Energy Savings Trust made to (a) Stratagem, (b) Weber Shandwick Public Affairs, (c) Consolidated Communications and (d) Positif Politics Ltd. in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202293]

Mr. Woolas: The Energy Saving Trust is a private company limited by guarantee.

Environment Protection: Housing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs with reference to his Department's press release of 2 April 2008 on initiatives on greener homes, by what criteria green neighbourhoods will be selected; and what role he expects local authorities to play in the selection process. [202952]

Mr. Woolas: The Energy Saving Trust are currently working with a range of stakeholders to develop the programme with an aim to launch the competition for funding proposals by the end of the year. We expect the first successful projects to be funded from April 2009.

The competition will call for local alliances between householders, community groups, local authorities, energy suppliers, private companies and banks to come forward with proposals to transform homes and streets into green neighbourhoods. By pooling their resources, and with additional money made available from the domestic Environmental Transformation Fund, we wish to see the environmental performance of up to 100 such neighbourhoods across England transformed, with the aim of reducing their carbon footprints by over 60 per cent.

Fisheries: Trade Competitiveness

Mr. Goodwill: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of the fuel subsidy given by Spain to its fishing industry on the competitiveness of the British fleet. [203201]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer given 1 May 2008]: European Union (EU) state aid rules designed to prevent distortion to competition do not require the EU Commission clearance of an aid scheme or schemes which cumulatively pay less than £30,000 per recipient over three years. I understand that the Spanish Government are paying aid to its fishing fleet at a level below this "de minimis" limit and hence, no assessment has been made.

Flood Control

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when the Environment Agency will publish its Strategy for Flood Risk Management for 2009 to 2014. [202515]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency will publish its Strategy in spring 2009.

Flood Control: Gloucestershire

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what analysis of critical infrastructure facilities has been undertaken in respect of Gloucestershire since July 2007; what additional protection has been put in place as a result; and what consideration has been given to the relocation of critical infrastructure. [201796]

Mr. Woolas: During the Gloucestershire floods, electricity supplies were disrupted due to flooding of the Castlemeads electricity distribution substation. In addition, the larger Walham electricity transmission substation required urgent flood protection measures to be carried out to prevent the site from being flooded. Both of these substations now have permanent flood protection barriers in place.

A review into the resilience of electricity substations to flooding was initiated by the Energy Minister. It is being led by the Energy Networks Association with support from network owners, BERR, Ofgem and the Environment Agency. This review has made contributions to Sir Michael Pitt's review into learning lessons from the 2007 floods and has developed a framework for assessing flood risk and mitigation measures that will be used to assess the situation at each of the major electricity substations during the remainder of 2008.

Severn Trent Water has been developing plans to secure alternative piped water supplies to Gloucestershire in the event of losing either Mythe or Mitcheldean Water Treatment Works. These plans are not limited to providing additional flood protection at the works and include such things as new pumping stations and improved interconnectivity between the works at Mythe and Strensham. The company presented outline proposals to Gloucestershire Overview and Scrutiny Management committee on 31 March 2008.

Fly Tipping: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many people were prosecuted for fly-tipping in the London borough of Enfield in each of the last five years. [202863]

Joan Ruddock: Data are only available from 2004 onwards.

I have arranged for a table to be placed in the Library of the House showing the number of fly-tipping incidents and prosecutions recorded in each local authority by local authorities on Flycapture for 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07.

Following the release of the 2006-07 Flycapture statistics on 9 October 2007, this information has been sent to all MPs.

It is also available to download electronically on DEFRA's Flycapture website at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/localenv/flytipping/flycapture-data.htm

Food: Prices

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on the relationship between biofuels and rising food prices; and if he will make a statement. [202551]

Mr. Woolas: We have received various representations on this issue from both hon. Members and the public.

The Government are concerned about the effect of rising food prices. Although not the main cause, the demand for biofuels is a contributing factor. Other factors include adverse weather conditions affecting recent harvests, the increasing demand for meat and hence for animal feed in developing countries, trade restrictions imposed by Governments on exports and higher production costs, such as a rise in fertiliser prices.

Horses: Exports

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when his officials last raised with the European Commission the ban on the import of UK thoroughbred bloodstock by the Indian Government. [203077]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA has raised the issue of the ban on the export of breeding horses to India with the European Commission (and others) several times over many years, most recently in March this year. We will continue to do so as we and the Commission is very keen to resolve this long-standing issue in line with international protocol (World Animal Health Organisation) for Contagious Equine Metritis (CEM). The Commission has recently urged the Indian authorities to accept our invitation to visit the UK to see our CEM controls but the Indians have not so far taken up the offer. The Indian ban affects all countries in which CEM has occurred in the past three years, which includes other member states.

National Parks: Aviation

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to protect national parks and areas of outstanding natural beauty from the effects of aircraft noise pollution. [203292]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA has no formal role to play in how airspace is utilised. The Civil Aviation Authority is charged with scrutinising airspace change proposals and reaching a decision on them, balancing all the competing interests. I understand that Department for Transport guidance requires the Civil Aviation Authority to be rigorous in identifying and reviewing all significant environmental effects of airspace changes, and to notify the Secretary of State for Transport should an airspace change have a significant detrimental effect on the environment.

However, I recently asked my officials to write to the Civil Aviation Authority to remind it of its duty to have regard to the purposes of the National Parks under the provisions of section 11A(2) of the National Parks and Access to the Countryside Act 1949, and the purpose of Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty under the provisions of section 85 of the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000.

Nature Conservation: Wildlife

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps the Government has taken to increase the protection of endangered species. [202524]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 1 May 2008]: Species protection has both national and international facets to it, and recent steps to improve protection have included the following:

Following advice from the Joint Nature Conservation Committee, the water vole, short-snouted seahorse, spiny seahorse, roman snail and angel shark have now been given enhanced protection in England under the Wildlife and Countryside Act 1981.

On 28 August 2007, I announced a new UK list of priority species and habitats (containing 1,149 species), which provides a focus for conservation action over the next decade and will be used to inform statutory lists under legislation in each of the countries of the UK.

In August last year, we brought into force regulations that increased the protection of species listed on annex IV of the habitats directive.

On the wider international stage, at the 2007 Conference of Parties to the convention on international trade in endangered species (CITES), the UK fully supported the increased protection of a range of species affected by international trade including the slow loris, the European eel and brazilwood. During 2007-08, DEFRA provided funding of around £1 million towards the operation of CITES and other major conventions, most notably the convention on biological diversity (CBD) including targeted funding for specific projects to protect and conserve albatrosses and petrels, migratory sharks, African elephants, Indian ocean marine turtles and tigers. In addition, DEFRA provided £75,000 for the Flagship Species Fund, which included projects on endangered sea turtles, primates and conifers.

Office of Water Services: Finance

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what financial contributions water companies make to Ofwat. [200318]

Mr. Woolas: Ofwat's expenditure is entirely funded through licence fees paid by appointed and licensed water companies in England and Wales. The fees recovered in 2007-08 came to a total of £12.4 million.

Packaging: Supermarkets

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to encourage (a) supermarket shoppers to re-use plastic bags and (b) supermarkets to use less packaging; and if he will introduce schemes encouraging supermarkets to provide fewer plastic bags to shoppers. [202719]

Joan Ruddock: The Government pledged in the "Waste Strategy for England 2007" to phase out free single-use carrier bags.

The UK retail sector set itself a shared objective with the Government and the Waste and Resources Action programme (WRAP) to reduce the environmental impact of carrier bags by 25 per cent. by the end of 2008.

The Prime Minister announced on 19 November 2007 that we needed to go further—to eliminate single-use carrier bags altogether in favour of long-lasting and more sustainable alternatives. The Chancellor of the Exchequer announced in the Budget on 12 March that we will introduce legislation to impose a charge on single-use carrier bags in 2009 if we have not seen sufficient progress on a voluntary basis.

The management of packaging and packaging waste is covered by two sets of regulations in the UK: the Producer Responsibility Obligations (Packaging Waste) (Amendment) Regulations 2008 and the Packaging (Essential Requirements) Regulations 2003 (as amended). The aim of both sets of regulations is to minimise the amount of packaging used in the first place, and therefore reduce packaging waste. An additional objective of the regulations is to encourage reuse of packaging and increase the recovery and recycling of packaging waste.

My Department continues to encourage supermarkets to take greater responsibility for the waste they place on the market and to encourage producers to reduce their waste. Apart from the two sets of packaging regulations described above, WRAP is currently working with retailers through the 'Courtauld Commitment', a voluntary agreement which aimed to halt packaging growth by March this year and make absolute reductions in packaging waste by 2010.

Pest Control: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the proportion of local authorities charging for pest control services at the latest date for which figures are available according to estimates of (a) his Department and (b) the Audit Commission. [202555]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA holds no information on either the number or proportion of local authorities which charge for pest control services. It is for local authorities to decide on the most appropriate pest control programme in their own area, whilst having regard to their duties for controlling rats and mice under the Prevention of Damage by Pests Act 1949.

Pests

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what statistics his Department collects on (a) the size of the rodent population and (b) incidences of vermin infestation in England. [202951]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA does not collect statistics on the size of rodent populations. DEFRA will shortly be publishing an interim report on rodent presence in domestic properties as revealed by the English House Condition Survey data for 2002-03 and 2003-04. Key findings are that the occurrences of rats inside and outside properties in these years are not significantly different from those observed in 2001.

Plastic Bags

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of plastic bags used (a) by supermarket shoppers in the last 12 months and (b) in England in the last 10 years. [202718]

Joan Ruddock: The Waste and Resources Action programme (WRAP) estimates that over 13 billion carrier bags are distributed in the UK each year. Of these, the supermarket signatories to the WRAP's voluntary agreement on carrier bags accounted for 12.7 billion bags in 2006 and 11.6 billion in 2007, of which 89 per cent. were plastic in 2006 and 80 per cent. were plastic in 2007.

We do not have figures predating this, or for England only.

Seals: Canada

Mr. MacDougall: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he last discussed the seal hunt in Canada with the Canadian Government; and if he will make a statement. [203811]

Jonathan Shaw: The last meeting with the Canadian Government at ministerial level took place on 28 March 2007 when Ian McCartney, the then joint Minister for Trade, Investment and Foreign Affairs at the Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) and Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), together with officials from DTI, FCO and DEFRA, met with a delegation from Canada to discuss the seal hunt.

More recently, officials from my Department, the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) and FCO, met with a delegation from Canada on 31 March this year to discuss the Canadian seal hunt.

I also wrote to the Canadian High Commissioner on 22 April agreeing to a meeting with me, or Ministerial colleagues at BERR or FCO, once the EU-commissioned report on the impact of any regulatory or other EU-wide measures in response to seal hunting has been published.

Sheep: Electronic Tagging

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the compulsory use of electronic identification for sheep; and if he will make a statement. [203078]

Jonathan Shaw: EC Council Regulation 21/2004 provides for the mandatory introduction of electronic identification (EID) of sheep and goats from 31 December 2009 for member states with flocks above a certain threshold number. In the UK only sheep will have to be electronically identified. We will be working in partnership with industry over the coming months to discuss how we can implement EID in a way which is practical and which the industry can make work.

Waste Disposal: Closed Circuit Television

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance his Department has issued to local authorities on the use of CCTV footage to monitor waste disposal. [202942]

Joan Ruddock: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 14 January 2008, Official Report, column 858W.

In addition, I can advise that local authorities are responsible for planning and monitoring their CCTV systems and that there has been no guidance issued by my Department on their use at municipal waste facilities or to monitor recycling.

Waste Management

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent steps the Government has taken to improve local waste management. [202985]

Joan Ruddock [holding answer 1 May 2008]: Waste Strategy 2007 outlines the role of local authorities in working towards improvements in local waste management.

My Department has recently announced that it has awarded PFI credits to four projects across England to improve local waste management. The projects will help local authorities deliver carbon benefits and divert over a million tonnes of waste from landfill. Each of the four projects will support the local authority's waste ambitions. All aim to reduce the overall amount of waste created, and it is anticipated they all will deliver a minimum of a 50 per cent. recycling rate by 2020, with some aspiring to reach 60 per cent.

My Department is also consulting on draft regulations and draft guidance for proposals for establishing joint waste authorities in England. The consultation outlines that neighbouring local authorities, working together, can deliver better integrated and cost-effective waste services.

The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), which is partly funded by the Government, continues to support local authorities in their work to deliver better recycling services and more waste reduction.

World War II: Medals

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how long on average it took for a successful applicant for the Women's Land Army Award to receive their badge in the latest period for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [203467]

Jonathan Shaw: There have been over 28,000 applications for the Women's Land Army and Timber Corps badge. The badges are currently being manufactured and it is anticipated that they will be distributed to all applicants towards the end of June 2008.

Mr. Graham Stuart: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many applications his Department had received for the Women's Land Army Award at the latest date for which figures are available; how many of those applications had been acknowledged; and if he will make a statement. [203471]

Jonathan Shaw: We have received approximately 28,200 applications for the Women's Land Army and Timber Corps badge. Completed application forms have not been acknowledged due to the high volumes received. However, all other written correspondence, approximately 3,000 pieces, has been acknowledged.

TREASURY

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer of 10 September 2007, Official Report, column 1969W, on council tax: valuation, if he will place in the Library a copy of the agreement between the Valuation Office Agency and the IDeA in relation to Valuebill, redacting any commercially confidential elements. [203027]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency does not have a formal agreement with IDeA in relation to Valuebill.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Gate 4 review of the valuations project undertaken in relation to the Valuation Office Agency's planned council tax revaluation in England. [203124]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for North-East Bedfordshire (Alistair Burt) on 24 July 2007, Official Report, column 1017W.

Excise Duties: Fuels

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the amount of duty paid by consumers on vehicle fuel sold in the UK in each of the last five years. [203815] http://www.uktradeinfo.com/index.cfm?task=bulloil.

Angela Eagle: The total excise duty raised on the quantities of vehicle fuel released for consumption is published in table 3 of the Hydrocarbon Oils Bulletin. This can be found at:

Housing: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the answer to the hon. Member for Welwyn Hatfield of 8 October 2007, Official Report, column 227W, on housing: valuation, what technical name or definition was given to the localities referred to for the purposes of the automated valuation model; what co-efficient value was given to each locality for regression analysis; and what unique reference number or other identifier was given to each locality. [203029]

Jane Kennedy: There is no other technical name for localities as used by the Valuation Office Agency in the context of its automated valuation models. The Agency has defined a locality as being an area that is subject to the same, or similar, market forces. In the multiple regression analysis, coefficients generated for localities differ from locality to locality. The coefficient generated for each of approximately 10,000 localities in England could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Every 'live' locality within a Billing Authority area is allocated a unique number.

Income Tax

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the amount of income tax which would otherwise have accrued to the Exchequer from those who have (a) taken early retirement and (b) moved from full-time to part-time work at each year from age 55 up to the state retirement age in each of the last three years. [203481]

Jane Kennedy: The information is not available.

Taxation: Fuels

Mr. Brady: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much VAT revenue was raised from the sale of road fuel in each of the last 60 months for which figures are available; [203945]

(2) if he will estimate the average percentage of average household disposable income accounted for by (a) the purchase of road fuel and (b) the duty and VAT payable on road fuel in each of the last (i) five years and (ii) 12 months; [203946]

(3) what projections his Department has made of the amounts of revenue that would be raised annually from

(a) road fuel duty and (b) VAT on road fuel if the price of oil was (i) 120, (ii) 130, (iii) 140 and (iv) 150 US dollars per barrel; [203947]

Jane Kennedy: HM Revenue and Customs does not collect data on VAT from individual goods and services.

Annual estimates of the percentage of disposable household income accounted for by road fuels and duty and VAT payable on road fuels can be calculated from data held in the House of Commons Library. Data on average household income and expenditure are available from the Expenditure and Food Survey, published by the Office for National Statistics. Data on average road fuel prices per litre and average duty rates are contained in the "Tax Benefit Reference Manual". Data are not available on a monthly basis.

No projections of revenues at hypothetical levels of oil price have been made.

Valuation Office: Databases

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what use the Valuation Office Agency's District Valuer Services makes of dwelling house coding for domestic properties. [203130]

Jane Kennedy: District Valuer Services makes use of dwelling house codes to assist in the valuation of domestic property, and analysis of transaction information.

Valuation Office: ICT

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency is the custodian of Valuebill. [203115]

Jane Kennedy: Yes.

Valuation Office: Rightmove

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what contracts have been awarded to Rightmove.co.uk plc by (a) the Valuation Office Agency and (b) HM Revenue and Customs and its predecessor on behalf of the Valuation Office Agency since 2001; at what cost; and for what purpose. [203125]

Jane Kennedy: One such contract has been awarded, a copy of which has been placed in the Library following a request from the hon. Member for Surrey Heath (Michael Gove), answered on 10 September 2007, Official Report, column 1969W.

Valuation: ICT

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2008, Official Report, column 508W, on valuation: ICT, how many localities are allocated to each billing authority area. [203028]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Working Tax Credit

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many and what proportion of those claiming the child care element of working tax credit have been reported as not using formal child care in each year for which figures are available. [202834]

Jane Kennedy: This information is not held in the format requested. However, I refer the hon. Member to the Child and Working Tax Credit Error and Fraud Statistics available on HMRC's website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/error-fraud.htm

DEFENCE

Air Force: Labour Turnover

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people have (a) joined and (b) left the Royal Air Force since 2005. [203772]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information requested is reported in TSP1—Strength, Intake and Outflow of UK Regular Forces, and TSP4—Quarterly Manning Report, which provide a full and detailed breakdown of the figures requested. Copies of these are available in the Library of the House. These publications are also available on the Defence Analytical Services and Advice website at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tsp1/gender.html

and

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tsp4/commentary.html

Air Force: Training

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost of training a new Royal Air Force recruit to the level of a fully operational fighter pilot. [203674]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Royal Air Force pilots continue to train throughout their careers and are considered to be combat ready after they have completed Operational Conversion Unit (OCU) training and a period of post OCU training on an allocated squadron. Costs of this training are shown in the following table by fast jet type.

£ million

Aircraft	Cost of training a pilot up to Operational Conversion Unit	Cost of training a pilot in OCU and post OCU to combat ready status	Total
Harrier	3.1	7.51	10.61
Tornado F3	3.1	4.04	7. 14
Tornado GR4	3.1	3.59	6.69
Typhoon	3.1	9.22	12.32

Armed Forces: Cadets

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many cadet forces were disbanded in each year since 1997. [199490]

Derek Twigg: The MOD sponsors four cadet forces: the Combined Cadet Force; the Sea Cadet Corps; the Army Cadet Force and the Air Training Corps. All four cadet forces have a long history and none have been disbanded.

Individual contingents/units/detachments/squadrons within each cadet force are formed and disbanded as the particular demands and aspirations of the communities they serve fluctuate. Information has not previously been held centrally. However, since 2007 the net change in cadet units is:

Combined Cadet Force—net gain 18 contingents.

Sea Cadet Corps—net loss nine units.

Army Cadet Force—net gain 22 detachments.

Air Training Corps—net gain two squadrons.

Armed Forces: Drugs

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British service personnel were dishonourably discharged for drug abuse in each of the last five years. [203676]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following number of British servicemen have been discharged 'Services No Longer Required', which is a dishonourable discharge, in each of the last five years for failing compulsory drug testing.

	Number
2003	476
2004	492
2005	632
2006	669
2007	665

Armed Forces: Insurance

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1645W, on armed forces: insurance, for what reasons Territorial Army personnel are treated differently from the Regular Army for insurance cover while on deployment; and for what reasons the company Abacus refuses Territorial Army personnel cover during deployments. [202971]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As I explained in my answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1645W, MOD facilitates the PAX, RPAX and Service Life insurance (SLI) schemes by means of contracts with the commercial providers. The cover for SLI is the same for TA as for regulars and that for RPAX will replicate the PAX cover in the near future. I understand that my hon. Friend the Under Secretary of State will be writing soon, in response to an issue you raised during the recent debate on the commemorations of the 100th anniversary of the Territorial Army, to explain that the premiums for SLI are the same for the TA as for regulars and that RPAX will remain cheaper than PAX even when the premium increase has been applied.

PAX and RPAX have different insurers but the same brokers. They are intended to run in parallel with the same cover, but with RPAX premiums slightly cheaper. It was decided to implement the PAX changes first because PAX is the larger scheme.

In addition to PAX RPAX and SLI there are a number of private insurance schemes available to Service personnel which MOD does not facilitate; the scheme provided by Abacus is one of these. We do not have contracts with the providers of these schemes and are unable to comment on the cover which they provide.

Armed Forces: Pay

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) value of (i) under-payments and (ii) over-payments to service personnel in each month between January and November 2007; and if he will make a statement. [203501]

Derek Twigg: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given by my noble Friend, the Minister of State for Defence Equipment and Support to the noble Lord, Lord Selkirk of Douglas, in another place, Official Report, columns WA2-4.

Armed Forces: Pensions

Mr. Mates: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many forces widows were in receipt of a pension from the Armed Forces Pension Scheme at the latest date for which figures are available. [202150]

Derek Twigg: The number of widows, widowers and surviving partners in receipt of a pension from the Armed Forces Pension Scheme as at 1 January 2008 is 63,496.

Armed Forces: Personnel Management

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many hours of Joint Personnel Administration training are required before personnel become qualified; [202354]

(2) how many people in his Department were trained in Joint Personnel Administration in each year since 2005; [202356]

(3) how much his Department spent on Joint Personnel Administration training in each year since 2005. [202358]

Derek Twigg: The amount of training required varies according to the individual or their role. All self-service users complete a mandatory three hour e-learning Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) training package, whereas a Human Resources (HR) administrator will receive at least 80 hours of training, with additional training given as they progress through the ranks or are assigned to different roles. Other administrators complete training of a type and length appropriate to their role.

To date, some 201,300 self-service users have undertaken the e-learning JPA training package. The number of HR administrators who have completed training in each financial year since 2005 are as follows:

Financial year	Number of personnel trained
2005-06	1,219
2006-07	7,072

Financial year	Number of personnel trained
2007-08	1,054

Note:
The high number of HR administrators trained during financial year 2006-07 was due to 6,835 Army HR administrators being trained in readiness for the roll out of JPA to the Army in March 2007.

The cost of JPA training in each year since 2005 is not held centrally, and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Armed Forces: Prisoners

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British service personnel were serving sentences in military prisons, at the latest date for which figures are available. [203671]

Derek Twigg: As at 1 May, there were 145 British service personnel serving sentences at the Military Corrective Training Centre, Colchester.

The Military Corrective Training Centre is not a prison. It is a military unit established for military corrective training. The majority of detainees are not sentenced for criminal offences, and return to their military duties on release; for example, a soldier would be sent there as a punishment for going absent without leave.

Armed Forces: Resignations

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel left (a) the Army, (b) the Navy and (c) the Royal Air Force prematurely in each of the last 10 years. [203673]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Voluntary outflow figures for the services in each of the last 10 years can be found in Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 5—Trained Outflow to Civil Life. Monthly figures show the number of personnel who have outflowed in the previous 12 month period. TSP 5 is published monthly. The most recent publication presents outflow for the 12 months to 29 February 2008 and can be found at http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tsp5/tsp5tab5.html. Copies of TSP 5 are available in the Library of the House and also at www.dasa.mod.uk.

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 29 April 2008, Official Report, column 55W, on the armed forces: training, how many (a) crew personnel, (b) pilots and (c) each type of aircraft participated in Arctic flying training during the winter training period of 2007. [203468]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: 48 pilots and 10 other aircrew personnel took part in Arctic flying training, during the winter training period of 2007. The number and type of aircraft which also participated are shown as follows:

Number	Type
5	Sea King Mk 4
3	Lynx Mk 7
2	Gazelle
3	Puma HC1

Army: Officers

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the actual strength of Army officers of each rank is; and if he will make a statement on the position and retention of captains. [202970]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Army officers' strength as at 1 March 2008 is provided as follows:

Army Officers strength according to paid rank at 1 March 2008 [1]

	Number
Major General to General	60
Brigadier	180
Colonel	580
Lieutenant Colonel	1,750
Major	4,710
Captain	4,690
Second Lieutenant and Lieutenant	1,710

[1] All figures are provisional and are rounded in accordance with Defence Analytical Services and Advice conventions. Figures are for trained regular strengths only and therefore exclude Full Time Reserve Service, Gurkhas and Home Service Personnel of the Royal Irish Regiment.

Since 2004 there has been an increase in the number of Army Captains seeking Voluntary Outflow (VO) from service but the total number in service has actually increased, resulting in a reduction of the deficit against requirement.

The Army continues to monitor VO carefully, and is looking at a number of positive measures to improve retention and further reduce the deficit of captains. These include examination of the officer career management structure and conditions of service, and the commissioning of a greater number of officers both from the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst and from the non-commissioned ranks.

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what his Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201778]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence (MOD) has made significant progress over the past 12 months in reducing energy consumption by taking such steps as improving building energy management and energy efficiency; installing more energy efficient lighting, automated metering and biomass boilers; focussing resources on the top 220 energy consuming defence sites; conducting audits; improving data management; making central funds available for energy efficiency/carbon emissions reduction projects; and embedding pro-rata energy efficiency targets into Service Delivery Agreement between MOD the Under-Secretary and the Department's management areas.

The Department has published figures for utilities expenditure since 2000. The figure for 2006-07 and 2005-06 have been published in the Department's accounts and are the latest figures available. The figures are:

Utilities	Financial year 2006-07 (£000)
Heating oil	33,335
Utilities consumption—USF	2,781
Gas	92,244
Electricity	170,459
Water and sewage	20,772
Total	319,591

Utilities	Financial year 2005-06 (£000)
Heating oil	30,913
Utilities consumption—USF	3,132
Gas	100,151
Electricity	141,186
Water and sewage	15,965
Total	291,347

Ex-servicemen: Unemployed

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the number of former service personnel who were unemployed in each year since 1997. [203454]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence does not collect statistics in such a form as to be able to make an estimate of the number of former service personnel who were unemployed in each year since 1997. Data do however show that 94 per cent. of service leavers looking for careers after service life are in employment six months after discharge.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel completed the Northern Ireland Surveillance Course as part of their predeployment training for deployment to (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in each year since 2003. [203399]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No service personnel have completed the Northern Ireland (NI) Surveillance Course as part of their predeployment training for deployment to Iraq and Afghanistan. This course ceased to run in December 2006.

The Operational Training and Advisory Group runs a Static Covert Surveillance (SCS) Course which was developed from the NI Surveillance Course and has been adapted to meet the specific requirements of each operational theatre.

The Iraq SCS course was first delivered in January 2005 and as at 1 May 2008 a total of 630 soldiers have completed this training prior to deployment to Iraq. The Afghanistan SCS course was first delivered in March 2007 and 305 soldiers will have completed this training by the end of the current training year on 31 March 2009.

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British service personnel have been court martialled for offences relating to the treatment of civilians and prisoners in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan since 2001. [203670]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: 28 service personnel have been court-martialled for offences relating to the treatment of civilians and prisoners in Iraq.

No service personnel have been court-martialled for offences relating to the treatment of civilians and prisoners in Afghanistan.

Kosovo: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the UK's commitment for NATO's Operational Reserve Force to arrive in Kosovo. [203216]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: It is planned that the UK's commitment for the NATO Operational Reserve Force will be present in Kosovo and ready to begin its mission no later than 31 May 2008.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what vehicles he expects British forces to use while serving as NATO's Operational Reserve Force in Kosovo. [203218]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The vehicles to be used by British forces serving as NATO's Operational Reserve Force in Kosovo include Snatch armoured Land Rovers, standard Land Rovers, Saxon personnel carriers, 4-ton trucks, battlefield ambulances and various engineering vehicles.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the oral answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 16, on what date his Department (a) began and (b) completed pre-positioning equipment for the UK's commitment for NATO's Operational Reserve Force in Kosovo. [203288]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The pre-positioning of equipment in Kosovo for potential use by the UK troops operating as the NATO Operational Reserve Force began in early November 2007. The transportation of equipment will be completed by 31 May 2008, the date when the UK Battalion is due to be in Kosovo ready to begin its task.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the oral answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 16, what equipment has been pre-positioned in Kosovo for the UK's commitment to NATO's Operational Reserve Force. [203289]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As of 30 April 2008, equipment that has been pre-positioned in Kosovo includes Snatch Land Rovers, standard Land Rovers, Saxon personnel carriers, 4-ton trucks, engineering equipment, vehicle spares, ammunition, food, riot control equipment (including shields and batons) and fuel.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the oral answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 16, how many (a) C-17 Globemaster, (b) C-130K Hercules, (c) C-130J Hercules, (d) Tristar and (e) VC-10 aircraft sorties were flown to pre-position the equipment required for the UK's commitment to NATO's Operational Reserve Force in Kosovo. [203290]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Two sorties were flown by C-130J Hercules in order to deliver ammunition. The C-17 Globemaster, C-130K Hercules, Tristar and VC-10 have not to date been used to pre-position equipment.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the oral answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 16, what estimate he has made of (a) the number of troops which can be sustained by the pre-positioned equipment provided for NATO's Operational Reserve Force and (b) the length of time UK forces can be sustained with the equipment. [203291]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: It is planned that the battalion assigned to the NATO Operational Reserve Force (approximately 600 troops) will be sustainable for 30 days from the date its mission in Kosovo begins. This is in accordance with the requirements of the NATO Operational Reserve Force high readiness commitment.

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he was first informed that NATO would make a request for the UK to deploy a high readiness battalion to Kosovo; and when the request was formally received by his Department. [203935]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This commitment began on 1 January 2008. Since then, Ministers have been kept informed of discussions between the UK and NATO on this subject. The Department received a formal request from NATO for the deployment of the UK element of the operational reserve force on 7 April 2008. I said in the House on 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 15 that we were responding to the request imminently. An announcement was subsequently made to Parliament on 29 April 2008 and a formal reply to NATO made on 2 May 2008.

Military Decorations

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has to amend the criteria for the award of the General Service Medal; and if he will make a statement. [203491]

Derek Twigg: There are currently no plans to amend the criteria for the award of the GSM 1962.

Navy: Labour Turnover

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people have (a) joined and (b) left the Royal Navy since 2005. [203721]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of personnel joining the Royal Naval Service since 2005 can be found in Table 3 of Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 1 - Strength, Intake and Outflow of UK Regular Forces. The number of personnel leaving the Royal Naval Service since 2005 can be found in Table 4 of the same publication. TSP 1 is published monthly. The most recent publication shows figures for data from 1 April 2003 to 1 March 2008 and can be found at

Prince William

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 14 January 2008, Official Report, columns 887-88W, on His Royal Highness Prince William, if he will estimate the cost to the public purse of training His Royal Highness Prince William as a pilot. [202762]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No specific calculation has been made of the individual cost of HRH Prince William's flying training. However it is unlikely to exceed that of equivalent training undertaken by other trainees, given that basic flight training covers a series of set elements.

The cost of providing basic flying training for the RAF is detailed in the following table.

RAF flight training costs

Activity	Aircraft type	Cost (£000) at 2007-08 prices
Elementary Flying Training	Tutor	19.4
Basic Fast Jet Training	Tucano	93.5
Basic Rotary Wing Training	Squirrel	49.4
Total		162.3

Reserve Forces: Manpower

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people there are in the Volunteer Reserve Forces; and what proportion of them have seen active service in either Iraq or Afghanistan. [203678]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The latest manning figures for the Volunteer Reserves (VRs) are as follows:

	Number
Royal Naval Reserve	2,220
Royal Marine Reserve	820
Territorial Army	30,000
Royal Auxiliary Air Force	1,280

Note:
Numbers are rounded to the nearest 10

The overall proportion of VRs who have seen active service in Iraq or Afghanistan is not available, and the steady turnover of the Reserves would render such a figure relatively meaningless, but over 17,000 VRs have been mobilised in support of operations since 2003.

Since 2006, over 2,160 VRs have served in Iraq, and over 2,010 in Afghanistan.

Royal Military Academy

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost to the public purse of the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst was in each of the last three years. [203669]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The cost to the public purse of the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst for the last three financial years for which validated figures are available is:

Financial year	Cost (£ million)
2004-05	47,041
2005-06	45,268
2006-07	47,065

Territorial Army: Officers

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Territorial Army officers there were in each year since 1997. [203213]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The data provided have been extracted from Tri-Service Publication 7; the following table shows the strengths of Territorial Army officers as at 1 April 1997 to 2007.

	Officer strength
1997	6,130
1998	6,240
1999	6,250
2000	5,890
2001	5,380
2002	5,700
2003	5,740
2004	5,630
2005	5,550
2006	5,400
2007[1]	5,150

[1] 2007 data are as at 1 March. Due to the ongoing validation of the new Joint Personnel Administration System Territorial Army Officer data from April 2007 are currently unavailable.

Notes:
1. Officer figures from April 1998 to April 2004 are provisional estimates which include Full Time Reserve Service Personnel.
2. TA Officers include Group A and B, Mobilised TA, and excludes Non-Regular Permanent Staff (from 1998) and Full Time Reserve Service.
3. Data have been rounded to the nearest ten for statistical analysis and presentation purposes only.
4. Numbers ending in five have been rounded to the nearest multiple of 20 to avoid systematic bias.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officers in the Territorial Army qualified for their annual bounty in each year since 1997. [203214]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Weather: Forecasts

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the accuracy of weather forecasts provided by the Meteorological Office in respect of each region of the UK; and what plans he has to improve the accuracy of such forecasts. [201479]

Derek Twigg: The accuracy of weather forecasts provided by the Met Office is assessed through its performance in achieving its forecast accuracy key performance target (KPT). The KPT includes elements that measure the accuracy of forecasts for precipitation and maximum and minimum temperatures for 11 locations throughout the UK. The annual targets for these elements, which are agreed by me and laid before Parliament, have been met in each year since they were introduced in 2005.

Performance against the KPT is reflective of the continuous improvement in forecast accuracy made by the Met Office over the last twenty years. Today's forecasts for three days ahead are more accurate than forecasts for one day ahead 20 years ago.

The government provides the Met Office with significant funding to support its activities. MOD, for example, is planning to invest £30 million in new, state-of-the-art super-computers. While investment in supercomputing is not the only factor in improving the accuracy of weather forecasts, it is significant as it underpins, amongst other things, the production of more accurate local-scale forecasts.

Through increased supercomputing capability, the Met Office expects to make further substantial improvements in forecast accuracy over the coming years.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Crimes of Violence

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many crimes of violence against a person there were in each constituency in Northern Ireland in each of the last three years; and what each figure represents per thousand of the population. [203437]

Paul Goggins: Tackling serious violent crime is a priority for the Government. Both the NIO's public service agreement to "Make Communities Safer" and this year's Policing Plan contain targets aimed at reducing the level of these kinds of offences.

The Chief Constable has provided the following information:

"The three tables below reflect the number of violent crimes by offence and rates per 1000 population".

Violent crime by parliamentary constituency, 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 and rates per 1,000 population

Departmental Marketing

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department spent on publicity and advertising in 2007-08. [199031]

Mr. Woodward: The Department (excluding its agencies and Executive NDPBs) has spent £477,176.88 on publicity and advertising in 2007-08.

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what (a) surveys, (b) questionnaires and (c) other services were provided by polling companies for his Department in financial year 2007-08, broken down by company. [200011]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office and its Executive agencies conducted the following during the financial year 2007-08:

One survey using Millward Brown Ulster;

One survey and nine focus groups using SMR (Social and Market Research); and

One survey and three modules of a survey using NI Statistics and Research Agency.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Parliament: Carbon Emissions

Justine Greening: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what estimate the Commission has made of the Parliamentary Estate's carbon footprint in 2006-07. [202190]

Nick Harvey: The amount of absolute carbon being released into the atmosphere as a result of gas and electricity consumption on the Parliamentary Estate during 2006-07 was 4,015 tonnes. This figure was calculated from the monthly energy meter readings, with 10 per cent. of electricity consumption between April 2006 and January 2007 and 100 per cent. of electricity consumption between February and March 2007 derived from renewable sources.

The carbon emissions resulting from transportation have not been calculated so the direct/primary carbon footprint cannot be determined. The indirect/secondary carbon footprint cannot yet be determined either.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Clarence Mitchell

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether Mr. Clarence Mitchell was seconded by his Department to act as an official spokesperson for the family of Madeleine McCann. [202007]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Clarence Mitchell was seconded to the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, from the Central Office of Information (COI), for a period of 25 days in May 2007 to provide assistance with the media to the family of Madeleine McCann. He resigned from the COI in September 2007.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based. [200691]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not have responsibility for a departmental pension scheme. UK civil servants employed by the FCO belong to the central Principal Civil Service Pensions Scheme (PCSPS). The PCSPS publishes details of its unfunded liability in its annual resource accounts, copies of which are placed in the Library of the House.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91. [200692]

Dr. Howells: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) does not have responsibility for a departmental pension scheme. UK civil servants employed by the FCO are members of the central Principal Civil Service Pensions Scheme (PCSPS). The PCSPS has published details of unfunded liabilities in present value terms in its annual resource accounts since 2000-2001. Because the assumptions underlying estimates of unfunded liabilities, for example life expectancy, vary, they are not directly comparable from year to year.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement. [200693]

Dr. Howells: UK civil servants employed by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office are members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Schemes (PCSPS). The PCSPS has published details of employer contributions in its annual resource accounts every year since 2000-01. Copies of the PCSPS accounts are held in the Library of the House.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the effect on his Department's expenditure would be of increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which his Department is responsible by 1 per cent.; and if he will make a statement. [200694]

Dr. Howells: If the Principal Civil Service Pensions Scheme were to raise the level of employee contributions to each of its schemes by 1 per cent. of salary, this would generate additional contributions equivalent to 4 per cent. of the total employer contributions made by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office to the schemes. In theory therefore it might permit a 4 per cent. reduction in the Department's expenditure on pension contributions.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cash equivalent transfer value is of the public sector pensions of the 10 highest paid members of staff in his Department and its executive agencies; and if he will make a statement. [200695]

Dr. Howells: The total cash equivalent transfer value of the public sector—Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme—pensions of the 10 staff with the highest salaries in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), and its Executive Agencies, at 31 March 2008 was £11,795,588.

The FCO discloses the cash equivalent transfer value of the pensions of each executive member of the FCO Board of Management in the remuneration report contained in the Department's annual resource accounts.

Diego Garcia: Detainees

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 1188W, on Diego Garcia: detainees, what steps he has taken in response to the allegations received by his Department concerning US ships; whether those allegations related to (a) the USS Bataan and (b) the USNS Stockholm; and what discussions he has had with his US counterpart on this matter. [201896]

Dr. Howells: Our officials continue to work with their US counterparts on the details and implications of the new information passed to us on 15 February regarding two cases of rendition through Diego Garcia in 2002. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary wrote to US Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice, further to his statement to the House of 21 February, to request clarification on a number of specific issues.

I can confirm that we are aware of non-governmental organisations' allegations relating to the USS Bataan and the USNS Stockholm.

Ethiopia: Qatar

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the political implications of Ethiopia breaking off diplomatic relations with Qatar. [201918]

Dr. Howells: We do not assess there to be any significant political implications flowing from this action that will affect UK interests.

Gaza

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what international status the Government ascribes to the Gaza Strip. [203698]

Dr. Howells: The Government continue to regard the Gaza Strip as occupied Palestinian territory.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Salmond: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he plans to respond to the letter of 25 March 2008 from the right hon. Member for Banff and Buchan regarding a constituent, Mr. Blackwood of Fraserburgh. [202219]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary replied to the right hon. Member on 28 April.

Nuclear Disarmament

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps have been taken by the Government towards nuclear disarmament under the terms of Article 6 of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty. [203958]

Dr. Howells: The UK is strongly committed to the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty (NPT) and we are fulfilling all of our Treaty obligations, including those on disarmament under Article VI. We have reduced our nuclear platform to one delivery system, Trident, and have significantly reduced the operational status of that system. We have recently met our commitment to a further 20 per cent. reduction in the stockpile of operationally available warheads, contributing to a 75 per cent. reduction in the explosive power of the UK nuclear arsenal since the end of the Cold War.

In addition the UK is pursuing a programme to develop expertise in verifying the reduction and elimination of nuclear weapons internationally. The aim of the study has been to examine and trial potential methodologies which could be used in a future multilateral nuclear disarmament regime. This work is continuing at the Atomic Weapons Establishment and will be presented to the 2008 NPT Preparatory Committee in Geneva.

Rendition

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment his Department has made of the adequacy of the permissions system that operates on rendition flights through the UK; and if he will make a statement. [201951]

Dr. Howells: We would consider all the circumstances of a request for rendition through the UK or our overseas Territories and we would only grant permission if we were satisfied that it would accord with our domestic law and international obligations.

We continue to keep procedures under review to ensure that they meet the standards that we have set. Our officials are currently looking at the proposals of the all party parliamentary group on extraordinary rendition in light of the two cases of rendition through Diego Garcia in 2002. Once we have established more of the details and implications of these renditions we will take a decision on whether these proposals are necessary.

Somalia: Armed Conflict

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his Ethiopian counterparts on the recent violence in Mogadishu, Somalia. [202753]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has had no discussions with his Ethiopian counterparts on the recent violence in Mogadishu.

However, our ambassador in Addis Ababa raised the recent violence in Somalia at senior levels of the Ethiopian Government. Our officials in London and at the UN have also raised this issue with their Ethiopian counterparts.

The Government maintains close contact with Ethiopia on Somalia and we continue to urge Ethiopian forces to show restraint, proportionality and respect for the local population in Somalia.

We are working with Ethiopia and our international partners to find a way for Ethiopia to withdraw as soon as possible, as Ethiopia has said is its intention, without allowing a security vacuum to emerge.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with Ethiopian counterparts about the conduct of Ethiopian troops in Somalia; and what steps he is taking to support respect for human rights in Somalia. [202755]

Dr. Howells: My noble Friend the Lord Malloch-Brown raised the issue of human rights in Somalia with the Ethiopian Prime Minister Meles Zenawi in late January.

Our ambassador in Addis Ababa has raised respect for human rights in Somalia at senior levels of the Ethiopian government. Our officials in London and at the UN have also raised this issue with their Ethiopian counterparts.

The Government maintain close contact with Ethiopia on Somalia and we continue to urge Ethiopian forces to show restraint, proportionality and respect for the local population in Somalia.

The UK continually insists that human rights are fully respected by all parties in Somalia and has joined its international partners in clearly saying so in UN Security Council Resolutions, Communiqués of the Somalia International Contact Group and Resolutions of the UN Human Rights Council.

Insecurity in Somalia means that monitoring human rights and gathering reliable information is very difficult. However, if breaches of international human rights law are proved then we will condemn them unreservedly and expect those responsible to be held to account.

Somalia: Children

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps he is taking to uphold the rights of children in captivity in Somalia. [202754]

Dr. Howells: The Government are committed to improving children's rights through access to education. In this respect, the Department for International Development (DFID) is already actively engaged in the education sector in Somalia.

The UK is committed to playing an active role in the UN Security Council Working Group on Children and Armed Conflict, which includes a focus on children detained for alleged association with armed groups in violation of international standards. Somalia is one of the 18 situations of concern listed by the UN Secretary-General in his Seventh Report to the Security Council on Children and Armed Conflict. The work plans for this year include producing country reports and adopting conclusions on several countries including Somalia.

In recent years, the Government have funded the distribution of school textbooks through the UN Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organisation (UNESCO), the establishment of an examination system in Somaliland with the Africa Educational Trust, as well as supporting basic primary education needs in the Hiraan region through Save the Children-UK. Last year DFID entered into a £6 million education partnership with the UN Children's Fund and UNESCO to strengthen access to basic education in Somalia.

South Africa: Chemical and Biological Warfare

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 February 2008, Official Report, columns 1707-8W, on South Africa: chemical and biological warfare, whether the investigation conducted into the allegations that UK Government officials and scientists had contact with or knowingly provided assistance to any South African chemical and biological weapons programme or persons involved in Project Coast considered the evidence to the Truth and Justice Commission that Wouter Basson used a house in the home counties of England to meet UK scientists and to circumvent the sanctions regime against South Africa; and if he will make a statement. [192701]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 17 March 2008]: The investigation into allegations that the Government was involved in providing information to personnel connected to South Africa's Chemical and Biological Weapons programme considered information from a variety of sources, including evidence given to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission. It was the policy of successive Governments from the mid 1970s to have no military cooperation with South Africa. There was no blanket ban on scientific contacts with South Africa during the apartheid period, though they were discouraged if they might contribute to the support or promotion of apartheid.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 27 February 2008, Official Report, columns 1707-8W, on South Africa: chemical and biological warfare, between what dates the full investigations were held into the allegations of UK assistance to Project Coast or other South African chemical and biological weapons programme; and if he will make a statement. [192703]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 17 March 2008]: UK investigations were initiated in 1998 and continued into 2001, following allegations made during hearings of the Truth and Reconciliation Commission that the Government was involved in providing information to personnel connected to South Africa's Project Coast. The investigations were thorough and included the relevant Government bodies. There was no evidence to suggest Government officials knowingly provided assistance to any South African Chemical and Biological Weapons programme.

Zimbabwe: Armed Forces

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government has taken to prevent the Zimbabwean military increasing its arms capacity. [202526]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 1 May 2008]: We believe that, against a backdrop of increasing tension and state-sponsored violence against civilians, it is quite the wrong time for any arms sales to Zimbabwe. We have therefore, with our EU partners, been actively promoting the need for states to refrain from such sales. We raised this issue at the UN Security Council on 29 April. Our embassy in Beijing has also raised our concerns with the Chinese Government. We hope all states will be able to agree to a moratorium on arms sales to Zimbabwe until a democratic Government is in place.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Conservation Areas

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the number of conservation areas in England at the latest date for which figures are available. [202838]

Margaret Hodge: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to him on 1 May, 2008, Official Report, column 663W, on conservation areas, by my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (Iain Wright).

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many staff were employed in his Department in each year since 1997. [204144]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The table shows the staff in post in the Department for Culture, Media and Sport on 1 April each year from 1997 to 2008.

	Staff in post
1997	352
1998	365
1999	359
2000	407
2001	403
2002	469
2003	488
2004	490
2005	525
2006	523
2007	527
2008	477

Staff in post rose significantly between 1 April 2001 and 1 April 2002 reflecting machinery of government changes and a resulting transfer of staff from the Cabinet Office and Home Office.

Departmental Pay

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what his Department spent on wages and salaries in each of the last three years, broken down by departmental division. [203097]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department's expenditure on wages and salaries, analysed by divisions, in financial years 2005-06 to 2007-08 is set out in the table. The figures relating to financial year 2007-08 are subject to finalisation of annual accounts.

During the three years shown, there have been numerous transfers of functions, projects and other pieces of work between divisions. For instance, in 2005-06, Information Systems was part of Human and Business Resources before becoming a division on its own right. It should not, therefore, be inferred that changes in the levels of expenditure necessarily represent shifts in resources to or from a particular function.

Gambling Act, 2005

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when the Scoping Study for a UK Gambling Act 2005 Impact Assessment Framework was (a) commissioned and (b) planned to be published at the time it was commissioned. [203936]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Scoping Study for the UK Gambling Act, 2005 Impact Assessment Framework was commissioned in May 2006 and scheduled for completion in November 2006. DCMS did not stipulate a publication date. However, it was published on 26 February 2008 and has been placed in the House Libraries.

Lacrosse

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to encourage more young people to play lacrosse. [203636]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Lacrosse is one of 22 focus sports in the Step Into Sport programme (part of the Government's PE and Sport Strategy for Children and Young People). Between April 2003 and March 2009 the English Lacrosse Association (ELA) will receive £78,000 from Sport England to develop volunteering and leadership opportunities as part of the Step into Sport programme. In addition, the ELA has been awarded £357,000 from Sport England's club and coach funding to develop talent during the period 2008-11.

Lacrosse: Finance

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much was allocated to British elite lacrosse players in each of the last five years. [203622]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Lacrosse was identified as a 'development sport', due primarily to its potential to help people to start and continue to participate in sport. The English Lacrosse Association (ELA) submitted its Whole Sport Plan and was awarded £1.26 million for the four year period 2005-09. While the funding was primarily provided to grow and sustain grassroots participation in the sport, the English Lacrosse Association could, and indeed has, utilised some of the funding to support its England teams. It is for the ELA to decide how to utilise and deploy its Whole Sport Plan funding.

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much Sport England spent on supporting the development of lacrosse in each of the last five years. [203623]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Sport England has spent the following amounts in the last five years supporting lacrosse.

	Spent
2003-04	150,833
2004-05	299,000
2005-06	289,333
2006-07	297,000
2007-08	485,598
Total	1,521,764

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when (a) he and (b) a Minister in his Department last met the English Lacrosse Association to discuss (i) funding of and (ii) participation in the sport. [203624]

Andy Burnham: Since their respective arrivals in post, none of the current Ministers in DCMS have met with the English Lacrosse Association.

National Lottery: Wirral

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much lottery funding was awarded to projects in Wirral South constituency in 2007-08. [203704]

Mr. Sutcliffe: Approximately £349,000 was awarded in Wirral South during 2007-08. This figure is derived from the Department's Lottery Grants Database, which uses information supplied by the Lottery distributors and is searchable at :

www.lottery.culture.gov.uk

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the Big Lottery Fund's outreach strategy in Wirral; and if he will make a statement. [203707]

Mr. Sutcliffe: No assessment has been made by DCMS on the effectiveness of the Big Lottery Fund's outreach strategy in Wirral. This is an internal operational matter for the Big Lottery Fund.

I have asked Peter Wanless, chief executive of the Big Lottery Fund, to write to my hon. Friend on this matter.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the ratio of lottery funding applications to grants in the last five years in Wirral South constituency; and if he will make a statement. [203831]

Mr. Sutcliffe: My Department does not collect data on the number of applications made to lottery distributing bodies and could obtain the information only at disproportionate cost, so no such estimate has been made. All lottery distributors are directed to make guidance on how to apply for lottery funds widely available.

Regional Cultural Consortiums: Standards

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of regional cultural consortia in meeting their objectives since establishment. [200300]

Margaret Hodge: The aims, objectives and key activities for the Regional Cultural Consortia (RCCs) are agreed through their Funding Agreements with the Department. Their performance is monitored on an ongoing basis through regular feedback to my officials and reported on each year through the RCCs' Annual Reports and Accounts.

The RCCs have also been periodically reviewed, in accordance with the business needs of my Department In early 2002, the RCCs underwent a review to assess the effectiveness of their operations. As recommended by the review, the Consortia were reconstituted as executive NDPBs and companies limited by guarantee in 2004.

My Department is currently conducting a review of all our regional arrangements with the aim of delivering a more effective and efficient regional infrastructure. The work of the RCCs is included in this review.

Regional Development Agencies: Tourism

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what funding his Department provided to the (a) Eastern, (b) East Midlands, (c) West Midlands and (d) South West regional development agencies in the last financial year; and what proportion of this funding to each agency was ring-fenced for tourism-related purposes. [201772]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 25 April 2008]: Funding for regional development agencies (RDAs) is not ring-fenced for particular economic sectors, such as tourism. In 2007-08, the Department for Culture, Media and Sport (DCMS) contributed £3.6 million to the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform's (DBERR's) single programme budget (the "Single Pot") in respect of the tourism responsibilities of the eight RDAs outside London. Tourism support expenditure by all the RDAs in 2007-08 is estimated at £43.5 million.

Regional Sports Boards: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the administrative budget of each regional sports board in England was in each of the last three years. [204151]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The budgets were as follows:

Part 3: RSB administration budget for last three years

	Original budget for each year
Region	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08

Taking Part Survey

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what changes are planned for the next Taking Part survey; and what the reasons for each change are; [202331]

(2) what changes he expects to be made to the Taking Part survey in 2008-09. [203094]

Margaret Hodge: The Taking Part survey is run by DCMS in partnership with four of our NDPBs—Sport England, Arts Council England, English Heritage, and the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council. Together, we have committed to running the survey for a further three years, beginning in July 2008.

The survey enables us to understand and monitor people's engagement with DCMS sectors, and we are keen to maintain continuity with data already collected so that our knowledge builds over time. The survey methodology will therefore remain broadly similar to that of previous years, that is, continuous face-to-face interviews with a representative sample of adults aged 16 and above and children living in private households in England.

The new contract is currently being drafted and will determine the scope of the survey going forward. In response to the changing needs and strategic objectives of the survey's partners and stakeholders, our intention is to reduce the scale of the survey and revise the questions asked.

We have been interviewing around 28,000 people each year. However, this is likely to be halved as we no longer plan to measure small changes within sub-samples of the population. The reduction will also help to make cost savings.

We are also reviewing the questions that we ask respondents. Some questions will remain the same but through consultation with the survey's stakeholders and our own research and analysis we are identifying key questions that are necessary and relevant to DCMS and NDPB priorities.

The scope and questions will be finalised in the coming weeks and, following piloting, fieldwork for the new Taking Part survey will begin in July. The survey will continue to evolve throughout the contract period (2008 to 2011).

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many people were serving on the boards of the non-departmental public bodies which his Department sponsors at the latest date for which figures are available. [203730]

Mr. Thomas: The Cabinet Office publication "Public bodies 2007" lists the number of people serving on the boards of public bodies as at 31 March 2007. These figures are broken down by individual Departments. "Public bodies 2007" can be downloaded from:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp

Copies are also available in the Library of the House.

Developing Countries: Malaria

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government has taken to reduce the number of children who die from malaria in developing countries since 1997. [203531]

Mr. Malik: Since 1997 the Department for International Development (DFID) has provided support for malaria control, targeted at both children and adults, through international organisations and partnerships, bilateral programmes and research. In April the Prime Minister announced that the UK will provide 20 million insecticide treated bed nets which are vital for protecting children from malaria and to prevent malaria deaths.

DFID is providing £1 billion by 2015 to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria. To date the Fund has disbursed US$ 5.5 billion, 25 per cent. of which goes to malaria programmes. DFID has also provided £49 million to the Roll Back Malaria (RBM) Partnership which plays an important role in helping countries develop and secure finance for national malaria plans.

At the country level, DFID support in Kenya, Mozambique and Nigeria includes the treatment of children.

DFID provides over £16 million for new drug development through its support for the Drugs for Neglected Diseases Initiative, (DNDI) and the Medicines for Malaria Venture (MMV). Both are developing new malaria drugs.

Food: Prices

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government have taken to mitigate the effects of rising food prices on the populations of developing countries in the last 12 months. [203532]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK Government are very concerned about the effects of rising food prices on the poorest. There are already 850 million who do not get enough to eat, and as prices rise this number will increase. Our response has been short-term humanitarian aid to those most seriously affected as well as medium and longer-term strategies to assist the hungry.

Provisional figures for the 12 months up to March 2008 indicate that the Department for International Development (DFID) spent £342 million on humanitarian programmes, and much of this will have helped mitigate the effects of high food prices. A further £30 million was pledged to the World Food programme (WFP) last week. Our approach has prioritised protecting the extreme poor from the effects of high food prices. In Africa, DFID spent £50 million over the last year on social safety net programmes, which reach 10 million people in Ethiopia, Malawi, Zimbabwe, Zambia and Kenya. As part of our longer term work, DFID spends around £120 million a year directly on agriculture to help increase food production. Last week we announced an additional £400 million over the next five years to be spent on agricultural research.

International Assistance: Private Sector

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government have taken to involve private sector organisations in the facilitation of development in developing countries since 1999. [203533]

Mr. Malik: The UK Government work with developing country governments to support the growth of the private sector in their countries, and we fund a range of initiatives to encourage business to invest in key areas.

We are currently working with major companies on the business call to action and on May 6 we showcased concrete initiatives taken by leading companies to use their core business to promote growth and development.

The Department for International Development (DFID) has helped to establish and provides financing to the Infrastructure Consortium for Africa and the Private Infrastructure Development Group. Jointly with business we support the Investment Climate Facility for Africa, and recently announced the establishment of the International Growth Centre, which will deliver world class research and analytical and policy support to developing countries on growth.

DFID also works directly with individual companies and business organisations to maximise the impact of business on development. The UK Government launched the extractive industries transparency initiative in 2002 and are currently launching two new initiatives to promote transparency in the construction sector and the medicines sector—the construction sector transparency (CoST) initiative and the medicines transparency alliance (MeTA). DFID also supports the ethical trading initiative and the multi-fibre arrangement forum, both of which promote responsible and successful business practices.

Latin America: Children

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether he has discussed programmes which could be designed to reduce the flow of street children to Latin American cities with partner non-governmental organisations. [202700]

Mr. Malik: Neither I nor my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for International Development have had discussions with partner non-governmental organisations about programmes which could be designed to reduce the flow of street children to Latin American cities. In Latin America we work through multilateral institutions such as the EC and World Bank and the plight of these vulnerable groups is an important priority in their programmes.

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what projects are funded by his Department to assist street children in Latin America. [202701]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development is not currently funding any projects to assist street children in Latin America.

Overseas Aid

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what proportion of international aid requested from the UK by overseas countries was paid in each year between 1997 and 2007. [203814]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) does not hold figures on the proportion of international aid requested from the UK by overseas countries that was paid in each year between 1997 and 2007.

However, the following was given by the UK in official development aid (ODA) in each year since 1997.

UK official development assistance, 1997 to 2007

	ODA
1997	2,096
1998	2,332
1999	2,118
2000	2,974
2001	3,170
2002	3,285
2003	3,834
2004	4,313
2005	5,925
2006	6,770
2007 (provisional)	4,957
Total 1997 to 2007	41,774

St. Helena: Airports

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what progress has been made on the provision of an airport on the island of St Helena. [203725]

Mr. Malik: We have now completed the evaluation of the two bids received last November and are moving into a period of competitive negotiations with both contractors.

On the island, the formal procedure for applying to the Governor-in-Council for the granting of planning permission started on 5 May. A public information week will be held later in May as part of this process.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has made to the UNAMID force in Darfur on the numbers of women peacekeepers. [202498]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

We have made representations to the UN and the African Union on the importance of an integrated mission plan to ensure that the civilian, police and military elements of the UN-African Union Mission in Darfur (UNAMID) work closely together, including on gender issues. We have raised with international partners and the UN the need for the police component of UNAMID to be trained on community policing and gender-based violence. We continue to press all parties for the rapid deployment of an effective mission, and we welcome an increased representation of women peacekeepers within UNAMID.

Sudan: Sexual Offences

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what reports he has received of the use of sexual violence as a weapon of war in Darfur. [202497]

Dr. Howells: I have been asked to reply.

John Holmes, UN Under-Secretary General for Humanitarian Affairs, briefed the UN Security Council on 22 April that there was evidence of high levels of sexual violence in West Darfur over the past two months.

The UK has called on the Government of Sudan, and the armed groups, to end the human rights abuses in Darfur. We are supporting the rapid and effective deployment of the UN African Union Mission in Darfur (UNAMID) to protect internally displaced persons (IDP) and address the issue of violence against women. UNAMID has increased patrols to protect IDP gathering firewood and increased policing of IDP camps. We have raised with international partners and the UN the need for the police component of UNAMID to be trained on community policing and gender-based violence.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Antisocial Behaviour: Young People

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what authority police forces have to issue penalty notices for disorder to persons under 16 years of age. [203258]

Beverley Hughes: The following legislation provides authority to police forces to issue penalty notices for disorder (PND) to persons under 16 years of age. Sections 1 to 11 Criminal Justice and Police Act 2001 introduced PNDs. Section 87(2) Anti-social Behaviour Act 2003 extended PNDs to 16 to 17-year-olds. Section 87(3) provided an order making power to extend the age range to no lower than 10 years of age. That power was exercised by statutory instrument 2004 No. 3166.

Assessments: Absenteeism

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many schools had over 5 per cent. absence levels from Key Stage 3 tests in the years 2005 to 2008; and if he will make a statement. [203145]

Kevin Brennan: Information on schools' Key Stage 3 (KS3) test absence levels for the years 2005-07 can be found on the Department's Achievement and Attainment Tables website at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/performancetables/.

Information on schools' KS3 test absence levels for the KS3 2008 tests will be published on the Achievement and Attainment Tables website in February 2009.

Cadets: Armed Forces

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many cadet forces were operating in maintained schools in the latest period for which figures are available. [201697]

Derek Twigg: I have been asked to reply.

There are currently 188 single Service Cadet Units, and 60 Combined Cadet Force (CCF) Contingents, in State (maintained) schools. The 60 CCFs represent 23 per cent. of the overall number of CCF contingents in schools.

Children in Care

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his most recent estimate is of the number of children in care in each local authority area (a) in total and (b) as a proportion of all children in the local authority area; and if he will make a statement. [201190]

Kevin Brennan: Information on the number of children in care in each local authority area (a) in total and (b) as a proportion of all children in each local authority area has been placed in the House of Commons Library (table LAA1).

Table LAA1 is taken from the Statistical First Release entitled "Children looked after in England (including adoption and care leavers) year ending 31 March 2007", which is located at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000741/index.shtml

and table LAA1 can be found within the first set of 10 additional tables supplementing SFR27/2007 on the website.

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many cases of self-harm were diagnosed in children in care in each of the last 10 years; [203593]

(2) how many children in care were identified as gifted and talented in each year for which data is available; [203595]

(3) how many children in care had been separated from their siblings in each of the last 10 years. [203596]

Kevin Brennan: Data on (a) the number of cases of self-harm that were diagnosed in children in care, (b) the number of children in care who were identified as gifted and talented and (c) the number of children in care that have been separated from their siblings are not collected centrally by the Department.

Local authorities have a legal duty to safeguard the children they look after and to promote their welfare. Discharging this duty includes making a full assessment of each individual child's needs and ensuring that provision is put in place via the child's care plan to meet those needs. This includes in relation to education and to mental health issues.

Local authorities are required by law to make arrangements for a looked-after child to live with their relatives (including siblings), so long as it is reasonably practicable and consistent with the child's welfare to do so. Authorities are also required to promote contact between the child and their siblings, unless it is not reasonably practicable or consistent with their welfare to do so.

Children: Disabled

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when the implementation guide for Aiming High for Disabled Children's core offer will be published. [203689]

Kevin Brennan: The implementation materials for the core offer, together with the national core offer, will be published on 15 May as part of the re-launch of the 'Aiming High for Disabled Children' section of the Every Child Matters website. The implementation materials, which pull together sets of existing guidance and examples of service delivery, will help local authority and primary care trusts implement the core offer locally.

Children: Prisoners

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what support the Government offers for children of prisoners; and if he will make a statement. [202992]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

£5 million is spent each year to help offenders maintain positive ties with their children and families and to improve outcomes for the children of prisoners. Most prisons now have a visitor centre outside the gate, providing information and support for families. Over 100 prisons in England and Wales offer supervised play areas for some visits. Special visits are arranged which focus on the needs of the child. There is also provision for mothers to have young children with them in prison, where this is in the interests of the child.

Last year, the Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Ministry of Justice conducted a priority joint review to improve support for the children of offenders. It concluded that parental imprisonment is a valuable opportunity to identify children at risk of poor outcomes and to offer them support. The findings, which were published in parallel with the "Think Family: Improving the life chances of families at risk" review, on 10 January 2008, can be found at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/~/media/assets/www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/social_exclusion_task_force/think_families/offenders_review_080110%20pdf.ashx

As part of the "Think Family" approach, which includes the £16 million Family Pathfinder programme, the Department for Children, Schools and Families and the Ministry of Justice are exploring better ways to meet a child's needs when a parent goes to prison.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children in (a) Basingstoke constituency, (b) Hampshire and (c) England had at least one parent who are in prison in each year since 1997. [202993]

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children in (a) Bexleyheath and Crayford constituency and (b) Bexley borough had at least one parent in prison in each year since 1997. [203566]

Mr. Hanson: I have been asked to reply.

Information on the number of children having a parent in prison is not collected centrally.

A 2003 resettlement survey of 1,945 adult British national sentenced prisoners showed the average number of children per prisoner was 0.87. Using this information it was estimated that during 2005, 160,000 children had a British national parent in prison at some time.

More detail on the 2003 survey is available in Home Office Research Findings 248 which is available on the RDS website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/rfpubs1.html

Departmental Cost Effectiveness

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what Gershon savings his Department and its predecessor have made since 1 April 2005. [202107]

Ed Balls: My Department is jointly committed with the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills (DIUS), to the efficiency target set originally for the Department for Education and Skills (DfES).

The DfES target is 2.5 per cent. a year over the Spending Review 2004 period. This means being able to demonstrate cumulative gains against our baseline of £1.45 billion in 2005-06, £2.9 billion in 2006-07 and £4.35 billion in 2007-08.

Details of the specific initiatives which contribute to the joint DIUS/DCSF Gershon efficiency target are set out in the DfES Efficiency Technical Note, which is available on the DCSF's website:

www.dcsf.gov.uk

My Department will be reporting progress towards the DfES Gershon target in the Departmental Report 2008. This is about to be published in May 2008. Progress towards the target was last reported in the DCSF Autumn Performance Report, published in December 2007.

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201719]

Kevin Brennan: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 92 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was 66, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Females

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of permanent staff in his Department and its predecessors were female in each year since 1997. [202854]

Kevin Brennan: The latest figures available (31 December 2007) show that my Department has 2,900 permanent staff, of which 1,693 are female representing 58 per cent. of all permanent staff.

The Department was formed as part of the Machinery of Government changes of 28 June 2007. It is therefore not exactly comparable to its predecessor, the Department for Education and Skills (DfES), but figures for earlier years for DfES can be found in the Civil Service Statistics Archive:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/statistics/archive/index.asp

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of female permanent staff in his Department and its predecessors worked (a) part-time and (b) flexibly in each year since 1997. [202865]

Kevin Brennan: The latest figures available (31 December 2007) record 2,900 permanent staff in my Department, of which 1,693 are female (58 per cent. of all permanent staff). Of these 411 worked part-time, representing 24 per cent. of all female permanent staff.

As well as part-time working, the Department encourages a range of other flexible working patterns for all staff, including flexitime. The Department was formed as part of the Machinery of Government changes of 28 June 2007. It is therefore not exactly comparable to its predecessor, the Department for Education and Skills, but it does build on a wide range of flexible working patterns first developed in the previous Department. Figures for earlier years can be found in the Civil Service Statistics Archive:

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of female senior civil servants in his Department and its predecessors worked (a) part-time and (b) flexibly in each year since 1997. [202868]

Kevin Brennan: At 31 December 2007 my Department had 48 female staff (45.3 per cent.) out of a total of 106 staff in the senior civil service. Four out of the 48 women (8.3 per cent.) in the senior civil service work part-time. In addition to part-time working, other flexible arrangements are available to staff.

The Department was formed as part of the Machinery of Government changes announced on 28 June 2007. Although not directly comparable due to staff changes, its predecessor was the Department for Education and Skills which had 131 staff in the senior civil service, of which 53 were female at December 2006. Seven out of 53 women (13.2 per cent.) worked part-time at that point. Figures for earlier years can be found in the Civil Service Statistics Archive:

Foster Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to implement multi-dimensional treatment foster care across England; what assessment he has made of the pilot schemes; and if he will make a statement. [203828]

Kevin Brennan: Multidimensional treatment foster care (MTFC) is an intervention for looked after children and young people with complex needs who are already displaying severe levels of challenging and antisocial behaviour or who are experiencing high levels of placement instability. The first grant-funded pilot programmes were developed for adolescents and have been followed by those for younger children. The programme for adolescents is being rigorously evaluated through a randomised controlled trial (RCT). This is a complex evaluation as it is one of the first such trials to be conducted in services for looked after children and will report early in 2010. It will help us establish whether this treatment intervention is more effective and cost-effective than services as usual for this very vulnerable group of looked after children. Depending on the findings we will consider what further capacity should be developed to meet the needs of looked after children and young people. While waiting for the evaluation results we are conducting an annual audit of progress to provide feedback to pilot sites and learn from experiences to date.

Pre-school Education: Research

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department spent on research related to the education of children under the age of five in each of the last five years. [202875]

Beverley Hughes: Figures on the Department's expenditure on research on children and families, for each financial year since 2003, are given in the following table. These figures incorporate expenditure on research related to the education of children under the age of five.

2003-04	6,470,918
2004-05	10,709,782
2005-06	10,273,893
2006-07	12,073,234
2007-08	10,681,787

In 2007-08, approximately £5 million of this money was spent on research related to early years. Expenditure on research specifically related to the education of children under the age of five for earlier years could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

School Meals

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what regulations govern the supply of (a) subsidised and (b) free lunches by schools; and if he will make a statement. [202813]

Kevin Brennan: There are no regulations governing the supply of subsidised school lunches.

Section 512ZA of the Education Act 1996, as amended by Section 201 of the Education Act 2002; The Education (Free School Lunches) (Prescribed Tax Credits) (England) Order 2003; and The Education (Free School Lunches) (State Pension Credit) Order 2005, covers free school lunches where a pupil has an entitlement.

Section 87 of the Education and Inspections Act 2006 amended Sections 512ZA and 533 of the Education Act 1996, to change the duty placed on local authorities and school governing bodies to charge for school lunches into a power to charge. This enables them to provide school lunches free of charge if they choose to do so.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what estimate he has made of margins of error in the collection of statistics on the take-up of school meals in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement; [203107]

(2) what methods have been used by the School Food Trust to assess the rate of take-up of school meals in (a) 2007 and (b) 2008 to date; and if he will make a statement. [203108]

Kevin Brennan: We have made no estimate on the margin of error in the collection of statistics on the take-up of school meals in each of the last five years, as we do not collect these statistics. Since 2006, the School Food Trust (SFT) has undertaken an annual survey of local authorities, which has asked them to provide information about school lunch take-up, both primary and secondary, in their area.

Survey reports are available on the Trust's website at:

(2007). The findings indicate the numbers of local authorities (LAs) and numbers of schools within those LAs to which the data on take up of meals relates.

The 2008 annual survey is under way. Questionnaires have been sent to all LAs in England. LAs have been asked to report take up data for all schools in their Authority. Results are expected in July.

Schools: Construction

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government has taken to reduce the administrative burden involved in the construction of new schools since 1997. [203733]

Jim Knight: This Department does not determine the legislative framework for the construction industry. We are now providing record amounts of capital support for investment in schools, a sevenfold increase in real terms between 1997 and 2010. A key aim in providing this investment is to ensure the best value for money for the taxpayer. Some systems must be in place to ensure proper Government control of public finance. Areas which we must address include that local authorities have a robust strategic vision for the delivery of education in their areas, that the investment we are providing supports this and is prioritised to need, and that procurement efficiencies are achieved. Our aim is to keep requirements to a minimum commensurate with proper management.

Measures we have taken to keep bureaucracy to a minimum include:

reduction of bid-based capital allocations, with significant amounts allocated to schools and authorities each year by simple needs-related formulae, with three year certainty to support robust local planning and prioritisation;

local authority formulaic funding delivered through the Single Capital Pot to give local flexibility; reduction of the amount of asset management data we require from authorities; improvement and standardisation of Private Finance Initiative procedures; setting up Partnerships for Schools to support the Department and local authorities in the delivery of Building Schools for the Future;

a new standardised procurement vehicle and processes for Building Schools for the Future investment, which Partnerships for Schools have reviewed and refined in consultation with stakeholders including the private sector; significant simplification of the delivery of funding for the voluntary aided sector; publication of innovative design guidance on many aspects of school buildings and facilities, including currently the development of Standard Specification Layouts and Dimensions guidance for components in school construction.

At all times, it is our intention to keep the management requirements for all programmes to a minimum; to provide effective guidance and support where it is needed, and to learn and improve continuously. For instance, by effective engagement with authorities about to enter Building Schools for the Future, Partnerships for Schools has shortened by six months their lead-in time.

SEEVIC College

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made on the development proposals for SEEVIC College in Castle Point; and if he will make a statement. [203644]

Bill Rammell: I have been asked to reply.

SEEVIC college has prepared an application in principle for the redevelopment of its Benfleet campus. The application in principle is due to be submitted to the Learning and Skills Council local office before the end of May.

Teachers: Pay

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the minimum starting rate of pay was for a newly qualified teacher in each year since 1996, expressed in 2006-07 prices. [201043]

Jim Knight: The information requested is given in the following table:

Teachers: Training

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government is taking to provide training in dealing with bereaved children to teachers. [202855]

Kevin Brennan: The Qualified Teacher Status standards require that all trainees know how to identify and support children and young people whose progress, development or well being is affected by changes or difficulties in their personal circumstances and when to refer them to colleagues for specialist support.

Video Games: Violence

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent estimate he has made of the cost of implementing the recommendations of the Byron review. [203236]

Kevin Brennan: The Government accepted all the recommendations made in the Byron Review report 'Safer Children in a Digital World,' published on 27 March 2008. In a written ministerial statement on the same date, we committed to producing a comprehensive action plan in response to the recommendations. In developing that plan, the cost of implementation, as well as lead responsibilities and key delivery milestones, will be given more detailed consideration. The action plan will be published in due course. Taking forward the Review's recommendations will not always involve new or discreet action. In many areas Dr. Byron recommended building e-safety into planned activities and services for which funding has already been agreed, for example, that existing information services for parents should include advice on e-safety.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he will reply to question 200315 on trust schools, tabled on 22 April 2008 by the hon. Member for Bognor Regis and Littlehampton. [203956]

Jim Knight: I responded to parliamentary question 200315 on 30 April, Official Report, column 537W.

Young People: Crime Prevention

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps he is taking to engage young people and members of the public in the preparation of the Youth Crime Action Plan. [203235]

Mr. Coaker: I have been asked to reply.

The views of the public and young people are central to the development of the Youth Crime Action Plan. Young people are often the group most concerned about crime and are frequently victims.

In May we are planning a series of seminars with young people to engage with them and ask for views on the work being done on the Youth Crime Action Plan.

The Home Office and Design Alliance are also consulting young people about staying safe as part of their joint work on the Technology and Design Alliance. The alliance is working with Government to raise the profile of the role that design can play in combating crime and antisocial behaviour.

We have also been taking into account views of both young people and members of the public through qualitative research being undertaken by the Department for Children, Schools and Families exploring how best to tackle negative perceptions of young people. The results are being used to ensure the Youth Crime Action Plan tackles issues of importance to members of the public and young people and helps to address concerns regarding young people's behaviour.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people were serving on the boards of the non-departmental public bodies which his Department sponsors at the latest date for which figures are available. [203727]

Mr. Lammy: The Cabinet Office publication "Public Bodies 2007" lists the number of people serving on the boards of public bodies as at 31 March 2007. These figures are broken down by individual Departments. As my Department was created by machinery of government changes in June 2007, its non-departmental public bodies are listed within those of its predecessor Departments, namely the Department of Trade and Industry and the Department for Education and Science.

For ease of reference, the relevant non-departmental public bodies are as follows:

British Hallmarking Council

Commission for Employment and Skills (Executive Non-Departmental Public Body and Company Limited by Guarantee)

Design Council

Higher Education Funding Council for England

Learning and Skills Council

National Endowment for Science, Technology and the Arts

Office for Fair Access

Research Councils

Student Loans Company

Technology Strategy Board

Council for Science and Technology

"Public Bodies 2007" can be downloaded from www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp. Copies are also available in the Library of the House.

Higher Education: Admissions

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people aged (a) over 25 and (b) over 30 years enrolled on a first degree course in a higher education institution in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [202200]

Bill Rammell: The latest available information is given in the table. Comparable figures for the 2007-08 academic year will be available in January 2009.

[3] For years earlier than 2003-04, figures for the Open University have been excluded as they are not available separately for first degree entrants, only for all undergraduates. From 2003-04 onwards, figures for first degree entrants are available and have been included. Therefore, figures before 2003-04, and figures from 2003-04 onwards, cannot be directly compared.

Higher Education Statistics Agency (HESA).

Latest figures from UCAS, covering applicants to full-time undergraduate courses only, show that, after the small downturn in 2006, applicants who were accepted for entry in 2007 increased. For accepted applicants from the UK, figures show a rise of 5.5 per cent. to 364,500, with those from England showing a 6.1 per cent. rise to 307,000, the highest ever.

Latest figures for students applying for entry in 2008, show as at the end of March, applicants to full-time undergraduate courses show a year-on-year rise of 5.5 per cent., with those from England up by 6.2 per cent.

Students: Loans

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) if he will estimate the cost of raising the student loan repayment income threshold to £20,000 and introducing thresholds and rates of student loan repayments of (a) five per cent. on incomes of £20,000 to £29,999 and (b) 7.5 per cent. on incomes over £30,000; and if he will make a statement; [203154]

(2) if he will estimate the cost of raising the student loan repayment income threshold to £25,000 and introducing thresholds and rates of student loan repayments of (a) five per cent. on incomes of £25,000 to £29,999 and (b) 7.5 per cent. on incomes over £30,000; and if he will make a statement. [203155]

Bill Rammell: Introducing repayment thresholds of £20,000 and £30,000 with corresponding repayment rates of 5 per cent. and 7.5 per cent. would have an estimated one-off resource cost of £2 billion (for existing loans) and an ongoing resource cost of £700 million per year (for new loans).

Introducing repayment thresholds of £25,000 and £30,000 with corresponding repayment rates of 5 per cent. and 7.5 per cent. would have an estimated one-off resource cost of £3.2 billion (for existing loans) and an ongoing resource cost of £1.1 billion per year (for new loans).

The income threshold is one of the main features of the income contingent loan scheme. This protects borrowers when they need it as they only pay their loan back once they earn over the threshold. Borrowers currently repay nothing until they earn over £15,000. This strikes the right balance, making payments affordable to the individual and student loans affordable to the public purse. We are committed to maintaining the repayment threshold at £15,000 until 2010 when we will review it.

OLYMPICS

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics on how many occasions she visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [204390]

Tessa Jowell: Since my appointment in June 2007,1 have visited Scotland once and will be visiting Northern Ireland next month. I plan to visit Wales in the near future.

Olympic Delivery Authority: Manpower

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what proportion of staff working for the Olympic delivery authority are (a) women and (b) men. [204122]

Tessa Jowell: As of March 2008 the percentage of women directly employed by the Olympic delivery authority was 47.8 per cent. and the percentage of men was 52.2 per cent.

Olympic Games 2012: Red Arrows

Greg Clark: To ask the Minister for the Olympics whether she has invited the Red Arrows to perform at the 2012 Olympics. [203808]

Tessa Jowell: It is not the job of the Government to make decisions about which organisations should perform at the 2012 Olympics. The London Organising Committee of the Olympic games and Paralympic games has the responsibility for deciding what to include in celebrations during the 2012 games. With four years to go, decisions are yet to be made on who will participate in the celebrations, but we want to make sure that they will be a spectacular showcase of Britain's best. I have made it clear many times that reports that the Government have banned the Red Arrows from being part of celebrations in 2012 are wholly without foundation.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Consultants

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what consultancy contracts his Department issued in each year since 2005; what the (a) value, (b) purpose and (c) contractor was in each case; and whether the consultant's report is publicly available in each case. [181899]

Mr. Timms: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 13 December 2007, Official Report, columns 792-96W. New contracts entered into since that date are as shown in the following table.

Information on contracts entered into since 2005 but which were no longer current in December 2007 could be provided only at disproportionate costs.

Reports are not necessarily produced for all consultancy commissions. The Department does not generally publish reports prepared by consultants that it has engaged.

Employment

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the performance has been of the City Strategy pilot programmes in improving employment and skills outcomes. [203349]

Mr. Timms: The evaluation of the City Strategy will consider the performance of the Pathfinders in improving employment and skills outcomes. The report is due in the autumn of 2009.

Income Support: Mortgages

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what proportion of recipients of income support mortgage interest (ISMI) were also (a) income support, (b) income-based jobseekers allowance and (c) pension credit recipients in each year since 1990; and what proportion of ISMI expenditure was on each group in each year since 1990, broken down by (i) parliamentary constituency and (ii) region; [196678]

(2) how many people on (a) income support, (b) income-based jobseekers allowance and (c) pension credit received income support mortgage interest in each year since 1995, broken down by parliamentary constituency. [196680]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information is not available in the format requested. Recipient information is not available for pension credit. The available recipient information for income support and jobseeker's allowance has been placed in the Library. The requested information on expenditure is not available other than at disproportionate cost.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people claimed income support mortgage interest in each year between 1990 and 1995; at what cost; what the average payment was; and what the average length of claim was. [196679]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Income: Graduates

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average income of graduates was in each region of England in each year since 1997. [201560]

Mr. Timms: Average (median) weekly gross income for graduates is shown in the following table.

Jobcentre Plus

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what guidance is given to Job Centres on responding to those seeking to advertise vacancies for jobs in the so-called sex industry; and if he will make a statement. [203724]

Mr. Timms: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Leslie Strathie, dated 7 May 2008:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question about the guidance given to Jobcentre Plus staff when responding to employers seeking to advertise vacancies in the so-called sex industry. This is something that falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Jobcentre Plus is obliged to provide a free public employment service to help people seeking work and employers fill their vacancies. As part of this, Jobcentre Plus advertises all kinds of vacancies, including those from within the adult entertainment industry, provided they comply with civil and criminal law. To refuse to advertise vacancies that comply with civil and criminal law would place us at significant risk of legal challenge. To put this in context, adult entertainment vacancies make up less than 0.016% of all vacancies advertised by Jobcentre Plus.

Having said that, we recognise the sensitivities associated with working in the adult entertainment industry and have put in place a number of safeguards all of which are detailed in staff guidance to make sure customers are completely aware of the nature of specific vacancies and are able to make fully informed decisions about the suitability of a particular job. These include:

a strap line on the vacancy, stating it is unsuitable for people under the age of 18;

a detailed description of the vacancy and associated activities;

discussing these vacancies only with people who enquire about them or who have been employed previously within the industry; and not obliging anyone to enquire about or apply for these type of vacancies (anyone is free to refuse to consider them without implications for their benefit).

These safeguards were strengthened recently by some additional checks for employers notifying vacancies where physical contact might be involved, for example escort work and working in a massage parlour or a sauna, to ensure that it is not of a sexual nature. These additional checks are as follows:

before a vacancy is advertised, employers must complete and return a statement, confirming the vacancy does not involve contact of a sexual nature;

once advertised, Jobcentre Plus will, as part of a routine 48-hour courtesy call to employers, confirm nothing illegal was subsequently found to be part of the job requirements;

Jobcentre Plus contacts people it knows have applied for such vacancies to see if anything illegal was subsequently found to be part of the job requirements; the service is withdrawn from any employer and we will inform the police if we believe the employer is involved in the provision of an illegal service.

In addition to the above, if we receive a complaint from a jobseeker about the activities they have been asked to undertake, no further vacancies are accepted until an investigation into the exact nature of the work has been carried out. If it were found that an employer was involved in the provision of illegal activities, we would withdraw the service.

We take every care to make sure the vacancies we handle meet appropriate legal standards. Without a clear reason to believe a particular employer is engaged in anything unlawful, we are not able to refuse to handle their vacancies.

Jobcentre Plus: Standards

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the performance of Jobcentre Plus in finding employment for those who had previously worked with salaries of £50,000 or higher. [202775]

Mr. Timms: The information requested is not available. Jobcentre Plus does not categorise individuals by their previous salary when recording its performance in helping people back into work.

Personal Income

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average family income was in each region of England in each year since 1997. [201561]

State Retirement Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will estimate the cost to the Exchequer, net of savings in means-tested benefits and additional tax revenues, of paying a full basic state pension to each individual, regardless of contribution record, at the rate of the guarantee credit, from the age of (a) 68, (b) 69 and (c) 70 years of age from 2010; and if he will estimate in each case the cost in each of the following four years on the assumption that the pension was then indexed to earnings. [200641]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information requested is in the following table.

Estimated net additional annual cost of paying a full basic state pension to all individuals aged (a) 68 years or over, (b) 69 years or over, and (c) 70 years or over, regardless of their national insurance contribution records, at the rate of the guarantee credit, from 2010

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Business: Females

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much funding his Department is providing to support women's enterprise in 2008-09; and if he will make a statement. [203666]

Mr. Thomas: The Government are determined that we maximise the untapped economic dividend for the UK from increasing female entrepreneurship rates. The US has 20 per cent. more businesses per head than the UK. A significant proportion of this gap is explained by much lower rates of women's entrepreneurial activity in the UK. This goes to the heart of the UK's productivity and competitiveness.

This Department's funding for the delivery of support services for women's and other enterprises, is channelled through the Regional Development Agencies, via the Single Programme Budget, to enable them to achieve their regional priorities identified in their strategies, including supporting the development and growth of women's enterprise.

The RDAs are our key partners in promoting enterprise and we are working with them in implementing the measures on women's enterprise announced as part of the Government's Enterprise Strategy. Those measures include provision for: £12.5 million of Government capital through a women's investment fund; women's business centre pilots; enhanced mentoring support; a new national enterprise centre of expertise; and activity aimed at opening up procurement opportunities to women-owned businesses. More information on the Strategy is available at:

Carbon Emissions: Buildings

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what proportion of national aggregate carbon dioxide emissions emitted were attributable to energy consumption within buildings in each of the last five years; and what proportion of that figure comprised emissions from private households. [202996]

Mr. Woolas: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is provided in the following table. It is not possible to separate energy consumption for the purposes of heating and lighting in the industrial sector from energy consumption for other purposes (e.g. machinery, incineration). Therefore, the numbers given apply only to the commercial, public and residential sectors.

More details on the sources of UK CO_2 emissions can be found in The Annual Report to Parliament 2007.

Total UK carbon dioxide emissions (million tonnes)	543.8	555.9	557.0	557.3	556.5
Emissions from buildings in commercial sector (million tonnes)	52.0	55.1	54.5	54.5	56.2
Emissions from buildings in public sector (million tonnes)	20.7	20.8	21.6	21.5	21.5
Emissions from buildings in the residential sector (million tonnes)	146.3	149.5	150.7	147.3	146.7
Total Building Emissions	219	225.4	226.5	223.3	224.4

The total CO_2 emissions from buildings accounted for about 40 per cent. of total UK CO_2 emissions (26.4 per cent. from the residential sector) in 2006.

Emissions figures are provided on an 'end user' basis, while emissions from power stations are allocated to the buildings in which the electricity generated is consumed.

[198496]

Mr. McFadden: The Certification Office has provided the following details dating back to financial year 2001-02. They do not contain information relating to the Certification Officer himself because he is an office holder. Details of his remuneration are published each year in his annual report.

The Certification Office was established in 1975. It is not possible to provide details for the period 1975 to 2000-01 without incurring disproportionate cost.

Export Credits Guarantee Department: Environment Protection

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what account the Export Credits Guarantee Department takes of (a) the social and environmental impacts of proposed projects, (b) the domestic policies of the partner government and (c) the partner government's international commitments on (i) climate change, (ii) biodiversity and (iii) sustainable development when determining its commitment to projects; and if he will make a statement. [201446]

Malcolm Wicks: ECGD's business principles state that ECGD will:

"screen applications for cover to identify, and then analyse, any adverse or beneficial environmental, social or human rights aspects of relevant projects"

and

"determine the acceptability of applications for cover, taking account of appropriate external standards".

The implementation of the business principles in relation to environmental issues is described further in ECGD's case impact analysis process (CIAP), which is published on the ECGD website. The CIAP states that:

"In processing applications for support, ECGD will also take account of applicable (UK) Government policies and initiatives on the environment, sustainable development, and human rights."

Host country requirements are taken into consideration in processing applications for ECGD support. ECGD will normally seek to apply the higher of relevant domestic requirements or international standards.

Legal Profession

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the value of the contracts awarded by his Department to (a) Christine Lee and Co. solicitors, (b) Ward Hadaway solicitors, (c) Dean and Dean solicitors and (d) Lawford Kidd solicitors was in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [201634]

Mr. Thomas: Central records indicate that the value of contracts awarded by the Department to the providers listed in each of the last five years was:

	Provider	Contract value (£)
2006-07	Ward Hadaway	4,877
2007-08	Ward Hadaway	22,532

Migrant Workers: Pay

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps his Department takes against employers who offer housing to immigrant workers and deduct more than the legally permissible offset from their salaries as payment. [200081]

Mr. McFadden: Under the national minimum wage legislation, accommodation is the only benefit in kind which can count against the minimum wage. The amount that can count towards minimum wage pay is set by Government, and is currently £4.30 per day, rising to £4.46 in October 2008.

Arrears are due when an employer has not paid minimum wage as a result of a failure to properly apply the accommodation offset. We are strengthening our enforcement provisions through the Employment Bill, including providing for a penalty for all employers found to have underpaid their workers and a fairer system of calculating arrears.

Motor Vehicles: Fuels

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of litres, to the nearest million, of vehicle fuel sold in the UK in each of the last five years. [203813]

[202196]

Malcolm Wicks: The Low Carbon Buildings Programme (LCBP) Phase 1 has a £36 million budget over three years. We did not set yearly allocations or specific amounts of funding for individual technologies.

The programme has been extended to June 2010 (or until funds are exhausted whichever comes sooner) with the remaining £10 million budget covering the range of technologies.

JUSTICE

Convictions: Genetics

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will take steps to review the cases of those convicted of serious crimes on the basis of low template DNA evidence; and if he will make a statement. [201981]

Maria Eagle: The Government have no plans to review convictions involving the use of low template DNA evidence. A review of low template DNA techniques, commissioned by the Independent Forensic Science Regulator and led by Professor Brian Caddy, Emeritus Professor of Forensic Science at Strathclyde university, was published on 11 April. The overall finding of the review is that the science supporting the delivery of low template DNA profiling is sound. Any individual who alleges that he or she is the victim of a miscarriage of justice may apply to the Criminal Cases Review Commission, an independent body, for it to consider the case. The Commission has the power to refer any cases where there is a real possibility that the conviction or sentence will not be upheld to the appropriate court, which will treat the reference as a new appeal.

Courts

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will consider the merits of introducing a mechanism to measure levels of public confidence in the court system. [203313]

Maria Eagle: The British Crime Survey (BCS) has been used to measure public confidence in aspects of the Criminal Justice System since 2001. In October 2007, new questions were introduced into the survey which will provide information about public confidence in the fairness and effectiveness of the courts.

Crime: Victims

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 555W, on crime: victims, what form the recruitment exercise for a commissioner for victims and witnesses took; what steps his Department has taken to make an appointment since 2006; and what future options for the role of commissioner are under consideration. [203163]

Maria Eagle: The recruitment exercise for the role of Commissioner for Victims and Witnesses was carried out according to the code of practice for public appointments and used an executive recruitment agency (Veredus) who specialise in public appointments. This included public advertisements in relevant publications and an executive search targeting individuals perceived to be of the right calibre for the role.

We are still undertaking analysis to inform options for the role. The Office For Criminal Justice Reform is consulting with a number of relevant stakeholders (including the Victims Advisory Panel) and will be putting advice up to Ministers in due course.

Criminal Proceedings: Genetics

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what research his Department (a) has commissioned and (b) plans to commission on the use of DNA mixtures evidence in court proceedings; [201451]

(2) what guidance his Department has issued to the courts on the use of low-tech DNA evidence in cases before the courts. [201452]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice has not commissioned any research on the use of DNA mixtures evidence in criminal proceedings, and has no plans to do so. Nor is it our practice to issue guidance to the courts on how to evaluate the admissibility of different kinds of evidence. However, the Independent Forensic Science Regulator will shortly be publishing a full response to the independent review "A Review of the Science of Low Template DNA Analysis", which recommended the development of guidance on DNA technology for the use of participants in the criminal justice system generally. Furthermore, guidance on low copy number DNA evidence was issued jointly by the Crown Prosecution Service, the Association of Chief Police Officers and the Interim Forensic Science Regulator to Crown prosecutors on 28 January 2008. It is available on the CPS website at:

http://www.cps.gov.uk/publications/prosecution/lcn_checklist.html.

Departmental Closed Circuit Television

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent assessment he has made of the extent to which closed circuit television cameras (CCTV) operated (a) by and (b) on behalf of his Department comply (i) with the Data Protection Act 1998, (ii) the CCTV Code of Practice published by the Information Commissioner and (iii) relevant BSI standards. [203246]

Mr. Wills: All CCTV systems installed in Ministry of Justice buildings are required to comply with the provisions of the Data Protection Act and the CCTV Code of Practice published by the Information Commissioner, which has been adopted by the Ministry. MOJ CCTV systems are not currently required to conform with recently published BSI standards on digital CCTV recording, which are not a mandatory requirement. The Ministry's policy on CCTV compliance is reviewed bi-annually; the next review is due to be undertaken in December 2008.

Departmental Contracts

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the Answer of 3 April 2008 to the hon. Member for Fareham, Official Report, columns 1170-74W, on departmental contracts, to which property or properties the expenditure on GVA Grimley related; and what the conclusion of the non-domestic rating challenge was. [202814]

Maria Eagle: The expenditure on GVA Grimley related to their work, during 2007-08 in challenging National Non Domestic Rating assessments on the following properties:

Barnet Magistrates Court
Bristol Greyfriars
Bury County Court
Cambridge Magistrates Court
HMCS NE Regional Directors Office
Manchester County Court
Middlesex Guildhall Crown Court
N and W Greater Manchester MCC Offices
Northampton Bulk Issue Centre
Nuneaton County Court
Royal Courts of Justice
Stourbridge County Court.

The rating challenge exercise resulted in savings in rates payments of £567,908 recovered in 2007-08, with continuing savings of £418,303 per annum.

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201721]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central government departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via my Department's website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 89 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was 176, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to 'information available by other means' are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Figures prior to 9 May 2007 are for requests made to the DCA.

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 2012W, on departmental public participation, how many responses were received for each (a) survey, (b) questionnaire and (c) other service. [203102]

Electoral Systems

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the Government plans to change the voting system used to elect hon. Members. [203137]

Mr. Wills: The Government published the Review of Voting Systems in January 2008 which considers the experience of the new voting systems introduced in the United Kingdom since 1997. The Review forms part of the continuing debate on electoral reform, and at this point the Government are not seeking to change the electoral system for the House of Commons.

Electronic Voting

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the Answer from the hon. Member representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 451W, on electronic voting, which recommendations of the Electoral Commission on e-counting his Department has undertaken to implement. [202815]

Mr. Wills: The Government are currently reviewing the Electoral Commission's recommendations in response to the Gould report concerning the future use of e-counting. Along with the valuable lessons which we have learnt from previous e-counting pilots, these will help to inform our future policy for e-counting.

Emergency Workers (Obstruction) Act 2006

Mr. Alan Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prosecutions under the Emergency Workers (Obstruction) Act 2006 have been made since its introduction; and what the outcome of those prosecutions has been. [203336]

Maria Eagle: I refer the right hon. Gentleman to the answer I gave on 20 February 2008, Official Report, column 778W to the hon. Member for Teignbridge (Richard Younger-Ross).

The Emergency Workers (Obstruction) Act 2006 came into force on 20 February 2007. We do not yet have prosecution figures covering 2007. We would expect the number of prosecutions to be small. Any act involving violence against emergency workers would be covered by the general law on assault and the new offence is limited to obstruction only.

Peterborough Prison: Foreigners

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many foreign nationals are detained at HMP Peterborough. [203683]

Mr. Hanson: At the end of March 2008, the latest date for which figures are available, there were 155 foreign national prisoners (101 male and 54 female) detained in Peterborough prison.

This information is available at the following website where it is updated quarterly.

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/populationincustody.htm

http://www.justice.gov.uk/docs/population-in-custody-mar08.pdf

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prison Service: Manpower

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people are employed in HM prison service in England and Wales. [203300]

Maria Eagle: As at 31 January 2008 there were 52,621 directly employed staff within HM Prison Service establishments in England and Wales, including privately managed prisons.

Prisoners Transfer: Young Offenders

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance has been issued by the Youth Justice Board to secure units on the transfer of 15 year old boys into prisons. [203071]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board issued revised placements guidance in 2004 to all under-18 custodial establishments and youth offending teams. It includes a transfer protocol, which specifies that placements of boys aged 15 and older in secure children's homes and secure training centres should be regularly reviewed to assess whether they still require the level of support provided by those establishments.

Boys aged 15-17 are normally placed in young offender institutions unless they are assessed as requiring the different environment and level of support that a secure training centre or a secure children's home offers.

Prisoners: Females

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the recommendations to member states contained in paragraphs 19 to 29 of the European Parliament's resolution of 13th March 2008 on the particular situation of women in prison and the impact of the imprisonment of parents on social and family life; what plans he has to implement the recommendations; and if he will make a statement. [201294]

Maria Eagle: The recommendations will be considered in the context of implementation of the commitments set out in the Governments response to the Corston report, and within a joint priority review by the Department for Children Schools and Families and the Ministry of Justice to support the children of offenders to achieve better outcomes.

Prisoners: Internet

Mr. Simon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his Department's policy is on blogging by prisoners. [203938]

Maria Eagle: There is no policy on prisoners contributing to blogs. Prisoners do not have direct access to the internet, other than under controlled circumstances or for specific educational purposes, which is via controlled connectivity to secure NOMS accredited sites. NOMS policy on prisoner communications does, however, set out restrictions on material that prisoners may send if it is intended for publication.

Prisoners: Suicide

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many suicides within (a) adult prisons and (b) young offender institutions in (i) 2006 and (ii) 2007 took place within the first seven days of custody; and how many prisoners who committed suicide in their first seven days in custody had on one or more of those seven days been housed in police or court cells. [203195]

Maria Eagle: There were six self-inflicted deaths[1] in adult prisons[2] within the first seven days of prison custody in 2006 and 10 in 2007. There was also one self-inflicted death of an adult prisoner in each of 2006 and 2007 in prisoner escort custody prior to arrival in prison. There were no such deaths in young offender institutions in either 2006 or 2007.

Information regarding time spent in court or police custody prior to first reception in prison is not held centrally.

[1] The Prison Service definition of self-inflicted deaths is broader than the legal definition of suicide and includes all deaths where it appears that a prisoner has acted specifically to take their own life. This inclusive approach is used in part because inquest verdicts are often not available for some years after a death (some 20 per cent. of these deaths will not receive a suicide or open verdict at inquest). Annual numbers may change slightly from time-to-time as inquest verdicts and other information become available.

[2] Includes deaths where prisoner transferred to hospital following initial incident.

Prisons: Finance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much the Government has budgeted for the construction of new Titan prisons. [203299]

Mr. Hanson: The cost of construction of the Titan prisons has been estimated to be around £350 million each at 2007-08 prices.

The cost of building and operating the Titan prisons, which will be post 2011 spending review period, will be subject to the usual comprehensive spending review processes.

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much prisons in England and Wales received for work done by prisoners from (a) private and (b) public sector organisations in each of the last five years; and what assessment he has made of the potential to increase prison revenue from such sources. [203783]

Maria Eagle: The following table shows the value of both internal and external sales from work done by prisoners in public sector prisons in England and Wales. While the Prison Service would seek to receive revenue where possible it should also be acknowledged that prison industries have a number of other objectives including purposeful activity as well as skills and employment opportunities.

	Internal sales[1]	£000 External sales[2]
2007-08	30,560	6,010
2006-07	27,571	6,370
2005-06	31,334	[3]
2004-05	37,919	[4]3,673
2003-04	40,782	[4]4,370

[1] The total sales value of goods and services provided using prisoners for internal consumption, including sales to the Ministry of Justice. The general reduction over the period is predominantly due to the phased implementation of hard charging.
[2] Total sales revenue from predominantly private sector organisations.
[3] Reliable data are not available for 2005-06 due to a system failure.
[4] Data extracted from internal (prison industry) monitoring and recording systems.

Prisons: Mental Health Services

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps he is taking in response to the comments of HM Inspector of Prisons that four out of five mental health in-reach teams in prisons feel unable to respond adequately to the range of needs they face. [203196]

Maria Eagle: The report, The mental health of prisoners thematic (HMIP, 2007) made a number of recommendations about improving mental health care in prisons. The Department of Health is preparing its response to all these recommendations.

Shoplifting

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many convictions there were for shoplifting in each of the last three years. [202975]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer of 5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2631W.

Court proceedings data for 2007 will be available in the autumn of 2008.

The information requested covering cautions, convictions and penalty notices for disorder (PNDS) for the years 2004-06 is provided in the following table.

Number of offenders cautioned, defendants found guilty and penalty notices for disorder (PNDs) issued for shoplifting, England and Wales 2004-06[1,2]

	Cautioned	Found guilty	PNDs issued
2004	41,165	69,542	[3]2,072
2005	44,012	64,076	21,997
2006	45,054	58,536	38,772

[1] The cautions and found guilty data are provided on the principal offence basis. PND data is a count of all penalty notices for disorder issued during the year.
[2] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the police forces and courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[3] The offence of retail theft (goods of value under 200) was added to the PND scheme on 1 November 2004.

Young Offender Institutions: Education

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many young offender institutions provide discrete (a) personal, (b) social and (c) health education courses. [203555]

Mr. Hanson: An audit of education in secure accommodation carried out by the Youth Justice Board (YJB) in 2002 identified the need for Special Educational Needs Co-ordinators (SENCOs), and funding was obtained by the YJB to ensure that each Young Offenders Institution has the support of a SENCO. This requirement is incorporated into the Offenders Learning Journey (Juvenile) which sets out the delivery of learning and skills services to young offenders in custody in England. The Learning and Skills Council are also currently undertaking a review process which will ascertain the level and range of educational need for offenders in each custodial and community setting, thus informing the range and types of provision to be commissioned. We expect the reviews to include an analysis of the level of need for learners with learning difficulties and disability.

Young Offenders: Sentencing

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what mechanisms are in place to reduce the number of people under the age of 21 years in prison for non-violent offences. [203303]

Mr. Hanson: While sentencing in any individual case is a matter entirely for the court, the Government believe that prison should be reserved for serious and dangerous offenders. Other offenders are normally better punished in the community. The Government introduced the generic community order for adults in the Criminal Justice Act 2003 and provisions in the Criminal Justice and Immigration Bill currently going through Parliament will create the youth rehabilitation order, a broadly similar sentence for juveniles. Such orders enable the courts to choose from a wide range of requirements so as to effectively meet the circumstances of the offence and the offender. They should enable the courts to have greater confidence in community sentences and to use them instead of custody in all cases other than when custody really is the only punishment that will meet the circumstances of the offence.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much was spent on the website www.knowyourlimits.gov.uk in each month since its inception; what the budget for the website is for 2008-09; how many staff are employed to maintain the website; and how many unique visitors there were to the website in each month since its inception. [200376]

Mr. Byrne: We are unable to provide costs split out on a monthly basis for the www.knowyourlimits.gov.uk website, but can provide annual costs as follows on table 1.

Maintenance of this website is the shared responsibility of Department of Health and Home Office Know Your Limits Campaign teams and does not require a full time member of staff to maintain.

From the end of June 2008, the website will no longer exist, and visitors will be redirected to a new NHS units awareness site, which will be funded by the Department of Health. Therefore the forecast for 2008-09 is based on an estimated monthly maintenance fee for April, May and June and may be subject to change.

Table 2 shows the numbers of unique users there have been to this website by month.

Animal Experiments

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how substantial suffering, as set out in the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 is measured; and what guidance her Department has issued to inspectors on the determination of substantial suffering. [202129]

Meg Hillier: Guidance on severity assessment is set out in paragraphs 5.40 to 5.49 of the Guidance on the Operation of the Animals (Scientific Procedures) Act 1986 (HC321). The Guidance sets out the factors that must be taken into account by inspectors in exercising their professional judgment in determining and advising on severity, whether mild, moderate or substantial.

British Nationality: Ireland

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she has received recent representations from the government of the Irish Republic on the grant of British passports and citizenship to Irish citizens living in the United Kingdom. [203438]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 6 May 2008]: The issue has been raised by individuals from both Houses, but there have been no recent representations from the government of the Irish Republic on this matter.

Closed Circuit Television

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps she has taken to implement the National CCTV Strategy; and if she will make a statement. [203247]

Mr. Coaker: A National CCTV Strategy Programme Board has been established. The programme board is reviewing the recommendations of the strategy and Ministers will have the opportunity to approve the work of the Board later this year.

Crime Prevention: Lancashire

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether she was consulted in relation to the policy of Lancashire Police of giving free buttered toast to late night revellers to prevent violence; whether she plans to issue guidance to other police forces on the policy of giving food to deter potential troublemakers; and if she will make a statement. [202115]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 28 April 2008]: There was no discussion between the Home Office and Lancashire Police on this issue. This is an operational matter for Lancashire Police. The Home Office has no plans to issue guidance on giving food to deter potential troublemakers.

Crime: Greater London

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) administration and (b) sanction detections there were in relation to crimes in London in each of the last 10 years. [192045]

Mr. Coaker: The requested information is given in the following table.

Within the recorded crime statistics, administrative detections are referred to as non-sanction detections. The number of non-sanction detections decreased significantly in 2006-07. This reflects a significant shift away from the use of non-sanction detections, where no further action is taken. Sanction detections are now viewed as the preferred measure, providing a more meaningful comparison of police performance.

Some forces have made a policy decision to significantly limit their use of non-sanction detections in recent years. The greater focus on sanction detections was further emphasised by the move to the use of the sanction detection rate within the police performance assessment framework.

1. The coverage was extended and counting rules revised from 1998-99. This will have had an effect on the number of detections recorded. Figures from that date are not comparable with those for 1997.

Table 3: Offences detected by the police in London region: 2002-03 to 2006-07[1]

2002-03	1,089,903	159,717	138,810	20,907
2003-04	1,070,177	166,008	137,303	28,705
2004-05	1,023,806	217,142	151,359	65,783
2005-06	992,557	236,223	181,684	54,539
2006-07	929,752	199,630	197,449	[3]2,181

[1] The data in this table takes account of the introduction of the National Crime Recording Standard in April 2002. These figures are not directly comparable with those for earlier years.
[2] The large increases between 2002-03 and 2005-06 were as a result of positive action by the Metropolitan Police Service to increase the number of non-sanction detections. The issue of new rules from 1 April 2007, have severely limited the number of incidences when they can be applied. The Metropolitan police had anticipated these changes, issuing their own policy during 2006-07 that limited the use of non-sanction detections, this leading to a significant reduction in non-sanction detection numbers for that year.
[3] It should be noted that non-sanction detections that contribute to the percentage change in detection rates have fallen in recent years reflecting a significant shift by many police forces away from recording detections of crime where no further action is taken. For this reason overall detections rates over time are not fully comparable. From April 1 2007 the rules governing recording of non-sanction detections were revised to reduce the scope within which they can be claimed to a very limited set of circumstances.

Departmental Closed Circuit Television

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the extent to which closed circuit television cameras (CCTV) operated (a) by and (b) on behalf of her Department comply (i) with the Data Protection Act (ii) the CCTV Code of Practice published by the Information Commissioner and (iii) relevant BSI standards. [203253]

Mr. Coaker: No overall assessment has been made. It is the responsibility of the individual operators of the systems to ensure that they comply with the Data Protection Act, the CCTV code of practice and the relevant BSI standards.

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were serving on the boards of the non-departmental public bodies which her Department sponsors at the latest date for which figures are available. [203728]

Mr. Byrne: The Cabinet Office publication 'Public Bodies 2007' lists the number of people serving on the boards of public bodies as at 31 March 2007. These figures are broken down by individual Departments. 'Public bodies 2007' can be downloaded from:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp.

Copies are also available in the Library of the House.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether consideration has been given to applying gender responsive budgeting to her Department's budget. [192116]

Mr. Byrne: The UK Government are supportive of efforts to achieve gender equality and continues to work very closely with both the Women's National Commission and the Women's Budget Group on promoting gender equality within the UK.

The Home Office has a number of development programmes which support gender equality. These include Leaders of the Future—a positive action leadership programme aimed at the most talented staff. The aim is to prepare participants and maximise their potential for entry into the Senior Civil Service (SCS). It is designed for women, minority ethnic, disabled, lesbian, gay and bisexual (LGB) colleagues. More broadly a key aim of the new talent management system introduced for all Grade 6 and 7 staff is to improve SCS diversity.

The department has also established a Diversity Strategy Programme Board to bring together Directors from across the business areas and agencies. The Board closely monitors progress and delivery of our 3-Year Diversity Strategy. We ensure that when selecting search and recruitment consultants that they have a good track record on diversity and produce a diverse long list. We also run events targeting black and minority ethnic, women, disabled and LGB staff into the Home Office at a senior level.

We also fund on an ad hoc basis Home Office Women (HOW). HOW is the network for women and all those interested in women's issues across the Home Office Group.

Departmental Recruitment

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much her Department and its agencies paid to recruitment consultants in each year since 1997. [200490]

Mr. Byrne: Recruitment costs in the Home Department do not fall to a central budget. The Home Office frequently uses the same companies for recruitment services as it does for other services, including for example the employment of temporary staff. Although it can identify the total paid to those companies, it cannot separately determine the costs solely relating to recruitment without disproportionate costs.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many full-time posts in her Department were filled on a temporary basis for a period in excess of six months in each of the last three years. [200664]

Mr. Byrne: This information is available only at disproportionate cost.

Genetics: Databases

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many new profiles have been added to the national DNA database since September 2007, broken down by police force; and if she will make a statement. [179094]

Meg Hillier: It is understood that this question refers to the number of crime scene sample profiles added to the National DNA Database, since a separate question has been asked on the number of people added in each month from October 2007 to date.

The number of crime scene samples added in each of the six months from October 2007 to March 2008 for all police forces is shown in the following table.

2. The data on crime scene sample profiles are for all United Kingdom police forces, but do not include all Scottish crime scene sample profiles. Crime scene sample profiles taken by Scottish police forces are loaded to the Scottish DNA Database in the first instance. Only those crime scene profiles for which no match is found on the Scottish DNA Database are added to the NDNAD.

Identity and Passport Service: Fishburn Hedges

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what payments the Identity and Passport Service made to Fishburn Hedges in each of the last five years; on what dates; and for what purpose in each case. [202253]

Meg Hillier: The Identity and Passport Service has not made any payments to Fishburn Hedges during any of the last five years.

Identity Cards: Foreigners

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the cost of introducing identity cards for foreign nationals in the UK. [203941]

Mr. Byrne: The latest estimate for the cost of introducing identity cards for foreign nationals is planned to be published on 6 May 2008 in the document 'Identity Cards Act 2006—Section 37 Report to Parliament about the Likely Costs of the ID Cards Scheme'. The document will be available to Members in the parliamentary Libraries.

This report is published every six months and contains the most recent estimate for the costs of introducing identity cards for foreign nationals.

Immigration: Detention Centres

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps are taken in relation to illegal immigrants detained in police or immigration custody in circumstances where there is a lack of capacity within the immigration detention estate. [202609]

Mr. Byrne: Detainees can be held in police cells or Short Term Holding Facilities for a maximum of five nights, or seven nights if removal directions are in place. Within this period they are expected to be removed from the United Kingdom, transferred into suitable long term accommodation, or released.

Alternatives to detention are considered for those who are released from detention such as reporting conditions which restricts an individual's place of residence, employment or occupation, physically reporting to a police or an immigration reporting centre and electronic monitoring.

Internet: Security

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent discussions her Department has had with the European Commission on cyber-security; and what contribution the UK is making to Commissioner Reding's proposed cyber-defence plan. [201674]

Mr. Coaker: My Department, as well as officials from several other Departments, have regular discussions with Commission officials on aspects of cyber-security. This year officials have taken part in workshops on the electronic aspects of the programme for European Critical Infrastructure protection. Officials have also worked with Commission officials on the ongoing work of the European Network and Information Security Agency and attended workshops to discuss ideas for the proposed Communication on Critical Information Infrastructure Protections that will be issued by Mrs Reding's Directorate of the Commission.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Minister of State will reply to the letter, dated 25 March 2008, about visas for Chernobyl children. [203391]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 6 May 2008]: The International Group of the UK Border Agency wrote to the hon. Member on 29 April 2008.

Offenders: Deportation

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign nationals are being held in prisons in Wales beyond the end of their sentence awaiting deportation, broken down by (a) prison and (b) country of origin. [203589]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested can be provided through the examination of individual case files only at disproportionate cost. The chief executive of the UK Border Agency advised in her letters of 20 November and 17 December 2007 to the Home Affairs Committee that there were 1,500 foreign national prisoners detained upon completion of their sentence. She also advised during her appearance before the Committee on 15 January this year that a significant number of foreign national prisoners come from Jamaica, Nigeria, China and Vietnam.

Peterborough Prison: Foreigners

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many foreign nationals held at HMP Peterborough were deported on completion of their sentence in each month since March 2005; and if she will make a statement. [203682]

Mr. Byrne: The information requested can be obtained only through the detailed examination of individual casefiles at disproportionate cost in order to ascertain the number of individuals that had been detained at HMP Peterborough.

Police: Road Traffic Control

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what the average (a) number of police officers and (b) proportion of each police force employed in speed enforcement on roads was in each of the last five years. [198453]

Mr. McNulty: While information is collected on the number of police officers primarily employed in the function 'traffic', it is not possible to show the number or proportion of police officers specifically employed in speed enforcement as this is only part of their duties.

The available data are for the number of full-time equivalent police officers primarily employed in the function 'traffic', and are given in the following table.

The deployment of police officers to speed enforcement activity is an operational matter for individual chief officers and police authorities.

1. This and other tables contain full-time equivalent figures that have been rounded to the nearest whole number. Because of rounding, there may be an apparent discrepancy between totals and the sums of the constituent items.
2. Staff with multiple responsibilities (or designations) are recorded under their primary role or function. The traffic function includes staff who are predominantly employed on motorcycles or in patrol vehicles for the policing of traffic and motorway related duties. The does not include officers employed in accident investigation, vehicle examination and radar duties.

Security Guards: Licensing

Mr. Denis Murphy: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what role her Department has in determining the fees charged by the Security Industry Authority (SIA) for licences; what plans she has to meet SIA representatives to discuss licence fees; and what assessment she has made of the effects of SIA licence fees on the security industry. [203578]

Mr. Coaker: The Secretary of State, by using section 8(7) of the Private Security Industry Act 2001, sets the fee to be paid on application for an SIA licence. The fee is set by means of a statutory instrument made by negative resolution procedure. The current fee of £245 has been in place since 6 April 2007 and was set under the Private Security Industry Act 2001 (Licences) Regulations 2007 (SI 2007/810).

The SIA is required to be self-funding. The fee is not set to make a profit. Home Office officials are regularly in touch with the SIA to discuss a range of financial matters including the licence fee.

Consideration of the impact of SIA licence fees on the security industry was contained in a regulatory impact assessment published in January 2007 in connection with an increase in the fee from £190 to £245 (Updated Regulatory Impact Assessment to Reflect New Licence Application Fee and Charges published in January 2007 and updated in March 2007 http://www.the-sia.org.uk/NR/rdonlyres/8179D6CO-8B48-47CA-937D-DFB6A5COFF01/0/sia_licence_fee_ria.pdf).

Wildlife: Crime

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will instigate a joint review by the police and prosecution inspectorates into wildlife crime in England. [202680]

Mr. Coaker: The work of the Inspectorates, both singly and jointly, is increasingly subject to risk assessment to ensure that it's targeted on those issues that are of greatest concern to the public and to local communities. In recent years this has included such issues as tackling serious and organised crime and addressing counter terrorism.

Wildlife crime is not one of the subjects for joint inspection agreed for 2008-09. The topics for inspection were subjected to comprehensive consultation and then prioritised through risk assessment. The issue of wildlife crime did not feature from any of the consultees and was not part of the long list for 2008-09 or the final list that has been decided.

For the Home Secretary to instigate inspection activity associated with wildlife crime it would have to be clear which aspects meet the threshold and how inspection would add value or improve performance in this issue.

The Home Office has recently announced that it will contribute £150,000 per year for three years to the National Wildlife Crime Unit. Government officials will be working closely with the Association of Chief Police Officers and the NWCU to monitor the outcomes achieved through this funding.

HEALTH

Allergies

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will review the adequacy of the training undertaken by (a) medical students and (b) GPs in the diagnosis and treatment of allergies. [203190]

Ann Keen: The Department is not responsible for setting curricula for health professional training. Each University determines their own curriculum in the light of recommendations from employers and the regulatory bodies. However, we do share a commitment with statutory and professional bodies that all health professionals are trained, so that they have the skills and knowledge to deliver a high quality health service to all groups of the population with whom they deal, whatever their condition.

Breast Cancer

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information his Department holds on the relative prevalence of breast cancer among (a) black and (b) white women; and if he will make a statement. [201960]

Ann Keen: The Department does not hold information on the relative prevalence of breast cancer among black women and white women. We are, however, working on models of assessing prevalence and we are developing techniques that will allow us to assess prevalence broken down by ethnic minority grouping.

Cancer

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library a copy of the summary of the 2004 to 2007 national cancer peer review process. [201947]

Ann Keen: A copy of the Handbook for the National Cancer Peer Review Process has been placed in the Library.

Cancer: Screening

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effects of expansion in cancer screening programmes on demand for the services of pathology laboratories; and what steps he is taking to monitor the capacity of Government laboratories to support such screening. [202736]

Ann Keen: The extensions to the national health service cancer screening programmes outlined in the "Cancer Reform Strategy" are national requirements within the "Operating Framework. For the NHS in England 2008-09" as set out in "Operational Plans 2008-09 to 2010-11 (Implementing the 2008-09 Operating Framework, National planning Guidance and 'vital signs'.)", published on 31 January 2008. Primary care trust (PCT) operational plans will need to reflect the requirements, including the demand for the services of pathology laboratories. It is for strategic health authorities working in partnership with their PCTs, local screening services and stakeholders to provide appropriate cancer screening services for their local populations, including appropriate pathology services.

The Independent Review of NHS Pathology Services in England, chaired by Lord Carter of Coles, was set up in 2005, and published an interim report in 2006. The review is expected to make recommendations which build on those in its interim report, for example on the configuration of pathology services, workforce modernisation and information technology connectivity, to achieve greater efficiency and enable pathology services to meet increasing demand.

Cancer: Urinary System

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2008, Official Report, column 1454W, on cancer: urinary system, whether the Kent Cancer Network has agreed an Improving Outcomes Guidance implementation plan with the NHS Cancer Action Team; and if he will make a statement. [201625]

Ann Keen: Kent Cancer Network has submitted a urological cancer improving outcomes guidance (IOG) implementation plan to the National Health Service Cancer Action Team (CAT). The plan is not yet fully compliant with the IOG and discussions between the CAT and Kent Cancer Network are ongoing.

Carbon Monoxide: Poisoning

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many finished episodes of care relating to carbon monoxide poisoning were provided by the NHS in the latest year for which figures are available. [202891]

Dawn Primarolo: The Information Centre for health and social care holds data on the number of finished consultant episodes (FCEs) to hospital in which the patient had a primary or secondary diagnosis of "T58 Toxic effect of carbon monoxide".

There were 626 FCEs in 2006-07.

Cardiovascular System: Screening

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms he plans to use to deliver free vascular checks to 40 to 74 year olds. [201484]

Ann Keen: On 1 April 2008, the Department published "Putting Prevention First", copies of this publication are available in the Library. This outlined the initial analysis which has confirmed that a programme to reach everybody between the ages of 40 and 74, to check their vascular risk and provide them with an individual assessment, would be both clinically and cost effective.

The next step is to develop an implementation and delivery programme with key stakeholders. Stakeholders will play a crucial role in helping to formulate proposals for the vascular check programme. We expect that general practice will have an important role in delivery but other organisations, such as pharmacies, are also likely to be involved.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effects on services for children and young people with myalgic encephalopathy of the closure of specialist units in (a) Leeds, (b) the Lister hospital, Stevenage and (c) St. Thomas's hospital, London; and if he will make a statement. [201831]

Ann Keen: We have made no assessment of the impact on services for children and young people by the closure of these specialist units. Local health bodies have a duty to commission health and social care services to meet the needs of their local population, including those living with chronic fatigue syndrome/ myalgic encephalomyelitis.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to (a) ensure implementation of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's guidelines on the treatment of myalgic encephalopathy (ME) published in August 2007, (b) reduce the time taken to diagnose ME, (c) increase the allocation of funds for research into ME and the delivery of effective care and treatment, (d) reduce inconsistencies in levels of ME care across primary care trusts and (e) assess the availability of services to (i) children and (ii) adults with ME. [201832]

Ann Keen: Health professionals are expected to use their clinical judgement taking into account best practice and existing clinical guidelines, including those produced by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE), to provide the most appropriate treatment for the individual living with chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME).

Diagnosis for CFS/ME can be prolonged as there is no specific test for this condition and other diseases with similar symptoms must be ruled out before a diagnosis can be made. The NICE guidance provides a list of medical tests that should be used to rule out other conditions.

The Medical Research Council is responsible for allocating funding for medical research, and does not ring-fence funding for specific conditions. Funding for individual research proposals is based on an assessment of the quality of each proposal by an independent panel. Local health bodies are responsible for commissioning health and social care services to meet the needs of their local population living with CFS/ME.

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department is taking to ensure primary care trusts meet the recommendations of the new guidelines on myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome produced in August 2007 by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence; [202244]

(2) what steps his Department is taking to reduce the time taken to diagnose myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome. [202245]

Ann Keen: Health professionals are expected to use their clinical judgment taking into account best practice and existing clinical guidelines, including those produced by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE), to provide the most appropriate treatment for the individual living with chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME).

Diagnosis for CFS/ME can be prolonged as there is no specific test for this condition and other diseases with similar symptoms must be ruled out before a diagnosis can be made. The NICE guidance provides a list of medical tests that should be used to rule out other conditions.

Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he expects to publish the National Service Framework for Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease; and if he will make a statement; [203817]

(2) whether he plans to include diagnostic testing for chronic obstructive pulmonary disorder in the proposed NHS Health MOTs; and if he will make a statement; [203818]

(3) what his estimate is of the financial assistance needed for primary care trusts in England to meet the requirements of the proposed National Service Framework for Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease; and if he will make a statement; [203819]

(4) what guidance he plans to give to primary care trusts on incorporating an awareness campaign for chronic obstructive pulmonary disease in local pharmacy contracts; and if he will make a statement. [203820]

Ann Keen: The Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease (COPD) External Reference Group is finalising its advice to Ministers on the proposed markers of good practice from prevention through to end of life care. This advice will then be considered by Ministers and options developed for implementation. This will include options for diagnostic testing, considering how best we can utilise services provided by pharmacies to improve the care of people with COPD and estimates of the financial assistance needed to implement the recommendations. We plan to publish our conclusions by the end of 2008.

Colorectal Cancer: Screening

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans he has to address the regional variations in the promotion of screening for bowel cancer. [202737]

Ann Keen: It is for strategic health authorities working in partnership with their primary care trusts, local screening services and stakeholders to provide appropriate cancer screening services for their local populations, including the promotion of local screening services.

Dental Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of units of dental activity in England carried forward to 2008-09 from 2007-08. [202925]

Ann Keen: This information is not available. For dental activity reporting purposes the year 2007-08 has not yet ended. Dental providers have until the end of May to submit all their activity reports for activity delivered during 2007-08.

Dental Services: Children

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of schoolchildren in England between the ages of six and nine who have received treatment as part of a screening programme since his Department's guidance on dental screening (inspection) was issued in January 2007; what the effect on expenditure on salaried primary dental care resources or equivalent was in England as a result of implementing this guidance; and if he will make a statement. [202827]

Ann Keen: One of the reasons why the National Screening Committee advised that dental screening in schools should be discontinued was that a large randomised controlled trial demonstrated that school dental screening was ineffective in reducing levels of untreated dental disease and increasing attendance at dental practitioners. Information is not held centrally from which we could make an estimate of the number of children which continue to be screened, but we understand that most primary care trusts have ceased to undertake screening. We did not make this change in policy to cut costs. Our guidance recommends that the resources freed up be used to reduce inequalities in oral health by, for example, boosting the capacity of salaried dental services to reduce waiting times for special needs groups or for those children and adults who are unable to receive treatment through general dental services.

Dental Services: Contracts

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the number of dental contracts allocating units of dental activity (UDAs) awarded in England since their introduction; and how many contract holders did not reach their targets for UDAs in 2007-08. [202826]

Ann Keen: Information on the number of contracts awarded is not available in the requested format and could only be made available in this format at disproportionate cost. Information is available on the number of whole and part year contracts initially agreed in April 2006 at the start of the new dental system and on the number of contracts which ran for the whole year period of 2006-07. This information is set out in the following table.

Contracts	Numbers
Contracts agreed in April 2006[1]	8,377
Contracts which were live for the whole of 2006-07[2]	7,990

[1] Source Department of Health
[2] Source NHS Business Services Authority Dental Services Division.

Information on the number of contracts that delivered less than the activity contracted for in 2007-08 is not available. For dental activity reporting purposes the year 2007-08 has not yet ended. Dental providers have until the end of May to submit all their activity reports for activity delivered during 2007-08.

Dental Services: Negligence

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many actions for clinical negligence have been brought against dentists doing NHS work in each year since 2005. [202017]

Ann Keen: The information requested is in the following table and was supplied by the NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA). The data only covers claims made against NHS trusts, NHS foundation trusts or primary care trusts providing dentistry; information is not held centrally relating to dentists working under independent contracts.

Number of claims against NHS employed dentists by notification year to the NHSLA

NHSLA notification year	Number
2005-06	42
2006-07	44
2007-08	60
Total	146

Dental Services: Stroud

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to improve access to NHS dentistry in Stroud constituency; and if he will make a statement. [201483]

Ann Keen: I refer my hon. Friend the Member for Stroud to the written answer I gave him on 24 April, Official Report, column 2168W.

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were serving on the boards of the non-departmental public bodies which his Department sponsors at the latest date for which figures are available. [203729]

Ann Keen: The Cabinet Office publication "Public bodies 2007" lists the number of people serving on the boards of public bodies as at 31 March 2007. These figures are broken down by individual Departments. Copies of "Public bodies 2007" are available in the Library and also at:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp.

Diabetes: Peterborough

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made on implementing the NHS Diabetes National Service Framework in Peterborough constituency; and if he will make a statement. [202435]

Ann Keen: Responsibility for implementing the Diabetes National Service Framework rests with the national health service, and it is for primary care trusts (PCTs) to commission services that meet the needs of their local population.

Screening for diabetic retinopathy was a target in the Diabetes National Service Framework and has been included in the operating framework for the NHS in England 2008-09. Where (PCTs) are failing to deliver the standard set for diabetic retinopathy, they are obliged to agree recovery plans with their strategic health authorities to ensure improvement. From February 2008, Peterborough PCT began offering screening to all people with diabetes to national standards.

Eastern and Coastal Kent Primary Care Trust: Cleaning Services

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding has been allocated to (a) Eastern and Coastal Kent Primary Care Trust and (b) East Kent Hospitals NHS Trust for deep cleaning. [195139]

Ann Keen: All trusts were required to submit and agree costed deep clean plans with primary care trusts in their area by 14 December 2007 and this process has been monitored and assessed by strategic health authorities (SHAs).

As set out in the written ministerial statement given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State, on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 93-94WS, information provided by SHAs shows that they have all made available the funding they promised for the programme. Further information on the implementation of the deep clean of the national health service is available from SHAs.

Eating Disorders: North West

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment has been made of the (a) need for and (b) (i) current and (ii) planned future provision of treatment of eating disorders in each primary care trust in the North West. [202214]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Decisions on the planning and provision of treatment for eating disorders are a matter for individual primary care trusts (PCTs). Financial allocations are made directly to individual PCTs as these organisations are best placed to know the needs of the communities they serve and to commission services accordingly.

Embryonic Stem Cells

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many embryonic stem cells exist in the United Kingdom; and how much expenditure has been incurred in acquiring them. [202389]

Dawn Primarolo: We assume that the hon. Member's question refers to embryonic stem cell lines. The Department does not hold information on how many animal embryonic stem cell lines there are in the United Kingdom. As of the beginning of April 2008, 63 human embryonic stem cell lines had been deposited with the UK stem cell bank (UKSCB). The UKSCB does not pay to acquire these lines.

Eyesight: Testing

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the factors influencing the take-up rate of free sight tests for people aged 60 and over; and if he will take steps to increase the take-up rate; [203193]

(2) when he last met national professional and representative optical bodies to discuss free sight tests for people aged 60 and over. [203194]

Ann Keen: The Department has not made an assessment of the factors influencing the take-up rate of free national health service sight tests for people aged 60 and over or met with the national professional and representative optical bodies to discuss free sight tests for people aged 60 and over. Sight tests continue to increase from 4.1 million sight tests for those aged over 60 in 2003-04 to 4.5 million sight tests for those aged over 60 in 2006-07.

General Practitioners: Finance

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether payments made by primary care trusts to general practitioners as part of the Access Directed Enhanced Services payments system are based on per head of population registered on the National Health Application Infrastructure Service (Exeter) system. [200891]

Mr. Bradshaw: Payments made by primary care trusts to primary medical care contractors under the improved access scheme directed enhanced service, are based on per head of practice population registered on the National Health Application Infrastructure Service (Exeter) system.

General Practitioners: Public Participation

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what percentage of those registered on the National Health Application Infrastructure Service (Exeter) were surveyed as part of the GP patient survey, Your doctor, your experience, your say access survey in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) 2007-08, broken down by primary care trust. [200890]

Mr. Bradshaw: In 2006-07, the first year of the general practitioner (GP) patient survey, 9.8 per cent. of patients registered on the National Health Application Infrastructure Service (Exeter) were invited to take part in the GP patient survey. The breakdown by primary care trust (PCT) is shown in the following table.

The survey data for 2007-08 is currently being processed by Ipsos MORI, the appointed survey provider, and remains restricted and unavailable until official publication by the Information Centre for health and social care. Publication has been confirmed for the week commencing 14 July 2008.

Genito-Urinary Medicine

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons developing Payment by Results in the area of sexual health services was not chosen as a priority, as stated in his Department's document, Options for the Future of Payment by Results 2008-09 to 2010-11 response to consultation, published on 24 January 2008. [201336]

Mr. Bradshaw: The response to the consultation that the Department published on 24 January is a summary of responses, and not a detailed work programme. This is made clear in the document.

The identification of five priority areas (mental health, community services, critical care, urgent and emergency care and long term conditions) for future work by the Payment by Results (PbR) team was based on responses received to the consultation and available development resources. The five areas referred to each received more than 24 responses identifying them as priorities. Sexual health services received only a fraction of this level of support.

However, the Government set a target to offer everyone who needs it an appointment at a genito-urinary medicine clinic within 48 hours by March 2008. In February 2008, 97 per cent. of patients were offered an appointment to be seen, and 84 per cent. were seen within 48 hours. In May 2005, only 45 per cent. were offered an appointment to be seen within 48 hours.

Although sexual health was not highlighted as a national priority for PbR in the recent consultation exercise, this does not preclude local work being undertaken. The consultation encouraged local areas to apply to be development sites to pilot and evaluate local currencies for services outside the scope of the national tariff.

As a result, there are two developments sites looking at sexual health issues. One project, supported by the Department's sexual health team, is working to develop a tariff for HIV outpatients. The other project involves Portsmouth City Teaching Primary Care Trust investigating appropriate funding models for contraception services.

Further information on the work of these particular development sites can be found on the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Managingyourorganisation/Financeandplanning/NHSFinancialReforms/DH_083408

Health Services: Essex

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much has been allocated for public relations in the budgets of each primary care trust in Essex in (a) 2008-09 and (b) 2009-10. [202766]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 1 May 2008]: This is matter for local primary care trusts (PCTs). There is no separate allocation made to PCTs for public relations, and information on the budgets for public relations for each of the primary care trusts in Essex is not held centrally.

Revenue allocations are made to PCTs on the basis of the relative needs of their populations. It is for PCTs to determine how best to use the funding allocated to them, and to commission services to meet the healthcare needs of their local populations.

The hon. Member may therefore wish to raise this matter locally.

Health Services: Hearing Impaired

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how much funding was provided for support services for deaf people in each region in each of the last five years; [202739]

(2) what steps he is taking to improve health services for deaf people. [202741]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information on funding provided for support services for deaf people is not held centrally. Funding for audiology and support services for deaf people, along with the majority of other services, is provided through the general allocations to national health service trusts and social services departments. It is their responsibility to allocate resources to audiology services based on their knowledge of the needs of their local populations and the resources available.

Primary care trusts are responsible for commissioning the full range of health services for their local populations including deaf people, and for ensuring that they meet their capacity needs through improving existing NHS services, and where necessary, by procurement of additional independent sector capacity.

Health Services: Pilot Schemes

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he expects the NHS Whole System Demonstrator pilots in (a) Newham, (b) Kent and (c) Cornwall to go live; [202722]

(2) which parties are involved in the delivery of the NHS Whole System Demonstrator pilots in (a) Newham, (b) Kent and (c) Cornwall; [202723]

(3) which services will be offered to patients in the NHS whole system demonstrator pilots in (a) Newham, (b) Kent and (c) Cornwall. [202724]

Ann Keen: Since summer 2007, the three successful whole system demonstrator (WSD) sites (Kent, Cornwall and Newham), have been engaged with a consortium of leading United Kingdom research institutions in a period of detailed methodology and process planning in order to define the evaluation design for the programme. In addition, the sites have been working to finalise their detailed implementation and delivery plans.

The WSDs are now undertaking work at a local level to inform, engage and recruit general practices to the programme and press ahead with implementation of their delivery plans. Eligible individuals are being written to in order to gain their consent to involvement in the trial. As people agree to involvement in the trial they are being assessed and enrolled on the programme.

From April 2008, people have started to provide their consent to involvement in the trial and implementation is now under way. Following the consent of an individual there are several steps before mainstream service begins, e.g. eligibility confirmation, home visit, base-line evaluation interview, installation of equipment and training. The roll-out is planned to build month by month over the first year, with the lessons learned in the early phase helping to optimise the process.

Each of three WSD sites (Newham, Kent and Cornwall) is working with a variety of parties to implement local delivery plans.

The key delivery partners, as set out in the plans from the sites, are listed in the following table. Each site however, has to work with a large number of stakeholder organisations. Age Concern, Breathe Easy and the Alzheimer's Society are also informing the roll-out. Similarly, a number of software suppliers provide the site legacy systems and are involved in the implementation.

Kent
Key delivery partners	Kent county council—Kent Adult Social Services (KASS)
	East Kent and Coastal PCT
	West Kent PCT
	Viterion (supplier of TeleHealth)
	Tunstall (supplier of Telecare)
Cornwall
Key delivery partners	Cornwall and Isle of Scilly PCT
	Cornwall county council DASC
	HTL/WebVMC (supplier of Telehealth)
	Tunstall (supplier of Telecare)
	Carrick Life Line
	Caradon Life Line
	Royal Cornwall Hospital Trust
	Cornwall IT Services
Newham
Key delivery partners	London borough of Newham (LBN) and Newham primary care trust (NPCT). Service provision for LBN and NPCT is under the auspices of Integrated Adult Services (IAS).
	Newham Homes
	Newham University Hospital NHS Trust (NUHT)
	Tunstall (supplier of Telecare)
	Philips (supplier of Telehealth)
	T+ Medical (supplier of Telehealth)
	Serco
	NHS Direct

The WSD Programme is driven by the need to understand the true benefit of integrated health and social care supported by advanced assistive technology (telecare and telehealth).

The research design for the evaluation of the programme is a cluster randomised controlled trial (RCT), with allocation to intervention or control group determined by randomisation of participating GP practices (the clusters). Those in the control group will continue to receive 'usual care'. Participating users with the intervention group who meet the eligibility criteria will be offered Telehealth, Telecare or a combination of the two in addition to their 'usual care'. The exact nature of the technology package that an eligible participant receives will be determined by the cluster to which they belong and by assessment.

The population groups who do not receive telecare/telehealth immediately will be reassessed to see if they are still eligible for these devices 12 months after their initial participation in the programme. In this way the control group have the opportunity to receive an intervention after a 12-month delay.

Health Visitors: Children

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of health visitors needed to deliver the Child Health Promotion programme. [202988]

Ann Keen: It is the responsibility of local organisations to commission and develop services to respond to local needs, including the recruitment of health visitors. "The Operating Framework. For the NHS in England 2008-09" highlights the importance of children's services and the need for local organisations to commission and provide the necessary services and workforce.

HIV Infection: Tunbridge Wells

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many residents in Tunbridge Wells borough have been diagnosed with HIV and AIDS; and how many of those were diagnosed within the most recent 12-month period for which figures are available. [202238]

Dawn Primarolo: Epidemiological surveillance by the Health Protection Agency shows that there were 42 residents of Tunbridge Wells borough council in receiving HIV-related care in the United Kingdom 2006, latest year for which information is available. There were fewer than five individuals newly diagnosed with HIV in Tunbridge Wells borough council in 2007, although they were not necessarily resident there.

Human Embryo Experiments

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many human embryonic stem cell therapies have been developed in the UK; and how many clinical trials to develop such therapies are taking place; [200452]

(2) how many adult stem cell therapies have been developed in the UK; and how many clinical trials to develop such therapies are taking place. [200453]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department does not collect centrally information on clinical trials. There are advantages and disadvantages to using stem cells from a particular source, and it is still unknown which type will provide the most suitable material for a particular stem cell therapy. For this reason, researchers are continuing to explore the use of the full spectrum of stem cells in the hope of developing new clinical treatments, and this broad approach offers the greatest promise for medical advances.

Currently, stem cells are used in successful, well-tested therapies available in the United Kingdom. They include skin grafting, transplantation of bone marrow or umbilical cord blood stem cells to treat certain cancers and immune system disorders, and the use of stem cells from the eye to treat corneal disorders.

However, we are not aware of any clinical trials involving embryonic stem cells being carried out. One of the reasons is that no clinical grade, human embryonic stem cell-derived cell lines are available for use yet.

Medicines and Healthcare Products Regulatory Agency: Finance

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the budget of the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Authority is for 2008-09; and how much of this is provided (a) by central Government and (b) by pharmaceutical companies. [202388]

Dawn Primarolo: The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency's (MHRA's) operating income budget for 2008-09 is £97.9 million.

Of the total income, £11.1 million is provided by the Department to fund the MHRA's work in the regulation of medical devices.

The MHRA is a trading fund and the majority of its income is generated by fees for its medicines regulatory work which are mostly, but not exclusively, charged to the pharmaceutical industry. It monitors costs against fees charged and reviews its fee levels annually. Fees are set, in accordance with HM Treasury guidelines, with a view to achieving cost recovery for each activity for which it sets a charge. The MHRA is also expected to make a return of 3.5 per cent. of average capital employed paid as dividends to HM Treasury via the Department. For 2008-09 the MHRA's trading income budget is £86.8 million.

Mentally Ill: Community Care

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what advocacy services will be made available for people subject to community treatment orders in the first six months of the operation of those orders. [203191]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Although there will be no statutory requirement for independent mental health advocacy for people discharged from hospital under supervised community treatment until April 2009, general mental health advocacy will continue to be available in every strategic health authority area.

Mesothelioma: Screening

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what timetable he has set for the UK National Screening Committee to (a) review the proposed screening programme for (i) mesothelioma and (ii) other asbestos-related illnesses and (b) advise primary care trusts on such screening programmes. [202931]

Ann Keen: There are no proposals at present for the UK National Screening Committee to review and advise on screening for mesothelioma or other asbestos-related illnesses.

NHS: Anniversary

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans his Department has to mark the 60th anniversary of the NHS (a) nationally and (b) locally; and how much this will cost (i) his Department and (ii) local trusts. [202843]

Ann Keen: The Department plans to mark the 60th anniversary of the NHS in a number of ways. At a national level, activities include a service of celebration at Westminster Abbey, a history of the NHS publication, and focusing annual events including NHS Live and Health and Social Care awards around the 60th anniversary. Locally, NHS organisations are encouraged to celebrate in the most appropriate way for their staff, patients and local communities.

The Department has a budget of £300,000 for national activities and to support local NHS plans. As decisions for celebrating NHS 60 celebrations at a local level are not determined by the Departments we are unable to provide costs for local celebrations.

NHS: Cleaning Services

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to bring contracted-out NHS sterilisation services back in-house; and if he will make a statement. [202757]

Ann Keen: Hospital trusts and all other healthcare providers are responsible for making their own decisions on decontaminating their instruments, based on local needs. Decontamination can be carried out from either onsite or offsite facilities

All organisations undertaking the decontamination reprocessing of surgical instruments—whether managed by the national health service or by the independent sector—must comply with the standards contained within the Medical Devices Directive (93/42/EEC), copies of which are available in the Library. Trusts are responsible for specifying the services required, in line with the Health Act 2006 Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Health Care Associated Infections. The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency is responsible for monitoring compliance with the standard for contracted-out national health service sterilisation services.

The Government have invested over £200 million in improving decontamination services in the NHS in England. We will continue to help hospital trusts to provide the highest standards of decontamination of instruments as part of their drive against healthcare-associated infection and to protect patient safety.

NHS: Conditions of Employment

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many organisations providing services to the NHS have direction employer status; and how many staff this covers. [203315]

Ann Keen: The NHS Pension Scheme resource accounts for 2006-07, the latest year for which accounts are available, show there were 360 organisations with "direction body" status. Precise information on the number of staff covered by "direction body" status is not available.

NHS: Pay

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when officials in his Department were first informed of the NHS Pay Review Body's recommendations for 2008-09. [202935]

Ann Keen: The NHS Pay Review Body's report for 2008-09 was submitted jointly to my right hon. Friends the Prime Minister and the Secretary of State on 4 April 2008.

Nurses: Students

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many students (a) applied for and (b) enrolled in returning to (i) nursing and (ii) midwifery courses in each of the last five years; [202841]

(2) what guidelines exist for the funding of returning to (a) nursing and (b) midwifery courses; [202842]

(3) how much was spent on the promotion of returning to (a) nursing and (b) midwifery courses in each of the last five years. [202848]

Ann Keen: In the spring of 2004 and 2005, the Department ran a generic NHS careers campaign. Therefore, costs on promoting return to practice for nurses and midwives separately are not available.

Return to practice is managed locally. The initiative was funded centrally between February 1999 and March 2004. Over 18,500 former nurses and midwives had returned to work in the national health service as a result of the initiative during this period.

From 1 April 2004, responsibility for return to practice programmes was devolved to local NHS organisations, and information is not collected centrally. There are no specific guidelines on funding return to practice courses. NHS organisations fund courses from their overall training budgets to meet local workforce needs. Guidance about return to practice for employers is available on NHS Employers website at www.nhsemployers.org.

On 25 February 2008, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State outlined plans to help former midwives to return to work in the NHS after a break in service. The incentives are worth up to £3,000, including free refresher training, and financial support during training for child care and travel expenses. The initiative will be launched jointly with the Royal College of Midwives in June.

Parkinson's Disease

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate he has made of the number of people with Parkinson's disease in each of the last three years; and how many consulted a Parkinson's disease nurse specialist in each year; [202454]

(2) what estimate he has made of the percentage of people with Parkinson's disease not referred to a specialist for diagnosis in each of the last five years; [202371]

(3) what assessment he has made of the level of support given to carers of those with Parkinson's disease. [202453]

Ann Keen: In "The National Service Framework for long term conditions", published in 2005, we estimated that there were 120,000 people living with Parkinson's disease. That is the latest estimate available. The number of these patients who consulted a Parkinson's disease specialist is not collected. A copy of the publication is available in the Library

We have made no estimate of the percentage of people with Parkinson's disease who were not referred to a specialist for diagnosis.

We have made no assessment of the level of support given to carers of those living with Parkinson's disease.

Prostate Cancer

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2008, Official Report, column 1475W, on prostate cancer, in which primary care trust areas (a) local and (b) specialist urology teams did not review new patients presenting with urological cancer using a multi-disciplinary team. [201589]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held by primary care trust area. However, the following tables set out the relevant information by national health service trust area.

Local urology multi-disciplinary teams (MDTs) non-compliant with "Manual for cancer services 2004" measure 2G-114—

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 26 February 2008, Official Report, column 1473W, on prostate cancer, what estimate he has made of the number of people who will have prostate cancer in (a) 2011, (b) 2016 and (c) 2021. [201909]

Ann Keen: The Department has made the following estimates of the number of new cases of prostate cancer.

	New cases (estimate)
2011	29,625
2021	36,703

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) with reference to the answer of 23 March 2007, Official Report, columns 1203-4W, on prostate cancer, whether he has consulted on revised Prostate Cancer Risk Management programme materials; and when he expects a relaunch of the packs to take place; [201912]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 25 February 2008, Official Report, column 1214W, on prostate cancer, whether the Prostate Cancer Risk Management programme was discussed at the meeting with representatives of the Prostate Cancer Charter for Action of 7 November 2007; and if he will make a statement. [201913]

Ann Keen: I can confirm that the revision of the Prostate Cancer Risk Management programme (PCRMP) was discussed at my meeting with representatives of the Prostate Cancer Charter for Action on 7 November 2007. Subsequently representatives of the Charter have been members of a small group convened by national health service cancer screening programmes to consult on and oversee the revision of the PCRMP materials. This revision is ongoing, and an exercise seeking the views of key stakeholders will take place on the revised materials in May 2008 prior to the relaunch of the PCRMP in June 2008.

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people he estimates will die from prostate cancer in (a) 2008, (b) 2011, (c) 2016 and (d) 2021. [201946]

Ann Keen: The Department has not made any such estimates.

Psychiatric Nurses

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many psychiatric nurses there were in each primary care trust in each year between 1999 and 2007. [202727]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not available in the format requested; such information as is available has been placed in the Library.

The Department only collects data for England. Owing to the large number of reorganisations in the national health service for the requested period, we have supplied three tables for 1999-2000-prior to the formation of the primary care trusts—for 2001-05 showing the old PCTs and for 2006-07, showing the current PCTs.

Social Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people of working age in each local authority area received state-funded social care support in each of the last 10 years. [202315]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 28 April 2008]: Information on the estimated number of working-age people (aged 18-64) receiving state funded social care support from each council is shown in the following table. It should be noted that the data were first collected from all councils in 2000-01 and the latest year for which data are available is 2006-07.

There are some issues to be aware of when comparing the data over time involving clients who were formally in receipt of higher rates of income support under the Department for Work and Pensions preserved rights scheme and clients receiving services being reinstated in 2004-05.

[3] Missing data.
Notes:
1. The England and regional totals are estimates based on the figures from 150 P1 proformas.
2. Figures may not add up because of rounding.
3. Regional and national totals may not be equal to the sum of the council level figures due to the use of estimates when the council did not fully complete the return.
4. All figures presented are rounded to the nearest 10, 100 or 1,000. The precise rounding rules are:
For national and regional totals:
Data: Rounding rule
Over 10,000: Rounding to nearest 1,000
Between 100 and 10,000: Rounded to nearest 100
Under 50: Rounded to nearest 10.
5. There are some issues to be aware of when comparing the data over time:
Since 2002-03, clients who were formally in receipt of higher rates of income support under the Department for Work and Pensions preserved rights scheme and who transferred to council support on 8 April 2002 have been included in the referrals, assessments and packages of care return. Clients that were in receipt of preserved rights but who were already being partially supported by councils were previously included in the data and are not considered as clients formerly in receipt of preserved rights. This mainly effects clients in residential care.
Guidance relating to clients receiving services was restated for 2004-05 to only include clients who are assessed by social services and have a care plan. In previous years, some councils included clients receiving services from grant-funded organisations without a community care assessment and therefore the 2004-05 data is not comparable to previous years. Additional clarification was also given on the recording of some types of services. These amendments mainly affect clients receiving community–based services.

Surgery: Waiting Lists

Mr. Burstow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations were performed within (a) one, (b) two, (c) three, (d) four, (e) five, (f) six, (g) seven, (h) eight, (i) nine, (j) 10, (k) 11 and (l) 12 or more weeks of referral from a general practitioner, or specialist practitioner, in each quarter of each of the last five years, broken down by acute hospital trust; and if he will make a statement. [200371]

Mr. Bradshaw: Referral-to-treatment data have been collected since January 2007. The information requested has been placed in the Library. These data show the number and percentage of admitted patients treated in each month up to and including January 2008, along with the quarterly totals. The figures include patients referred by general practitioners, specialist practitioners and other sources of referral.

By December 2008, patients who want it, and for whom it is clinically appropriate, can expect to start their treatment within a maximum of 18 weeks from referral. Published data show that at a national level, performance for admitted patients increased from 49 per cent. in January 2007 to 69 per cent. in January 2008.

Working Conditions

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government has taken to help employers provide healthy working environments. [202983]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The Government have done a good deal to help employers provide healthy working environments in recent years: the publication of the White Paper "Choosing Health—making healthy choices easier" (2004) the cross-Government strategy "Health, work and well-being—Caring for our future" (2005), and, finally, the more recently published review of the health of the working age population, "Working for a healthier tomorrow" (March 2008) by Professor Dame Carol Black, National Director for Health and Work. In addition the Government have sponsored a number of workplace health awards for both public and private sectors, including the prestigious Business in the Community Health at Work awards.

As the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions set out in a written ministerial statement on 17 March 2008, Official Report, columns 50-52WS, the Government will consider Dame Carol's findings carefully and, over the coming months, will develop detailed proposals to make a real difference to all working environments. Success in this agenda will benefit individuals, families, communities, businesses and the economy as a whole.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Adoption: Standards

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities had performance targets in their local public service agreements or local area agreements on (a) adoption and (b) stability of adoption placements, where such performance was incentivised with reward grants; and what the target was in each case. [202621]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave on 29 October 2007, Official Report, column 670W to the hon. Member for Birmingham, Yardley (John Hemming).

Bus Services: Subsidies

Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what level of local authority grant has been made to enable the subsidy of uneconomic bus routes for (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09 in (i) Plymouth and (ii) Devon. [203697]

Ms Rosie Winterton: I have been asked to reply.

Plymouth city council and Devon county council have received Rural Bus Subsidy Grant (RBSG) and funding from the Department for Transport's Urban and Rural Bus Challenge and Kickstart schemes. These grants have provided financial support towards new and existing bus services including those which may have previously been uneconomic. The following table shows the amounts that the two authorities received in 2007-08 under these grant schemes; projected figures for 2008-09 are also shown:

Authority	2007-08	2008-09
Plymouth city council	133,848	[1]16,760
Devon county council	2,531,770	2,557,972

[1] The reduction as compared with the Plymouth figure for the previous year reflects the completion of funding in 2007-08 for the authority's project under the Urban Bus Challenge scheme.

Local authorities may also use funding from the Government's unhypothecated Revenue Support Grant to support local bus services.

Bus companies operating throughout Devon also receive Bus Service Operators Grant (BSOG) from the Department. This is a payment equivalent to about 80 per cent. of the fuel duty that operators incur in providing local bus services. However, as BSOG is paid directly to operators, statistics are not kept for payments by local authority or geographical area.

Caravan Sites: Council Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether Traveller caravans are liable for council tax where the pitch is not charged business rates. [202592]

John Healey: A pitch for a caravan which is a person's sole or main residence will be liable for council tax.

Connect Public Affairs

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what payments her Department has made to Connect Public Affairs since her Department was created; on what dates; and for what purpose in each case; [203793]

(2) what payments the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister's Neighbourhood Renewal Unit made to Connect Public Affairs; on what dates; and for what purpose in each case. [203794]

Mr. Dhanda: The following payments have been made to Connect Public Affairs since the Department (as the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister) was formed in 2002. These include payments made by the Neighbourhood Renewal Unit. Connect Public Affairs provided a range of conferences and events covering the delivery of neighbourhood renewal programmes, policies, and related themes including, in March 2008, a national conference on the future development of regeneration policy and community empowerment.

Construction Methods: Fire Prevention

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on the fire resistance standards to be applied to materials used in the construction of public and community buildings; [203708]

(2) what steps she is taking to inform local authorities about the fire performance of certain composite panels; [203835]

(3) whether she plans to revise, loss prevention standard 1181, relating to the fire performance of composite panels used in the construction of schools and other community buildings; [203836]

(4) if she will meet the Loss Prevention Certificate Board to discuss the fire performance of composite panels. [203837]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Building Regulations 2000 (as amended) apply to building work in England and Wales, typically the erection, extension or material alteration of a building, including public and community buildings. For the purposes of securing reasonable standards of health and safety for persons in and around buildings, part B of the regulations sets out requirements for fire safety.

In support of these requirements, the Department issues technical guidance, known as Approved Document B, which sets out appropriate levels of fire performance and fire resistance for materials, products and structures, including composite panels, when tested to relevant British or European standards. The necessary level of performance that should be obtained will depend upon the type of building, the nature of the construction product and where it is located.

Specific guidance on meeting the fire safety requirements of the building regulations in the design and construction of schools is given in Building Bulletin 100, published by the Department for Children, Schools and Families. Information on hospitals in Health Technical Memorandum 02-05, published by the Department of Health.

In existing buildings, fire safety risk assessment undertaken under the Regulatory Reform (Fire Safety) Order 2005 should take account of the type of construction used in any building. The Department has issued technical fire safety risk assessment guidance which includes reference to composite panels.

LPS 1181 is a loss prevention standard produced by the Loss Prevention Certification Board (LPCB) and used primarily by the insurance industry. This standard provides a method for assessing the fire performance of cladding systems with respect to potential economic loss in the event of a fire. Current statutory provisions and supporting standards for fire protection in buildings are made only for the purposes of securing the health and safety of people in and around buildings, not to reduce economic loss. As such the Department does not utilise LPS 1181 within its guidance on fire safety.

Officials within the Department do, from time to time, communicate with the LPCB on a wide range of issues. However, as LPS 1181 is not utilised in our guidance, it is not of direct relevance to the Department's work.

Construction: Sustainable Development

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps she has taken to improve sustainability within local government procurement with regard to construction. [202543]

John Healey: Subject to their legal duties, including the duty of best value and public procurement law, local authorities are responsible for taking their own procurement decisions. There is a range of good practice guidance to which they can have regard to. For example, the Local Government Task Force, which is sponsored by the Department, recently published three guides on sustainable construction, which include specific advice for leaders, construction professionals and procurement managers.

Council Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much was raised in council tax for each precepting authority in 2006-07 in England. [202616]

John Healey: Details of the level of council tax precepting authorities in England expected to raise 2006-07 were published in table 8 of the statistical release "Levels of council tax set by local authorities in England 2006-07".

This release is available on the Communities and Local Government website at:

http://www.local.communities.gov.uk/finance/ctax/ctax067.htm

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2008, Official Report, column 613W, on Council Tax: Valuation, for what reasons the sections on (a) future council tax revaluations, (b) the hon. Member for Meriden and (c) consequentials were redacted from the minutes placed in the Library. [202471]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to my previous answer of 19 February 2008, Official Report, column 613W. The reasons are stated in the redacted minutes.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) pursuant to the answer of 19 February 2008, Official Report, column 613W, and 2 April 2008, Official Report, columns 924-5W, on Council Tax: Valuation, if she will place in the Library the initial analysis of the number of consequentials that informed the discussions at the Council Tax Revaluation Programme Board (England); [202475]

(2) how many consequentials that were identified were subsequently corrected as part of the Valuation Office Agency's normal duty; and how many households had their records amended. [202476]

John Healey: No analysis has been undertaken.

Council Tax: Waste Management

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether joint waste authorities will levy a separate precept on council tax. [202612]

John Healey: Joint waste authorities will not have precepting powers, and will need to agree funding structures with their constituent authorities.

Departmental Manpower

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) permanent Civil Service posts, (b) permanent non-Civil Service posts and (c) temporary or agency workers in employment there were in her Department in each month since May 2005. [199630]

Mr. Dhanda: Our workforce statistics are compiled quarterly and published by the Office for National Statistics. They are based on numbers of employees rather than posts, and do not reflect vacancy information.

The latest available figures are for 31 December 2007 and show that there were 5,280 permanent civil servants and 70 temporary employees in the Department for Communities and Local Government. The figures are on the full-time equivalent basis and are rounded to the nearest 10.

Historical records are available from the recently launched UK Statistics Authority website:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/ReleaseCalendar/fundreleases.asp?releasetitle=Public+Sector+Employment&releaseorganisation=42&releasetheme=&daterange=3&sday=18&smonth=03&syear=2008&ShowHits=10&SortOrder=0&ShowYear=2008.

These figures will exclude temporary agency workers who are not employed directly by the Department for Communities and Local Government.

Non-civil service permanent posts include special advisers. The Prime Minister gave details of special advisers to the House on 22 November 2007, Official Report, column 147WS.

Eco-Towns

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which of the shortlisted eco-town proposals involve development on (a) green belt and (b) greenfield land. [203065]

Caroline Flint: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him today.

Eco-Towns: Motor Vehicles

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to promote the restriction of car (a) ownership and (b) parking spaces in eco-town developments. [203057]

Caroline Flint: We have set out in the consultation document "Eco-towns—living a greener future" what needs to be achieved in terms of sustainable transport and this includes a significant reduction in car reliance. This would mean, for example, locating major facilities and services within a 10-minute walk of homes within the eco-town and provision of frequent and reliable public transport. Through these measures and those set out in the consultation document, we would expect there to be less of a need for car parking spaces, but each location will need its own approach.

Eco-Towns: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which bids to become eco-towns included plans for development on (a) green belt and (b) greenfield land. [202558]

Caroline Flint: On the basis of an evaluation of the shortlisted bids, I can confirm that no new homes will be built on green belt land. In terms of greenfield land, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 25 April 2008, Official Report, column 2303W to the hon. Member for Cotswold (Mr. Clifton-Brown).

Eco-Towns: Regional Planning and Development

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Infrastructure Planning Commission will consider planning applications for eco-towns or their associated infrastructure. [203036]

Caroline Flint: Under the proposals in the Planning Bill, the Infrastructure Planning Commission will consider nationally significant infrastructure projects, such as proposals for major new power stations. Planning applications for eco-towns will be submitted to the appropriate local authority.

Electronic Government

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether mechanisms are in place to monitor the extent to which her Department's (a) internal and (b) external (i) correspondence and (ii) distribution of publications are carried out electronically. [199195]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department is able to monitor the number of downloads from its website and intranet, and the volume of external e-mail correspondence. We have not set up the capacity to monitor the level of internal e-mail correspondence.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her responsibilities in respect of the e-Government regional partnerships are. [202634]

Mr. Dhanda: The Local e-Government Programme concluded at the end of March 2006, having delivered against the Prime Minister's pledge that 100 per cent. of services would be electronically enabled by December 2005. The e-Government regional partnership network has now become self-sustaining, with member authorities taking responsibility for the individual partnerships' forward work programme within the devolved arrangements for regional improvement and efficiency.

Floods: EU Grants and Loans

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much of the £110 million received from the EU for emergency flood relief will be put at the disposal of (a) central Government, (b) local government and (c) Gloucestershire county council. [202625]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to my parliamentary statement of 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 18WS.

Floods: Planning Permission

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many times the Planning Inspectorate overruled decisions to refuse planning permission for new developments proposed to be built in flood risk areas when the Environment Agency and the relevant local authority have advised against such a development in the last two years. [202969]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Planning Inspectorate does not capture data to enable it to identify appeals that relate to development within flood risk areas. If a planning application for development in a flood risk area were to be referred to the Planning Inspectorate on appeal, it would be decided in accordance with the development plan, unless material considerations indicated otherwise. All representations made would be taken into account, as well as Government policy set out in Planning Policy Statement 25, "Development and Flood Risk". Each case would be determined on its merits.

Gardens: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the presence of a roof garden is taken into account by the Valuation Office Agency during a council tax valuation. [202614]

John Healey: When undertaking a valuation to arrive at, or amend, a council tax banding, all material factors that affect the open market value of a dwelling will be taken into account, as required by the Council Tax (Situation and Valuation of Dwellings) Regulations 1992.

Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her policy is on voluntary home condition reports; and if she will make a statement. [202640]

Caroline Flint: The Government remain convinced of the benefits of the Home Condition Report (HCR) and encourages sellers to include one in their pack. The Department continues to work with industry to promote and find solutions to increase the uptake of the HCR on a market-led basis.

Homelessness

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homeless households, where the household type was a (a) couple with dependent children and (b) lone-parent household with dependent children, were in temporary accommodation in England in each year since 1997. [203054]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level on the P1E statistical return. This information includes the number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty. The duty owed to an accepted household is to secure suitable accommodation. If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority may secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

Data on the number of households in temporary accommodation are provided in our quarterly statistical release on statutory homelessness, published on our website and placed in the House Library. The latest release was published on 10 March 2008.

Data on household type was first collected on the main P1E form from June 2006. Figures showing a breakdown by household type, including (a) couples with dependent children and (b) lone parent households with dependent children, are available for each quarter from June 2006 onwards and are provided in Table 10c, available on the website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/714966.xls

A summary of data from the table is provided as follows. It shows the number of households in temporary accommodation, by household type, as at the last day of December in 2006 and 2007.

Number of households in temporary accommodation, by household type, as at 31 December

	Total in temporary accommodation[1]	Couple with dependent children[2]		Lone parent household with dependent children
			Percentage of total		Percentage of total
2006[3]	89,510	23,130	26	42,310	47
2007[3]	79,500	20,450	26	37,860	48

[1] This should be a "snapshot" of the numbers in accommodation on the last day of the quarter, not the numbers taking up accommodation.
[2] Includes expectant mothers with no other dependent children.

Totals may not equal the sum of components because of rounding.

Homes and Communities Agency: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what she estimates the running costs of the Homes and Communities Agency will be in its first year of operation. [202586]

Caroline Flint: The Homes and Communities Agency's running costs will be brought together from a range of components, including the current running costs of English Partnerships, a percentage of the current running costs of the Housing Corporation that relate to those functions transferring to the HCA, the current running costs of the Academy for Sustainable Communities and costs associated with the delivery of a number of programmes currently delivered by my Department. Work to disaggregate the costs involved is under way.

Housing: Bournemouth

Mr. Ellwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the proposal to build 1,500 new homes next to the River Stour in North Bournemouth. [202084]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 28 April 2008]: There have been no discussions between the Department for Communities and Local Government and the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs at ministerial level. However, discussions have taken place between officials of the two Departments as part of the consideration of the Secretary of State's proposed changes to the regional spatial strategy for the south west.

Housing: Chelmsford

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of housing allocations made by housing associations in the Chelmsford local authority area were made to people who had no previous direct or indirect links to the borough in each of the last three years. [202911]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The information is not available in the form requested.

Housing: Conservation Areas

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many domestic dwellings there are in conservation areas according to Valuation Office Agency property attribute records. [202593]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1410W in respect of the Value Significant Code OS.

Housing: Construction

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new houses were built in the Easington constituency in each of the last five years. [203788]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on house building rates is not held on a parliamentary constituency basis, but for the Easington district as a whole the numbers of houses built (gross) over the last five years is as follows:

	Units
2002-03	124
2003-04	382
2004-05	406
2005-06	402
2006-07	659

Housing: Low Incomes

Helen Southworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers are available to local authorities to apply conditions to ensure that homes granted planning consent as affordable are retained within the affordable sector in perpetuity; and if she will take steps to ensure that local authorities use the powers available. [203175]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 1 May 2008]: There are a number of methods by which homes that are sold can be retained in the social housing sector.

Local authorities which sell under the Right to Buy scheme properties located in National Parks;

Areas of Outstanding Natural Beauty; and 40 areas designated by the Secretary of State as 'rural' for RTB purposes, may impose covenants restricting the resale of these properties to people who have lived or worked locally for at least three years. 'Locally' means within a 'region' designated by the Secretary of State for this purpose. Alternatively, they may require that if the owners wish to resell such properties, they must first offer them back to the local authority.

In order to retain social rented properties in areas where replacement is difficult, the Right to Acquire scheme, under which housing association tenants may buy their rented homes at a discount, does not apply in small rural settlements.

In addition, providers have a right of first refusal to buy back properties sold under the Right to Buy and Right to Acquire schemes if they are resold within 10 years if it is essential to retain the homes for social rent.

Measures in the Housing and Regeneration Bill, which completed its second reading in the House of Lords on 28 April, will enable landlords of shared ownership houses to restrict the equity share that shared owners can buy in areas where replacement is difficult, thereby retaining the property within the affordable housing sector for future purchasers where it is essential to do so.

Housing: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the Valuation Office Agency's policy is on whether the addition of an extension to a property will normally be assumed to entail an increase in the banding of the property when it is sold. [202567]

John Healey: This is not a matter of policy. Whether an extension results in a banding increase when the property is sold is a matter of fact and valuation.

Ipsos MORI: Home Information Packs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the full original dataset of polling information compiled by Ipsos MORI as part of its research study of the home information pack area trials. [202460]

Caroline Flint: No. The data include personal information which could not be checked and where appropriate removed except at disproportionate cost.

Local Authorities: Public Participation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what research her Department has conducted on the mechanisms and processes by which local authorities respond to petitions from local residents. [202562]

Mr. Dhanda: As part of the consultation on Local Petitions and Calls for Action, which closed on 20 March 2008, the Department commissioned a series of focus groups with the public on petitions, and received 149 consultation responses from local authorities, some of which detailed their processes for responding to petitions.

Local Authorities: Satisfaction

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average satisfaction rate with local councils according to (a) Audit Commission assessments and (b) performance against best value performance indicators was in each year since 1997. [202464]

John Healey: Satisfaction with local authorities has been measured through the best value user satisfaction survey, which was undertaken by local authorities every three years from 2000-01 to 2006-07. The data from these surveys were collated and analysed by an external IT contractor on behalf of the Audit Commission and the Department. The latest general report is published on the DCLG website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/localgovernment/pdf/324639

Latest data for individual authorities can be found on the Audit Commission website at http://www.audit-commission.gov.uk/Performance/Downloads/2006_07UserSurveyBVPIswithDistricts.xls.

The satisfaction survey collects information on 13 attitudinal best value performance indicators. Overall satisfaction with each local authority is measured by best value performance indicator 3, and the averages for local authorities in England are as follows.

	Percentage
2000-01	65
2006-07	54

The Audit Commission assesses councils' performance through comprehensive performance assessment. It does not make separate assessments of customer service satisfaction with councils. In determining the overall CPA performance ratings and direction of travel statements of councils, the Audit Commission will take into consideration the results in the best value user satisfaction surveys, as well as other non-attitudinal evidence on performance.

Since the CPA (the performance management framework for councils in England) was introduced in 2002 councils throughout England have continued to significantly improve their overall performance, as the following table illustrates.

	CPA 2002 results	CPA 2003 results	CPA 2004 results	cpa 2005 results	CPA 2006 results	CPA 2007 results
Number of single tier and county councils achieving excellent/good CPA rating[1]	76	82	101	n/a	n/a	n/a
Percentage	51	55	67
Number of single tier and county councils achieving 3 or 4 star rating[1]	n/a	n/a	n/a	102	119	123
Percentage	—	—	—	68	80	83

[1] The Audit Commission introduced a new framework for CPA in single tier and county councils from 2005-08, CPA—'The Harder Test'. This framework is a harder and different test to the framework used from 2002-04 and CPA categories were renamed from 2005 onwards to reflect this change.

Local Authorities: Translation Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding is provided by the Government for local authorities to provide translation and interpretation services, broken down by (a) local authority and (b) language. [202745]

John Healey: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Local Government Ombudsman: Manpower

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of employees of the Local Government Ombudsman have formerly worked in local government. [202582]

John Healey: Some 55 per cent. of the employees working for the Local Government Ombudsman previously worked in local government.

London Connects: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what central funding London Connects (a) has received and (b) is due to receive for the Valuebill project. [202461]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Meriden (Mrs. Spelman) on 17 April 2007, Official Report, column 525W.

Non-Domestic Rates

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the business rates multiplier is for (a) businesses eligible for the small business rate and (b) other businesses in 2008-09. [202603]

John Healey: The multiplier for properties eligible for small business rate relief in 2008-09 is 0.458, while the multiplier for other properties that are not liable for this relief is 0.462.

Non-Domestic Rates: Tax Allowances

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the value of small business rate relief was in each year since it was introduced. [202605]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 29 April 2008, Official Report, column 319W to the hon. Member for Rutland and Melton (Alan Duncan).

Pensions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the current rate of employer contribution is to each public sector pension scheme for which her Department has responsibility. [202613]

John Healey: The current average employer contribution rate for the local government pension scheme, based on available information, is some 15.7 per cent. of payroll.

The equivalent rate for the firefighters pension scheme 1992 is 21.3 per cent. of payroll and 11 per cent. for the new fire fighters pension scheme 2006.

Planning Permission: Appeals

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations have been made by respondents to the Housing Green Paper in relation to planning appeals made by developers on the grounds that insufficient land for development has been identified by a local authority. [203045]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the written ministerial statement made by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Housing on 29 February 2008, Official Report, column 89WS.

Planning: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on the East of England Development Agency's involvement in the bottling plant proposal for the Northwick Road/Canvey jetty area of Canvey Island; and if she will make a statement. [203633]

Mr. Iain Wright: No representations have been received on the East of England Development Agency's involvement in the bottling plant proposal for the Northwick Road Canvey jetty area of Canvey Island.

Planning: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will call in a planning approval granted by councillors at the corner of Oak Road and London Road in Hadleigh to assess its compatibility with the Castle Point local development framework. [203632]

Mr. Iain Wright: The primary responsibility for development control within an area rests with the local planning authority. It is for the authority to decide in the first instance, with particular regard to the provisions of the statutory Development Plan and any other material considerations, whether a particular development should take place. The Secretary of State rarely intervenes in the consideration of individual planning applications and then only when planning issues of national or regional significance are involved. To do so more often would be to undermine the responsibility of local authorities for planning in their area.

Government policy in Planning Policy Statements 1 and 12 states that planning decisions should be taken in accordance with the development plan unless material considerations indicate otherwise. Officers at the Government Office for the East of England (GO East) studied the Council's Planning Committee Report for this proposal and were satisfied that the decision to grant planning permission would be made in accordance with local plan policy and, in view of the fact that the planning issues raised were of no more than local significance, it was considered that the Secretary of State's intervention was not be appropriate.

Now that planning permission has been granted, there is no set procedure by which the Secretary of State can intervene. She does have certain powers which could be invoked if a development of land use was judged to be so grossly wrong as to do serious damage to the wider public interest. In this instance, and for the reasons given above, such action would not be justified. It is now for Castle Point borough council to monitor the development to ensure that it is carried out in accordance with the terms of the planning permission.

Planning: Floods

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities were directed to rescind planning consents owing to flood risk in each of the last five years; when each direction was issued; and in respect of which location. [201786]

Mr. Iain Wright: Section 100 of the Town and Country Planning Act 1990 provides a mechanism for the Secretary of State to initiate proceedings for the revocation or modification of planning permission.

According to our records, no local authorities have been directed by the Secretary of State to rescind planning permissions owing to flood threats over the last five years.

Planning: Travelling People

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 1902W, on Planning: Travelling People, what funding has been provided to assist local residents in challenging illegal or unauthorised developments by travellers. [202987]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government fund Planning Aid gives free, independent advice to individuals and community groups, including tenant and resident groups, on the full range of planning issues. The Government provided grant funding for Planning Aid of £1.7 million in 2007-08, which is rising to £3.2 million in 2008-09.

The Government have also published a guide to the effective use of enforcement powers against the unauthorised development of caravan sites. This informs interested members of the public how the planning enforcement system can prevent the stationing of caravans on land in contravention of planning control.

Unitary Councils

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers she has to impose a new unitary arrangement upon a two-tier area; what trial has to be observed; and what period of consultation she expects to be undertaken. [202487]

John Healey: Our powers to create new unitary structures for an area are limited to implementing, with or without modification, proposals made by one or more councils for the whole or part of an area, or alternative proposals made by the Boundary Committee following a request to the Committee for advice on the councils' proposals.

Before implementing a proposal the Secretary of State must consult every authority affected by it (except the council or councils which made it) and such other persons as she considers appropriate, unless the proposal is made jointly by every council affected by it; and before making an alternative proposal the Boundary Committee must consult persons who may be interested.

We would expect any consultation by the Secretary of State or by the Boundary Committee to last at least the normal 12-week period for public consultations, unless the particular circumstances warrant a different period.

Unpaid Taxes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much and what proportion of (a) council tax and (b) business rates was uncollected in each billing authority in the last year for which figures are available. [202600]

John Healey: A table giving details of the amount and the proportion of (a) council tax and (b) non-domestic rates that was uncollected by each billing authority in 2006-07 has been deposited in the Library of the House.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 121W, on the Valuation Office, if she will place in the Library a copy of the current version of the Valuation Office Agency's form Dwelling Survey V09072. [202479]

John Healey: A copy of the current version of this form is available in the Valuation Office Agency's Council Tax Referencing Manual, and I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by the Financial Secretary to the Treasury on 18 October 2007, Official Report, column 1279W.

Valuation Office: ICT

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 February 2008, Official Report, column 1033W, on Property: Databases, which local authorities submit billing authority reports to the Valuation Office Agency via the Valuebill electronic interface. [202468]

John Healey: The following local authorities submitted electronic billing authority reports (eBARs) to the Valuation Office Agency between 1 January 2007 and 31 December 2007:

Amber Valley
Arun
Barnsley
Barrow-In-Furness
Basildon

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether local billing authorities are required to adopt the Valuebill interface; and what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on its adoption. [202633]

John Healey: Valuebill is a voluntary initiative aimed at improving the electronic exchange of property information between local authorities and the Valuation Office Agency. It is up to local authorities to decide whether to adopt the Valuebill interface. Valuebill is mentioned in the ODPM 2005 publication "Delivering Efficiency in Local Services: Further Guidance for Local Authorities" as an initiative to assist local authorities in increasing efficiency.

Waste Disposal Standards

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which local authorities had performance targets in their local public service agreements or local area agreements on household waste collection, where such performance was incentivised with reward grants; and what the target was in each case. [202622]

John Healey: Reward targets appear in local public service agreements and local area agreements.

All texts of LPSAs and LAAs are in the public domain via either the Communities and Local Government website or the IdEA website (LAA) or directly from individual authorities.

Zennor Consulting Ltd

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what payments her Department has made to Zennor Consulting Ltd in the last 12 months; and on what dates and for what purpose in each case. [203052]

Mr. Dhanda: Only one payment has been made to Zennor Consulting in the last 12 months. On 24 April this year the Department paid £7,500 including VAT in respect of financial services to ensure eligibility for European Regional Development Funding (ERDF).

CHURCH COMMISSIONERS

Church of England Website

8. Miss McIntosh: To ask the hon. Member for Middlesbrough, representing the Church Commissioners, how often guidance provided by the Church of England on its website on prevention of theft from churches has been accessed. [204059]

Sir Stuart Bell: The main source of advice for parishes is the Ecclesiastical Insurance Office, whose comprehensive guidance on the problem of theft of metal from churches has been endorsed by the Church of England, English Heritage and the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings. A total of 36,000 copies have been printed and 620 more downloaded from their website, and the relevant advice sections of the site have been visited over 1,100 times.

In addition, there have been 526 hits on the Archbishops' Council's 'churchcare' website since the theft pages were added on 20 January this year, and the Council has e-mailed information on the guidance to dioceses for onward circulation to parishes via their own networks.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Trafficked Women: Regional Refuge Centres

20. Mr. Bone: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality if the Government will bring forward proposals to establish regional centres to provide refuge, rehabilitation and support for women trafficked for the purpose of sexual exploitation. [204064]

Barbara Follett: The Government have funded the Poppy Project—which takes referrals from all regions in the country, since 2003. It provides refuge and comprehensive support for women trafficked for the purposes of sexual exploitation. The project received additional resources during our recent national campaign, Operation Pentameter 2, to identify trafficked women and apprehend traffickers, which it used to develop partnerships with 17 third-sector organisations to enable them to better support trafficked women locally.

Single Equality Bill

21. Jo Swinson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality when the Government plan to publish the Single Equality Bill. [204065]

Barbara Follett: The Government will introduce an equality Bill during this Parliament. If it is included in the draft legislative programme for the next Session of Parliament, we will publish it then.

Domestic Violence

22. John Robertson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what recent steps the Government have taken to support victims of domestic violence. [204066]

Barbara Follett: I am proud to say that this Government have introduced more measures to support victims of domestic violence than any other before. They include

Establishing 98 specialist domestic violence courts;

Allocating £3 million per year over the three years from 2008-07 for independent domestic violence advisers;

Multi-agency risk assessment conferences will be established across England and Wales by 2011.

Corston Report

23. Mrs. Hodgson: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what progress the Government have made in implementing the recommendations of "The Corston report: A review of women with particular vulnerabilities in the criminal justice system." [204067]

Barbara Follett: The Government welcomed Baroness Corston's report, and accepted the majority of the report's recommendations. When we published our response, we committed to achieving a number of actions within six months. The Under-Secretary of State for Justice, my hon. Friend the Member for Liverpool, Garston (Maria Eagle) will make a statement on our progress this summer.

Female Entrepreneurship

24. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality when she next expects to meet representatives of small businesses to discuss measures to encourage female entrepreneurs. [204068]

Barbara Follett: The Under-Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform, Lady Vakra, is responsible for business and competitiveness. She leads on women's enterprise issues, and regularly meets representatives of small businesses. In addition, on May 12 my right hon. and learned Friend the Minister for Women and Equality will host an event to encourage women to start their own businesses, which I will also attend. Leading women entrepreneurs and the Federation of Small Businesses have been invited.

Employment Discrimination: Pregnancy

25. Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality what steps the Government have taken to prevent employment discrimination against women on grounds related to pregnancy. [204069]

Barbara Follett: Under the Sex Discrimination Act 1975 it is unlawful to treat a woman less favourably on the ground of her pregnancy.

In October 2005, we amended the Sex Discrimination Act to make this clear and to allow employees to know their rights and employers their responsibilities.

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality how many freedom of information requests made to the Government Equalities Office were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information since the GEO was established. [201734]

Barbara Follett: Since the establishment of the Government Equalities Office, the breakdown of freedom of information requests made is as follows.

	Number
Answered within 20 days	2
Answered within 40 days	2
Answered within 60 days	—
Not answered	1
Answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000	1

The GEO has also received a request to review a decision made to not publish information sought under section 22 of the Freedom of Information Act. This was responded to within six weeks.

In anticipation of future requests, the GEO is increasing its capacity to deal effectively with freedom of information requests.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Post-Legislative Scrutiny

32. Mr. Dunne: To ask the Leader of the House what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of post-legislative scrutiny undertaken by the House and its Committees. [204047]

Helen Goodman: The Government published their plans for strengthening the process of post-legislative scrutiny of Acts in a White Paper in March. This reflects the Government's agreement with other commentators that post-enactment consideration of how Acts have worked in practice has been something of a gap in the scrutiny of Government activity. It responds in particular to the report of the Law Commission on this subject in 2006 (following an inquiry undertaken by the Commission at the Government's specific request).

Under the new process, the relevant Government Department will—from now on, beginning with Acts which received Royal Assent in 2005—be submitting to the appropriate departmental Select Committee a memorandum, three to five years after Royal Assent, summarising the steps taken in implementation of each Act and giving a preliminary assessment of how it is working out in practice.

Early-Day Motions

33. Mr. Holloway: To ask the Leader of the House what assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Early-Day Motions procedure. [204048]

Helen Goodman: The Government's assessment of the procedures governing Early-Day Motions was set out in its July 2007 response to the Procedure Committee's report "Public Petitions and Early Day Motions".

The Government agreed with the conclusion of the Committee that—while there are some concerns about the number of EDMs—restricting the rules of eligibility for EDMs by reference to subject matter or by imposing a ration for each Member would not be appropriate.

Members' Correspondence

35. David Taylor: To ask the Leader of the House what recent representations she has received on the performance of Government Departments in dealing with correspondence from hon. Members in a timely manner. [204050]

Helen Goodman: My right hon. Friend receives occasional representations from Members, and is aware of points of order that have raised the issue. The Minister for the Cabinet Office has overall ministerial responsibility for this area, and I will be pleased to pass on any comments to him. The latest Cabinet Office report on departments' and agencies' performance on MPs' and Peers' Correspondence (issued by written ministerial statement on 20 March 2008, Official Report, column 71WS) announced that the Office of the Leader of the House of Commons responded to 94 per cent. of correspondence within its 15-day target.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Staff: Disabilities

34. Nia Griffith: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what percentage of staff employed by the House have a disability. [204049]

Nick Harvey: On the basis of a disability questionnaire in December 2007 and subsequent information gathered, 2.67 per cent. of staff of the House have declared a disability.

SOLICITOR-GENERAL

Shoplifting: Prosecutions

13. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Solicitor-General what representations she has received from small businesses on the rate of prosecutions brought by the Crown Prosecution Service for shoplifting offences. [204038]

The Solicitor-General: As far as I know neither the Attorney-General's Office for the Crown Prosecution Service has received representations from small businesses.

My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Justice and Lord Chancellor assured the House that the Government take very seriously the need for the whole criminal justice system to be as effective as possible in tackling crime against shopkeepers and small businesses.

I commend the hon. Member's efforts to support small businesses in her constituency.

Dangerous Driving

14. Hugh Bayley: To ask the Solicitor-General what steps the Crown Prosecution Service takes in prosecuting cases to seek longer sentences for people convicted of dangerous driving which results in serious injury. [204039]

The Solicitor-General: Prosecutors have a general duty to assist the court when sentence is being considered, which may include advising the court of any aggravating factors, the appropriate sentencing range and, where applicable, relevant sentencing guidelines or guideline cases. The prosecutor will also inform the court when it is relevant of the effect of the crime on any victim or on the wider community. However, prosecutors cannot recommend or seek particular sentences; that is a matter for the sentencing court.

In respect of Crown court cases and more complex cases in the magistrates courts, prosecutors prepare a 'plea and sentence document'. This identifies any aggravating factors in the case, together with relevant sentencing guidelines and guideline cases, so that the court is aware of all relevant factors when sentencing.

The guideline from the Sentencing Guidelines Council on seriousness sets out aggravating factors to be taken into account when sentencing generally. It includes among the factors indicating a more than usually serious degree of harm

> "an especially serious physical or psychological effect on the victim, even if unintended."

Specifically on prosecuting cases of bad driving, including cases that result in serious injury or death, the Crown Prosecution Service published its Public Policy Statement on Prosecuting Cases of Bad Driving in December 2007. The Policy makes clear that the prosecutor has a duty to ensure that the court has all the information it needs to enable it to sentence appropriately.

Anthony Leon Peart aka Anthony Leon Joseph

15. Simon Hughes: To ask the Solicitor-General what progress has been made on implementing the recommendations of the report on Anthony Leon Peart, aka Anthony Leon Joseph. [204040]

The Solicitor-General: I refer the hon. Member to my written statement on 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 1WS. The cross-agency working group is meeting this week and will continue to take forward the detailed responses to the recommendations. I shall report back to the House on progress in due course.

Expert Evidence

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Solicitor-General what progress has been made by the review of expert witnesses in criminal trials; and if she will make a statement. [204033]

The Solicitor-General: The OCJR is preparing a summary of expert witness initiatives, which is expected in late spring. The CPS is about to undertake a revision of their current guidance on expert witnesses; it continues to work closely with the independent Forensic Science Regulator in setting standards; and the CPS is also working with the Legal Services Commission in its evaluation of appropriate standards for experts in criminal cases.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Climate Change

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent meetings his Department has held with farmers to discuss the impact of climate change on agriculture. [204303]

Mr. Woolas: The Department holds regular discussions about the impact of climate change on agriculture. DEFRA's main advisory body in this area is the Rural Climate Change Forum. Membership includes the National Farmers' Union and the Country Land and Business Association, and both organisations represent farmers and land managers. Other members of the Forum are the Carbon Trust, the Environment Agency, the Forestry Commission, the National Trust, Natural England and the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds. The Forum's remit includes advising on policy, research and communications in relation to agriculture's role in climate change mitigation and the impacts of climate change on agriculture. The forum meets three to four times a year; its last meeting was on 6 February 2008 and it meets again in June 2008.

Biofuels

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what advice his Department's chief scientist has given on the sustainability of the Government's policy on biofuels; and if he will make a statement. [204165]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA's chief scientific adviser gives advice to Ministers on all aspects of biofuels policy and wider climate change strategy.

The Government's commitment to biofuels is subject to their sustainability. The renewable transport fuel obligation includes a robust carbon and sustainability reporting mechanism to encourage fuel suppliers to source the most sustainable biofuels. We recognise that reporting is only a first step: we are working with the European Commission to ensure that forthcoming EU legislation includes robust mandatory sustainability criteria for biofuels.

A review of the indirect impacts of biofuels was commissioned by the Department for Transport, and is being led by the Renewable Fuels Agency under Professor Gallagher. DEFRA's chief scientific adviser, along with other Government chief scientific advisers, will peer-review the findings prior to publication. The results of the review will inform policy on the social and environmental sustainability of biofuels.

Climate Change

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the average recorded rise in (a) sea temperatures and (b) global surface temperatures has been since 2000. [201968]

Mr. Woolas: Taking short segments of temperature records (for example, considering periods shorter than a decade) emphasises year-to-year variations in climate which can be at odds with the long-term trend.

Globally, the trend of both sea surface temperatures (SST) and near-surface air temperatures is still upward. The year 2005 was the second warmest year (after 1998) in the air temperature record, which began in 1850. Eleven of the 12 warmest years in the record have occurred in the last 12 years—the exception was 1996. Since 2005, some cooling has occurred because of natural climate variations, including the current Pacific La Niña (1998 was especially warm because of a strong El Niño in that year).

(a) Sea Surface Temperature:

The most recent Met Office Hadley Centre HadSST2 analysis shows that global average SST has risen by 0.09° C per decade since 2000.

HadSST2 is the main global sea surface temperature analysis, which is produced by taking in situ measurements of SST from ships and buoys taken from 1850 to present.

(b) Near-surface Air Temperature:

The most recent Met Office Hadley Centre and climatic research unit joint analysis shows that since 2000, global average near-surface air temperature has shown a continued warming trend of 0.16° C per decade, with seven of the eight warmest years in the record since 1850 occurring since (and including) 2000. This compares to a rising trend of just over 0.15° C per decade since the mid-1970s and 0.1° C per decade between 1998 and 2007.

Further details and tables have been placed in the Library.

Note:

In the latest IPCC report, the trend in global average near-surface temperature 1979 to 2005 is 0.163° C per decade.

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what his Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12-month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201737]

Joan Ruddock: The rebuild of the Lion House Building at Alnwick will be the first carbon neutral building on the DEFRA estate. It will deliver specific sustainability targets in relation to management, energy, internal environment, transport, water, materials, land use, ecology and pollution, and has integrated initiatives such as wind turbines, photovoltaic solar electric and solar thermal panels and biomass heating. The project will set the standard for all future DEFRA network estate projects.

DEFRA is currently installing advanced metering reading (AMR) on approximately 100 of its sites. The meters will capture over 90 per cent. of the DEFRA network estates utility use from electricity, gas, oil and water by the end of summer 2008. The Carbon Trust indicates that savings of up to 10 to 15 per cent. can be achieved through the implementation of initiatives realised through the analysis of AMR data, through reducing the base load, optimising the use of equipment and reducing peak usage.

DEFRA is implementing the Carbon Trust's Carbon management programme (CMP). The programme has enabled the Department to develop a systematic approach to carbon management and take a strategic approach to reduce its carbon dioxide emissions through operational improvements, reduced energy costs, staff awareness and monitoring initiatives. The CMP is integrated with DEFRA's energy efficiency programme and the numerous renewable energy projects being rolled out across the estate.

DEFRA is the first Government Department to access Salix Funding—a revolving ring fenced fund, which has been allocated to the CMP. Financial savings from CMP projects will be fed back into the fund for further projects.

DEFRA has installed 17 power perfector units across its estate to optimise voltage, therefore reducing electricity consumption.

A breakdown of energy costs:

Energy expenditure (electricity, gas, oil)

2006-07	8,535,523
2005-06	6,305,267

Floods: Warnings

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the take-up was for registration with the Environment Agency for flood warnings in each of the last five years; and whether flood warnings extend to business properties. [203920]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows the number of properties currently registered with Flood Warnings Direct (FWD). Prior to 2006 the Environment Agency operated an Automatic Voice Messaging (AVG) system which delivered pre-recorded warnings to those who registered with the service. The AVG system provided a phone number for registered properties and therefore did not distinguish between home and business.

The AVG system was administered independently by Environment Agency area offices and therefore no year on year data of registered membership for this service is held nationally.

The Environment Agency transferred approximately 120,000 customers from its AVM system onto the new national system prior to FWD going live in January 2006.

	Homes	Businesses	Total registered
1995 to 2005	—	—	120,000
2006	103,842	6,773	230,615
2007	168,117	16,305	304,422
2008	208,972	23,224	352,196

Weather Forecasts

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs where the pilots on the joint work of the Environment Agency and Meteorological Office on the prediction of extreme weather events will take place; and if he will include Gloucestershire as a pilot area. [201780]

Derek Twigg: I have been asked to reply.

The Met Office and Environment Agency are planning to launch a pilot alert service for extreme rainfall events in July 2008 to help the emergency response community mitigate the impacts of such events. The Met Office is working closely with the Environment Agency to finalise the details of the pilot service for England and Wales, including Gloucestershire. The Met Office also intends to make the pilot service available more widely in the UK, and will work closely with the responsible authorities in Scotland and Northern Ireland.

TRANSPORT

Cars

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many cars have been registered in Great Britain in the last 10 years. [204204]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number (in thousands) of cars newly registered in Great Britain in each of the last 10 years was as follows.

	Number of cars newly registered (Thousand)
1998	2,262
1999	2,257
2000	2,337
2001	2,586
2002	2,682
2003	2,646
2004	2,599
2005	2,443
2006	2,340
2007	2,390

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what (a) surveys, (b) questionnaires and (c) other services were provided by polling companies for her Department in financial year 2007-08, broken down by company. [200012]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Services provided by polling companies to the Department for Transport in 2007-08 are summarised in the following tables. These included on-going surveys (table A), ad-hoc surveys (table B) and qualitative research (table C).

Driving Tests

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what criteria she uses to determine whether driving centres should be approved for closure. [202361]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 29 April 2008]: Decisions regarding the location of individual driving test centres are taken by the Driving Standards Agency.

The agency is a trading fund. As such, it is generally obliged to ensure that its operating costs are met from fee income. It seeks, therefore, to strike a reasonable balance between providing readily accessible driver testing services and the resultant costs that must be passed on to its customers.

In reaching decisions about car practical test centre location, the DSA must take account of the following ministerially agreed guidance on distance criteria at each level of population density:

Population density	Distance criteria
>=1,250/km²	No more than 7 miles
101-1,249/km²	No more than 20 miles
0-100/km²	No more than 30 miles

In respect of motorcycle practical test centre location, the DSA requires that most customers should be able to reach a motorcycle testing facility within 45 minutes, travelling no more than 20 miles.

When considering the closure of a driving test centre, DSA follows the "Code of Practice on Written Consultations—Driving Test Centres" which is available on the DSA's website and was agreed by Ministers.

First Great Western: Standards

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will publish the rail improvement plan for First Great Western. [201431]

Mr. Tom Harris: A Remedial Agreement has been contractualised with First Great Western, the details of which will be on the Department's website in due course.

M20: Noise

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1445W, on M20: Noise, how many sites have been designated as high priority for resurfacing. [203885]

Mr. Tom Harris: A total of 26 stretches of concrete carriageway were identified in April 2003 in England as high priority for resurfacing with quieter materials.

M25: Cost-Effectiveness

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will place in the Library a copy of the cost-benefit analysis which informed her decision on whether to include the M25 widening projects in the national feasibility study into rolling out active traffic management. [181875]

Mr. Tom Harris: I have placed the documents and subsequent analysis on this matter in the Library of the House and on the Department's website.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) men and (b) women died in car accidents in each year since 2000 where the driver was (i) male and (ii) female and aged 21 or under. [204492]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The number of (a) male and (b) female car occupant fatalities in reported road accidents in 2000 to 2006 where the driver was (i) male and (ii) female and aged 21 years or under are shown in the table.

2006	375	61	21	61

Roads: Construction

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 7 February 2008, Official Report, column 1421W, on Roads: Construction, when she expects the information on carbon impacts of Highways Agency road schemes to be published on the Highways Agency website and placed in the Library. [201268]

Mr. Tom Harris: We expect to publish the information in relation to the carbon impacts of Highways Agency road schemes in the summer.

Transport: Sustainable Development

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what advice she has (a) sought and (b) received from the Chief Scientist at the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on sustainability and the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation; and if she will make a statement. [204164]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Government have always made clear that its biofuel policies must be based on the best available scientific evidence. We have asked the Renewable Fuels Agency to lead a review of the emerging evidence on the wider, indirect impacts of biofuel production. Professor Bob Watson, together with other Government chief scientific advisers, has been asked to peer-review its findings. The review is due to report in June.

OLYMPICS

London 2012: Manpower

Mrs. May: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what proportion of staff working for the London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games are (a) women and (b) men. [204123]

Tessa Jowell: The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games (LOCOG) is a private company, and has a strong diversity and inclusion policy on its recruitment and retention of staff and volunteers that covers gender, race, disability, sexual orientation, religion and age. This is regularly monitored for its effectiveness.

Olympic Games 2012: Finance

Pete Wishart: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what consultations the Government have undertaken with financial institutions on financing the 2012 Olympics; and what the cost of such consultations was. [203651]

Tessa Jowell: The Government Olympic Executive has received informal advice, at no cost from financial institutions, on the possibilities for financing the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

The International Broadcast Centre/Main Press Centre and the Olympic Village are developer-led projects in which the developer is responsible for bank and equity funding. The Olympic Delivery Authority has taken and will continue to take appropriate advice on the nature of these transactions but does not have direct contractual relations with any financial institutions, and consequently has not paid for any advice from them.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Arts

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place in the Library a copy of the Creative Economy Strategy. [203879]

Margaret Hodge: The 'Creative Britain: New Talents for the New Economy' document was deposited in the House Libraries, via a written ministerial statement, on 21 February 2008, Official Report, column 58WS.

Arts Council England: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport pursuant to the answer of 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 1959W, on Arts Council England: Finance, what (a) resource and (b) capital allocations have been made for (i) 2008-09, (ii) 2009-10 and (iii) 2010-11. [203005]

Margaret Hodge: Resource and capital allocations for Arts Council England (ACE) are set out in the following table.

Culture Leadership Programme

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the performance of the cultural leadership programme; and if he will make a statement. [204162]

Margaret Hodge: The Cultural Leadership Programme (CLP) is formed from the Partnership of Arts Council England, the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council and Creative and Cultural Skills. Funding has been channelled through Arts Council England, which has assessed the programme as part of the ongoing review of its work and priorities. A mix of formal and informal learning opportunities has been created and is supported by the programme, including placements, courses, online information, advice and guidance; as well as work-based support including coaching and mentoring opportunities.

The programme is having a good impact on leadership development, in terms of both the new opportunities offered to emerging, mid-career and established leaders, and increasing awareness of the benefits of targeted leadership development for these important areas of the UK life and economy.

The programme has been delivered by a very small team, ensuring that an investment of over 85 per cent. of the £12 million made available has been spent directly on activities that will support leaders, and keeping administration and support costs to a minimum. The programme was launched just two years ago in June 2006, and the first phase ends in June 2008. The Department expects to receive a formal evaluation of the CLP soon after the end of this first phase.

Culture Leadership Programme: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what resources (a) his Department, (b) the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council, (c) the Arts Council and (d) Creative and Cultural Skills plan to make available to the Cultural Leadership programme in each of the next three years. [204163]

Margaret Hodge: In the period 2008-11 all financial support for the Cultural Leadership Programme will come from the settlement to the Arts Council. The Arts Council has agreed figures of £3,000,000 for 2008-09; £3,500,000 for 2009-10 and £3,500,000 for 2010-11.

There will be no financial contribution from the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council, Creative and Cultural Skills or the DCMS, although they will continue to steer the development of the Programme through the Cultural Leadership Programme Delivery Partnership.

Culture Leadership Programme: Internet

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many (a) hits and (b) unique visitors the Cultural Leadership programme's website received in each of the last 12 months. [204161]

Margaret Hodge: The following table details the visits made to the Cultural Leadership Programme's website over the last 12 months.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204113]

Margaret Hodge: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport spent £3,415.27 on carbon offsetting for the year 2006-07. This was the first payment of this type and was made to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund, which is managed by the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs.

Digital Broadcasting: Rural Areas

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to address the digital divide in rural areas. [202154]

Andy Burnham: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Wales has been appointed as the Minister for Digital Inclusion and will work with other Departments, including mine, to co-ordinate policies and develop a coherent strategy to ensure that all citizens, especially the disadvantaged, benefit from the use of digital technologies. My Department is committed to addressing the digital divide where it is economically and technologically feasible to do so.

Digital Switchover: Help Scheme

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place in the Library a copy of (a) the research on return path capability amongst the elderly and (b) the drafted return path costed option annex referred to in the minutes of the Emerging Technologies Group meeting on 27 February in relation to the digital switchover assistance scheme. [203804]

Andy Burnham: The Emerging Technologies Group (ETG) was told that research on return path usage by the elderly existed, but the group has not yet had sight of this or any related research. No steps have been taken by the ETG to produce a costed option for including return path functionality within set-top-box equipment.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 1 May 2008, Official Report, column 596W.

Monuments: VAT

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of the VAT Relief on Memorials scheme in each of the next three years. [204146]

Margaret Hodge: The Memorials Grant Scheme makes grants equivalent to the VAT incurred by charities and faith groups in establishing or repairing public memorials. The scheme is demand-led and it is not possible, therefore, to estimate future costs accurately.

Paralympic Games

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects the Playground to Podium Paralympics strategy paper to be published. [203011]

Andy Burnham: Sport England has advised that the Playground to Podium Steering Group is in the process of making final amendments to the framework following a consultation process with national governing bodies of sport and Steering Group members. The final framework will be published prior to the programme launch in September, in line with the commencement of the new school year.

The framework provides a clear rationale for the selection of, and investment in, a focused number of sports bodies that can support the delivery of a disability pathway for their sports from playground through to podium.

Sport England has taken responsibility on behalf of the Playground to Podium Steering group to co-ordinate the assessment and selection of sports, and has advised that sports bodies will be informed whether they have been selected in early May. Applications for funding will then be invited from the appropriate national governing bodies.

Regional Sports Boards: Pay

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department paid to the chairmen and chairwomen of regional sports boards in England in respect of their board duties in the last 12 months. [204148]

Margaret Hodge: The following payments were made.

Part 1: Payments to RSB

Worthington A.	North West	10,720	3,844
Total		97,388	14,371

Religious Buildings: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department of the Listed Places of Worship scheme in each of the next three years. [204147]

Margaret Hodge: The Listed Places of Worship Grant Scheme makes grants equivalent to the VAT incurred in making repairs to listed buildings in use as places of worship, and to clocks, pews, bells and organs that are fixtures in such buildings. The scheme is demand-led and it is not possible, therefore, to estimate future costs with precision.

Royal Ballet and Opera: Prices

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of the affordability of seats for performances by the (a) Royal Ballet and (b) Royal Opera; and if he will make a statement. [201815]

Margaret Hodge: My Department has not assessed the affordability of seats for performances by the Royal Ballet and Royal Opera.

The cost of seats is a matter for individual arts organisations to decide.

Arts Council England has also not assessed the affordability of seats for performances at either the Royal Ballet or the Royal Opera House. Arts Council England has recently produced guidance for arts organisations on how to maximise revenue while minimising the risk of price becoming a barrier that prevents people from attending or participating.

I am arranging for copies of 'Call it a tenner. The role of pricing in the arts' to be placed in the House Libraries.

Tourism Strategy Fund

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department provided for the Tourism Strategy Fund in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [203014]

Margaret Hodge [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The Tourism Strategy Fund was a specific budget used to fund a number of tourism support initiatives arising from the policy document 'Tomorrow's Tourism' in 1999. The Department spent £30,000 in 2004-05, and no money has been spent through this fund since April 2005.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Jobcentre Plus: Training

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions for how long an individual must claim unemployment benefits before becoming eligible to go on a training course offered by Jobcentre Plus. [202776]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 8 May 2008:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking how long an individual must claim unemployment benefits before they are eligible to go on a training course offered by Jobcentre Plus. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as Chief Executive of Jobcentre Plus.

Most people who claim Jobseeker's Allowance find work very quickly and only need general information, advice and guidance on how best to look for work. However, for those who need additional help, training courses are available at different stages, depending upon the needs of the individual:

People with an obvious literacy, numeracy or language need are identified at the new claims stage and encouraged to take immediate steps to address those needs through the Learning and Skills Council's Employment Skills Programme or other provision available locally.

People who need additional help with jobsearch skills, confidence and motivation and 'soft' skills associated with the world of work can access help through Programme Centres after 26 weeks unemployment, although earlier access is available where such help is clearly needed to have a realistic chance of finding work.

At 26 weeks, a fast-track assessment tool is used to screen people for any basic skills need not previously identified, and where appropriate, people are referred for help through the Employment and Skills Programme.

Full-time education and training is available through the New Deal, participation in which is mandatory for young people after six months unemployment; and for people aged 25 and over when they have been unemployed for 18 out of the previous 21 months. That said, immediate/early access is available where it is clear the customer is particularly disadvantaged in the labour market and the prospect of finding work is much less likely without additional help.

Pre-employment training may also be available through Local Employment Partnerships through which participating employers have committed to provide more job opportunities for people who are finding it particularly difficult to find work, such as longer-term unemployed people or people living in areas of high unemployment. In return, Jobcentre Plus and other partners, for example the Learning and Skills Council prepare people for work through a range of measures, which may include pre-employment training to prepare people for the sort of jobs available locally. Once in work, ongoing development of skills is encouraged through skills advice and support, e.g. through Train to Gain.

Building upon the success of New Deal and Local Employment Partnerships, there are plans to develop and implement an integrated employment and skills service as announced in "Ready for work: full employment in our generation" and "Ready to Work, Skilled for Work: Unlocking Britain's Talent". A key part of this will be better and earlier screening to identify jobseekers with a skills need that is a major barrier to employment and referring them to a full skills heath-check and then appropriate remedial provision.

Pension Credit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many pensioners received pension credit in (a) 2004-05, (b) 2005-06, (c) 2006-07 and (d) 2007-08; [200445]

(2) how many pensioners received the guarantee credit in (a) 2004-05, (b) 2005-06, (c) 2006-07 and (d) 2007-08. [200446]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave on 17 January 2008, Official Report, column 1419W, which gives the number of pensioners in receipt of pension credit and the number of pensioners in receipt of the guarantee credit each year from 2003 to 2007.

Rented Housing: Cambridgeshire

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of how much and what proportion of private rented accommodation in (a) Cambridge city council area, (b) the South Cambridgeshire district council area, (c) Cambridge constituency, (d) South Cambridgeshire constituency and (e) South East Cambridgeshire constituency are available at or below the median rent established by the Rent Service for the relevant broad rental market area. [204174]

Mr. Plaskitt: The local housing allowance (LHA) is a median value calculated from a list of rents, for the number of bedrooms, collected from the private rented sector in a broad rental market area (BRMA). As the LHA is a median value, the middle value from the list of rents held in ascending order, it will always ensure that half of the properties in the BRMA will be affordable for housing benefit customers.

The Rent Service determines the median rents for each BRMA. We do not hold data that would show the proportion of the properties available at or below the median rent that lie within each local authority or constituency.

Social Security Benefits

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what benefits administered by his Department are uprated in line with a measure of (a) prices and (b) earnings broken down by measure used; [200646]

(2) what benefits administered by his Department are uprated annually under statute broken down by those uprated in line with (a) prices and (b) earnings; and if he will make a statement. [200647]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The powers to review and alter the rate of benefits are contained in the Social Security Administration Act 1992 (Sections 150 to 154). Sections 150 and 150A of that Act prescribe the benefits that must be reviewed on an annual basis and how they are to be uprated. The annual change in the retail prices index is used to uprate the following benefits, which, by statute, must be reviewed and up-rated annually at least in line with prices;

State Pensions (with the exception of the age addition);

Additional Pensions paid with State Pension and Widows' Benefits;

Increments: for the deferment of State Pension and Guaranteed Minimum Pensions;

Incapacity Benefit;

Attendance Allowance;

Severe Disablement Allowance;

Carer's Allowance;

Disability Living Allowance;

Industrial Injuries Benefits (including old cases);

Adult and Child Dependants Increases (The Child Dependants Increase is fixed in practice);

Widows Benefit and Bereavement Benefit rates (with the exception of Bereavement Payment), which are currently linked to the basic State Pension rate.

The standard minimum guarantee in pension credit must be reviewed and increased at least in line with earnings. The usual measure is the May to July headline figure for the whole economy, seasonally adjusted and including bonuses. However, for the April 2008 uprating, the increase was 4.2 per cent. in line with the Budget 2007 announcement which more than keeps pace with prices and earnings.

During the next Parliament we will re-link the uprating of the basic state pension to average earnings. Our objective, subject to affordability and the fiscal position, is to do this in 2012, but in any event by the end of the next Parliament at the latest.

For the full list of Social Security benefits and the basis on which they are currently up-rated I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 4 February 2008, Official Report, column 857W.

Written Questions

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when he expects to answer Question 162350, tabled by the hon. Member for Hertsmere on 6 November, on incapacity benefit claimants. [171136]

Mr. Timms: I replied to the hon. Member's question on 13 March 2008, Official Report, column 577-8W.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many births there were in each year since 1978. [203548]

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Building Research Establishment: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding she allocated to the Building Research Establishment in each of the last three years. [202641]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Communities and Local Government does not allocate funding to the Building Research Establishment (BRE). However the BRE is one of the Department's preferred contractors under its framework agreements and has undertaken work for the Department both as part of these frameworks and under contracts let outside of them. The total payments made for work undertaken by BRE for the Department in each of the last three years is:

2005-06	4,261
2006-07	4,532
2007-08	2,900

Council Tax: Fire Services

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the average Band D council tax precept was for fire authorities in England in 1998-99. [203060]

John Healey: The average Band D council tax precept for the seven precepting fire authorities in England in 1998-99 was £26.56.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1411W, on property: valuation, whether the Valuation Office Agency considers the presence of a (a) temporary and (b) permanent traveller encampment near a domestic dwelling to be material in determining the level of council tax. [202991]

John Healey: When undertaking a valuation to arrive at, or amend, a council tax banding, all material factors that affect the open market value of a dwelling will be taken into account, as required by the Council Tax (Situation and Valuation of Dwellings) Regulations 1992.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 19 February 2008, Official Report, column 613W, on council tax: valuation, when the Council Tax Revaluation Programme Board (England) met. [203046]

John Healey: The Valuation Office Agency's Programme Board for the now postponed council tax revaluation generally met monthly between March 2003 and November 2005.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answers of 19 February 2008, Official Report, column 613W and of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1390W, on council tax: valuation, if she will place in the Library copies of minutes of the meetings the Council Tax Revaluation Programme Board (England) prior to 22nd November 2005 redacting the minutes in the same manner as those for 22 November 2005. [203068]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Bromley and Chislehurst (Robert Neill) on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1415W.

Councillors: Complaints

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether complaints about breaches of the councillors' code of conduct can be made anonymously under the new scheme. [203040]

John Healey: Yes. Local authority standards committees will be able to consider anonymous complaints.

However, standards committees must have regard to guidance issued by the Standards Board for England, which stresses that anonymous complaints should only be considered in limited circumstances, such as when they are accompanied by evidence that the allegation is of an exceptionally serious or significant matter.

The guidance also advises local authorities to publish a statement setting out how they will deal with anonymous complaints.

Departmental Civil Service Agencies

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the role of the relevant Shareholder Executive is in determining the definition of the public tasks of her Department's agencies. [203463]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Shareholder Executive is responsible for advising Ministers from this Department directly on the management of their shareholding and financial interests in Ordnance Survey, a Government Department and executive agency in its own right. The executive also advises the Department on its interests in two other trading funds, the Fire Service College and the Queen Elizabeth II Conference Centre.

In April 2007, Ministers asked Ordnance Survey and the Shareholder Executive to work together to prepare a more precise articulation of Ordnance Survey's public task as set out in the Ordnance Survey Framework Document 2004. This work was undertaken between April and June 2007, and Ministers approved the revised public task document in July 2007.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its predecessor spent on entertaining in each of the last five years. [203738]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Runnymede and Weybridge (Mr. Hammond) on 27 February 2008, Official Report, column 1594W.

The Department does not record expenditure for entertainment on its finance systems and the figures in the earlier reply relate to hospitality. Changes in coding parameters on the Departments financial systems mean that figures for earlier years can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

All expenditure on hospitality is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in Government Accounting and the Treasury handbook on Regularity and Propriety.

EC Grants and Loans: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received from Castle Point borough council on the use of European Union funding for the Charfleets green business initiative; and if she will make a statement. [203662]

John Healey: The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government has not received any representations from Castle Point borough council on the use of European Union funding, for the Charfleets green business initiative.

Floods: Repairs and Maintenance

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, pursuant to the Answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1405W., on floods: repair and maintenance, if she will undertake an assessment of the availability of plumbers, electricians, plasterers and other essential workers necessary to complete repairs to flood damaged properties. [202968]

John Healey: We have no plans to carry out such an assessment.

Housing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what her target is for the number of transactions under each of the (a) social market homebuy, (b) New Build HomeBuy and (c) Open Market Homebuy schemes annually. [204521]

Mr. Iain Wright: We have clearly stated in the Housing Green Paper 'Homes for the future: more affordable, more sustainable', that we will provide 25,000 shared ownership and shared equity homes a year over the next three years. We have not set individual targets for Open Market HomeBuy or NewBuild HomeBuy to ensure flexibility within the programme. Social HomeBuy is a demand-led product and as such no targets are associated with this programme.

Housing: Greater London

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new homes have been built in each London (a) constituency and (b) local authority area since 1997. [203384]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on new build completions by constituency is not held centrally. The following table provides the figures as reported by local authorities:

New build completions by London boroughs 1997-98 to 2006-07

Housing: North West

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many new homes were built in each parliamentary constituency in the North West in each year since 1997. [202729]

Mr. Iain Wright [holding answer 30 April 2008]: Information on housing completions is collected on the basis of local authorities' administrative boundaries, and on the information provided by local authorities, not by constituency boundaries.

The following table shows housing completions for the period 1998 to 2007 in the local authorities that make up the North-West of England.

Housing: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the timetable is for changes to permitted development rights with regards to household extensions; and how the proposed changes will amend planning rules on loft extensions. [203051]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government intend to bring into force amendments to householder permitted development rights, including those for roof extensions, in October this year. The proposed regime will keep the current approach that allows householders roof extensions of up to no more than 40 cubic metres for terraced houses and 50 cubic metres for detached and semi-detached properties. An extension will not be permitted on a roof that fronts the house and is visible from the highway. Rear loft extensions will have to be set back at least 20 centimetres from the eaves.

A key change for all types of household extension is that the overall household volume restriction will be removed. This means that householders will no longer have to apply for planning permission for loft extensions if they have already extended at ground level.

Roof extensions will not be permitted development in certain sensitive areas such as conservation areas and national parks.

Housing: Sustainable Development

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assumptions are made on the amount of waste and recycling produced each week in litres by family homes in determining the Code for Sustainable Homes recommendations on household waste storage capacity. [204722]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Code for Sustainable Homes does not make any assumptions on the amount of waste and recycling produced by family homes. The Code's Technical Guidance published in April 2008 contains mandatory minimum standards for the waste and recycling component for all levels of the Code. It states that space allocated for waste storage should be able to hold containers, the volume of which must be at least the minimum recommended by British Standard BS 5906 (British Standards, 2005) i.e. 100 litres volume for a single bedroom dwelling, with a further 70 litres volume for each additional bedroom.

A local authority recycling scheme offering containers equal to or greater than this volume would meet the requirements under the Code for Sustainable Homes, providing adequate external space is allocated to accommodate them. If the local authority provides containers with a smaller volume, or if no local authority scheme exists, the developer will need to ensure and demonstrate that the minimum recommended volume is met if they are to meet the requirements under the Code.

The Code also states that all containers must be accessible to disabled people, particularly wheelchair users, and sited on a hard, level surface. To allow easy access, the containers must not be stacked.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans there are for the managing authority of the France (Manche)-England Operational Programme to be designated as a body under European Grouping of Territorial Co-operation provisions. [203041]

John Healey: There are no such plans at present.

INTERREG Programme: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what projects are being considered in (a) Castle Point constituency and (b) Essex for funding under the (i) INTERREG and (ii) European Social Fund programmes; and if she will make a statement. [203635]

John Healey: The information requested is as follows.

INTERREG IVA

Essex is included as an adjacent area in the France(Channel)-England and Two Seas INTERREG IVA programmes. The Operational Programmes for both programmes were submitted to the European Commission in November 2007 and have not yet been adopted, or approved, by the Commission. No projects have therefore yet been considered for approval.

INTERREG IVB

Essex is included in the North sea and North West Europe INTERREG IVB programmes. Both these programmes have now had a first call for projects resulting in 11 approvals. One of the North West Europe projects—IMCORE—has a Colchester based partner called Coastnet.

The second call for North sea projects has closed. Of the 30 project applications submitted two have Essex based partners. Essex county council for Haven Gateway is a partner in the Dryport project and Southend on Sea borough council is a partner in the Building with Care project. The second call for North West Europe projects closes on 9 May and we do not yet have information on individual partners.

INTERREG IVC

The first call for INTERREG IVC ended on 15 January 2008. There were over 480 applications and the IVC Secretariat is currently assessing them. We expect to receive project and partner details from the Secretariat during summer 2008.

European Social Fund

For the European Social Fund, two project specifications relating specifically to Essex have been appraised and await award of contract. A further 16 tenders for regional contracts that are likely to include Essex and Castle Point are under negotiation.

INTERREG Programme: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much funding the Government will be providing in co-payments towards the EU INTERREG (a) IVA, (b) IVB and (c) IVC programmes over the next three years. [203043]

John Healey: The Government will not be providing match funding for projects in the new programmes. But we will be contributing towards their technical assistance budgets which are used for funding the programme secretariats. These secretariats deal with the day to day management of the programmes including arranging project applications, project monitoring and providing general advice. The UK contribution for April 2008 to March 2010 will be:

	Euro
Interreg IVA	1,593,000
Interreg IVB (including INTERACT)	2,087,782
Interreg IVC	337,053
Total	4,017,835

Local Authorities: Cost Effectiveness

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what procurement advice her Department has given to best value authorities on the application of the Best Value Code of Practice in Work Force Matters; [203354]

(2) how many times the alternative dispute resolution procedure has been invoked for best value authority contracts; [203353]

(3) what steps her Department has taken to assess the effect the Best Value Code of Practice in Work Force Matters in best value authority contracts; [203352]

(4) what steps her Department has taken to monitor (a) the application of and (b) compliance with the Best Value Code of Practice in Work Force Matters in best value authority contracts. [203351]

John Healey: The code of practice on work force matters in local authority service contracts (ODPM, 2003) is guidance based on the Secretary of State's view that a 'two-tier work force' does not achieve 'best value'. Local authorities should have regard to the code when considering individual contracts.

The alternative dispute resolution (ADR) procedure was developed by the TUC, CBI, the LGA—Local Government Association—and the Employers' Association for Local Government. Use of the ADR is not monitored centrally.

Communities and Local Government is carrying out a programme of ongoing research that will evaluate the impact of the local government procurement agenda as a whole. A specific strand has been to attempt to isolate the impact of the code of practice. Initial results were published in the 'Evaluation of the Local Government Procurement Agenda—Baseline Survey Report' (ODPM, August 2005). Just over two-thirds of authorities had included work force matters as a standard issue in contracts for services.

Currently, local authorities are required to certify in their best value performance plans (BVPPs) that individual contracts comply with best value requirements, including the work force requirements in the two-tier code. As part of the package of de-regulatory measures, announced in the Local Government White Paper 2006, the Department signalled the intention to remove the requirement for authorities to prepare BVPPs; provisions to do so were secured in the 'Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007'. We will be consulting on proposed arrangements for monitoring compliance with the code in future.

Local Government

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many parish and town councils there are in England; and what estimate her Department has made of the number which levy a precept on council tax bills in their area. [203063]

John Healey: There are approximately 8,900 parish and town councils in England. Details of the number of parish and town councils which levy a precept on council tax bills in their area is not recorded centrally.

Local Government Finance: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the ratio between central Government funding and council tax revenue received by the London borough of Enfield was in each of the last 10 years. [202862]

John Healey: I refer my hon. Friend to the answer given to the hon. Member for Sutton and Cheam (Mr. Burstow) on 17 September 2007, Official Report, column 2181W.

Local Government Finance Funding Changes Independent Inquiry

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which recommendations of the Lyons Inquiry into local government finance the Government (a) has implemented and (b) plans to implement. [203055]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him by my hon. Friend the Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury on 9 January 2008, Official Report, column 631W.

Local Government: Electronic Government

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, what citizen identification types are included in the Valuebill XML Schema. [203059]

John Healey: None.

Local Government: Pensions

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) which private contractors have been given admitted body status to the local government pension scheme; [203355]

(2) how many third sector organisations have been given admitted body status to the local government pension scheme. [203319]

John Healey: The information is not held centrally in the form requested.

The regulations governing the scheme in England and Wales require administering authorities to inform the Secretary of State of all admission agreements which they make. A list of admission bodies which have been notified to the Secretary of State has been deposited in the Library of the House. These lists do not specifically distinguish between contractors, third sector and other bodies.

Mobile Homes: Multiple Occupation

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the number of park homes which are used as houses of multiple occupation. [204009]

Mr. Iain Wright: A park home cannot be a 'house in multiple occupation' because it is not a building for the purpose of applying one or more of the tests in section 254 of the Housing Act 2004.

Non-Domestic Rates

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the equivalent percentage rise in average business rate bills will be in a local authority area which levies the maximum supplementary business rate. [203042]

John Healey: It is not possible to calculate the equivalent percentage increase in average business rate bills in a local authority area which levies the maximum business rate supplement, as it will depend on a number of factors, some of which can not be predicted. These include the level of the non-domestic rating multipliers before and at the time the supplement is levied and whether the property is in receipt of any rate relief. In addition, as announced in "Business rate supplements: a White Paper", all properties with a rateable value of £50,000 or less will not have to pay the supplement, thus excluding the vast majority of business properties in England. Those authorities levying supplements will also be able to decide whether there should be an offset for ratepayers contributing to BIDs.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what restrictions there are on how revenue from supplementary business rates can be spent by local authorities. [203044]

John Healey: 'Business rate supplements: a White Paper', published in October 2007, made clear that the power to raise supplements is not intended to provide general purpose revenues. The revenue from business rate supplements will only be available for initiatives that will promote the economic development of an area and which otherwise would not have taken place.

Official Hospitality: Office of the Deputy Prime Minister

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost to the public purse was of the visit by the Chinese Ambassador and the right hon. Member for Kingston upon Hull to Mr. Chu's China Palace in Kingston upon Hull in April 2004 according to records created during the existence of the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister. [204493]

Mr. Dhanda: All expenditure on official entertainment in the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister was made in accordance with the guidance set out in the "Ministerial Code" and with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on the principles set out in "Government Accounting".

Ordnance Survey

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether she has (a) received representations and (b) commissioned advice on whether separating raw data from value-added products is consistent with Ordnance Survey's new public task definition. [203439]

Mr. Iain Wright: Since Ministers approved the revised Ordnance Survey Public Task in July 2007 representations have been made specifically on the separation of raw data from value added products. Ordnance Survey continues in discussions with the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) and the Office for Public Sector Information in response to recommendations raised by OFT in the report on its study of the Commercial Reuse of Public Information.

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on the effects of applications of the Re-use of Public Sector Information Directive on Ordnance Survey's new public task definition. [203465]

Mr. Iain Wright: Since Ministers approved the revised Ordnance Survey Public Task in July 2007, representations have been received from one trade association representing a number of private sector commercial organisations, who commercially exploit public sector information. These representations included an unsubstantiated claim that the revised Public Task has implications for the applicability of the Re-use of Public Sector Information Directive.

Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Infrastructure Planning Commission will consider planning applications for (a) incinerators, (b) airports, (c) motorways, (d) housing developments and (e) sewage plants. [203064]

John Healey: Under the proposals set out in the Planning Bill, the Infrastructure Planning Commission would consider applications for development consent for nationally significant infrastructure projects, which could include motorway, airport, sewage treatment plant, and waste incinerator projects, where they met the specified thresholds. It would not deal with housing developments.

Planning Permission: Prosecutions

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many successful prosecutions for breaches of the Building Control Regulations there have been since 2000. [203706]

Mr. Iain Wright: Building control bodies initially try to deal with enforcement in an informal manner by seeking to resolve the issues so as to reach a satisfactory conclusion without reverting to formal enforcement through the courts.

Information on the number of prosecutions (whether or not successful) is not collected centrally. However, a recent survey of building control bodies, carried out by the Building Control Alliance, indicated that in 2006-07, less than 0.1 per cent. of applications resulted in formal enforcement action.

The survey may be accessed at:

www.communities.gov.uk/publications/planningandbuilding/surveybuildingcontrolrpt

Planning Permission: Strip Clubs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many planning appeals the Planning Inspectorate has considered in relation to lap dancing clubs in the last 36 months. [204487]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Planning Inspectorate does not capture data to enable identification of planning appeals relating specifically to lap dancing clubs.

Property: Databases

Sir Paul Beresford: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the cost to (a) her Department and (b) the public purse of meeting requests for private sector organisations for master address lists in the last 12 months. [203430]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department has created no master address list of its own, so has incurred no costs itself. No estimate of costs to the wider public purse has been made.

Property: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, pursuant to the Answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1410W, on property: valuation, how many dwellings are recorded on the Valuation Office Agency's computers as being assigned with an OS value significant code. [202994]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1410W.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) pursuant to the Answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1410W, on property: valuation, how many dwellings are recorded on the Valuation Office Agency's computers as being assigned a FC value significant code;. [202999]

(2) how many dwellings in England are currently recorded by the Valuation Office Agency as having the value significant code of (a) TQ and (b) UP. [203048]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1410W.

Social Rented Housing: Waiting Lists

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many households in England were on local authority waiting lists for social housing in 2007; [204499]

(2) what the average period of time a household spent on local authority waiting lists before obtaining social housing was in the latest period for which figures are available. [204516]

Mr. Iain Wright: For information on the number of households on local authority waiting lists I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 19 March 2008, Official Report, columns 1198-99W.

Information on the average wait for households on local authority waiting lists is not collected centrally.

Travelling People: Council Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 1903W, on travelling people: council tax, whether traveller camps which occupy land which they do not own or have permission to occupy, and which do not having planning permission for occupation, are valued for council tax or business rates by the Valuation Office Agency. [203159]

John Healey: A clearly defined pitch for a caravan which is a person's sole or main residence will be liable for council tax whether the basis for the occupation is legal or not.

Valuation Office: Digital Mapping

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government, pursuant to the Answer to the right hon. Member for Horsham of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1397W., on digital mapping, what role the Valuation Office Agency has in the development of Digital National Framework. [202955]

Mr. Dhanda: The Valuation Office Agency no longer plays an active role in the development of the Digital National Framework and are correspondence members only.

Valuation: ICT

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local billing authorities in England communicate property amendments to the Valuation Office Agency through (a) the Valuebill interface and (b) electronic billing authority reports. [203066]

John Healey: None, other than by electronic billing authority reports (eBARs).

Between 1 January and 31 December 2007, 148 local authorities in England submitted eBARs to the Valuation Office Agency.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the Valuation Office Agency's targets are for local authority take-up of (a) the Valuebill interface and (b) electronic billing authority reports. [203067]

John Healey: The Valuation Office Agency encourages all authorities to use these facilities but the decision whether to do so rests with them.

Waste Management: Audit

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what account of joint waste authority status will be taken by the Audit Commission in conducting comprehensive area assessments. [203037]

John Healey: Comprehensive area assessment (CAA) will assess the prospects for improving priority outcomes in each area. The effectiveness of joint working between local partners to achieve this improvement will be an important part of this assessment, but CAA will not be prescriptive about the particular arrangements for joint working. An adverse judgment under CAA would result if the inspectorates were not satisfied that outcomes will improve. The existence or otherwise of joint arrangements for a particular service would not automatically result in such a judgment being 'marked down'.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Crime

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what action the Government has taken to reduce crime related to drunkenness. [186847]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 18 February 2008]: The Government take the issue of crime and antisocial behaviour committed by individuals when drunk very seriously. The Government have taken a number of actions in order to combat this, including introducing the Tackling Violent Crime Programme (TVCP) which was launched in November 2004. Additionally, local areas are now required to address alcohol-related issues within their Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnerships (CDRP) strategies. The Government have produced guidance to assist local areas in producing their strategies, and the Government offices for the regions are coordinating this requirement within their specific region. The Government have also recently published 'A practical guide for dealing with alcohol related problems' which is aimed at local alcohol practitioners and gives advice about the tools and powers available to tackle alcohol related crime.

The Government are working to improve the way alcohol related offenders are dealt with in custody and in the community. The National Offender Management Service is taking this work forward which includes; the publication of an alcohol pack for offenders under probation supervision, disseminating across the National Probation Service learning points from alcohol best practice projects, as well as work to develop two alcohol treatment programmes for prisons.

Additionally, the Government have funded four alcohol arrest referral pilots. These schemes aim to offer custody based interventions from a trained worker in order to reduce re-offending. These pilots will be rolled out to 10 new areas, which will ensure that the under 18's will also benefit from these interventions.

Cannabis

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of cannabis users were classed as regular users (a) in each year since 1996 and (b) at the latest date for which figures are available. [201691]

Mr. Coaker: The British crime survey (BCS) only collects information about frequent drug use among young people aged 16 to 24 years. Questions on frequency of use in the last year were first asked in the 2002-03 BCS.

Table 1 provides trend data between the 2002-03 and 2006-07 BCS for the proportion of cannabis users aged 16 to 24 years who reported to using cannabis frequently (more than once a month) in the previous year. The latest figures show that there was a statistically significant decrease in the proportion of 16 to 24-year-old cannabis users who report being a frequent user between the 2002-03 and 2006-07 BCS (from 46.1 per cent. to 37.0 per cent.).

Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people arrested by officers of the Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre since establishment have been (a) charged, (b) tried and (c) found guilty; and what the (i) sentence and (ii) earliest date for parole was in each case. [204071]

Mr. Coaker: The Child Exploitation and Online Protection Centre (CEOP) is the lead agency for the co-ordination of UK policing response to the threat of child sexual exploitation, particularly within the online or mobile environments. CEOP works to support police, child protection and education agencies locally and internationally to better protect children and young people from this threat.

Since its launch in April 2006, 207 children have been safeguarded from sexual abuse either directly or indirectly as the result of CEOP activity.

As of 31 March 2008, in 176 cases involving the arrests of individuals, where CEOP provided operational support to UK police forces and where feedback was received from those police forces, 60 individuals where charged with various offences, 10 were cautioned, 63 cases are ongoing, and in 43, no further action was taken.

Responsibility for and information pertaining to the investigation, prosecution, trial and post-conviction management of any individual dealt with as a result of information, intelligence or operational support provided by CEOP lies with the relevant police force or criminal justice agency concerned.

Cocaine

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of cocaine powder users were classed as regular users (a) in each year since 1996 and (b) at the latest date for which figures are available. [201692]

Mr. Coaker: The British Crime Survey (BCS) only collects information about frequent drug use among young people aged 16 to 24 years. Questions on frequency of use in the last year were first asked in the 2002-03 BCS.

The following table provides trend data between the 2002-03 and 2006-07 BCS for the proportion of cocaine powder users aged 16 to 24 years who reported to using cocaine frequently (more than once a month) in the previous year. The latest figures show that although there was an increase in the proportion of 16 to 24-year-old cocaine powder users who report being a frequent user between the 2002-03 and 2006-07 BCS (from 18.9 to 25.6) this was not statistically significant as these estimates are based on small samples and subject to large margins of error. Larger differences are required to detect statistically significant changes over time.

2006-07	25.6	302

Mr. Brady: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many 16 to 24-year-olds were reported to have taken any form of cocaine in each year since 1996; [201693]

(2) what estimate she has made of the number of 16 to 59-year-olds who have used any form of cocaine in each year since 1996. [201694]

Mr. Coaker: The British Crime Survey (BCS) routinely provides information about the numbers and proportions of people who have used drugs ever, in the last year and in the last month.

Tables 1 and 2 provide trends, where available, of the estimated number of 16 to 24-year-olds and 16 to 59-year-olds respectively, who have used any form of cocaine in the last year.

These estimates are based on small samples and subject to large margins of error, as indicated in the tables.

Trends in the proportion of 16 to 24-year-olds and 16 to 59 year olds who have used any form of cocaine are also included and show an increase in use among both age groups between the 1996 and 2006-07 BCS.

Reoffenders

Mr. Ruffley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persistent and prolific offenders have been identified in each police force area in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [200479]

Mr. Coaker: Data from the performance management arrangements for the Prolific and other Priority Offender programme provides the number of such offenders identified through partnership arrangements in each police force area. The data are provided in the following table. The data cover the three years from January 2005 up to December 2007, and are the most recent data available. These figures rely on the accuracy and completeness of the data provided locally by prolific and priority offender schemes.

Shares: Sales Methods

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance has been provided to police forces in England and Wales on dealing with fraud associated with boiler room operations. [204154]

Mr. Coaker: The Government have not issued specific guidance to police forces on dealing with boiler room fraud but aim to deliver a multi-agency response to major frauds including boiler-room frauds. Law enforcement agencies, Government Departments and regulators have already worked together on several initiatives and the City of London Police has established Operation Archway, a national intelligence reporting system for boiler room fraud.

Action against boiler rooms will be strengthened further by the creation of the National Fraud Strategic Authority, which will co-ordinate national counter-fraud efforts. In parallel, the creation of a National Fraud Reporting Centre will boost the ability of law enforcement agencies to take intelligence-led action against complex fraud networks, such as those responsible for boiler rooms.

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, how many people were (a) arrested and (b) convicted for offences relating to fraud by boiler room operations in 2007. [204157]

Mr. Coaker: The arrests collection undertaken by the Ministry of Justice provides data on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences), by age group, gender, ethnicity, and main offence group, i.e. robbery, burglary, fraud and forgery etc. From data reported centrally we are not able to identify specific offences of fraud from within the main 'fraud and forgery' offence group.

Similarly, the data held centrally by the Ministry of Justice on the court proceedings database does not contain information about the circumstances behind each case. As a result offences of fraud by boiler room operations cannot be separately identified from other offences under section 1 of the Fraud Act 2006.

Wildlife: Crime

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will review the effectiveness of enforcement by police forces of measures against wildlife crime and illegal hunting. [201500]

Mr. Coaker: We have no plans at present to review the effectiveness of enforcement by police forces of measures against wildlife crime and illegal hunting.

It is the role of Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Constabulary to review the efficiency and effectiveness of police forces. As such it would be for the Chief Inspector to decide on such a review.

The Home Office has recently announced that it will contribute £150,000 per year for three years to fund the National Wildlife Crime Unit (NWCU). Government officials will be working closely with the Association of Chief Police Officers and the NWCU to monitor the outcomes achieved through this funding.

The Home Office continues to meet with interested stakeholders and to work closely with the police, through the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) to identify what more can be done to ensure the Hunting Act is effectively and appropriately enforced and to improve detection of illegal hunting.

The Association of Chief Police Officers have conducted a survey of local police forces' response to enforcement of the Hunting Act which will inform best-practice guidance. The Government are also working with ACPO on ways to raise awareness of issues surrounding enforcement of the Hunting Act across the police service, and to communicate the importance of visible enforcement to community policing in rural areas and to the maintenance of public order.

We are also working closely with the Attorney-General about what more can be done to secure prosecutions where evidence has been presented of Hunting Act offences being committed. The Attorney-General in turn has agreed to raise the issue of the burden of proof in hunting cases with the Director of Public Prosecutions, and to engage with local Crown Prosecution Service leads to better understand and then communicate, the evidence needed to bring forward successful prosecutions.

26 individuals have now been convicted of offences under the Hunting Act 2004 which does show that the legislation is enforceable when the evidence presents itself.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, when she will answer Question 179094 on the national DNA database tabled on 9 January 2008 by the hon. Member for Cardiff Central; and if she will make a statement. [192952]

Meg Hillier: The question was answered on 7 May 2007, Official Report, columns 994-96W.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department, when she plans to reply to Question 191801, tabled on 29 February 2008, on test sales for video works. [198874]

Mr. Coaker: I replied to the hon. Member on 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 507W.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

1 Carlton Gardens

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 10 March 2008, Official Report, column 99W, on 1 Carlton Gardens, (1) what charges were made to the right hon. Member for Derby, South in respect of her occupation of the property following cessation of Ministerial office; [199519]

(2) what level of payment was made by the right hon. Member for Derby, South while occupying the property (a) as a Minister and (b) when not holding Ministerial office. [199520]

Dr. Howells: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State (Meg Munn) gave to him on 10 March 2008, Official Report, column 99W. The amount of tax paid is personal information. My right hon. Friend the Member for Derby, South (Margaret Beckett) personally paid in full the council tax for the period of her occupation.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of his Department's paper referring to critical military gaps in the NATO mission in Afghanistan, as referred to in The Daily Telegraph of 29 April 2008. [203418]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 6 May 2008]: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office believes that the paper to which James Kirkup referred in The Daily Telegraph article of 29 April was a draft internal working document. It was not shared with international partners as the article suggested. Given the nature of the document, it would not be appropriate to place it in the Library of the House.

Afghanistan: United Nations

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what changes to the mandate of the special representative of the UN Secretary-General in Afghanistan are envisaged following the adoption by the Security Council of a new resolution on the UN mission in Afghanistan; and when this resolution is expected to be adopted. [202894]

Dr. Howells: The mandate of the UN Secretary-General's Special Representative in Afghanistan, as head of the UN Assistance Mission, is set out in the relevant resolutions of the UN Security Council. The most recent was UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1806 (2008). This was adopted on 20 March and draws on the previous mandates. UNSCR 1806 can be found at:

http://daccessdds.un.org/doc/UNDOC/GEN/N08/279/31/PDF/N0827931.pdf?OpenElement.

China: Family Planning

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers in his Department and (c) officials have had with the Government of China since 2006 about the Population and Birth-planning Law 2002; and if he will make a statement. [201934]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We regularly raise our concerns with the Chinese Government about the implementation of China's population and family planning law. The Chinese Government acknowledges that there have been problems with administration of the policy, but insists this would be down to individuals rather than malign intent. Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials discussed the One Child Policy during the recent round of the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue in Beijing in January. We do not dispute China's right or need to implement family planning policies, but we do believe they should be based on the principles of consent and not coercion. We will continue to encourage the Chinese to meet international human rights standards at every appropriate opportunity, both bilaterally and through the EU.

A more detailed survey of all the exchanges between UK Ministers and officials with Chinese authorities from 2006 would require a search of files held centrally and at all posts in China, which could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers in his Department and (c) officials have had with the Government of China since 2006 about the implementation in Tibet of the Population and Birth-planning Law 2002; and if he will make a statement. [201935]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We have not discussed the implementation of China's population and family planning law with the Chinese Government with specific reference to Tibet. Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials did however discuss the One Child Policy during the recent round of the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue in Beijing in January. The main theme of the dialogue was ethnic minority rights and included a field trip to Tibet. We do not dispute China's right or need to implement family planning policies but we do believe they should be based on the principles of consent and not coercion. We will continue to encourage the Chinese to meet international human rights standards at every appropriate opportunity, both bilaterally and through the EU.

A more detailed survey of all the exchanges between UK Ministers and officials with Chinese authorities from 2006 would require a search of files held centrally and at all posts in China, which could be achieved only at disproportionate cost.

Commonwealth Scholarships: Finance

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which other Government Departments he consulted prior to his written ministerial statement of 13 March 2008, Official Report, columns 22-24WS, on FCO scholarships and fellowships, announcing that his Department would phase out its funding for Commonwealth Scholarships from 2009. [203305]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The changes to Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) scholarship schemes are rooted in our 2006 review of the Chevening scholarship programme, on which the FCO consulted widely. My right hon. Friend did not consult other Government Departments before making his statement.

Cuba: USA

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether Ministers in his Department have met Caleb McCarry since his appointment as Cuba Transition Co-ordinator for the Bush Administration. [203957]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 7 May 2008]: Foreign and Commonwealth Office Ministers have not met Caleb McCarry since his appointment as Cuba Transition Co-ordinator in 2005.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps are being taken on food hygiene standards in the canteen at Admiralty Building, Whitehall, following the latest inspection by Westminster City Council; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the latest Westminster City Council food hygiene inspection report relating to the canteen (case 05/47821/FOOD); and if he will make a statement. [202839]

Dr. Howells: Westminster city council last inspected the Old Admiralty Building's 'The Mall Café' on 31 May 2006. Five issues were highlighted in the inspection and the necessary follow up action has been taken. A copy of the inspection report has been placed in the Library of the House.

EU Budget

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much and what proportion of funding the UK contributed to the EU Budget in each of the last three years. [203893]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

Details of member states contributions to the EC budget over the period 2004 to 2006, the last three years for which outturn data are currently available, can be found in annex 4 (pages 59-61) of the European Commission's "EU budget 2006 Financial Report" which was published in September 2007. This report can be found at:

http://ec.europa.eu/budget/publications/fin_reports_en.htm

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will reply to the letter, dated 26 March 2008, transferred from the Prime Minister, about meeting the Dalai Lama. [203392]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 6 May 2008]: My noble Friend Lord Malloch-Brown, replied to the hon. Member on 1 May.

Morocco: Political Prisoners

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the hunger strike by 60 Sahrawi political prisoners in Moroccan jails; and if he will make a statement. [203298]

Dr. Howells: The Government are aware of a number of Sahrawi prisoners in Moroccan jails currently on hunger strike. I understand they are calling for improvements in prison conditions and to be treated as political prisoners.

The UK has worked hard to help Morocco improve prison conditions in recent years. In 2005-07, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office funded a prison management project aimed at raising awareness of prisoners' rights and improving working practices.

As part of this, our embassy in Rabat organised regional prison conferences in May 2006 and April 2007, aimed at tackling radicalisation, preventing recruitment, promoting rehabilitation and promoting the rule of law and human rights in Islamic countries' prisons.

We continue to engage with the Moroccan Government at various levels to ensure the rule of law is upheld and the rights of prisoners are respected.

Overseas Students: Scholarships

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the differences in performance of the Chevening, Commonwealth and Marshall scholarship programmes. [203306]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The purpose of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) scholarship schemes is to build personal relationships with international leaders of the future. Following a recent review of all scholarship funding, in accordance with the FCO's global strategy and priorities, it was concluded that the Chevening and Marshall scholarship schemes achieved this purpose more effectively than the Commonwealth Scholarship and Fellowship Plan.

Pakistan: Terrorism

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many British nationals have been detained in Pakistan on suspicion of terrorist offences since 2000. [203571]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 6 May 2008]: We are aware of six cases of British or dual British/Pakistani nationals having been detained on suspicion of terrorist offences in Pakistan since 2000.

Simon Mann

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on what dates consular officials have requested access to Simon Mann in Black Beach Prison since his abduction from Zimbabwe to Equatorial Guinea; how many such requests have been (a) granted and (b) refused; what reasons have been given for such refusals; and what representations have been made to the government of Equatorial Guinea in consequence. [196717]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 25 March 2008]: Since Simon Mann's detention in Equatorial Guinea we have sought consular access twice. Access was given on the first occasion, but refused on the second. Despite strong representations on our part the Equatorial Guinea authorities told us that access could not be given because of an ongoing police investigation. We have expressed our concern to the Equatorial Guinea authorities and are urgently seeking another consular visit.

Somaliland: Politics and Government

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on claims of independence by Somaliland. [201850]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UK does not recognise Somaliland as an independent state. The Government's policy on Somaliland's claims of independence is that the Somaliland authorities should negotiate with the Transitional Federal government to determine their future relationship.

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on discussions between the Pentagon and the US State Department on the recognition of Somaliland as an independent state. [202892]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has received no reports of discussions between the Pentagon and the US State Department on the recognition of Somaliland as an independent state.

Somaliland: Shipping

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made of the likely effect on the safety of shipping using the Gulf of Aden and the port of Berbera were Somaliland to be recognised as an independent state. [201849]

Mr. Jim Murphy: No assessment has been made of the effect of Somaliland being recognised as independent on the safety of shipping using the Gulf of Aden and port of Berbera.

The incidents of piracy and risks to shipping in the region are a result of insecurity in parts of Somalia and limited maritime security capacity provided by the governing authorities. Addressing these issues will have the greatest impact on improving the safety of shipping.

Sudan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many troops each country has committed to the UNAMID force. [202428]

Dr. Howells: The UN Department for Peacekeeping Operations (DPKO), with the African Union (AU), is tasked with generating troops for the UN-AU Mission in Darfur (UNAMID). The DPKO has not yet confirmed the number of troops from each country that will deploy to UNAMID.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what countries have made provisional commitments to supply helicopters to UNAMID. [202429]

Dr. Howells: Ethiopia is contributing four light tactical helicopters to the UN-African Union peacekeeping Mission in Darfur. We understand that other countries have previously offered helicopters which lacked suitable capabilities for the mission, and there are no current provisional commitments. We continue to work closely with the UN to explore all possible options for helicopter provision.

Zimbabwe: Asylum

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment has been made of the effects of recent political events in Zimbabwe on refugee flows from the country; and if he will make a statement. [201998]

David Miliband: We are not aware of further widespread emigration since the recent elections in Zimbabwe. However, post-election violence has created hundreds of internally displaced persons, mainly in rural areas, with individuals seeking refuge with family in the cities or church groups. The UK is already providing support to the people of Zimbabwe, £49 million in 2007, targeting those most in need as a result of the economic mismanagement of the country.

Zimbabwe: China

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Chinese authorities on arms sales to Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [201997]

David Miliband: We have lobbied the Chinese Government in Beijing not to supply arms to Zimbabwe on four occasions since a Chinese ship attempted to unload in Durban. The EU already has in place a ban on the sales of arms to Zimbabwe. We support a moratorium on arms sales until there is a return to democracy and good governance. We raised this with the support of other states in the UN Security Council.

Zimbabwe: Politics and Government

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether an estimate has been made of the numbers killed and injured in Zimbabwe as a result of politically-motivated violence since the 29 March election; and if he will make a statement. [201996]

David Miliband: Since election day, at least 500 people have been injured, 120 hospitalised and two killed as a consequence of state-sponsored violence. Many have suffered torture. In addition, at least 7,000 people have been internally displaced by the violence.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Actis

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the date was of the Actis business plan on which KPMG based its valuation update of 31 March 2004. [203714]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: KPMG based its valuation update on the Actis business plan of 19 March 2004.

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development if he will place in the Library a copy of the Actis business plan of 19 March 2004, including the detailed breakdown of Actis' financial forecasts. [203715]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The CDC/Actis Umbrella agreement has already been placed in the Library of the House of Commons. This document includes the Actis business plan of 1 April 2004, which is not materially different from that of the 19 March 2004. It includes the detailed breakdown of Actis' financial forecasts.

Food: Prices

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what representations he has received on rising food prices internationally, with particular reference to staples such as rice; and if he will make a statement. [202550]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Last month, the World Food Programme (WFP) launched an appeal for an additional $500 million to meet the increased costs of this year's programmes—the cost of rice has now risen to over $1,000 a tonne.

The UK Government are very concerned about the effect on developing countries, where the poorest can spend as much as 90 per cent. of their income on food. There are already 850 million people who don't get enough to eat, and as prices rise these numbers will increase. That is why the Government announced a £455 million aid package to provide assistance to those hardest hit and has taken the lead by calling for the international community to urgently develop a co-ordinated strategy to tackle this critical problem.

Kosovo: Overseas Aid

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much aid his Department has allocated to Kosovo for each of the next three financial years; and if he will make a statement. [200835]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) currently plans to spend £5 million in Kosovo in financial years 2008-09 and 2009-10, and £4 million in 2010-11. Together with funding from the Conflict Prevention Pool (this is managed jointly by DFID, the Ministry of Defence and the Foreign and Commonwealth Office), the UK Government are currently expecting to spend £23 million bilateral aid in total in Kosovo over the next three years.

Middle East: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) allowances, (b) travel costs and (c) accommodation costs have been provided to the staff seconded from his Department to support the work of (i) James Wolfensohn and (ii) Tony Blair in their roles as Quartet Representatives; and if he will make a statement. [200834]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Quartet Representative's staff, including Department for International Development (DFID) secondees, draw upon the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) fund for business related allowance and travel costs. It is a matter for UNDP to determine whether to publish details of costs.

DFID seconded one staff member to the Wolfensohn team and one to the Blair team. DFID has paid £75,080 directly to its secondees for accommodation, travel and expenses. We cannot provide greater detail of this expenditure for matters of personal privacy. All costs are checked to ensure they were essential to fulfilling the individual's duties as a secondee to the Office of the Quartet Special Representative.

Rice: Prices

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment he has made of the likely effects of the rising cost of rice on the poorest developing countries. [202574]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK Government are very concerned about the effect of rising food prices, including rice, on developing countries, where the poorest can spend as much as 90 per cent. of their income on food. Rice prices are now over $1,000 a tonne, in part due to additional demand as some governments seek to replenish strategic food reserves.

There are already 850 million people who don't get enough to eat, and as prices rise these numbers will increase. That is why the UK Government have announced a £455 million aid package to provide assistance to those hardest hit and taken the lead by calling for the international community to urgently develop a co-ordinated strategy to tackle this critical problem.

Sri Lanka: Overseas Aid

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent on aid for Sri Lanka in each year since 1997; and to what Sri Lankan (a) governmental body, (b) non-governmental organisations and (b) inter-governmental organisations this funding was given. [203205]

Mr. Malik: Between 1997-2007, the Department for International Development's (DFID) total bilateral programme aid to Sri Lanka was £71.4 million. This includes project aid, technical assistance, humanitarian aid, debt relief and Global Conflict Prevention Pool (GCPP) funds. DFID's bilateral programme to Sri Lanka ended in March 2007. DFID now works with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) and the Ministry of Defence (MOD) to provide peace building support to Sri Lanka by pooling funds through the Conflict Prevention Pool (CPP). DFID's 2007-08 CPP contributions stand at £1.5 million. The breakdown of spend per year 1997-2007 is provided in the following table.

DFID bilateral spend in Sri Lanka between 1997 and 2007

Governmental Departments

DFID does not provide (and has not provided) Direct Budget Support to the Government of Sri Lanka (GoSL). Support to the Government was principally through debt relief during 1998-2000 and again in 2005-07. In spring 2007 the GoSL was unable to meet the criteria required for debt relief due to its violation of human rights and debt relief was suspended. DFID has provided some technical assistance to the Government through, for example, the GoSL/UNICEF Joint Strategy for Internally Displaced Peoples, the Government's education programme via the World Bank Education Trust Fund, and provision of training for the Sri Lankan police force.

Between 1997 and 2007, DFID also supported the following organisations:

Non-governmental organisations

Norwegian Refugee Council, Save the Children Fund UK, Oxfam, Islamic Relief, Centre for Poverty Analysis, ZOA Refugee Care, Mercy Corps, RedR, International Health Partners, Halo Trust, Christian Aid.

Inter-governmental organisations/multilaterals

UNICEF, World Bank, United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), Food and Agricultural Organisation (FAO), International Committee for the Red Cross (ICRC), Commonwealth Scholarship Fellow Plan, Asian Development Bank (ADB).

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Shares: Sales Methods

Mr. Djanogly: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) which agencies of the Government are taking steps to counter the risk of illegal share sale boiler room operations; what mechanisms are in place to ensure inter-agency liaison and information-sharing; and if he will make a statement; [203625]

(2) what steps the Government plans to take against illegal share sale boiler room operations; [203626]

(3) what recent representations he has received on illegal share sale boiler room operations; [203627]

(4) what estimate he has made of losses to private individuals from illegal share sale boiler room operations; [203629]

(5) whether he plans to issue guidance on countering illegal share sale boiler room operations; [203630]

(6) what steps he has taken to raise public awareness of the activities of illegal share sale boiler room operations. [203631]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

The overall position is that the Government are delivering a multi-agency response to the threat posed by so-called boiler room frauds. These typically involve the use of high-pressure sales techniques by groups operating abroad to sell worthless or non-existent investments.

There has been a coordinated approach as law enforcement agencies, Government Departments and regulators have worked together on several initiatives. These have included:

1. Strengthening prevention through greater education and advice to the public, with recent campaigns delivered by the

Financial Services Authority (FSA), the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) and the city of London police;

2. A major enforcement-led initiative to target the key organisers of boiler room networks. This involved significant joint working between UK enforcement agencies and partners overseas;

3. Creating a more hostile environment for boiler room operations based in other EU member states by reinforcing the European framework for regulating the provision of investment advice.

In the future, action against boiler rooms will be strengthened further by the creation of the National Fraud Strategic Authority, which will have an explicit mandate to lead and coordinate national counter-fraud efforts, to ensure maximum impact against serious threats of fraud.

In parallel, the creation of a national fraud reporting centre will boost the ability of law enforcement agencies to take intelligence-led action against complex fraud networks, such as those responsible for boiler rooms.

The number of representations received from time to time by the various departments and agencies involved is low. These occasional representations are typically on behalf of individual constituents who have fallen victim to boiler room frauds.

No estimate of the losses incurred by consumers is available. However, a number of other reports seek to describe and quantify the problem. For example, a report published by the Office of Fair Trading in December 2006 on 'Research on impact of mass marketed scams' discussed the nature and size of the problem of high-risk investment scams. That category covered, but was not confined to, what is usually understood by "boiler room" frauds. The FSA published the results of a study of boiler room victims who had contacted their consumer centre in June 2006. Any estimate of the extent or cost of the problem is affected by the reluctance of some people to report that they have been the victim of a boiler room fraud.

Prevention is an important part of any strategy to reduce the impact of boiler room frauds. That requires effective law enforcement action, and action to raise consumer awareness of the existence and nature of these frauds. Accordingly a number of agencies issue guidance and raise awareness about boiler room frauds. These include the FSA, the Home Office, the Metropolitan and city of London police forces, and the OFT. The FSA for example has recently engaged with radio features and news programmes, television, regional and local radio, and various written media. In addition following FSA agreement with registrars existing shareholders will receive warnings about the threat of boiler rooms.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices: Immigration

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment his Department has made of the effect of immigration on the availability of training opportunities and apprenticeships to British workers. [199853]

Bill Rammell: The Government are committed to up-skilling British workers to provide them with the skills required in a competitive labour market. Migrant workers from outside the European Union, not ordinarily resident in the UK for at least three years, are not eligible to Government funded training places such as apprenticeships. Apprenticeship starts have increased from 65,000 in 1996/97 to 180,000 in 2006/07. They are projected to grow to almost 210,000 by 2010/11. By 2013, we will ensure that an apprenticeship is available to all qualified young people. Train to Gain has engaged over 77,000 employers with more then 363,000 workers starting learning programmes. We have ambitious plans to expand Train to Gain with increased funding from around £520 million this year to over £1 billion in 2010.

Departmental Written Questions

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what proportion of questions tabled to his Department for written answer on a named day have been answered on the day named in the current Session. [204208]

Mr. Lammy: Since the beginning of the 2007-08 Session and up to 30 April 2008, the Department has received a total of 1,272 PQs—parliamentary questions—153 named day and 1,119 ordinary written PQs. The manual check of all named day PQs carried out to monitor the timeliness of replies for the months of November 2007 to April 2008 are shown in the following table.

Mature Students: Finance

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government has taken to increase support available to mature students since 1997. [203734]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 7 May 2008]: Before 2006, loans were limited to students aged under 55, or under 50 for students not intending to enter employment upon graduating. During the passage of the Higher Education Act, concerns were raised about the upper age limits: the Government set up a working group which recommended that there should be no age limit applied to the fee loan when this was introduced in 2006, and a review of the existing age limits on maintenance loans with the intention of increasing this to match the state pension age for the 2006-07 academic year. Consequently, mature students are generally eligible for the same student support as other students, though maintenance loans are available only to those aged under 60. In 2006-07 the age limit for applying for a student loan was raised to 60 years of age and the additional requirement for the student to enter into an agreement to work after their studies was removed.

Students over 25 years of age ('mature students') are treated as independent, and are assessed on their own income (and the income of their spouse or partner where applicable) and not on the income of their parents. For full-time students, fee loans of up to £3,070 (£3,145 in 2008-09) ensure that no one has to pay their fees upfront students under the age of 60 are eligible for maintenance loans of up to £6,315 (£6,475 in 2008-09)[1]. Means-tested grants of up to £2,765 (£2,835 in 2008-09) are available to new students. From 2008-09, we are increasing the income thresholds for the means tested maintenance grant so many more full-time students, including mature students, will receive grant support. This will mean that one third of all eligible students in England entering higher education in the academic year 2008-09 are expected to be entitled to a full non-repayable grant worth £2,835 and another one third are expected to be entitled to a partial grant.

[1] This is the maximum amount available to students studying in London. Students studying elsewhere can receive up to £4,510 (£4,625 in 2008-09)

They can also access targeted support including the adult dependants grant, parents learning allowance, childcare grant and disabled students allowance. students may also qualify for a bursary from their higher education institution. Students may also apply for support from the access to learning fund, a university-administered fund for students experiencing financial hardship.

Student parents are eligible to receive child tax credit from Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs. Mature students who do not qualify for undergraduate student support may be eligible for a career development loan which has an element of subsidy from public funds.

Students: Loans

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills who took the decision to link the interest rate on student loans to the retail price index; and if he will make a statement. [202579]

Bill Rammell: Parliament determined the interest rate to be paid on student loans. The principle is that borrowers should repay the same amount, in real terms, as they borrowed. To achieve this, the rate of interest is the retail price index (RPI), although the method for determining the rate of interest varies depending on the type of loan.

Older 'mortgage style' loans are credit agreements under the Consumer Credit Act 1974. The interest rate is determined in accordance with the Education (Student Loans) Regulations 1998 which prescribe the rate of interest to be equal to the RPI so long as that index is published.

Income contingent repayment loans are 'low interest loans' exempt under section 16(5) (b) of the Consumer Credit Act 1974. Interest is calculated in accordance with the Education (Student Support) Regulations 2007, as amended, and is the lower of the rate which the Secretary of State determines is appropriate to maintain the real value of the loans (RPI), or 1 per cent. above the highest of the base rates published by the banks listed in Regulation 4 of the Consumer Credit (Exempt Agreements) Order 1989. Accordingly, there is potential for the interest rates for the two types of loans to differ but, to date, the RPI rate has consistently applied since 1990 to 'mortgage style' loans and since 1998 to income contingent loans.

Students: Per Capita Costs

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the average expenditure from the public purse was per student on (a) higher education and (b) training and skills in each parliamentary constituency in the North West in each year since 1997. [202731]

Mr. Lammy: Expenditure incurred by the Learning and Skills Council, HEFCE—the Higher Education Funding Council for England—and the Student Loans Company is not collected by my Department at the level of detail requested. We will however, work with HEFCE and the Student Loans Company to try to gain a detailed break down of the higher education expenditure and will write to the hon. Member with further relevant detail.

[1] A full-time equivalent learner is defined as the total guided learning hours divided by 450 (maximum of one FTE per learner).
[2] The funding allocated per FTE to the colleges and FE providers located in the local authority (excluding additional learning support).
[3] School sixth form learner numbers (these are predominantly full-time learners).
[4] Funding allocated per learner (including pensions funding, but excluding the block LA SEN allocation).
Note:
In FE, additional learning support was not allocated by age band and therefore it is not possible to split between 16-18 and 19+ (this is changing in 2008/09). All above figures are based on the allocations made to the schools, colleges and other providers located in that LA area. The learners recruited may not be resident in the same LA area.

UK Commission for Employment and Skills: Public Appointments

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills whether Sector Skills Council board members or officers are able to serve on the board of the UK Commission for Employment and Skills. [203924]

Mr. Lammy: Sector skills council board members are able to serve on the board of the UK Commission for Employment and Skills. Sector skills council board members were also able to serve on the board of the former Sector Skills Development Agency (SSDA). Many of the functions of the SSDA transferred to the UK Commission for Employment and Skills from 1 April 2008.

Vocational Training: Energy

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what vocational training and courses are available to provide the skills needed for the energy efficiency and renewable energy sectors; and whether there are plans further to establish such courses. [202628]

Mr. Lammy: The Government are committed to developing a sustainable, innovative and productive economy that delivers a high level of employment, and a just society that promotes social inclusion, sustainable communities and personal well-being.

The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) is responsible for the commissioning and funding of post-16 education and training up to (but not including) higher education. Information on the number and type of courses is an operational matter for the LSC and I have asked Mark Haysom, the LSC chief executive, to write to the hon. Gentleman with further information. A copy of his reply will be placed in the House Library.

Letter from Mark Haysom, dated 8 May 2008:

I am writing in response to your Parliamentary Question that asked:

What vocational training and course are available to provide the skills needed for the energy efficiency and renewable energy sectors; and whether there are plans further to establish such courses.

The LSC holds data on vocational learning in England that is funded through the public purse. Through Colleges of Further Education and other training providers we support business and individuals to acquire the skills that they need to achieve personal and organisation aims.

However, the actual content of qualifications is largely decided by the Sector Skills Councils, who represent employers in different sectors, and Awarding Bodies who develop qualifications to meet market need. There are a range of Sector Skills Councils with responsibility for occupations that require skills in energy efficiency and renewable energy, and as such no one Sector Skills Council is accountable specifically for this area of skill. The SSCs with most interest in renewables and energy efficiency include Construction Skills, Energy and Utility Skills, Built Environment (Summit Skills), property and facilities (Asset Skills), energy production and polymers (Cogent) and a range of manufacturing SSCs. Combined, these sectors account for a significant proportion of funded provision in England.

The SSCs are already supporting changes to provision, and courses are already being updated in line with the newest developments for example the addition of condensing boilers into standard heating and plumbing provision. Within the Energy and Utility Skills Sector Skills Council footprint there are 342 learning aims available to the sector, which represent 287 different qualifications. Within 2006/2007 there were a total of 11,781 individuals who enrolled on these qualifications which shows an increase of 17% on the previous year. In addition to these qualifications there are four apprenticeship frameworks specifically developed for the sector. The SSC will work with Awarding Bodies to ensure that the latest skills are taught within these programmes.

The courses available in the future will be largely developed in response to the requirements set out by Sector Skills Councils. Each SSC is currently producing a Sector Qualification Strategy (SQS) covering all skills and qualifications required by their sector, and this must be fully implemented by 2010 at the latest, supported by appropriate National Occupational Standards and robust Labour Market Intelligence. The SQS will set out the need for accredited qualifications and other learning provision in each sector, as part of the SQS, each SSC will produce an action plan with more detail about qualifications which they view as no longer fit for purpose or supported by employers (and which therefore should be removed) and those qualifications which need to be reformed or where new qualifications need to be developed. This process will provide the mechanism for updating skills in line with new technology.

In England, from August 2009 the LSC will align public funding with those qualifications highlighted in SQS and Action Plans which LSC identify as a priority for public funding (mediated by LSC and government targets and priorities). Where the LSC deems a qualification as not fit for purpose, the qualification will be made ineligible for continued public funding. This will ensure that up to date qualifications receive funding and out of date skills are no longer supported.

TREASURY

Bingo

Mr. Godsiff: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues in the Department for Communities and Local Government on the impact of bingo club closures; and what the outcome was of those discussions. [204482]

Angela Eagle: Treasury Ministers and officials have regular discussions with the Department for Communities and Local Government about a range of issues.

Excise Duties: Fuels

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what estimate he has made of the revenue to the Exchequer which will accrue from taxation of petrol and diesel in 2008-09 if fuel prices remain at their current level; and what forecast he made for such revenues for 2008-09 in Budget 2008; [203778]

(2) what assumption was made in Budget 2008 about the price of a litre of petrol; [203779]

(3) what the tax take is on a litre of petrol costing 110 pence at the pump. [203781]

Angela Eagle: The current fuel duty payable on a litre of petrol is 50.35p and is the total amount of tax paid by businesses that can reclaim VAT. For households and businesses that cannot reclaim VAT, it is charged as 17.5 per cent. on the sum of the pre-tax price of petrol and fuel duty.

In estimating the impact on receipts of spending on fuel it is necessary to take into account a broad and complex range of reclaims and displacement factor, over a reasonable period of time.

The forecast revenue for 2008-09 from fuel duty is published in table C.6 of the 2008 Financial Statement and Budget Report. This can be found at:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/budget/budget_08/report/bud_bud08_repindex.cfm

Road fuel duties are charged at a fixed amount per litre and higher road fuel prices generally reduce revenues from fuel duties as they result in lower fuel consumption. The impact of higher oil prices on overall tax revenues and the public finances is complex, and will depend on their wider impact on the economy in general, including the effect on factors such as profitability and retail prices. Reliable estimates of the impact of changes in prices are not available.

The petrol price incorporated into the Budget 2008 forecast for fuel duties was consistent with the NAO—National Audit Office—audited assumption on oil prices. This assumed that oil prices would average $83.8 a barrel in 2008, the average of independent forecasts.

Government Departments: Sustainable Development

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many Government departments have (a) approached Salix for assistance and (b) received assistance (from whatever source) in response to the procedure outlined on pages 4 and 5 in the UK Government Sustainable Procurement Action Plan. [202547]

Angela Eagle: As part of the OGC Collaborative Procurement work, the energy team has been working closely with Salix and the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs to promote Salix's funding opportunities. To date Salix have met with the following Departments:

Department for Environment, Food, and Rural Affairs
Ministry of Defence
Cabinet Office
HM Revenue and Customs
Department for Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform Department for Communities and Local Government
Ministry of Justice Department for Work and Pensions

Salix currently have an £800,000 fund committed to Defra.

The Carbon Trust also offers a range of support to Government Departments. In the 2007-08 financial year, following the publication of the Sustainable Procurement Action Plan, the Carbon Trust assisted the following Departments:

Cabinet Office
Department for Culture, Media and Sport
Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs
Department for International Development Department for Transport
Department of Health
Foreign and Commonwealth Office
HM Revenue and Customs
HM Treasury
HM Prisons Service
Ministry of Defence
Office of National Statistics
Export Credits Guarantee Department

Minimum Wage: Prosecutions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, columns 143-4W, on minimum wage: prosecutions, how many employers have appealed against a minimum wage arrears enforcement notice in each year since the minimum wage was introduced, broken down by region. [203860]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available in the format requested.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, columns 143-44W, on minimum wage: prosecutions, how many and what proportion of minimum wage enforcement notices have become due in each year since the introduction of the minimum wage, broken down by region. [203861]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, columns 143-44W, on minimum wage: prosecutions, what arrangements are in place to check that employers who previously accrued minimum wage arrears are now compliant; and if he will make a statement. [203864]

Jane Kennedy: Her Majesty's Revenue and Customs periodically conduct reviews of a sample of closed cases where they previously identified arrears. This review involves compliance officers revisiting employers to ensure that they are continuing to pay the minimum wage and have implemented any advice that HMRC provided in respect of record keeping.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, columns 143-44W, on minimum wage: prosecutions, how many employers have had a case relating to minimum wage arrears heard before an employment tribunal in each year since the minimum wage was introduced; and how many of these appeals were successfully upheld. [203865]

Jane Kennedy: The following table provides information about the employment tribunal cases involving HMRC (formerly Inland Revenue) enforcing the minimum wage. The cases include both employer appeals against enforcement notices and other cases taken by HMRC. There would also have been other employment tribunal cases concerning minimum wage that went forward without HMRC involvement.

	Cases before an employment tribunal involving HMRC	Successful employer appeals
1999-2000	12	0
2000-01	26	0
2001-02	27	10
2002-03	24	2
2003-04	7	2
2004-05	8	2
2005-06	9	2
2006-07	7	4
2007-08	10	2

In recent years, where an enforcement notice has not been appealed or complied with, HMRC have sought arrears through county court action, rather than through the employment tribunal.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, columns 143-44W, on minimum wage: prosecutions, how many employers have been recorded as having (a) obstructed minimum wage compliance officers and (b) failed to produce required records in each year since the minimum wage was introduced, broken down by region. [203867]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC does not keep statistics on the number of employers who have obstructed their compliance officers or failed to produce records. In 2007 there were two successful prosecutions of employers, one for obstructing a compliance officer and one for failing to produce records, in the London and South West regions. In 2008 there has been a successful prosecution of an employer in the East Midlands for failing to produce records.

Northern Rock

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the costs incurred by (a) Virgin, (b) Olivant and (c) Northern Rock's management team in connection with their bids for

Northern Rock which will be reimbursed to them by (i) Northern Rock and (ii) the Treasury. [189112]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 26 February 2008]: Reimbursement of bidding related costs by Northern Rock to bidders is a commercial matter between them. HM Treasury has no plans to reimburse the costs in question.

Figures for costs of advisers incurred by Northern Rock on its own behalf and for other parties in 2007 were included in their published accounts for 2007:

http://companyinfo.northernrock.co.uk/downloads/2007_annual_report.pdf.

Adam Price: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what proportion of the totals for (a) other liabilities and (b) other assets listed in the Bank of England's consolidated statement of 20 February is directly related to its financial support for Northern Rock. [189886]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 27 February 2008]: The Government do not generally comment on the Bank of England lending to individual institutions, which is a commercial matter between the Bank and that institution.

Northern Rock published its accounts for 2007 on 31 March 2008 at:

http://companyinfo.northernrock.co.uk/downloads/2007_annual_report.pdf

This includes some details about its outstanding loans from the Bank of England. The company operates at arm's length from the Government on commercial principles. It is a matter for its management to release further business updates.

Northern Rock: Guernsey

Adam Price: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 660W, on Northern Rock: consultants, whether the management of Northern Rock has now indicated to the Government its intention with regard to Northern Rock Guernsey Ltd; and whether the Government have indicated to the management of Northern Rock their preferred course of action with regard to this subsidiary. [199986]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 21 April 2008]: During this period of temporary public ownership, Northern Rock is managed by its board at arm's length from Government on commercial principles.

Northern Rock has published a business plan and a shareholder relationship framework agreement based on which HM Treasury will operate its shareholder relationship with the company. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has approved the two documents and has placed copies of the documents in the Library of both Houses.

Northern Rock: Public Appointments

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what process resulted in the appointment of (a) Ron Sandler as Executive Chair and (b) Ann Godbehere as Chief Financial Officer of Northern Rock. [188858]

Kitty Ussher: Mr. Sandler and Ms Godbehere were appointed through a process that was in line with common industry practice of recruiting senior managers.

The Financial Services Authority has confirmed that both of them are suitable persons to direct the business.

Royal Mint: Grayling Political Strategy

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what payments the Royal Mint made to Grayling Political Strategy in each of the last five years; on what dates; and for what purpose the payments were made in each case. [202257]

Angela Eagle: Payments to Grayling Political Strategy by the Royal Mint in 2006-07 and 2007-08 were £61,792 and £84,388 respectively. These payments related to a retainer fee, press services and other miscellaneous items. No payments were made in earlier years.

Taxation: Pensioners

Mr. Swayne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the amount of tax overpaid by pensioners who opt for four weekly or quarterly pension payments but whose tax codes assume 52 weekly payments in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [203297]

Kitty Ussher: Individuals are liable to income tax on the amount of pension income, including the state pension, they are entitled to receive in a tax year. They can choose to be paid their state pension weekly in advance, or four-weekly or quarterly in arrears. As this does not alter the amount of their income liable to tax, individuals do not overpay tax by virtue of being paid their state pension four-weekly or quarterly in arrears.

Tax is not deducted at source from state pension payments. Where an individual has another source of income which is under pay-as-you-earn (PAYE), HM Revenue and Customs will include the individual's full state pension entitlement in their tax code so that, as far as possible, the right amount of income tax is deducted at source for the year.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what critical military gaps remain to be filled in the NATO military requirement for Afghanistan. [203417]

Des Browne [holding answer 6 May 2008]: The Bucharest Summit saw a number of nations make significant additional commitments to the International Security Assistance Force; in particular President Sarkozy confirmed the deployment of an additional battalion of French troops to the east of the country.

Nevertheless, there remains a need for more training and mentoring personnel; combat forces in the south and east of Afghanistan; and key enablers, such as helicopters, to meet the Combined Joint Statement of Requirements for Afghanistan. The UK continues to work with partners to address these shortfalls.

Air Force: Deployment

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel were stationed at permanent commitment Royal Air Force bases in (a) the Falkland Islands, (b) Cyprus, (c) Nevada, (d) Gibraltar and (e) Ascension Island at the latest date for which figures are available. [203675]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As of April 2008, the information requested is as follows.

There are currently 489 service personnel stationed at RAF Akrotiri in Cyprus, 38 service personnel stationed at RAF Gibraltar and 17 service personnel stationed at Ascension Island Base.

There is no separate RAF base in the Falkland Islands, although the RAF units form an integral part of British Forces South Atlantic Island. There are 533 service personnel who are directly associated with RAF operations in the Falkland Islands.

There is no RAF base in Nevada. However, there are 80 service personnel serving with 39 Squadron RAF permanently based there.

Armed Forces: Females

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many women joined the (a) Royal Air Force, (b) Royal Navy and (c) Army in each of the last 10 years. [203655]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 6 May 2008]: The number of women joining the UK Regular Armed Forces 1 in the last 10 years can be found in Table 3 of Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 1—Strength, Intake and Outflow of UK Regular Forces. TSP 1 is published monthly. The most recent publication shows figures for the 12 months to 1 March 2008 and can be found at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tspl/intake.html.

Copies of TSP 1 are available in the Library of the House and at www.dasa.mod.uk

Figures show all intake to the UK Regular Forces including re-enlistments and rejoined reservists.

Armed Forces: Housing

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps his Department is taking to help (a) service personnel and (b) service leavers onto the property ladder. [203982]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence (MOD) encourages Service personnel to prepare for their return to civilian life during their careers by purchasing their own homes. A Long Service Advance of Pay is available which currently consists of an interest-free loan of up to £8,500. In September 2006, Service personnel were given access to the Department for Communities and Local Government (DCLG) Key Worker Living programme (KWL). On 28 December, the Government extended the scheme for KWL low cost home ownership schemes for qualifying Service personnel across all English regions. This will continue to give additional routes for Service personnel to enter the housing market.

In addition, we announced in a written statement on 19 March 2008 that we are launching a new initiative on home ownership for Service personnel. This will be a pilot scheme tailored to the particular needs of Service personnel. In the coming months we will work with commercial providers and public bodies to identify the most suitable approach. £20 million has been allocated for this pilot scheme which will be launched during financial year 2009-10 and run for up to four years.

The MOD also has a Joint Service Housing Advice Office that gives regular briefings which are available to all Service personnel. In addition to these, they can provide detailed advice and information on specific aspects related to sourcing accommodation. Service leavers may also be provided with assistance to find housing, although this would not necessarily be related to the property ladder'.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of service accommodation units owned by Annington Homes have been sold since 1997. [203984]

Derek Twigg: Once surplus properties are handed back to Annington Homes Ltd. (AHL) there is no requirement for the Department to maintain records of their subsequent use or sale.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many British members of the (a) Army, (b) Navy and (c) RAF left the service before their term of service was due to end in 2007. [193363]

Derek Twigg: The following table shows the number of British personnel to leave the UK regular forces[1] during the calendar year 2007 (for Naval service and RAF) and during calendar year 2006 for the Army.

Business area	Outflow[3] before time expiry
Navy	[4]3,510
Army[2]	11,650
RAF	[4]2,880

[1] Figures are for UK regular forces and therefore include nursing services and exclude full time reserve service personnel, Gurkhas, the Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment and mobilised reservists. It includes trained and untrained personnel.
[2] Due to ongoing validation of data from the new Personnel Administration System, all Army Voluntary Applications data from 1 April 2007 are unavailable. Therefore the Army outflow figure is for the calendar year of 2006.
[3] Figures include all outflow to civil life excluding time expiry.
[4] Data are provisional.

Numbers are rounded to the nearest 10

Armed Forces: Pensions

Mr. Mates: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the annual cost to the public purse of increasing the pension entitlement of those forces' widows receiving one-third of their late husband's pension entitlement to one-half. [197894]

Derek Twigg: I refer the right hon. Member to the answer given by the then Minister for the Armed Forces on 18 January 2002, Official Report, column 500W. The situation remains unchanged.

Army

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his most recent assessment is of the Army's capability to react to the unexpected. [203773]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Army and armed forces as a whole continues to plan for contingencies and should the unexpected occur we would respond accordingly.

Army: Labour Turnover

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people have (a) joined and (b) left the regular Army since 2005. [203718]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of people joining the regular Army since 2005 can be found in Table 3 of Tri-Service Publication (TSP) 1—Strength, Intake and Outflow of UK Regular Forces. The number of people leaving the Army since 2005 can be found in Table 4 of the same publication. TSP1 is published monthly. The most recent publication shows figures for 1 April 2003 to 1 March 2008 and can be found at http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tspl/intake.html for intake[1] and http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tspl/outflow.html for outflow[2]. Copies of TSP1 are available in the Library of the House and also at http://www.dasa.mod.uk.

[1] Figures show all intake to UK Regular Forces including re-enlistments and rejoined reservists.

[2] Figures show all outflow from UK Regular Forces including recalled reservists on release and outflow to the Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment.

Ballistic Missile Defence

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the memorandum of agreement concerning the Ballistic Missile Early Warning Station at Fylingdales Moor of 1960. [203583]

Des Browne: I presume that the hon. Member is referring to the document entitled Exchange of Notes between the United States of America and the UK relating to a Ballistic Missile Early Warning Station at Fylingdales Moor dated 15 February 1960. This document is available on the United Nations website at http://untreaty.un.org/unts/1_60000/10/40/00019975.pdf. I shall also place a copy of the document in the Library of the House.

Departmental Pay

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the cost of (a) salaries for permanent Civil Service posts, (b) salaries for permanent non-Civil Service posts and (c) payments to temporary or agency workers in his Department was in each month since May 2005. [199622]

Derek Twigg: The costs for the financial years 2005-06 and 2006-07 are as follows:

	2005-06	£ million 2006-07
Permanent civil service staff	1,809	1,803
Permanent non-civil service staff	258	246
Temporary/agency staff	377	504

Figures are derived from the annual report and accounts and reflect personnel employed within the Departmental Boundary for the Annual Accounts, and therefore exclude Trading Funds.

The figure for permanent non-civil service staff includes locally engaged civilians employed overseas, and Ministers. The figure for temporary and agency staff includes both directly employed casual staff and payments to contractors for agency staff. Monthly figures could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what allowances and bonuses civilian staff receive for being located to (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [203209]

Derek Twigg: Civil servants deployed on operations in Iraq and Afghanistan receive two operational allowances and one grant. The operational deployment allowance reflects the day-to-day challenges and hardships of life in an operational theatre compared to the normal living and working environment. The operational working allowance, which differs depending on location and grade, reflects the significantly longer hours associated with operational posts. Finally, an operational deployment grant covers the additional cost of suitable clothing, personal effects and luggage for the area of deployment.

There are no bonuses awarded specifically for being located in Iraq or Afghanistan but service here counts towards the consideration of annual performance awards in the same way as all other Ministry of Defence civil servants.

Departmental Property

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what property his Department owns (a) in London, (b) elsewhere in the UK and (c) overseas; and what the latest available valuation of the property was in each case. [203511]

Derek Twigg: Details of all Ministry of Defence holdings over £1 million and their latest asset valuation are available in Chapter 7 of the National Asset Register (CM7022), which can be found on HM Treasury's website.

Records of all MOD property below £1 million in value could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ex-servicemen: Pensions

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what proportion of former service personnel is receiving a pension from his Department. [203456]

Derek Twigg: The proportion of former service personnel receiving a pension cannot be identified as the overall number of surviving veterans is not known. However, the number of pensions in payment, broken down by scheme is as follows:

Pension scheme	Pensions in payment
War Disablement pension scheme	167,700
Armed Forces pension scheme	295,824
Armed Forces compensation scheme	29
Reserve Forces pension scheme	33
Total number of pensions in payment	463,586

Iraq: Detainees

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 20 March 2008, Official Report, column 1310W, on Iraq: detainees, what monitoring and administration of individuals in detention is necessary; and what the UK's reporting obligations are to the International Committee of the Red Cross. [200806]

Des Browne [holding answer 24 April 2008]: In order to ensure that we can effectively administer individuals while they are detained by the UK armed forces, it is necessary to obtain and record some personal details. This is important, for example, to enable the relevant persons, such as their next of kin, to be informed of their detention and the location in which they are being detained. We collect information on an individual throughout their time in our detention, including their date of capture, medical records, and the date of release or transfer.

We are obliged, as laid out in the Coalition Provisional Authority Memorandum Number 3 (Revised), to report to the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) information on individuals we have in our detention in Iraq and to grant the ICRC access to them.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of the armed forces' helicopter fleet of the types (a) Apache, (b) Gazelle, (c) Lynx Mk3, (d) Lynx Mk7, (e) Lynx Mk8, (f) Lynx Mk9, (g) Merlin Mk1 and (h) Merlin Mk3 were deployed on operations in the last 12 months. [202153]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I am withholding the information requested as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

RAF Brize Norton

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of (a) single living accommodation and (b) service family accommodation are in each standard for condition grade at RAF Brize Norton. [203210]

Derek Twigg: All single living accommodation (SLA) in Great Britain is assessed by grade for charge (GfC), an assessment of the chargeable condition which takes into account physical condition along with other factors such as the size of the property and closeness to amenities. Service family accommodation (SFA) in Great Britain is assessed by standard for condition (SfC), an assessment of the physical condition of the property alone. In both standard and grade, one is the highest and four the lowest.

SLA at RAF Brize Norton is at the following GfC

	Number of SLA bed-spaces	As a percentage of the total stock
Grade 1	688	32
Grade 2	303	14
Grade 3	587	27
Grade 4	580	27

SFA is at the following SfC

	Number of SFA properties	As a percentage of the total stock
S1fC	308	26
S2fC	532	45

While the Department recognises that some accommodation at Brize Norton is not of the standard that service personnel and their families deserve we are taking steps to address this. We plan to invest over £38 million to deliver some 670 new en-suite bed-spaces by 2012 after which around 70 per cent. of the SLA at Brize Norton will be at Grade 1 or 2. There will be no occupied Grade 4 accommodation at Brize Norton after 2008-09.

Regarding SFA, we plan to demolish and rebuild to the highest standard some 600 of the poorest condition SFA properties.

From 2012, RAF Brize Norton will become the UK's single air port of embarkation for the deployment and recovery of forces and material committed to operations and training. Programme CATARA (the Centralisation of Air Transport and Air to Air Refuelling assets and Associated Units), is taking forward the development and reconfiguration of the station's infrastructure to ensure RAF Brize Norton's future contribution to the Defence output can be delivered effectively and efficiently. In connection with this project, we will provide an additional 200 SFA.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children in Care: General Certificate of Secondary Education

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what percentage of eligible children in care were not entered for any GCSE in each of the last 10 years; [203591]

(2) how many and what percentage of eligible children in care did not achieve five A* to C grades at GCSE including English and mathematics in each of the last 10 years; [203592]

(3) how many and what percentage of eligible children in care were not entered for an English, mathematics, science or foreign language GCSE in each year since 1997. [203594]

Jim Knight: The national data collections on the educational outcomes for looked-after children were introduced in 2000. Data collected since 2000 and published in "Outcome Indicators for Looked After Children Twelve months to 30 September", show the GCSE performance or equivalents of children who were looked after for at least 12 months. The available information for England is shown in the table.

OC2 Survey.

Although we do not collect figures on the number of children looked after who were entered for a GCSE, we do have information on the number who sat at least one GCSE/GNVQ. This is shown in the table.

We do not collect information about the number of looked-after children who achieve GCSE grades in individual subjects. However, these data are available at a local level enabling local authorities to set targets for the attainment of looked-after children at key stage 4 which include English and mathematics. These targets are negotiated with the National Strategies and Government offices and form a statutory part of a local authority's local area agreement.

Since 1997, there has been an unprecedented focus at national and local level on improving outcomes for looked-after children. Over a five-year period from 1998, the Government invested £885 million through the Quality Protects initiative and a further £113 million through their Choice Protects funding. Looked-after children often have highly complex needs and improving their outcomes is a top Government priority.

In-spite of improvements, outcomes are nowhere near good enough. That is why we are now building on the Care Standards Act 2002, which introduced National Minimum Standards for children's services, and the Children (Leaving Care) Act 2000, which for the first time provided a legislative framework to support care leavers make the transition to adulthood. We have made nearly £300 million extra available to deliver "Care Matters: Time for Change" and the implementation plan "Care Matters: Time to deliver for children in care", including the introduction of a personal education allowance for all looked-after children who are at risk of not reaching the expected national standards of attainment. Through the Children and Young Persons Bill, currently before Parliament, we intend to require all schools to have a designated teacher to champion the needs of looked-after children and to ensure that local authorities do everything possible to avoid disrupting their education and training.

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what recent estimate he has made of the proportion of nursery children who travel to and from nursery (a) by car, (b) by public transport, (c) on foot and (d) by bicycle. [200559]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold complete data relating to mode of travel to school. Provision of this information is only compulsory for those schools with an approved Travel Plan. The scope of collection includes: maintained nursery, primary and secondary schools, city technology colleges, academies and special schools.

In the spring 2007 School Census, mode of travel data was supplied for almost 70 per cent. of pupils. The available information relating to nursery pupils is provided in the following table.

LA maintained nursery and primary schools[1]: nursery pupils by mode of travel[2,3], as at January 2007, England

	Nursery pupils[2]

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many child care staff left the profession within (a) one, (b) two, (c) three, (d) four and (e) five years of entering the profession in the latest period for which figures are available. [204159]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Children's Centres

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of children's centres to be located in the super output areas ranked in the (a) first to third, (b) fourth to seventh and (c) eighth to tenth deciles of deprivation by 2010. [204177]

Beverley Hughes: Local authorities are responsible for the planning and delivery of Sure Start children's centres. There are currently 2,906 designated centres. On average we expect children's centres to offer services to around 800 children under five and their families so in practice one children's centre will serve a number of Super Output Areas (SOAs), as well as the SOA in which it is located. From the information provided by local authorities to our delivery partner, Together for Children (TfC), our current estimate is that around two-thirds of designated centres predominantly serve children and families living in the 30 per cent. most disadvantaged SOAs. The remaining centres predominantly serve children and families living outside of the 30 per cent. most disadvantaged SOAs.

Local authorities, supported by TfC, are currently planning the final phase of delivery of the children's centre programme, so that by 2010 there will be 3,500 centres nationally, one for every community. As part of the planning process local authorities are reviewing the reach areas of existing centres to ensure that by 2010 all under fives and their families have access to a children's centre; that the range and intensity of services in each centre reflects the needs of the local community; and that resources continue to be focused on the most disadvantaged areas.

Citizenship: Teachers

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many teachers of citizenship there were in secondary schools in Easington constituency at the most recent date for which figures are available; and what estimate he has made of the average number of hours each week of citizenship teaching which took place in each school in the constituency in the last 12 month. [203786]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not collected centrally.

Information is available for the number of teachers teaching citizenship for England overall from the Secondary Schools Curriculum Staffing Survey (SSCSS) which is an occasional sample survey last conducted in 2002 and 2007. 2007 figures will be published on 29 May 2008. The 2002 survey showed that there were 9,000 teachers in secondary schools teaching citizenship.

Departmental Telephone Services

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what (a) 0800, (b) 0845 and (c) 0870 telephone numbers for the public are in use by (i) his Department and (ii) agencies which report to his Department. [200120]

Kevin Brennan: The information as requested is not readily available centrally within the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). To respond fully would involve an extensive internal and external information collection exercise which would exceed the recommended disproportionate cost threshold. DCSF does not keep central telephony records for its arms length bodies. However, to be helpful, the following information, relating solely to DCSF headquarters, can be provided.

DCSF currently employs a total of 24 non-geographic telephone numbers. These can be categorised broadly into two groups: those for use by citizens; and those for use internally by DCSF staff.

Services used by citizens and accessed by customers calling non-geographic telephone numbers are shown in the following table.

Extended Schools

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number and proportion of secondary schools offering an extended school service (a) at least once a week and (b) more than once a week in each year for which figures are available. [204158]

Beverley Hughes: We expect all schools to be providing access to the full core offer of extended services by 2010. Currently there are 2,004 secondary schools providing the full core offer. All of these will be offering extended services more than once a week. There are many other schools which are already providing access to parts of the core offer that are not yet included in these figures.

General Certificate of Secondary Education

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to his Answer to the hon. Member for Surrey Heath, of 21 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1548-49W, on the general certificate of secondary education, which are the nine schools in the 90 to 100 per cent. least deprived catchments with less than 30 per cent. five A* to C GCSEs, including English and mathematics; and if he will make a statement. [203109]

Jim Knight: The information requested is set out as follows.

The nine schools located in the 90 to 100 per cent. least deprived catchments with less than 30 per cent. five A* to C GCSEs, including English and Mathematics, in 2007 are listed in the following table:

LA name	School name
Bromley	Kelsey Park Sports College
Buckinghamshire	The Beaconsfield School
Essex	Sawyers Hall College of Science and Technology
Kent	Aylesford School Sports College
	New Line Learning Academy[1]
Richmond-upon-Thames	Scheme School
South Gloucestershire	Bradley Stoke Community School[1]
Sutton	Stanley Park High School

Notes:
1. From 2004/05 onwards figures relate to pupils at the end of Key Stage 4. Figures in 2002/03 and 2003/04 relate to 15-year-olds pupils (age at start of academic year, ie 31 August 2002).
2. The figures relate to pupils attending all schools.
3. The figures relate to GCSEs only.

Mathematics: Primary Education

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his policy is on the use of Reform mathematics in the teaching of mathematics in primary schools; and if he will make a statement. [203792]

Jim Knight: The Government do not have a policy relating specifically to the use of Reform mathematics in the teaching of mathematics in primary schools.

However, the Government fully recognise the importance of good quality mathematics teaching in order to improve pupils' achievement in mathematics and their enthusiasm for the subject at all levels of their education. That is why we asked Sir Peter Williams to undertake his review of mathematics teaching in early years settings and primary schools. The review published its interim report on the 19 March 2008 and is set to publish its final report in June 2008.

Primary Education

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library a copy of the datasets on road distance to a primary school for lower layer super output areas provided by the Department for Education and Skills to assist in the compilation of the Index of Deprivation in (a) 2006 and (b) 2007. [203144]

Jim Knight: The Department does not hold the requested information. The 'road distance to primary school' indicators used in the calculation of the 2004 and 2007 Indices of Multiple Deprivation (IMD) were calculated on behalf of colleagues in Communities and Local Government by the Social Disadvantage Research Centre, Department of Social Policy and Social Work, University of Oxford. The indicator used in the calculation of the 2004 Indices, based on information for the academic year 2001/02, is available on the Neighbourhood Statistics website at http://www.statistics.gov.uk/neighbourhood-statistics.asp. I understand that colleagues in Communities and Local Government are seeking the relevant permissions to enable them to publish the underlying indicators of the Index of Multiple Deprivation 2007 at lower super output area level, including those in the geographical barriers sub-domain. It is my understanding that a copy of these indicators will be placed in the Library of the House.

Further information about the underlying indicators used in the calculation of the 2004 and 2007 Indices of Multiple Deprivation is available at the Neighbourhood Statistics and Communities and Local Government websites http://www.communities.gov.uk/publications/communities/indiciesdeprivation07.

Pupils: Per Capita Costs

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average expenditure on each pupil in (a) primary and (b) secondary education in the County of Durham was in each year since 2003. [203789]

Jim Knight: The available information on the average expenditure per pupil in primary and secondary education for Durham is as follows:

	Primary	Secondary
2002-03	2,590	3,140
2003-04	2,810	3,500
2004-05	3,000	3,780
2005-06	3,280	4,090
2006-07	3,480	4,390

Schools: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will estimate the proportion of the education budget which was (a) devolved directly to schools, (b) devolved directly to local authorities and (c) allocated by his Department in 2007-08; and if he will make a statement. [203806]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not yet available. The Department is currently updating this information for its 2008 departmental annual report due to be published at the end of May. I shall write to the hon. Member as soon as the information is available.

Schools: Fire Hazards

Mr. Sheerman: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what plans he has to raise awareness of fire hazards associated with certain types of composite building panels among those involved in the Building Schools for the Future programme. [203709]

Jim Knight: The Department has already published comprehensive guidance on the fire hazards associated with some types of composite building panels in Building Bulletin 100 "Design for fire safety in schools". The Building Bulletin was written for DCSF by the Fire and Safety Unit at the Building Research Establishment and was published in 2007. BB100 is quoted as the compliance document for schools in Approved Document B (Fire Safety) 2006 edition, in support of the Building Regulations. In order to obtain Building Regulations approval, new and refurbished schools, including those in the Building Schools for the Future programme, must comply with Approved Document B.

Appendix B of BB100: Fire behaviour of insulating core panels covers composite building panels and gives design recommendations for their use in schools. This guidance is based on research that BRE carried out for the Home Office in 1996-97 on the fire hazards of some types of composite panels and the findings are valid for many building types, including schools.

Special Educational Needs: Dyslexia

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) if his Department will accredit a specialist qualification, recognised by the British Dyslexia Association, for teachers in assessing and supporting dyslexic children; [204028]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the merits of a system to identify children at risk of dyslexia as early as possible in the education system. [204029]

Kevin Brennan: In a written ministerial statement on 6 May 2008, the Secretary of State for Children, School and Families announced that the Government have asked Sir Jim Rose, in the light of evidence, to make recommendations on the identification and teaching of children with dyslexia, and on how best to take forward the commitment in the Children's Plan to establish a pilot scheme in which children with dyslexia will receive Reading Recovery support or one-to-one tuition from specialist dyslexia teachers. We would expect him to address issues of specialist teaching and early identification.

Specialised Schools

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many secondary schools entitled to but which have not yet become specialist schools there are (a) in each local authority area (b) with a proportion of children entitled to free school meals of (i) under 10 per cent., (ii) over 20 per cent., (iii) over 30 per cent. and (iv) over 40 per cent. and (c) which have applied for, but not been granted, specialist status in the last three years. [201104]

Jim Knight: There are 343 secondary schools eligible to join the Specialist Schools Programme but which have not yet submitted a successful application. The numbers are listed in the following table per local authority. Of these 343 (i) 86 schools have under 10 per cent. of children with free school meals, (ii) 95 schools have over 10 per cent. of children with free school meals, (iii) 78 schools have over 20 per cent. of children with free school meals, (iv) 44 schools have over 30 per cent. of children with free school meals, (v) 33 schools have over 40 per cent. of children with free school meals and (vi) there are seven schools for which we do not have the information. 134 of the schools have applied for specialist status in the last three years but have not been successful. Some of these have schools have applied on more that one occasion during that period.

Teachers: Pay

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the average annual change in earnings of teachers who were continuously employed in the teaching system between 1997 and 2008; and if he will make a statement. [203495]

Jim Knight: Provisional information on the average salary of teachers is available to March 2006. Between April 1997 and March 2006, the average gross salary increase for full-time regular qualified teachers in the local authority maintained sector in England and Wales, who were recorded as being in continuous service during the period, was 73.2 per cent. in cash terms. Taking a simple average across this nine-year period gives an average annual increase of 8.1 per cent.

The figure provided is for teachers of all grades and the salaries, and include all allowances. They are as recorded in March of each year and are from the Database of Teachers Records. Teachers were included where their service was shown as continuous during the period 1 April 1997 and 31 March 2006. In a small number of cases, some of this service may have been completed outside of the local authority maintained sector. Only salaries paid inside the sector have been used in the calculation of the average salary increase.

Teachers: Training

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 250W, on teachers: training, how much has been allocated for spending on the national strategies programmes in each year from 2008-09 to 2011-12; and if he will make a statement. [203905]

Jim Knight: The expected spending on the National Strategies programmes for the period 2008-09 to 2010-11 will be in the region of £488 million, £525 million and £561 million respectively. The increased spending reflects the phased roll-out of the Every Child a Reader, Every Child Counts and Every Child a Writer intervention programmes for children in primary schools.

Funding beyond the 2007 comprehensive spending review has yet to be determined.

JUSTICE

Churches: Wales

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many churches in Wales have been listed in connection with the chancel repair liability provisions of the Land Registration Act 2002. [203991]

Mr. Wills: Land Registry does not hold this information in the form requested. Under the Land Registration Act 2002 (Transitional Provisions)(No2) Order 2003, a right in respect of the repair of a church chancel operates as an overriding interest in the case of both first registrations and registerable dispositions.

Land Registry does not keep specific records of the number of successful applications made for an entry in respect of this particular liability. It is able to obtain some information by a search of its computerised register database but this information is not conclusive because of the different ways in which the liability is disclosed and consequently either noted in the register or protected by way of a caution against first registration. Information that is held by Land Registry identifies the registered title of one property in Wales that contains an entry in respect of the liability. However, there may be others that could not be identified without a detailed search of each register of title to land in Wales.

Courts

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many warrants were issued against an individual for failure to appear in court in each of the last five years. [203563]

Maria Eagle: The information requested has only been collected since April 2005 and is in the following table:

FTA warrants issued	England and Wales[1]
	Number
During 2005-06	163,993
During 2006-07	146,936
April to Dec 2007	96,687

[1] Figures are totals issued in the period specified.

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many warrants issued for a failure to appear in court are outstanding. [203564]

Maria Eagle: As at 31 December 2007 there were a total of 27,680 FTA warrants outstanding across England and Wales.

Electronic Voting

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans the Government have to make further use of electronic (a) voting and (b) counting at elections. [203517]

Mr. Wills: In the Governance of Britain Green Paper, the Government set out a long-term aim to investigate the potential benefits of remote electronic voting and to take advantage of developing communication technologies to provide increased accessibility, flexibility and choice in the way people vote.

In the immediate term, we are reviewing the lessons learnt from previous electronic voting and counting pilots. This will help us to plan our future activities around electronic voting and counting.

Prisoners Transfers: Young Offenders

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many youth offending team inspections found that young offenders were sharing transport with adult prisoners in each of the last three years, broken down by establishment; and if he will make a statement. [203552]

Mr. Hanson: Youth offending teams are not responsible for arranging transport to custody and the issue of juvenile and adult prisoners sharing the same vehicle is not addressed in their inspections.

Escort contractors retain information by contractual year; September to August. No records are kept on the number of young adult prisoners (aged 18 to 20 years) sharing transport with adult prisoners, as this is permitted under the contracts.

Juvenile prisoners (aged 15 to 17 years) and adult prisoners should not travel in the same vehicle except in special circumstances, for example when the delay in waiting for a separate vehicle is not in the best interests of the individual. Where juvenile and adult prisoners travel in the same vehicle they are escorted onto the vehicle separately, segregated while on the vehicle and a custody officer remains in the back of the vehicle throughout the journey to ensure their welfare.

Information is held on the number of occasions that juvenile prisoners have shared transport with adult prisoners since September 2005. The information is not recorded by establishment.

Period	Number of occasions juvenile prisoners shared transport with adult prisoners	Total number of juvenile prisoners escorted
September 2005 to August 2006	2,840	76,289
September 2006 to August 2007	2,524	75,685
September 2007 to August 2008	981	40,829

Secure Training Centres: Restraint Techniques

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many times physical interventions were used in secure training centres for the purposes of restraint (a) in total and (b) in each year since 2000, broken down by establishment; and if he will make a statement. [204312]

Mr. Hanson: The following table sets out the number of recorded restrictive physical interventions in secure training centres 1 April 2007 to March 2008. The data have been provided by the Youth Justice Board.

The Youth Justice Board has been collecting data against common definitions from April 2007. Comparable data is not available for earlier periods.

Young Offender Institutions: Mental Health Services

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which young offender institutions do not provide child and adolescent mental health support. [203588]

Mr. Hanson: All young offender institutions in England have access to in-reach child and adolescent mental health services (CAMHS).

The commissioning of secondary/tertiary care health services to YOIs based in Wales is the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly Government/NHS Wales.

Young Offender Institutions: Pharmacy

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many youth offending team inspections expressed concern relating to pharmacy management and loss of medication in each of the last three years, broken down by establishment; and if he will make a statement. [203553]

Mr. Hanson: Youth Offending Teams (YOTs) are not responsible for pharmacy in secure establishments, and this issue is not addressed in YOT inspections. This is a matter for Her Majesty's Inspectorate of Prisons (HMIP).

A full list of reports of prisons and Young Offenders Institutions is available on the HMIP website at:

http://inspectorates.homeoffice.gov.uk/hmiprisons/inspect_reports/hmp-yoi-inspections.html/

The information requested on inspections of YOIs in England which raised concerns about local pharmacy management is shown in the table. No report expressed concern on loss of medication during the last three years.

Young Offender Institutions in Wales are the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly.

Young Offender Institutions: Restraint Techniques

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which young offender institutions have been found by inspectors to be using health care beds for behaviour management purposes in the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [203585]

Mr. Hanson: To provide information for the last five years would be at disproportionate cost. However, in reports published since January 2007, Her Majesties Inspectorate of Prisons has identified five young offenders institutions which have been using health care beds for behaviour management purposes—HMP and YOI Brinsford, HMYOI Hindley, HMYOI Lancaster Farms, HMP and YOI Lewes and HMP and YOI Parc.

Action plans produced in response to the recommendations made in the Brinsford and Hindley reports have confirmed that young people at these prisons are no longer placed in the health care unit for behaviour management reasons. A health care needs analysis is being undertaken at Lancaster Farms and will consider this issue. Action plans have yet to be produced in respect of the Lewes and Parc reports.

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many injuries were sustained by offenders held in (a) secure training centres, (b) secure children's homes and (c) young offender institutions in each year since 2000, broken down by establishment; and if he will make a statement. [204313]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board has been collecting data against common definitions from April 2007. Comparable data across the children and young people's custodial estate is not available for earlier periods.

The following table shows the number of injuries sustained by trainees as a result of assault, restraint or self harm.

Young Offender Institutions: Special Educational Needs

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the need for teaching support for teachers in young offender institutions who work with groups of young people with acute special educational needs. [203554]

Mr. Hanson: An audit of education in secure accommodation carried out by the Youth Justice Board (YJB) in 2002 identified the need for special educational needs co-ordinators (SENCOs), and funding was obtained by the YJB to ensure that each young offenders institution has the support of a SENCO. This requirement is incorporated into the Offenders Learning Journey (Juvenile) which sets out the delivery of learning and skills services to young offenders in custody in England. The Learning and Skills Council is also currently undertaking a review process which will ascertain the level and range of educational need for offenders in each custodial and community setting, thus informing the range and types of provision to be commissioned. We expect the reviews to include an analysis of the level of need for learners with learning difficulties and disability. The Welsh Assembly government lead on education provision in the two YOIs in Wales and this is guided by the YJB's National Specification for Learning and Skills which advocates the use of SENCOs.

Young Offenders: Body Searches

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice which young offender institutions include strip searching in their routine admission procedures. [203556]

Maria Eagle: All prisons and young offender institutions are currently required to full search (previously known as strip search) prisoners on reception for security reasons, in accordance with the HM Prison Service National Security Framework and Prison Rule 41(1).

Young Offenders: Prison Accommodation

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many inmates of young offender institutions were transferred to the secure adult prison estate in each of the last 10 years. [203896]

Mr. Hanson: Data are not held centrally on the numbers of 21-year-olds who are transferred from young offender institutions into the secure adult prison estate. Offenders who reach their 21st birthdays towards the end of their sentences normally remain in the young adult estate. Those who have a substantial time still to serve are normally transferred to the secure adult estate soon after reaching 21. Careful guidelines are observed on the management of such transfers.

In exceptional and rare circumstances, an 18 to 21-year-old sentenced offender can be held in an adult prison as an adult on an individual basis (under section 43(2)(c) of the Prison Act 1952) and is managed by local establishment management, where appropriate the offender manager and only when agreed by the Prison Service Area Manager.

Young Offenders: Reoffenders

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what percentage of young offenders whose final custodial establishment was a secure children's home were reconvicted within two years of release in each of the last five years. [203895]

Mr. Hanson: Secure children's homes are generally used to house offenders aged between 12 and 16. Juvenile re-offending is calculated over a one-year follow-up period and covers those aged 10 to 17 who were discharged from custody, as well as those commencing pre-court and non-custodial court disposals. A release from custody could be from a secure training centre, a secure children's home or a young offender institution, with most releases being from young offender institutions. Data are not broken down by type of release establishment. The following table shows the number and proportion of juvenile offenders who re-offended within one year of release from custody for the 2000, 2004 and 2005 cohorts. Data for the 2002 and 2003 cohorts are not available.

Cohort	Number of offenders in cohort	Number in cohort re-offending	Proportion of cohort offending (percentage)
2000	979	764	78
2004	843	659	78
2005	865	659	76

Data for the 2000, 2002, 2003, 2004 and 2005 juvenile cohorts on the frequency and severity of juvenile re-offending are due to be published on 9 May 2008 online at:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/reoffendingjuveniles.htm

Young Offenders: Self-mutilation

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many instances of prisoner self-harm were recorded in (a) secure training centres, (b) secure children's homes and (c) young offender institutions in each year since 2000, broken down by establishment; and if he will make a statement. [204315]

Mr. Hanson: The following table sets out the number of recorded self-harm incidents that occurred in under-18 custodial establishments between 1 April 2007 and 29 February 2008. The data have been provided by the Youth Justice Board.

The Youth Justice Board has been collecting data across the secure estate for children and young people against common definitions of self-harm from April 2007. Comparative data are not available for earlier periods.

Young Offenders: Wales

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will take steps to ensure that all young people resident in Wales (a) serving long custodial sentences and (b) with mental health needs serve their sentences in prisons in Wales. [203584]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board (YJB) is responsible for deciding where young people who have been sentenced to custody should be accommodated. In making those decisions, its placement team takes account of a range of factors including age, sex, risk factors (including health issues) and where the young person lives. The Government and the YJB believe that young people in custody should be placed in the accommodation most suited to their needs.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at which NHS institutions abortions were conducted at (a) 16 weeks, (b) 17 weeks, (c) 18 weeks, (d) 19 weeks, (e) 20 weeks, (f) 21 weeks, (g) 22 weeks, (h) 23 weeks and (i) 24 weeks period of gestation in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [203977]

Dawn Primarolo: Statistics are not published by place of termination but only by residence of the woman. This is in line with the Office for National Statistics guidelines on publication of abortion statistics.

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many abortions took place in NHS hospitals at (a) 16 weeks, (b) 17 weeks, (c) 18 weeks, (d) 19 weeks, (e) 20 weeks, (f) 21 weeks, (g) 22 weeks, (h) 23 weeks and (i) 24 weeks period of gestation in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [203978]

(2) how many abortions took place in non-NHS hospitals or institutions at (a) 16 weeks, (b) 17 weeks, (c) 18 weeks, (d) 19 weeks, (e) 20 weeks, (f) 21 weeks, (g) 22 weeks, (h) 23 weeks and (i) 24 weeks gestation in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [204014]

Dawn Primarolo: The information in the following table shows how many abortions took place at 16-24 weeks gestation that were funded by the national health service and took place on NHS premises; funded by the NHS and took place in the private sector under contract; and were not funded by the NHS.

Accident and Emergency Departments: Standards

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of accident and emergency department admissions (a) in England and (b) at Gloucestershire Hospital NHS Foundation Trust were seen, treated and discharged or admitted within target times set in the most recent period for which figures are available; what the (i) average and (ii) longest waiting time for emergency treatment was in each of the last three years; and if he will make a statement. [204030]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on the proportion of patients attending accident and emergency (A and E) departments who were seen, diagnosed and treated within four hours of their arrival is collected at the level of national health service trusts and published quarterly via the Department's QMAE dataset. This can be compared against the operational standard for A and E waits, which is set at 98 per cent. of patients within four hours.

For the period October to December 2007 (quarter three 2007-08), performance was at 97.3 per cent. for England and 97.2 per cent. for Gloucestershire Hospitals NHS

Foundation Trust (all types of A and E department).

The remaining information requested is not currently available centrally.

1. Data are from a UK wide dataset and represent first AIDS diagnoses in the UK within English SHAs. Data are cumulative data to the end of December 2007. Numbers will rise as further reports are received.
2. Cell counts under five are masked by replacing the number with <5 to protect against deductive disclosure of an individual patient's identity.
3. SHAs are those of diagnosis and not of residence. There is evidence that a large proportion of individuals are diagnosed outside of their SHA of residence.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome: Health Services

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department plans to take to ensure that the recommendations for research into myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome in the new National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidelines are met, with particular reference to the (a) causes of the illness, (b) effectiveness of intervention strategies and (c) efficient ways to deliver domiciliary care for people who are severely affected. [203962]

Dawn Primarolo: Research recommendations made in National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) guidelines are considered on behalf of the Department by the National Institute for Health Research Health Technology Assessment programme (HTA). The director of the HTA programme meets annually with NICE for this purpose. The next of these joint meetings will be held in September.

Chronically Sick: Heywood

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in implementing the targets in the National Service Framework for Long Term Conditions in Heywood and Middleton constituency. [202916]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for individual primary care trusts (PCTs), including Heywood, Middleton and Rochdale PCT, within the national health service to develop locally the levels of service described in the "National Service Framework (NSF) for Long-term (Neurological) Conditions". The NSF has a 10-year implementation programme from its publication in March 2005, with flexibility for organisations to set the pace of change locally to take account of differences in local priorities and needs. Copies of the NSF is available in the Library.

Information on the progress that has been achieved locally with regard to the implementation of the targets set out in the NSF can be obtained direct from Heywood, Middleton and Rochdale PCT.

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence guidance on supportive and palliative care has been fully implemented in Heywood and Middleton constituency. [202917]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for individual primary care trusts (PCTs), including Heywood, Middleton and Rochdale PCT, within the national health service to commission services for their resident population, including end of life care, based on assessments of local needs and priorities. The NHS has been required to set out action plans to achieve compliance with the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence recommendations on supportive and palliative care. Implementation is being monitored by strategic health authorities (SHAs).

Information on the rate of progress locally can be obtained through the North West SHA.

Compulsorily Detained Mental Patients

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS beds were available for patients sectioned under mental health legislation in each of the last five years. [204084]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: National health service beds are not strictly allocated for patients detained under the Mental Health Act 1983 or other mental health legislation. A person detained under mental health legislation will be allocated an available mental health bed, in a suitable facility.

Data about the availability of mental health beds is shown in the following table.

The year on year reduction in mental health bed numbers reflects the increasing provision by the national health service in England of treatment for patients with mental health conditions in primary care and community settings, without the need for hospital admissions.

	Average daily number of beds available for acute mental health services in the NHS in England
2002-03	32,753
2003-04	32,252

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people were sectioned under mental health legislation in each of the last five years. [204085]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information about the number of patients detained in England under the Mental Health Act 1983 (and related legislation) between 1 April 2002 and 31 March 2007 is shown in the following table:

Total detentions in NHS and independent hospitals under the Mental Health Act 1983 and other legislation, 2002-03 to 2006-07 (excluding detentions in places of safety): England

	Number of detentions
2002-03	46,489
2003-04	45,691
2004-05	46,673
2005-06	47,394
2006-07	48,083

Note:
The table represents the total number of detentions for the period requested not necessarily the number of patients. It is possible that a patient could be detained on more than one occasion over a twelve month period.

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people absconded from secure NHS units in each of the last five years. [204086]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not routinely collect data on absconsions from national health service low or medium secure mental health services. Data are collected by the Department on absconsions from high secure mental health hospitals and the five most recent years' data are shown in the following table.

Absconsions from NHS high secure units in England, 2003 to 2007

Dental Services

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of units of dental activity (UDA) in England expected to be the subject of a reclaim of UDA payments from activity in 2007 in 2008. [203515]

Ann Keen: This information is not available. For dental activity reporting purposes the year 2007-08 has not yet ended. Dental providers have until the end of May to submit all their activity reports for activity delivered during 2007-08.

Departmental Pay

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of (a) salaries for permanent civil service posts, (b) salaries for permanent non-civil service posts and (c) payments to temporary or agency workers in his Department was in each month since May 2005. [199553]

Maria Eagle: I have been asked to reply.

The cost of salaries and payments split by months is available only at disproportionate cost.

The total annual figures for those entities within the Accounting Boundary of Ministry of Justice for 2006-07, and a provisional figure for 2007-08 which is subject to audit, are set out in the following table.

Figures cannot readily be disaggregated between civil servants and non-civil servants.

Wages and salaries

£ million

	Permanently employed	Temporary/ agency	Total
2006-07	2,342	132	2,474
2007-08	2,443	133	2,576

Notes:
1. Figures for 2005-06 are not readily available for an aggregated MoJ. The figures for 2006-07 and 2007-08 assume the MoJ was in existence for both years, whereas it actually came into existence on 9 May 2007.
2. Figures include wages and salaries only. No employer social security costs or employer's pension costs are included.
3. Judges, both salaried and fee-paid, are excluded, due to their independent status.
4. The annual figures are for bodies within the Accounting Boundary of MoJ and do not include non departmental public bodies sponsored by MoJ.
5. The Accounting Boundary of the Ministry of Justice includes: HM Court Service, Tribunals Service, Office of Public Guardianship, Wales Office, Scotland Office, National Probation Service, HM Prison Service and MoJ HQ.
6. Figures for 2007-08 are provisional, and subject to audit.

Dietary Supplements: EU Law

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment the Government has made of the effect of the implementation of the Food Supplements Regulations on the planting, development and import of genetically-modified material. [203512]

Dawn Primarolo: No assessment has been made of the effect of the Food Supplements Regulations on the planting, development and import of genetically modified material in the United Kingdom. The Food Supplements Regulations do not contain provisions for genetically modified material. Separate European Community legislation provide measures for the authorisation, cultivation and import of genetically modified organisms.

Doctors: Working Hours

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the number of junior doctors required to ensure that no junior doctor works more than 48 hours per week by August 2009; and how many junior doctors were working in the NHS at the latest date for which figures are available. [203440]

Ann Keen: It is for national health service trusts to implement the European working time directive (EWTD) as part of their health and safety obligations. The Department has commissioned NHS National Workforce Projects to support local implementation of the EWTD for doctors in training through a range of innovative pilot projects and supporting tools. These solutions do not rely on lots more doctors in training and the NHS has already increased the number of trainee doctors by more than half since 1997.

There were 16,024 junior doctors working in the NHS as of 30 September 2007.

Trans Fats: Restaurants

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will consider the merits of banning trans fats in restaurants; what representations he has received on this issue; and if he will make a statement. [203833]

Dawn Primarolo: In October 2007 the Food Standards Agency (FSA) was asked to review the health impacts of trans fats and potential for action in light of the measures taken in New York and Denmark. As part of this review, the FSA sought the advice of the United Kingdom's independent Scientific Advisory Committee on Nutrition, which examined the most recent evidence on the health implications of trans fats. The FSA recommended that mandatory restrictions on trans fats were unnecessary as voluntary measures undertaken by the industry, including the restaurant sector, had reduced average population intakes of trans fats to very low levels that are around half the maximum recommended average intake.

General Practitioners

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many GP surgeries there were in each local authority in England in each year since 1996-97. [202888]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect data on number of general practitioner (GP) surgeries by local authority area. However, data is available on number of GP practices (partnerships)—some of which operate from more than one surgery—broken down by national health service organisation.

Health authorities from 1997 to 2000;

Primary care groups in 2001; and Primary care trusts from 2002 onwards (which were reconfigured in 2006).

Such information as is available has been placed in the Library.

Mr. Gray: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the maximum distance is which people should expect to have to travel to a GP surgery. [203387]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not specify maximum distances which people should expect to have to travel to a general practitioner's (GP's) surgery. Patients can seek to register with any GP practice that is taking new patient registrations. Arrangements exist locally between practices and primary care trusts (PCTs) setting out practice boundaries. PCTs are responsible for commissioning local primary care services in accordance with the needs of their local population, including ensuring appropriate access for patients to GP services.

General Practitioners: Manpower

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many GPs his Department estimates will be working in the NHS in (a) April 2009 and (b) April 2010; and how many NHS GPs there were at the latest date for which figures are available. [203398]

Ann Keen: At 30 September 2007 there were 33,364 general practitioners (GPs) (excluding GP retainers, GP registrars and locums) in the national health service, an increase of 273 (0.8 per cent.) from 2006.

It is for primary care trusts (PCTs), working locally, to determine the precise workforce requirements for services. More GPs will be needed for the new GP-led health centres and for the new practices in deprived areas. PCTs will be procuring through the new GP practices and health centres during 2008-09 up to 900 extra GPs, nurses and health care assistants.

Hospitals: Cleaning Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) when he expects the deep clean of hospitals in England to take place; [203396]

(2) what proportion of hospitals in England were (a) deep cleaned throughout, (b) deep cleaned on targeted wards only and (c) not deep cleaned as part of his Department's recent deep cleaning programme. [203406]

Ann Keen: As set out in the written ministerial statement given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 93-94WS, deep cleaning is part of a comprehensive range of measures to improve cleanliness and tackle infections set out in the Strategy "Clean, Safe Care: Reducing Infections and Saving Lives". Copies of the strategy are available in the Library.

The national health service will maintain the high standards of cleanliness that the current programme has provided. This will be monitored and performance managed at a local level. Deep cleaning will be included in Patient Environment Action Team inspection programme from next year. Specialist Healthcare Commission inspections began this month, inspecting against the "Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Healthcare Associated Infections". Copies of this publication are available in the Library. All acute trusts will be inspected annually on the cleanliness of their environment. We will also publish best practice guidance on deep cleaning later this year to help hospitals continue to achieve the best possible environment for patient care.

Information on trusts which had completed the deep cleans as part of the national programme is detailed in the written ministerial statement of 21 April 2008. Details of each trust's cleaning plan are not held centrally as this is a matter for local discretion. Each strategic health authority was responsible for ensuring that appropriate deep cleaning programmes (that complemented existing cleaning regimes) were agreed in their areas and also that the plans were funded appropriately by commissioners.

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when Ministers in his Department first knew that the NHS quarterly statistics for inpatient and outpatient waiting times did not meet each of the six statistical criteria. [202770]

Mr. Bradshaw: On 10 March 2008 I received briefing from departmental officials on the findings of the Statistics Commission report entitled 'Review of Statistical First Releases'. This report was published on 13 March 2008 and copies are available in the Library.

The report included analysis of a release entitled NHS inpatient and outpatient waiting times figures, events during the quarter ending 30 June 2007 which was published on 31 August 2007.

In order to provide as much information as possible and accord with best practice, from 1 April 2008, all of the Department's National Statistics, including monthly inpatient and outpatient waiting times, are being released in accordance with arrangements approved by the new UK Statistics Authority.

Monthly inpatient and outpatient waiting statistics, in addition to our newer referral to treatment waiting statistics, continue to be accompanied by neutral statistical commentary.

Human Fertilisation and Embryology Bill

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what consultation his Department had with interested parties to inform the drafting of the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Bill in 2007; and what form such consultation took in each case. [203447]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government announced a review of the law on assisted reproduction and embryo research in January 2004, and in drafting the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Bill 2007, have taken account of the views of a wide range of interested parties. Following an inquiry and evidence gathering by the House of Commons Science and Technology Select Committee into human reproductive technologies and the law, the Department launched a public consultation exercise which ran from 16 August to 25 November 2005. A total of 535 responses were received from a wide range of stakeholders organisations and members of the public. A White Paper setting out the Government's policy proposals was published in December 2006, followed by publication of draft legislation for pre-legislative scrutiny by a Joint Committee of both Houses in May 2007. Revised in the light of the Joint Committee's report, the Bill was introduced in the House of Lords on 8 November 2007.

Human Umbilical Cord Blood Cells

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the terms of reference are of the umbilical cord blood review being undertaken by his Department; and which organisations and individuals have accepted invitations to the review meeting on 28 May 2008. [202390]

Dawn Primarolo: The proposed review will assess the following:

current policies, practices, spending and service provision for the collection, storage and use of placental or umbilical cord blood stem cells in the national health service and/or private sector in the United Kingdom; and current policies, practices, spending and service provision for the collection, storage and use of placental or umbilical cord blood stem cells in the United States, Canada, Japan, France and China.

The review, to be carried out by Technopolis Ltd, will prepare an initial report on the current use of stem cells collected at birth. This will be presented to an expert workshop on 28 May 2008.

Those invited to the workshop include representatives from Government Departments, regulatory agencies, research councils, public and private blood banks and the Royal Colleges. Two international cord blood research experts, Professor Colin McGuckin from Newcastle university and Albert Bekassy from Lund university Sweden, have also agreed to attend.

Replies are still being received but, so far, 19 representatives from the organisations have agreed to attend.

Keep Warm, Keep Well

Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost has been of the (a) publication and (b) distribution of his Department's Keep Warm, Keep Well information booklet; when the booklets were first made available for distribution in 2007; what assessment he has made of the efficacy of the distribution of the booklets; which agencies were involved in the distribution to doctors' surgeries of the booklets; and if he will make a statement. [202243]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department recognises the importance of fuel poverty and its impact upon excess winter mortality, health and well-being. The Department works in partnership with other Government Departments and works in close collaboration with Warm Front to increase health sector referral rates for winter warmth interventions. The Keep Well, Keep Warm, campaign is a key aspect of the Department's commitment to address fuel poverty and promote winter warmth.

The Keep Warm, Keep Well booklet, was made available from September 2007, to allow people to prepare for the colder weather. It was produced in a number of different formats including non-English language versions, braille, audio, large print and an accessible version for people with learning disabilities. The booklet was available in a variety of outlets, including general practitioners (GP) surgeries. All GP surgeries in England were sent a letter inviting them to order copies of the booklet from the DH Publications Orderline, which is managed by Professional Logistics Ltd. In addition, the booklet was distributed to 5,103 GP surgeries via the Waiting Room Information Service.

The total cost of publishing the booklet was £199,443 and the total cost of distribution was £197,498. As well as making the booklet available via national health service outlets, voluntary and commercial partners distributed the booklet for free.

Research to measure awareness of how to keep warm and well in winter and the help available was carried out in January. This included some evaluation of the booklet in terms of whether the target audience had seen a copy, but did not assess the efficacy of the distribution methods used.

Medical Equipment: Irradiation

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what consideration his Department has given to the use of ultra-violet germicidal irradiation disinfection devices in the healthcare sector; [202442]

(2) whether his Department has investigated the use of ultra-violet germicidal irradiation technology in combating tuberculosis infection; [202443]

(3) what plans his Department has to commission research into the effects and merits of ultra-violet germicidal irradiation technology; what assessment has been made of (a) the costs and (b) the merits of introducing such technology; and if he will make a statement. [202444]

Dawn Primarolo: The Rapid Review Panel (RRP) has reviewed 28 technologies which utilise ultra-violet light. All of these technologies are air purification systems. From these 28 products:

two were awarded a recommendation 2 (basic research and development has been completed and the product may have potential value; in use evaluations/trials are now needed in an national health service clinical setting);

10 received a recommendation 3 (a potentially useful new concept but insufficiently validated; more research and development is required before it is ready for evaluation in practice);

seven received a recommendation 4 (not a significant improvement on equipment/materials/products already available which claim to contribute to reducing health care associated infection; no further consideration needed, or unlikely to contribute to the reduction of health care associated infection; no further consideration needed);

eight received a recommendation 5(insufficient clarity/ evidence presented to enable full review of the product); and one received a recommendation 6 (an already well established product that does not merit further consideration by the panel).

Further information can be found on the RRP's website at:

www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/rapid_review/default.htm

Unless a technology is awarded a recommendation 1 from the RRP and considered to be clinically effective, the Department does not undertake assessments of cost effectiveness or, of the benefits involved in introducing such technology.

Research has shown that ultra-violet disinfection can be valuable in certain circumstances to reduce airborne bacteria.

Medical Records: Databases

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the reasons are for deciding that (a) individuals may not opt out of having their demographic data placed on the Spine and (b) not having demographic data on the Spine will prevent individuals accessing NHS treatment; and whether he informed the Health Committee during their recent review of the NHS patient record that individuals would not be able to opt out of having their demographic details on the Spine. [202328]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 22 April 2008, Official Report, column 1990W. The relevant information in that answer reflects information provided in paragraphs 23 and 24 of the Department's written evidence to the Health Select Committee, published by the Committee on 25 April 2007.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health who is undertaking the independent evaluation of the electronic patient records pilot; what their terms of reference are; and when the report will be published. [202380]

Mr. Bradshaw: The independent evaluation of the Summary Care Record (SCR) Early Adopters Programme is being carried out by a team from the Department of Primary Care and Population Sciences at University College London, led by Professor Trisha Greenhalgh.

The agreed aims of the evaluation are to assess usability, usage, functionality and impact of the SCR in early adopter sites, and place this in context; to set the stage for the inclusion of further sites and further data sources; to provide timely feedback to stakeholders; and to contribute to the evaluation culture within NHS Connecting for Health and the National Programme for IT.

The report was published by the evaluation team on 6 May and is available via the University College website at:

www.pcps.ucl.ac.uk/pcpsweb/openlearning/documents/scrie2008.pdf.

and the website of the NHS Connecting for Health Evaluation Programme, which is based at the University of Birmingham, at:

Mental Health Services: Children

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many training places were available to those seeking to work in child and adolescent mental health services in each year between 1999 and 2007; and if he will make a statement. [203590]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information is not collected centrally in the format requested.

Mental Health Services: Prisoners

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of prisoners received treatment for mental illness in the last five years for which figures are available. [204175]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Mental health services for prisoners have been a key part of the Government's recent reforms of health services for prisoners. The Department is now investing £20 million a year in national health service mental health in-reach services for prisoners. These are community mental health teams working within prisons and are now available in 102 prisons, with some 360 extra staff employed. Every prison in England and Wales has access to these services. Information on how many prisoners receive these services is not collected centrally.

Mental Health Services: Young People

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many mental health professionals entered further training for child and adolescent mental health services in each year between 1999 and 2007. [202726]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: Information is not collected centrally in the format requested. Between 2002 and 2006 (the first and latest dates for which data are available) the number of whole time equivalent staff working in specialist children and adolescent mental health service teams in England increased from 7,321 to 9,705, an increase of 33 per cent.

NHS: Freedom of Information

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department monitors freedom of information (a) requests to and (b) responses from individual NHS trusts; and whether trusts are required to report to his Department freedom of information requests which they receive. [202844]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not monitor freedom of information requests or responses from individual national health service trusts, nor does it require trusts to report freedom of information requests which they receive.

NHS trusts are public authorities in their own right, as designated in schedule 1 of the Freedom of Information Act 2000. They are therefore individually responsible for freedom of information requests which they receive.

NHS: Manpower

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what qualifications and criteria were applied to (a) the selection of individuals to serve on the (i) strategy group, (ii) project executive group, (iii) national reference group and (iv) psychodynamic psychotherapy group within the Skills for Health Psychological Therapies National Occupation Skills Project and (b) the National Occupational Skills (A) development consultants and (B) research consultants. [203076]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

This project is being managed by the sector skills council Skills for Health, under the overall programme to develop national occupational standards. I am asking the chief executive of Skills for Health to write to the hon. Member about this matter.

NHS: Procurement

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what the terms of reference of the joint Office of Government Commerce and NHS Purchasing supply review is; when the review is expected to be complete; and if he will make a statement; [204131]

(2) what assessment he has made of the outcomes of the recent Strategic Review of Collaborative Procurement in the NHS; and if he will make a statement. [204132]

Mr. Bradshaw: The programme of Procurement Capability (PCR) Reviews was announced in HM Treasury's publication "Transforming Government Procurement" in January 2007. Copies of this publication are available in the Library.

The Office of Government Commerce (OGC) was tasked with carrying out these reviews and the Department's review began on 10 March 2008.

The scope of the review is to assess:

the Department's own capability in respect of procurement; and the leadership, systems and support it has in place to promote and develop high standards of procurement in the national health service—and in respect of social care provision.

The review will be completed with publication of a report by the OGC in November 2008.

The Strategic Review of Collaborative Procurement in the NHS is not yet complete. Consequently, no assessment has been made of the outcomes of the review at this stage although it will be taken into account in the Department's response to the PCR recommendations.

Palliative Care: Heywood

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what data are used by commissioners to determine the need for specialised palliative and neurological care in Heywood and Middleton constituency. [202914]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: It is for individual primary care trusts (PCTs), including Heywood, Middleton and Rochdale PCT, within the national health service to commission services for their resident population, including end of life care and neurological care, based on an assessment of local needs and priorities. Strategic health authorities are responsible for monitoring PCTs to ensure they are effective and efficient.

The "NHS operating framework for 2007-08" asked PCTs, working with local authorities, to undertake a baseline review of their end of life care services. These will allow local commissioners to assess current services, identify gaps and obtain a much clearer view of local need, which will inform local commissioning.

Regarding neurological care, the information strategy published alongside the "National Service Framework for Long-term (Neurological) Conditions" outlines commissioners' information requirements and a series of local and national actions designed to meet those needs. Copies of the "National Service Framework for Long-term (Neurological) Conditions" are available in the Library.

Pharmacy

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the contribution independent pharmacies make to the provision of access to primary health care; and if he will make a statement;. [203576]

(2) what assessment he has made of the likely effects of polyclinics on independent pharmacies. [203616]

Dawn Primarolo: As at 31 March 2007, of nearly 11,000 pharmacies in England and Wales, 41 per cent. were classified as independent, which we define as those in chains of five or fewer outlets. They as well as other community pharmacies are well placed to play an important part in improving access to primary health care. Our White Paper "Pharmacy in England—Building on strengths, delivering the future" published last month sets out a comprehensive development programme for them to provide an extended range of quality clinical services. These include help for a range of minor ailments, offering screening services and providing support for people newly prescribed medicines for a long-term condition.

Primary care trusts (PCTs) are currently talking to local stakeholders, including patients and clinicians, to consider how new general practitioner-led health centre services are best provided to meet local needs and the effect they may have on existing provision. PCTs will continue to ensure there are adequate arrangements in place for patients to access pharmaceutical services.

Psychiatric Nurses: Training

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what provision is made in the training of psychiatric nurses for the recognition and understanding of the mental health needs of those aged under 25 years. [203699]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: There is currently no specific education or training route in to specialist children and adolescent mental health services.

The Nursing and Midwifery Council set out the curriculum for pre registration training and standards for registration as a general mental health nurse. Local health trusts arrange post registration training and development with their higher education providers.

We do share a commitment with these bodies that all health professionals are trained, so that they have the skills and knowledge to deliver a high quality health service to all groups of the population with whom they deal.

Psychiatry

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reasons humanistic traditions are not accepted as a standard psychotherapy modality under his Department's Skills for Health project; and if he will make a statement. [202938]

Mr. Lammy: I have been asked to reply.

This project is being managed by the Sector Skills Council Skills for Hearth, under the overall programme to develop national occupational standards. I am asking the chief executive of Skills for Health to write to the hon. Member about this matter.

Smoking

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether his Department has collated the number of cases of illnesses caused by the effects of passive smoking since the implementation of the smoking ban in 2007. [203807]

Dawn Primarolo: We have commissioned research on the health impacts of smokefree legislation in England. However, early assessments are that this legislation is proving to be effective in significantly reducing levels of second hand smoke in enclosed public places and workplaces.

Research from Scotland has reported a range of benefits since smokefree legislation was introduced there, including dramatic improvements in air quality in pubs, improved health, reduced tobacco consumption and no increase in the amount of smoking in the home.

Social Services

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, columns 154-61W, on social services, what outcomes of assessments for social care needs are included in his Department's definition of other sequel. [204134]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The definition of 'other sequel' relates to individuals who complete the assessment process but then leave the local authority area, go into hospital or die before a service can be delivered.

South Staffordshire PCT: Finance

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what assessment he has made of the effects of his Department's methodology for distributing revenue funding to primary care trusts on the funding available to South Staffordshire PCT in each of the last three years;. [201330]

(2) if he will increase the proportion of his Department's revenue funding to primary care trusts payable to South Staffordshire Primary Care Trust from 2009-10 onwards. [201331]

Ann Keen: Revenue allocations are made to primary care trusts (PCTs) on the basis of the relative needs of their populations. A weighted capitation formula is used to determine PCTs' target shares of available resources, to enable them to commission similar levels of health care for populations with similar needs.

South Staffordshire PCT received allocations of £653.7 million in 2006-07 and £716.1 million in 2007-08. These represent a cash increase of £116.5 million or 19.4 per cent. over the two years. All PCTs received an above inflation cash increase of 5.5 per cent. in their 2008-09 allocations. South Staffordshire PCT received £755.3 million, a cash increase of £39.1 million in 2008-09.

The Advisory Committee on Resource Allocation (ACRA) continuously oversees the development of the weighted capitation formula. ACRA is an independent body, made up of NHS managers, academics and GPs.

As part of its work programme to support revenue allocations to PCTs post 2008-09, ACRA has reviewed the main elements of the formula. This work will inform ACRA's final recommendations to Ministers on potential changes to the funding formula. Ministers plan to make the allocations for 2009-10 and 2010-11 by summer this year based on a new formula. PCTs will be informed of the changes to the formula following the allocations announcement.

Strokes: Health Services

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to ensure the NHS provides effective care to people in the first hours following a stroke. [204025]

Ann Keen: The National Stroke Strategy published in December 2007 sets a clear standard to ensure that effective urgent care is in place, including transfer to an acute stroke centre that provides access to scans, thrombolysis where appropriate, and prompt admission to a specialist stroke unit. In addition to the funding that has gone to primary care trusts, £105 million of central funding over three years will support implementation, including to support change in acute and community services, and to raise public awareness. Copies of the strategy are available in the Library.

In the "NHS Operating Framework 2008-09", and accompanying "vital signs", stroke is one of the national requirements; all hospitals are expected to improve their performance in treating people with stroke. Copies of these publications are available in the Library.

We have also set up, as part of the Stroke Improvement Programme, a central team to support the development of local stroke care networks. We are asking all local stroke networks to work together to ensure that these services are provided.

Surgery

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many operations have been cancelled in each of the last five years, broken down by trust. [203081]

Mr. Bradshaw: The information requested is not collected centrally. The Department collects information on the number of operations cancelled at the last minute for non-clinical reasons. Data for 2002-03 to 2007-08 (quarter 1-quarter 3) are shown in the following table.

The Government's cancelled operations policy introduced in April 2002 provides an incentive for hospitals to avoid cancellations by giving patients the right to move to the hospital of their choice if they are not treated within 28 days. Since this came into force the number of patients cancelled at the last minute, has fallen from 1.5 per cent. to 1.0 per cent. of elective activity.

1. The table shows the organisations as they existed, at the time of each collection.
2. A last minute cancellation is one that occurs on the day the patient was due to arrive, after they have arrived in hospital or on the day of their operation.
3. Some common non-clinical reasons for cancellations by the hospital include: ward beds unavailable; surgeon unavailable; emergency case needing theatre; theatre list over-ran; equipment failure; admin error; anaesthetist unavailable; theatre staff unavailable; and critical care bed unavailable.
4. An operation which is rescheduled to a time within 24 hours of the original scheduled operation should be recorded as a postponement and not as a cancellation. The QMCO collection does not record the number of postponements.

Vaccination: Thiomersal

Ian Stewart: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in what year the NHS ceased to use thiomersal in vaccine doses under the public vaccination programme; and in what year the last vaccine stocks containing thiomersal were (a) exhausted and (b) withdrawn. [204011]

Dawn Primarolo: The routine childhood vaccination programme has used only thiomersal-free vaccines from September/October 2004. The remaining centrally held stocks containing thiomersal were destroyed when their date expired. No vaccine was withdrawn.

Details of the changes, including the rational, are contained in the Chief Medical Officer's letter, copies of which have been placed in the Library and are also available at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Lettersandcirculars/Professionalletters/Chiefmedicalofficerletters/DH_4087345.

Wafarin

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his policy is on the provision of wafarin monitoring services by private providers; and what assessment he has made of the provision of such services by a private provider in the Birmingham area. [202357]

Dawn Primarolo: Primary care trusts are responsible for commissioning services to meet the health needs of their local population, including anticoagulant medicine. The National Patient Safety Agency issued Patient Safety Alert 18 concerning Safer Practice with Anticoagulants in March 2007. The alert included a range of safer practice recommendations to make the use of anticoagulants safer. These included guidance for commissioners of anticoagulants services.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Child Minding: Registration

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many and what proportion of childminders were deregistered in each year since 1997, broken down by reason for deregistration; [200555]

(2) how many and what proportion of (a) daycare settings and (b) childminders in Basingstoke were awarded ratings of (i) outstanding, (ii) good, (iii) satisfactory and (iv) inadequate following an inspection by Ofsted in each of the last five years. [200558]

Beverley Hughes: These are matters for Ofsted. The Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and copies of her replies have been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 30 April 2008:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

The regulation of Early Years provision transferred from Local Authorities to Ofsted in September 2001, and was subject to transition arrangements until the end of March 2003. We are only able to provide figures after this transition period, from April 2003.

The data table attached contains figures for each financial year and these are taken from the snapshot of provider lists taken on the first working day of April each year.

A copy of this reply has been sent to right hon. Beverley Hughes MP, Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 30 April 2008:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

The childcare data tables attached have been derived from the Ofsted Early Years summary reports produced annually and from internal Ofsted data reports. The data for financial years 2005-06, 2006-07 and 2007-08 are taken from the Early Years summary reports. The data for years 2003-04 and 2004-05 are taken from Ofsted data reports which provide cumulative data recording the number of inspections during the given financial year.

The figures for each financial year are derived from the snapshot of providers undertaken on the first working day of April each year and include active providers only. For each financial year our figures use the most recent inspection visits, where the reports have been quality assured or have not been withdrawn from publication.

Please note that the outcome judgements changed from a 3-point scale in April 2005 (good, Satisfactory or unsatisfactory), to a 4-point scale (outstanding, good, satisfactory or inadequate) thereafter. Direct comparisons should therefore not be made between these reports scales.

The selection of providers for inspection each year is not random. As a result, it is possible that groups of 'stronger' or 'weaker' providers are selected, biasing the inspection outcomes. The distribution of inspection grades in any one year, therefore, does not necessarily reflect the national position.

A copy of this reply has been sent to right hon. Beverley Hughes MP, Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Children

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his estimate is of the proportion of children living with both parents in each local authority area. [200984]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the estimate is of the proportion of children living with both parents in each local authority area. (200984)

As no published tables exist that provide the requested figures, Table C0905 has been specially run and is based on 2001 Census Theme Table on all dependent children (T01). The table covers all local authorities in England and Wales and has been deposited in the House of Commons Library.

Children In Care: Nurseries

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of children in care aged (a) three and above and (b) below three attended daycare nursery in each of the last 10 years. [204141]

Beverley Hughes: The 2006 Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey estimated that there were 766,900 children attending full day care providers in England. The proportion of children attending, by age, for each year available, is shown in the following table.

Table 1: Percentage of children attending full day care provision, by age

		Percentage

Two years old	24	24
Three years old	28	31
Four years old	20	21
Five to seven years old	4	2
Eight years old and over	3	1

Note: Percentages may not sum to 100 per cent. due to rounding.

The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey does not collect information about children in care.

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) childminders, (b) all daycare providers, (c) private, voluntary and independent daycare providers and (d) children's centres there are in each local authority classified by index of multiple deprivation decile. [204128]

Beverley Hughes: Information is not collected on the number of providers by index of multiple deprivation decile.

Since 2003 Ofsted has been responsible for the registration and inspection of childcare providers. A table showing the number of providers and places registered with Ofsted at 31 March 2007 by each local authority has been placed in the Library.

Children's Centres

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many Sure Start children's centres there will be in 2010; [203712]

(2) how many Sure Start children's centres have been closed in (a) the Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since their inception; [203713]

(3) how much capital funding for Sure Start children's centres in (a) the Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England his Department has provided in each year since the Sure Start programme commenced; [203780]

(4) how many outreach workers his Department has employed in (a) the Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each of the last five years; [203782]

(5) how many Sure Start children's centres have been established in (a) the Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) England in each year since the Sure Start programme commenced. [203791]

Beverley Hughes: There are currently 2,906 designated Sure Start Children's Centres in England. By 2010 there will be 3,500 children's centres, one for every community. No centres have been closed since their inception. Prior to 2004 there were 524 Sure Start Local Programmes, the vast majority of which have now made the transition into children's centres.

The further information requested is given in the tables below. Local authorities are responsible for the establishment and operation of children's centres. The Department does not collect information on the number of outreach workers employed by children's centres.

3. The South Tyneside data is actual expenditure but that for the North East and England contains estimates because we do not yet have final data for the entire population.
4. For 2006-07, the expenditure data includes integrated projects (i.e. those which target more than one policy area).

Children's Centres: Manpower

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many children's centre outreach workers he proposes to provide by 2010; [204176]

(2) how many outreach workers he proposes to provide in each children's centre in the super output areas ranked in the (a) first to third, (b) fourth to seventh and (c) eighth to tenth deciles of deprivation by 2010. [204178]

Beverley Hughes: We expect all Sure Start Children's Centres to provide outreach services, although the level and intensity of such provision will vary according to the needs of the local community. Outreach is part of the role of a wide range of practitioners. While many practitioners engaged in outreach to families with young children will be employed in a children's centre or by a local authority, we encourage local authorities to build on other existing local capacity, such as health visitors, relevant third sector workers, and trained volunteers. Our priority is to help children's centres in the most disadvantaged areas to build their outreach capacity to meet local needs. In this context, children's centre revenue funding provides local authorities with resources for two additional outreach practitioners per children's centre in the most deprived (super output) areas.

We will be reviewing the delivery of outreach in a range of settings with a view to establishing core principles and standards for effective and comprehensive outreach services. We will support this with appropriate training materials and courses and will provide additional funding for practitioners in children's centres to take up new training opportunities.

Class Sizes

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government have taken to improve pupil to teacher ratios since 1997. [203732]

Jim Knight: The Government have been able to improve the PTR by increasing the supply of teachers. There are now 441,200 teachers in our schools, almost 41,000 more than in 1997. In this period the overall PTR has fallen from 18.6 to 16.9.

The PTR is also influenced by the rise and fall in pupil numbers over time. The Government regularly models the number of teacher training places required in future years by taking account of this and a range of other factors.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based; [200726]

(2) what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91. [200727]

Jim Knight: The Teachers' Pension Scheme (TPS) is an unfunded defined benefit scheme. Liabilities are estimated each year by the Government Actuary's Department and a statement is included in scheme resource accounts.

Financial Services: Education

Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps his Department is taking to introduce personal finance education as part of the future schools curriculum at (a) primary and (b) secondary level; and if he will make a statement. [204218]

Jim Knight: It is crucial that all young people leave school with the skills and confidence to manage their money well. Personal finance education is already part of Personal, Social and Health Education at Key Stages 1 to 4. However, the revised curriculum for secondary schools includes a new dedicated programme of study for 'Economic Well Being and Financial Capability' as part of a revised Personal, Social, Health and Economic (PSHE) education. The new curriculum will begin teaching from September 2008 and will add a new focus on financial education in secondary schools. Sir Jim Rose is currently carrying out an independent review of the primary curriculum. He is due to report to Ministers in March 2009.

Additionally, citizenship education, which is statutory at Key Stages 3 and 4, requires that 14 to 16-year-olds be taught how the economy functions, including the role of business and financial services. We are also introducing functional mathematics to the maths GCSE, which means that from 2010 all pupils who achieve a grade C or above will have mastered the basics.

To support schools in meeting these curriculum requirements, we are investing £11.5 million over the next three years to support good financial education in schools. This investment will support revised curriculum guidance for financial capability, innovative curriculum resources with the Child Trust Fund as a focus, and more high-quality training and support for teachers.

Food: Education

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many people are training to teach food technology. [203149]

Jim Knight: The following table shows the total number of trainees on food technology initial teacher training (ITT) courses for the academic year 2007-08.

Number of trainees on food technology ITT courses

	2007-08
Mainstream	230
Employment-based ITT	50

Notes:
1. Figures are individually rounded to the nearest 10
2. Figures for mainstream trainees include universities and other HE institutions, SCITT and OU, but exclude employment based ITT (EBITT) schemes.
3. Figures include trainees who are resitting all or part of their ITT programme.
4. Figures are for the total number of trainees on ITT courses therefore include all trainees at all stages on courses of one to five year durations.
5. EBITT figures include trainees through the graduate teacher programme (GTP), the registered teacher programme (RTP), the overseas trained teacher programme (OTTP). There are currently no trainees on a food technology Teach First (TF) programme. Figures are taken from the employment based ITT data management system as at 30 April 2008 and are subject to change.
6. Trainees who withdrew before their programme start date are removed from the above data.

Approximately 800 secondary school food technology teacher training places will be made available over the three-year period 2008-09 to 2010-11.

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils obtained an A-level in (a) German, (b) French and (c) Spanish in each year since 2000. [203774]

Literacy: Teaching Methods

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which reading programmes are approved by his Department for the teaching of synthetic phonics. [202070]

Jim Knight: High-quality, systematic phonics, as advocated by the Rose review, should be the prime approach in teaching children to read.

The Department does not approve commercial phonics teaching programmes. To help schools and early years settings in choosing the appropriate phonics support, we have provided a set of core criteria that define the key features of an effective phonics teaching programme. The core criteria build directly on Jim Rose's recommendations.

Schools and settings are able to access self-assessments of commercial phonics resources on the Department's phonics website at www.standards.dcsf.gov.uk/phonics/.

However, the existence of publishers' self-assessments on this site does not constitute a recommendation or endorsement of the products they represent.

Nurseries: Standards

Susan Kramer: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) maintained and (b) independent nurseries in each local authority were placed in special measures in each year since 2001. [202181]

Jim Knight: This is a matter for Ofsted. HMCI Christine Gilbert has written to the hon. Member, and a cop of her reply has been placed in House Library.

Nurseries: Vacancies

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of trends in the level of staff vacancies in (a) maintained and (b) private voluntary and independent nurseries since 1997. [204139]

Beverley Hughes: The 2006 Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey estimated that there was a total of 10,400 vacancies in childcare providers (full day care, sessional care and out of school clubs).

The percentage of settings recruiting for none, one, two and three or more vacancies, by type of ownership is shown in Table 1.

Pre-School Education

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the number of existing early years workers who will require additional qualifications once the integrated qualifications framework comes into effect. [203899]

Beverley Hughes: The integrated qualifications framework, which will be available in 2010, will not impose a requirement for existing early years workers to undertake additional qualifications. The Department has not therefore made any such estimate.

Pupils: English Language

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what additional support is provided for schools with large numbers of children who have English as a second language; and if he will make a statement; [203496]

(2) what additional funding is made available to (a) primary schools and (b) secondary schools in respect of each pupil who has English as a second language; what the duration of the additional funding is; and if he will make a statement. [203499]

Jim Knight: The Government provide funding for children including those with English as an additional language through the Dedicated Schools Grant. This grant is supplemented by substantial provision through the ring-fenced Ethnic Minority Achievement Grant (EMAG) distributed to local authorities. For 2008-09 EMAG is worth £187.6 million, rising to £206 million in 2011.

In addition, an Exceptional Circumstances Grant has been introduced to reflect changes in local authorities' pupil numbers which occur after the three-year indicative allocations of the Dedicated Schools Grant have been announced. It has three elements, covering an increase of more than 2.5 per cent. in overall pupil numbers; an increase of more than 2.5 per cent. in the proportion of pupils with English as an additional language; and a one-off payment to authorities with proportions of pupils with English as an additional language below 10 per cent. which go up by more than 2.5 per cent.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what guidance his Department provides for (a) local authorities and (b) schools on the entering for key stage tests of pupils with English as a second language who arrive in England and are enrolled in school shortly before the test date; and if he will make a statement. [203497]

Jim Knight: The Department's advice is set out in: "New Arrivals Excellence Programme: Guidance" published in September 2007, of which a copy has been placed in the Library. It draws attention to the importance of initial assessment for new arrivals, and advises on appropriate methods. Guidance on entering children for key stage tests is provided by the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority through its Assessment and Reporting Arrangements publications, which can be accessed from the website www.qca.org.uk/eara

This guidance covers all children, whether or not they have recently arrived in the UK or have English as an additional language. In essence the advice is to enter children wherever they are working at the level of the tests. However, schools may apply for a recently arrived child's results not to be recorded in published Attainment and Achievement Tables.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what estimate he has made of the proportion of pupils who spoke English as a second language in (a) primary schools, (b) secondary schools and (c) all schools in each local authority area in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [203498]

Jim Knight: The proportion of pupils whose first language was other than English for the years 1997 to 2008 (provisional) is as follows:

	Percentage
	Primary	Secondary
1997	7.8	7.3
1998	8.5	7.8
1999	8.4	7.8
2000	8.7	8.0
2001	9.3	8.0
2002	10.0	8.6
2003	10.5	8.8
2004	11.0	8.8
2005	11.6	9.0
2006	12.5	9.5
2007	13.5	10.5
2008	14.4	[1]10.8

[1] 2008 figure includes pupils at city technology colleges and academies; figures for earlier years do not.

Analysis by local authority can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Schools: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of surplus school places there were in those local authorities ranked in the (a) top 10 and (b) bottom 10 in terms of the share of pupils achieving five A* to C GCSEs, including English and mathematics in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [203493]

Jim Knight: The Department collects information from each local authority on the number of surplus school places through an annual survey. The most recent data available relate to the position at January 2007.

The following table shows the number of surplus places in maintained secondary schools in local authorities that ranked nationally in the top 10 and lowest 10 in terms of the share of pupils achieving five A*-C GCSEs, including English and mathematics.

	Percentage of pupils achieving five A-C GCSE grades or equivalent, including English and Maths*[1]	Surplus as a percentage of total secondary school places

[1] Figures relate to pupils at the end of Key Stage 4 in all schools published in the Schools Achievement and Attainment tables.
[2] The Five Islands Schools on the Isles of Scilly has 2 per cent. surplus places. This is included in our published primary school figures as the school is an all-through school which is middle-deemed primary.

Supply Teachers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 240W, on supply teachers, what the reasons for the difference in spending on supply teachers between 2005-06 and 2006-07 were; and if he will make a statement. [203904]

Jim Knight: Following a review of the answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 240W, and the data given, it appears that a clerical error was made in the response provided.

The correct value of spend on supply teachers in maintained schools in each year from 1997-98 was as follows:

	Supply teaching staff	Agency supply teaching staff	Total
2002-03	484,510,938	356,530,225	841,041,163
2003-04	462,741,309	372,491,669	835,232,978
2004-05	438,806,050	384,905,468	823,711,518
2005-06	454,848,557	434,073,749	888,922,306
2006-07	433,869,906	439,622,332	873,492,238

Prior to 2002-03 expenditure on supply teachers was not separately identifiable, so these data are not available. Data for the period 2007-08 are not yet available.

Teaching Methods

Michael Gove: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will place in the Library (a) the latest data obtained by Ofsted on the extent of setting in schools, broken down by subject, age and pupil and (b) a copy of his Department's guidance on setting. [202069]

Jim Knight: HM Chief Inspector Christine Gilbert has written to the hon. Member with regard to Ofsted's latest data on setting. A copy of her reply has been placed in the Library. I have placed in the Library a copy of the Department's guidance on pupil grouping, 'Grouping Pupils for Success', and the two pieces of independent research, commissioned by the Department, on which this guidance is based: 'Pupil Grouping Strategies and Practices at Key Stage 2 and 3' (published September 2006) and 'Effective Teaching and Learning for Pupils in Low Attaining Groups' (published September 2007).

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 30 April 2008:

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for a response to part (a). The Department for Children, Schools and Families will respond separately to part (b).

Our current data do not enable us to count or estimate how many lessons in England are set by ability. The attached tables show the data Ofsted has on the proportion of lessons observed during inspections carried out in the academic year 2006/07, by subject, phase of education and year. Inspectors record whether classes are setted, streamed or banded, as one category, or are mixed ability in composition. A third category is used for lessons in which other forms of grouping are used. When a lesson observed is setted, streamed or banded by ability, a note is made of the ability level of the class concerned.

The data are based on the use of setting, streaming or banding in lessons observed during inspection. Some explanation of these figures may be helpful. Since September 2005, the recording of class organisation has been based either on discussions with the head teacher or teacher by reference to the lesson plan at the time of observation. A much smaller number of lessons is observed than would have been seen under the previous inspection framework. Lessons seen may therefore not represent pupil grouping in the school as a whole.

For clarity, setting is the term used to describe the organisation of pupils in classes on the basis of their prior attainment in the particular subject being taught. The term banding, which is very similar to streaming, is used when the decision as to which pupils are included in a class is based on the prior attainment in a range of subjects. Ofsted does not differentiate between setting, streaming and banding in the data collected during lesson observations.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Jim Knight MP, Minister of State for Schools and Learners, and will be placed in the Library of both Houses.

Truancy: Fixed Penalties

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many parents have received (a) one, (b) two, (c) three and (d) four or more fixed penalty notices in relation to condoned absenteeism of pupils since 2004; and if he will make a statement; [203540]

(2) how many parents have received fixed penalty notices in relation to condoned absenteeism of pupils since their inception, broken down by index of multiple deprivation decile; and if he will make a statement. [203541]

Jim Knight: The information requested is not available. The Department only collects aggregate data at local authority level on the number of penalty notices issued to parents in respect of the offence of failing to ensure their children's regular school attendance.

Working Tax Credit

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of people claimed the child care element of the working tax credit in (a) the Basingstoke constituency, (b) Hampshire and (c) England in each year since records were available. [203152]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave her on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 916W.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many dwellings in each local authority in England had council tax band amendments in 2007-08; how many involved properties moving up one or more bands; and how many moved down one or more bands in each local authority. [202624]

John Healey: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Eco-Towns

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government in what regard her Department's (a) policies and (b) public service infrastructure requirements for eco-town sites differ from the requirements for development at sites which are not designated as eco-towns. [202661]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 29 April 2008]: As set out in the consultation document "Eco-towns—Living a greener future" we have set challenging criteria, which build on policies and infrastructure requirements for development at sites which are not eco-towns. For example, in terms of sustainable transport we have said that the location of major facilities and services such as shops and community facilities should be located within a 10-minute walk of homes within eco-towns. Copies of the consultation document are available in the Library of the House.

Eco-Towns: Council Tax

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will commission research on the likely effect of eco-towns on levels of council tax over the next 25 years for (i) residents of the local authority areas in which each of the proposed 15 eco-towns is situated and (ii) residents of all adjacent local authority areas. [203198]

Caroline Flint [holding answer 1 May 2008]: We are still consulting on the locations and schemes on the shortlist I published on 3 April 2008.

Eco-Towns: Shops

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will make it her policy only to allow town centre shops to be permitted in eco-towns to reduce levels of carbon dioxide emissions resulting from transportation. [201842]

Caroline Flint: A well designed eco-town will make it easy to travel more sustainably between homes, services and jobs within the settlement. This would include shops and services located within a 10-minute walk of homes within eco-towns and streets designed to accommodate the needs of pedestrians, cyclists and public transport. We will also need to provide for sustainable travel to nearby settlements.

Eco-Towns: West Sussex

Mr. Gibb: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions (a) she and (b) her Department have had with Wates Developments Ltd on the proposed eco-town at Ford since 1 January 2005. [203809]

Caroline Flint [holding answer7 May 2008]: Neither the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government nor Ministers in her Department have held meetings with Wates Developments Ltd on the proposed eco-town at Ford since 1 January 2005. On 3 September 2007, officials met members of Wates Developments involved with the proposal for an eco-town at Ford. At the meeting they outlined their expression of interest for an eco-town, and officials confirmed the process and criteria for eco-towns as set out in the "Eco-towns Prospectus", published on 23 July 2007.

Housing: Migration

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what research she has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the proportion of projected household growth attributable to net migration in (i) London, (ii) the South East and (iii) the East of England. [201003]

Caroline Flint: None. Such information is available at the England level only from the Department's Household Projections.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when the Government plan to respond to the Sixth Report of the Communities and Local Government Committee, HC 195, on Refuse Collection: Waste Reduction Pilots, published on 21 February 2008. [204470]

John Healey: The Government submitted their response to the Communities and Local Government Committee on 21 April.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average tour interval for the (a) Army, (b) Royal Air Force, (c) Royal Navy and (d) Royal Marines was at the end of the 2007-08 financial year. [199475]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information is not held in the format requested, as average tour intervals across the single services as a whole are not currently calculated.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of force elements reported (a) no serious or critical and (b) no critical weaknesses against required peacetime readiness levels in each year since 1997. [203719]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We have only been collecting and reporting such information since 2001-02. It has been published in the Department's Annual Report and Accounts and quarterly performance reports for the years since, copies of which are available in the Library of the House.

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of force elements reported (a) no serious or critical and (b) no critical weaknesses against the ability to generate from peacetime readiness to immediate readiness for deployment on operations in each year since 1997. [203720]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: We have only been collecting such information since 2004-05 and reporting it since 2005-06. It has been published in the Department's Annual Report and Accounts and quarterly performance reports for the years since, copies of which are available in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Pay

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of his Department's manning evidence submitted to the Senior Salaries Review Board for each financial year from 1997-98. [185715]

Derek Twigg: All available information on the manning evidence submitted to the Senior Salaries Review Body from 1997-98 has now been collated and placed in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Personnel Management

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the effects on his Department's expenditure of the introduction of Joint Personnel Administration in each year since 2005. [202355]

Derek Twigg: The implementation costs for Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) by financial year were as follows.

	£ million
2005-06	14.9
2006-07	37.4
2007-08	22.7

These costs include technical development and delivery costs, but exclude single service costs incurred in adjusting to the new system which were absorbed as part of business operating costs.

The benefits accrued by financial year were as follows.

	£ million
2005-06	16.2
2006-07	38.4
2007-08	63.4

These figures include reduced costs within the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency and headcount reductions in each of the Services.

Consequently, the impact of JPA on departmental expenditure was broadly cost-neutral in 2005-06 and 2006-07, with a saving of some £40 million in 2007-08.

Armed Forces: Recruitment

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how his Department plans to monitor the impact of the Armed Forces Benefits Calculator on recruitment. [204354]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Armed Forces Benefits Calculator (ABC) is a new initiative which builds on the success of the pension calculator to provide service personnel with the means of working out an indicative value for their total remuneration package, incorporating basic pay, specialist pay, individual allowances, pension, and other benefits. As such, it is retention focused: the calculator has been developed to better communicate to service personnel the value of their 'total reward' package, and other associated financial remuneration information.

The MOD also regards strongly the ABC's value to recruiting, because it provides those thinking about joining the armed forces with a means of investigating the type of remuneration and benefits available. In future, the single services will be able to understand its impact, and the role it plays in determining why an individual wishes to enlist, from initial interviews. The calculator uses a combination of existing pay rates and allowances (details of which can be found at http://www.mod-abc.co.uk), and some new values, which have been agreed with subject matter experts and the single services. These new values are included to provide a broad indication of what some of the other benefits that personnel receive in return for military service (such as dental care, and health and fitness facilities) might cost to replicate in civilian life.

Armed Forces: Vehicles

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what timescale his Department has for the phasing out of personnel carriers with (a) inadequate armour and (b) those not designed to withstand improvised explosive device detonations; [201586]

(2) what assessment his Department has made of the operational viability of BAE RG31 vehicles, or similar vehicles, built to withstand improvised explosive device detonations; [201587]

(3) what assessment his Department has made of the viability of replacing Land Rover and Vector vehicles in Iraq and Afghanistan with armoured vehicles built to withstand improvised explosive device detonations. [201588]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Commanders need a range of vehicles of varying protection, mobility and profile to achieve their missions and tasks and counter the threat.

In 2006 the BAE RG-31 was considered in detail, along with the ADI Bushmaster and FPI Cougar 6x6, to fulfil the need for a large protected patrol vehicle that could meet our demanding protection requirements in the fastest possible time. The Cougar was selected and is now known as Mastiff; it has undergone rigorous assessment throughout the procurement process and continues to be assessed, in order to counter emerging threats.

Additional deliveries of Mastiff and a new medium protected patrol vehicle to be called Ridgeback, may allow a reduction in the number of Snatch Land Rovers; however, commanders hold that a role for lighter vehicles on operations is likely to remain, as part of the suite of protected patrol vehicles and high mobility patrol vehicles available to them.

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what restrictions are in place on the movement of armed forces personnel in the back of 4-tonne vehicles with regard to (a) maximum distance travelled and (b) time allowed in the back of the vehicle. [203821]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 7 May 2008]: The 4-tonne vehicle referred to in this question is defined as a Dual Purpose Vehicle (DPV). When used to carry passengers, the DPV can be used on public roads for single journeys of not more than 40 miles and not exceeding one hour. This distance and time may only be exceeded when personnel are carrying out operations, training for operations and conducting formal field training exercises.

DPVs fitted with troop-carrying vehicle enhanced seating are exempt from these time and distance restrictions, when travelling on metalled roads. Where they are used to carry passengers in off road scenarios, journey times should not exceed one hour at 20 to 25 mph over an eight hour period. Enhanced seating is being progressively phased in throughout the DPV fleet.

Armed Forces: Working Conditions

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of service personnel at each rank between OR1 and OR6 have worked above 55 hours per week on average since October 2007. [200949]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, Defence Analytical Services and Advice (DASA) carries out a continuous sample survey of working patterns, which provides information on hours worked in a given week.

The survey is based on a random sample of 18,000 trained service personnel stratified by service, broad rank group and broad location which aims to provide estimates of the average weekly hours worked for those groups and locations.

Since any respondent only provides a diary of their working hours for a single week, we cannot make any further inferences about individual working patterns over a prolonged period.

Work is currently in progress on the 2007-08 Survey of Working Patterns, and the report is expected to be ready towards the end of 2008.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what percentage of service personnel at each rank between OR1 and OR6 worked above 55 hours per week on average between October 2006 and October 2007. [200950]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

However, Defence Analytical Services and Advice (DASA) carries out a continuous sample survey of working patterns, which provides information on hours worked in a given week.

The survey is based on a random sample of 18,000 trained service personnel stratified by service, broad rank group and broad location which aims to provide estimates of the average weekly hours worked for those groups and locations.

Since any respondent will only provide a diary of their working hours for a single week, we cannot make any further inferences about individual working patterns over a prolonged period.

The average weekly hours worked for senior ranks (OR6 to OR9) in 2006-07 was 47.9 and junior ranks (OR1 to OR5) 46.7. Time spent working includes core activities, secondary duties, compulsory fitness, training, organised sports and representational activities but excludes breaks.

A copy of the 2006-07 Continuous Working Patterns report is in the Library of the House.

Colchester

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the longest period is for which a residential or former residential dwelling of his Department in Colchester constituency has remained empty. [195987]

Derek Twigg: Data is only available for residential properties which are currently empty. Of these, seven properties at Colchester have been vacant for seven years awaiting major modernisation. These seven properties now form part of the Colchester upgrade programme spanning financial years 2009-11.

In 1996, the Ministry of Defence sold most of its Service Family Accommodation (SFA) properties in England and Wales to Annington Homes Ltd (AHL), the majority of which were immediately leased back by this Department for defence use. When surplus to defence requirements, properties are handed back to AHL, which is solely responsible for the property until AHL sells the property on the open market. The MOD is not required to maintain records of these properties once they have been handed back to AHL.

Since May 2007, the total number of void SFA properties in Great Britain has taken from 9,162 to 8,761 properties.

Ex-Servicemen: Housing

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the ability of the Joint Service Housing Advice Office to assist service leavers on their departure from the armed forces. [203988]

Derek Twigg: The Joint Service Housing Advice Office's main task is to ensure that the service community is aware of new schemes from both the public and private sector that may help them in their search for civilian housing when they leave the Services.

During 2007, the JSHAO ran 85 briefings designed to encourage Service personnel to make long term housing provision while they are in service. These briefings were attended by over 2,000 service personnel.

The JSHAO maintains links with housing associations that have a specific commitment to help service leavers and their housing needs. It also runs a referral scheme, the MOD Nomination Scheme, through which a total of 81 families and individuals were housed in 2007.

Saudi Arabia: BAE Systems

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he or any of the Ministers in his Department has been informed by (a) BAE Systems and (b) the Serious Fraud Office of any payments made by BAES to the ex-Saudi ambassador to the US, Prince Bandar bin Sultan. [201581]

Des Browne: It is our policy not to comment on commercially or diplomatically sensitive or legally privileged information because to do so would, or would be likely to, prejudice international relations, commercial confidentiality or our legal obligations.

Territorial Army: Northern Ireland

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Territorial Army personnel are based in Northern Ireland. [204665]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The number of Territorial Army personnel based in Northern Ireland as at 31 March 2008 was 1,962. Additionally there were 100 TA personnel, normally based in Northern Ireland, mobilised and serving in Afghanistan and Iraq.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Assets: Consultants

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 7 March 2008, Official Report, column 2844W, on Assets: Consultants, on which (a) properties and (b) other parts of the estate each of the firms listed provided advice. [198099]

Mr. Watson: I have nothing to add to my previous answer.

Cancer

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many newly diagnosed cases of each type of cancer there were in each year since 1997. [201945]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent parliamentary question asking how many newly diagnosed cases of each type of cancer there were in each year since 1997. [201945]

The latest available figures for newly diagnosed cases of each type of cancer are for the year 2005. Figures for 1997 to 2005 can be found in Tables 1 and 7 of the Annual Reference Volume, Cancer statistics: Registrations, Series MB1, available from the NS website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Productasp?vlnk=8843&Pos=&ColRank=1&Rank=224

Carbon Monoxide: Death

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many deaths there were in England as a result of carbon monoxide poisoning in each year since 1997, broken down by Government Office region. [203133]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many deaths there were in England as a result of carbon monoxide poisoning in each year since 1997, broken down by Government Office Region. (203133)

The attached table provides the number of deaths where the toxic effect of carbon monoxide was the cause of death, in England and each government office region, from 1997 to 2006 (the latest year available).

Childbirth

Andrew George: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster on which dates the number of (a) live births and (b) stillbirths that took place in the previous year was published in each of the last five years. [202391]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As the National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question about the dates on which the number of (a) live births and (b) stillbirths that took place in the previous year were published in each of the last five years. (202391)

The Office for National Statistics is responsible for publishing statistics on the numbers of births registered in England and Wales. The latest year for which figures are available is 2006.

The table below gives the dates on which the numbers of live births and still births in England and Wales for the years 2002 to 2006 were first published. Live births are first published as part of the first release of births and deaths data. Stillbirths are first published in Health Statistics Quarterly (within the infant and perinatal mortality report).

Date of publication (England and Wales)

Year of birth	Live births	Stillbirths
2002	13 May 2003	2 1 August 2003
2003	13 May 2004	19 August 2004[1]
2004	12 May 2005	25m August 2005[1]
2005	18 May 2006	30 August 2006
2006	7 June 2007[1]	23rd August 2007

[1] Revisions are sometimes necessary if further information becomes available at a later date. In the instances indicated in the table these were made in August following the first release.

Children

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of (a) individuals and (b) couples had at least one child below the age of five in (i) Basingstoke constituency, (ii) Hampshire and (iii) England in each year for which figures are available. [202989]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician for England and Wales, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of (a) individuals and (b) couples had at least one child below the age of five years in (i) Basingstoke, (ii) Hampshire and (iii) England in each year for which figures are available. (202989)

The requested counts for Local Authorities/Parliamentary Constituencies are only available from the Census. Figures from earlier Censuses would only be available at disproportionate cost. The figures from the 2001 Census are provided below:

Area	Lone parent families with at least one dependent child aged 0 to 4	Percentage of all families with dependent children, who are lone parent families with at least one dependent child aged 0 to 4	Couple families with at least one dependent child aged 0 to 4	Percentage of all families with dependent children who are couple families with at least one dependent child aged 0 to 4
England	503,391	8.4	1,810,063	30.1
Hampshire	8,478	5.6	48,421	31.9
Basingstoke and Deane District	1,274	6.5	6,620	33.9
Basingstoke Parliamentary Constituency	1,033	7.5	4,640	33.8

Notes:

2. A family comprises a group of people consisting of a married or cohabiting couple with or without child(ren), or a lone parent with child(ren). It also includes a married or cohabiting couple with their grandchild(ren) or a lone grandparent with his or her grandchild(ren) where there are no children in the intervening generation in the household. Cohabiting couples include same sex couples. Children in a couple family need not belong to both members of the couple.
3. The counts for Hampshire exclude the Unitary Authorities of Portsmouth and Southampton.

Children: Bereavement

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many and what proportion of those under the age of (a) three, (b) five and (c) 16 had been bereaved by the death of their (i) mother, (ii) father and (iii) sibling at the latest date for which figures are available. [202856]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many and what proportion of those under the age of (a) three, (b) five and (c) 16 years had been bereaved by the death of their (i) mother, (ii) father and (iii) sibling at the latest date for which figures are available. (202856)

Although information on the relationship of the informant to the deceased is collected at death registration, information on whether the deceased had living children or siblings when death occurred is not, and therefore the information requested is not available.

Citizen Information Project

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what recommendations of the Citizen Information Project the Office for National Statistics has implemented; and if he will place in the Library a copy of the report. [203127]

Mr. Watson: The information falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking what recommendations of the Citizen Information Project the Office for National Statistics has implemented. (203133)

On 18 April 2006 (Official Report, column 1WS) the then Chief Secretary to the Treasury announced that the Government had accepted the recommendations by the CIP team based in the Office for National Statistics. The CIP project was subsequently closed by ONS: the relevant government departments will have been responsible for implementing the recommendations. A copy of the report can be found at:

Construction: Manpower

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people were employed in the construction industry in (a) the Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. [198839]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Katen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your parliamentary question asking how many people have been employed in the construction industry in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. (198839).

The definitive source for the number of people employed is normally the Labour Force Survey (LFS). However, because of the interest in the construction sector, estimates of the number of jobs have been compiled from the Annual Business Inquiry (ABI/1).

Table 1 attached provides an estimate of jobs in Construction (Standard Industrial Classification (1992) section F) for Great Britain, the North East, South Tyneside and Jarrow for each year from 1997 to 2006, the most recent available. Estimates using the ABI/1 are not available for the United Kingdom.

Figures from the ABI/1 do not include self-employed jobs and therefore these estimates will understate the actual total number of jobs.

As with any survey, results from the ABI/1 are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Table 1: Number of jobs in Construction Industries[1, 2]

Thousand (not seasonally adjusted)

	Great Britain	North East	South Tyneside	Jarrow[3]

1998	1,108	52	3	2
1999	1,131	56	3	2
2000	1,128	56	2	1
2001	1,156	57	2	1
2002	1,163	54	2	1
2003	1,138	53	2	1
2004	1,181	58	2	1
2005	1,213	62	3	2
2006	1,257	60	2	1

[1] Standard Industrial Classification (1992) section F.

[2] The Annual Business Inquiry does not include estimates of self-employment jobs. Therefore the estimates provided will be lower than the actual total.

[3] 1995 Parliamentary Constituency Revision Boundary.

[4] Figures for 1997 are based on estimates from the rescaled Annual Employment Survey and therefore there is a discontinuity between 1997 and 1998.

Notes:

1. Annual Business Inquiry figures are a measure of jobs rather than people. For example, if a person holds two jobs, each job will be counted in the total.
2. Estimates for the United Kingdom using the Annual Business Inquiry are not available.
3. There are significant discontinuities which affect comparisons of the 2006 ABI/1 estimates with earlier years and additionally with respect to changes to Standard Industrial Classifications and Geographies in 2003. Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much the Cabinet Office spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting were made in each such year. [204114]

Phil Hope: The Cabinet Office is a member of the Government carbon offsetting fund (GCOF). The GCOF aims to fulfil the Prime Minister's commitment to offset emissions attributable to all official and ministerial air travel in central Government. It is available to all central Government Departments and provides a simple and cost-effective way to offset, as well as ensuring high environmental integrity. The GCOF runs for an initial period of three years (2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09). The Cabinet Office and DEFRA have offset an extra year (2005-06).

The Cabinet Office has paid £32,326.88 into the GCOF from April 2005 to April 2007. Data are currently being collected for the 2007-08 reporting year, and will be available later in the year.

The GCOF is being managed by EEA Fund Management Ltd, which won the contract to source and deliver 255,000 certified emission reduction credits, with a provision for a further 50,000 credits, over three years from a range of clean development mechanism (CDM) projects. Credits will be supplied from the project portfolio of Trading Emissions plc, to whom EEA is the investment adviser.

Departmental Ministerial Policy Advisors

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what severance payment the Director of Political Strategy in the Prime Minister's Office, Mr Spencer Livermore, will receive upon leaving his post. [196642]

Mr. Watson: Paragraph 14b of the Model Contract for Special Advisers sets out the circumstances in which severance is paid. Copies of the model contract are available in the Library of the House. Mr. Livermore did not receive a severance payment.

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much was spent by his Department and its agencies on (a) alcohol and (b) entertaining in the last 12-month period for which information is available. [187786]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office does not keep separate records of expenditure on alcohol or entertaining. Such expenditure is included in the Department's hospitality budget and is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in "Managing Public Money" and other Treasury guidance.

Departmental Sick Leave

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many of his Department's staff took more than (a) five, (b) 10, (c) 15, (d) 20, (e) 25, (f) 30, (g) 35 and (h) 40 days leave due to stress in each of the last five years, broken down by pay grade. [198965]

Mr. Watson: The most recent published absence data for the Cabinet Office are available for the 12 months ending 31 March 2007, in the Analysis of Cabinet Office Statistics. This is available on the civil service statistics website at http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/statistics/sickness.asp.

Copies have been placed in the Library of the House.

In order to protect the confidentiality of individuals, it is standard Government practice not to publish records relating to five or less individuals. A breakdown of figures on absence owing to stress by grade and period of absence cannot be provided, since this may compromise the privacy of the individuals because of the small numbers involved.

Departmental Standards

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how his Department plans to work on social clauses to promote adherence to the Best Value Code of Practice on Workforce Matters and the Cabinet Office Code of Practice on Workforce Matters. [203324]

Phil Hope: The Department has no plans to work on social clauses to promote adherence to the Best Value Code of Practice on Workforce Matters and the Cabinet Office Code of Practice on Workforce Matters. Under the code, public-sector organisations have a responsibility to ensure that service providers implement the code, whereas social clauses cover additional clauses in public service contracts which are used at the discretion of the public sector commissioner.

Departmental Temporary Employment

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many full-time posts in the Cabinet Office were filled on a temporary basis for a period in excess of six months in each of the last three years. [200656]

Mr. Watson: For the number of temporary staff working in the Department, I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for North Cornwall (Dan Rogerson) on 22 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1957-8W, by the Parliamentary Secretary, Cabinet Office, my hon. Friend the Member for Corby (Phil Hope).

The Department does not centrally hold information on length of tenure for temporary staff, and the information could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Employment

Mr. Spring: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what proportion of those in employment in (a) Suffolk and (b) the east of England were British-born UK nationals in each of the last five years. [201493]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking what proportion of those in employment in (a) Suffolk and (b) the East of England were British-born UK nationals in each of the last five years. (201493)

The Office for National Statistics compiles employment statistics for local areas from the Annual Population Survey (APS) and its predecessor the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

The attached table shows the percentage of persons of working age (16-64 for men, 16-59 for women) in employment who were British-born UK nationals. Estimates are obtained from the annual LFS for each 12 month period from 2003 to 2004 ending in February. For time series comparisons, the APS estimates from 2005 to 2007 are provided covering the 12 month periods ending in March, but the most recently released estimate is also included, which covers the 12 month period ending in September 2007.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

In order to produce estimates for small geographical areas, APS and annual LFS estimates are provided based on survey microdata. It should be noted that the estimate provided is weighted to population estimates consistent with those published in 2003. Reweighted analyses using the latest population estimates, published in summer 2007, will available from 14 May 2008.

(202553)

The attached table gives estimates of the number of people in full-time and part-time employment and the number of unemployed people for the categories requested for the three month period ending December 2007.

It should be noted that the estimates provided are weighted to population estimates consistent with those published in 2003. Reweighted analyses using the latest population estimates, published in summer 2007, will available from 14 May 2008.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Employment: Disabled

John Barrett: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what his most recent estimate is of the number of people with a registered disability in employment. [200600]

Mr. Watson [holding answer 23 April 2008]: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about the most recent estimate of the number of people with a registered disability in employment. [200600]

The Disabled Persons Register used to be maintained by the government under the now defunct Disabled Persons (Employment) Act 1944. The Disability Discrimination Act 1995 came into force in 1996 and ended the facility for disabled people to be registered as such.

Statistics on workers with health problems or disabilities are available from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). For the reason mentioned above, people who are "registered disabled" cannot be identified but a similar measure is available, as follows. For the three months ending December 2007 there were an estimated 3.5 million people of working age in employment in the UK with a long-term health problem or disability which either substantially limited their day-to-day activities or affected the kind or amount of work they could do, or both.

Working age refers to men aged 16 to 64 and women aged 16 to 59.

It should be noted that the estimate provided is weighted to population estimates consistent with those published in 2003. Reweighted analyses using the latest population estimates, published in summer 2007, will available from 14 May 2008.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Health Services

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster whether his Department provides health or social care services out of public funds, with reference to the statement by the Minister of State, Department of Health, in the Health and Social Care Bill Committee, of 17 January 2008, Official Report, column 327. [200219]

Mr. Watson: My Department currently provides an occupational health advisory service for staff which may be regarded as health and social care paid for out of public funds for the purposes of the Health and Social Care Bill.

Industrial Health and Safety

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 13 March 2008, Official Report, column 593W, on industrial health and safety, what the incident reported in 10 Downing Street between April 2006 and March 2007 was; whether it involved (a) an injury, (b) a disease and (c) a dangerous occurrence; and how many of those affected were (i) civil servants, (ii) special advisers and (iii) Ministers. [198174]

Mr. Watson: The incident related to the use of a drilling machine by a sub-contractor working on behalf of the Cabinet Office and was recorded as a near-miss/dangerous occurrence under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995. No injuries were suffered by any person.

JP Morgan

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much the Cabinet Office paid to JPMorgan in each year since 1997; and what the purpose of each payment was. [199588]

Mr. Watson: The Cabinet Office has not made any payments to JPMorgan since 1997.

Low Incomes: Taxation

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what research the Social Exclusion Unit has undertaken on the effects of the tax system on low-income households. [203805]

Phil Hope: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave the hon. Member for Preseli Pembrokeshire (Mr. Crabb) on 7 May 2008, Official Report, column 694.

Lung Cancer: Death

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the mortality rate was for lung cancer on Merseyside in the last year for which figures are available. [201618]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what the mortality rate was for lung cancer on Merseyside in the last year for which figures are available. (201618)

The age-standardised mortality rate[1] for Merseyside metropolitan county[2], where lung cancer was the underlying cause of death[3], was 57 per 100,000 population in 20064 (the latest year available).

[1] Age-standardised mortality rates per 100,000 population, standardised to the European Standard Population.

Age-standardised rates are used to allow comparison between populations which may contain different proportions of people of different ages.

[2] Based on boundaries as of 2008.

[3] Cause of death for lung cancer was defined using the International Classification of Diseases, Tenth Revision (ICD-10) codes C33-C34.

[4] Figures are for deaths registered 2006.

Manufacturing Industries: Statistics

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what assessment he has made of the effect on the quality of labour market statistical information from (a) the manufacturing industry and (b) the furniture industry of the reduction in the sample size for the Monthly Production Inquiry. [201982]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2009:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question on the assessment of the effect on the quality of labour market statistical information from (a) the manufacturing industry and (b) the furniture industry of the reduction in sample size of the Monthly Production Inquiry (MPI). (201982)

The MPI collects turnover and employment information from businesses in Great Britain, which is used mainly for the compilation of National Accounts and Labour Market Statistics.

Monthly series for employee jobs in the manufacturing sector are published on the Office for National Statistics (ONS) website. In March 2008, when ONS published estimates for January 2008, the MPI sample of businesses was reduced by around 10 per cent, as part of a wider ONS efficiency programme and to meet ONS' targets to reduce the burden it places on business. The sample was reallocated across the sample cells (defined by business size-bands and industries) to make the best use of the survey information. This offset the quality impact of reducing the sample size and enabled us to meet our aim of maintaining the quality of estimates at the aggregate level. At the more detailed level, some industries gained in quality at the expense of others.

Sampling errors are a key measure of survey quality, and were estimated to inform the sample changes and assess the impact on quality. The coefficient of variation is simply the sampling error given as a percentage of the actual estimate, which allows for a relative measure of error for comparative purposes. Please note that estimates of sampling error are themselves subject to a margin of uncertainty.

(a) The estimate of GB employee jobs in manufacturing in January 2008 was 2,806 thousand. The previous coefficient of variation of 1.2 per cent gave us 95 per cent confidence that the estimate was between 2773 and 2839 thousand. The changes resulted in a small increase in precision, with a coefficient of variation of 1.1 per cent, giving us 95 per cent confidence that the estimate was between 2776 and 2836 thousand.

(b) The estimate of GB employee jobs series in furniture manufacturing in January 2008 was 102 thousand. The previous coefficient of variation of 5.9 per cent gave us 95 per cent confidence that the estimate was between 96 and 108 thousand. The changes resulted in a small decrease in precision, with a coefficient of variation of 6.9 per cent, giving us 95 per cent confidence that the estimate was between 95 and 109 thousand.

Migration Statistics

Simon Hughes: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what additional resources are being made available to the Office for National Statistics to undertake the work-plan it has recommended to improve migration estimates. [199298]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question on what additional resources are being made available to the Office for National Statistics to undertake the Workplan it has recommended to improve migration estimates. (199298)

The statistical work programme for the next four year period is being finalised and will be published shortly. ONS will also be making a related announcement that will provide the details of the migration statistics improvement programme.

NHS Statistics

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what information was made available, and when, to Ministers in his Department on the Department of Health's NHS quarterly in-patient and out-patient waiting times statistics' failure against the six criteria of clarity, accuracy, objectivity, professionalism, use of simple language and ease of use; and what representations have been made to his Department by the Office of National Statistics on this matter. [202771]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what information had been available, and when, to Ministers on the Department of Health's NHS quarterly inpatient and outpatient waiting times statistics' failure against the six criteria of clarity, accuracy, objectivity, professionalism, use of simple language and ease of use; and what representation had been made to his Department by the Office of National Statistics on this matter. (202771)

Statistical Heads of Profession in the relevant Departments, the Chair of the UK Statistics Authority, and I as his Chief Executive, all received a copy of the Statistics Commission's 39th Report which was published on 13 March 2008 and entitled 'Releasing Official Statistics: A Review of Statistical First Releases'. Heads of Profession in other Departments will have informed their Ministers as appropriate. That report described the Commission's recent review of a sample of statistical releases issued by the Government Statistical Service against six key criteria relating to release practices. Included in the Commission's sample was the Department of Health's NHS quarterly Inpatient and Outpatient Waiting Times release. The Head of Profession for Statistics in the Department of Health wrote to the National Statistician at the time indicating that remedial measures would be taken where appropriate. It is now the case that commentary will be included with all Department of Health statistical releases. Additionally, and once the Authority's statutory Head of Assessment is in place, the Authority will consider when and how it will assess this release against its Code of Practice for Official Statistics.

The attached table gives estimates of the number of people in full-time and part-time employment for the categories requested for the three month period ending December 2007.

It should be noted that the estimates provided are weighted to population estimates consistent with those published in 2003. Reweighted analyses using the latest population estimates, published in summer 2007, will be available from 14 May 2008.

As with any sample survey, estimates from the LFS are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Public Appointments Commissioner: Stratagem

Greg Clark: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, what payments the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments made to Stratagem in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose in each case. [202289]

Mr. Watson: I understand that the Office of the Commissioner for Public Appointments has made no payments to Strategem in the last five years.

Self-Employed: North East

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many self-employed people worked in the construction industry in (a) the Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. [202455]

Mr. Watson: The information falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many self-employed people worked in the construction industry in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. (202455)

The Office for National Statistics compiles employment statistics for local areas from the Annual Population Survey (APS) and its predecessor the annual Labour Force Survey (LFS) following International Labour Organisation definitions.

Table 1, attached, shows the number of people aged 16 and over, resident in the Jarrow constituency, South Tyneside, the North East and the UK who were self employed in the construction industry in each year since 1997. Estimates are obtained from the annual LFS for each 12 month period from 1997 to 2004 ending in February. For time series comparisons, the APS estimates from 2005 to 2007 are provided covering the 12 month periods ending in March, but the most recently released estimate is also included, which covers the 12 month period ending in September 2007.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in small geographical areas, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

In order to produce estimates for small geographical areas, APS and annual LFS estimates are provided based on survey microdata. It should be noted that the estimate provided is weighted to population estimates consistent with those published in 2003. Reweighted analysis using the latest population estimates, published in summer 2007, will be available from 14 May 2008.

Skin Cancer

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people aged (a) three to nine, (b) 10 to 19, (c) 20 to 29, (d) 30 to 39, (e) 40 to 49, (f) 50 to 59 and (e) 60 years and over have been diagnosed with skin cancer in each of the last five years. [202750]

Edward Miliband: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many people aged (a) three to nine, (b) 10 to 19, (c) 20 to 29, (d) 30 to 39, (e) 40 to 49, (f) 50 to 59 and (g) 60 years and over have been diagnosed with skin cancer in each of the last five years. The most recent available figures for newly diagnosed cases of malignant melanoma of skin registered in England are for the year 2005. Figures for 2001-2005, by age group, are given in the table below.

Unemployment

Chris Grayling: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many and what proportion of households included no-one in full-time employment (a) in 1997 and (b) in the latest year for which figures are available, broken down by (i) constituency, (ii) local authority and (iii) region; [203278]

(2) how many and what proportion of people lived in households with no-one in full-time employment (a) in 1997 and (b) in the latest year for which figures are available, broken down by (i) constituency, (ii) local authority and (iii) region. [203279]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your two parliamentary questions. The first asks how many and what proportion of households included no-one in full-time employment (a) in 1997 and (b) in the latest year for which figures are available, broken down by (i) constituency, (ii) local authority and (iii) region (203278). The second asks how many and what proportion of people lived in households where no-one was in full time employment (a) in 1997 and (b) in the latest year for which figures are available, broken down by (i) constituency, (ii) local authority and (iii) region (203279).

Estimates in the attached tables are provided from the Labour Force Survey (LFS). There is currently no annual household dataset, so the figures are given for the April-June quarter to be consistent with those published in the 'Work and worklessness among households' First Release (see web link http://www.statistics.gov.uk/pdfdir/work0807.pdf).

A copy of the tables has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Data for English and Welsh parliamentary constituencies has been provided for 1999 as data are not available for 1997. Data for Scottish parliamentary constituencies are only available for 2007.

The household datasets (like the main quarterly LFS microdatasets) are weighted to the population estimates published by ONS in February and March 2003. They do not incorporate the more recent population estimates used in the headline LFS series.

Figures for households are based on working age households. A working-age household is a household that includes at least one person of working-age, that is a woman aged 16 to 59 or a man aged 16 to 64.

The LFS is a sample survey covering over 52,000 households in the United Kingdom in each three month period. As with any sample survey, estimates from the Labour Force Survey are subject to a margin of uncertainty.

Unemployment: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many people were unemployed in (a) the London Borough of Enfield and (b) the (i) Chase, (ii) Enfield Highway, (iii) Enfield Lock, (iv) Highlands, (v) Southbury, (vi) Town and (vii) Turkey Street wards in the borough in each of the last 10 years. [202864]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question asking how many people were unemployed in (a) the London Borough of Enfield and (b) the following wards in the borough: (i) Chase, (ii) Enfield Highway, (iii) Enfield Lock, (iv) Highlands, (v) Southbury, (vi) Town and (vii) Turkey Street in each of the last 10 years. [202864]

The Office for National Statistics produces estimates of total unemployment for unitary and local authorities, from a statistical model, following International Labour Organisation (ILO) definitions.

Table 1, attached, shows model based estimates of the total number of unemployed, for the Enfield borough. Estimates are obtained for each 12 month period from 1997 to 2004 ending in February. For time series comparisons, the estimates from 2005 to 2007 are provided covering the 12 month periods ending in March, but the most recently released estimate is also included, which covers the 12 months ending in September 2007. Corresponding estimates for local government wards are not available.

As these estimates are for a subset of the population in a small geographical area, they are based on small sample sizes, and are therefore subject to large margins of uncertainty.

It should be noted that the estimate provided is weighted to population estimates consistent with those published in 2003. Reweighted analyses using the latest population estimates, published in summer 2007, will be available from 14 May 2008.

ONS also compiles statistics for local areas of people claiming Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA). Table 2, attached, shows the total numbers of people resident in the Enfield borough and the specified wards, claiming JSA. At ward level, data is only available for periods from 2004. In addition, March 2008 data has been included as being the latest data available.

Voluntary Organisations: Heywood

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what proportion of contracts awarded to third-sector organisations that provide services in the Heywood and Middleton constituency were three year contracts in the latest period for which information is available; [202913]

(2) what progress has been made towards ensuring that third-sector organisations providing services in the Heywood and Middleton constituency are awarded three-year contracts. [202915]

Phil Hope: This Government are committed to ensuring that three-year funding for third-sector organisations becomes the norm rather than the exception. I will be reporting on Government progress in meeting this funding commitment to HM Treasury on an annual basis. The first report will be made in the autumn 2008 and will be laid before Parliament. It is expected that local authorities will be making reports on three-year funding from 2009 onwards.

The information requested is currently not recorded centrally.

Voluntary Organisations: Pensions

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many third-sector organisations providing public services have provided (a) a contracted out, final-salary based defined benefit pension scheme or (b) a defined contribution scheme with employer contributions of at least 6 per cent. to new starters working on those contracts; [203320]

(2) how many third-sector organisations providing public services have stakeholder pension schemes for new starters on those contracts; [203321]

(3) how many third-sector organisations providing public services who have stakeholder pension schemes for new starters on those contracts match employee contributions of more than 6 per cent. [203322]

Phil Hope: The information requested is not held centrally. Where public services contracts involve a transfer of staff from a public sector organisation to a private or third-sector service provider (or a subsequent retender of that contract where TUPE applies), the Code of Practice on Workforce Matters in Public Sector Service Contracts may apply. Where the code does apply, it will be for the relevant Government Department to monitor the implementation of the code, including in relation to pensions provision by service providers.

Voluntary Organisations: Standards

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what steps the Office of the Third Sector has taken to monitor (a) the application of and (b) compliance with the code of practice on workforce matters designed to prevent the development of a two tier workforce in public service contracts outsourced to the third sector; [203317]

(2) what steps the Office of the Third Sector has taken to assess the effects of the codes of practice on workforce matters designed to prevent the development of a two-tier workforce in public service contracts outsourced to the third sector; [203318]

(3) whether the Third Sector Action Plan will be used to promote adherence to the Best Value Code of Practice on Workforce Matters and the Cabinet Office Code of Practice on Workforce Matters. [203323]

Phil Hope: Public-sector organisations oversee the way in which service providers implement the code, where appropriate. If employees or trade unions feel that the code is not being applied correctly, they are invited in the first instance to alert the relevant public sector organisation. They are also supplied with contact details to seek advice in cases in which they consider that the public-sector organisation has failed to meet its responsibilities In addition, it is part of the ongoing work programme of the Public Services Forum to review the implementation of the code. This review will be undertaken in partnership by trade unions, the third and private sectors and Government.

Given these existing channels for concerns about the code to be raised and acted upon, the Office of the Third Sector has not taken steps to monitor application of, compliance with or the effectiveness of the code on workforce matters. "Partnership in Public Services", the cross-Government public service action plan, includes 18 key actions to reduce the barriers to third-sector involvement in public service delivery, and does not include promotion of the code.

Widowed People

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many widowers alive today had spouses who died before 1972. [203901]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 9 May 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many widowers alive today had spouses who died before 1972. (203901).

The information you requested is not readily available and could only be provided at disproportionate cost.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Cars: Manufacturing Industries

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the amount of pollution generated in the process of manufacturing a standard family car. [204203]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA has not undertaken any work to quantify the pollution associated with car manufacture. However, the King Review gives estimates of the carbon dioxide emitted at all life cycle stages. Similar information on other pollution impacts is published by the Society of Motor Manufacturers and Traders, and is also covered by the 'Environmental Improvement of Passenger Cars' report recently published by the European Commission.

Domestic Wastes: Contracts

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Bromley of 31 March 2008, Official Report, columns 491-6W, on Domestic Wastes: Contract, if he will place in the Library copies of the final reports of the research projects with the SIS codes of (a) WR0103, (b) WR0104, (c) WR0106, (d) WR0107, (e) WR0112, (f) WR0217, (g) WR0506, (h) WR0512, (i) WR0705 and (j) WR0601. [202934]

Joan Ruddock: Every research project commissioned by DEFRA is published on our website once it is complete. The following projects are completed and arrangements are in hand to place them in the House Library.

WR0107 - Modelling Impacts of Lifestyle Changes on Household Waste Arisings.

WR0112 - Understanding Household Waste Prevention Behaviour.

WR0512 - Evaluation of the Household Waste Incentives Pilot Scheme.

WR0501 - Health and Environmental Impacts of Vermin/Insects in the Context of Waste Management Operations.

The following projects are not yet complete, but will be made available as soon as final reports have been accepted for publication:

WR0103 - Household Waste Prevention Policy Side Research Programme.

WR0104 - Lifestyle Scenarios: Futures for Waste Composition.

WR0106 - Achieving Household Waste Prevention and Promoting Sustainable Resource Use through Product Service Systems.

WR0506 - Benefits of Third Sector Involvement in Waste Management.

Although co-funded by DEFRA, the following projects were commissioned by other bodies and reports for these studies can therefore be obtained from them.

WR0217 - Assessment of Occupational Health and Safety Risks of Waste Collection and Handling Systems (Commissioned by the Health and Safety Executive).

WR0705 - Updated Lifecycle Study on Reusable and Disposable Nappies (Commissioned by the Environment Agency).

EU Law

Mr. Caton: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department has taken to implement (a) EC Regulation 166/2006, (b) EC Regulation 1882/2002, (c) Council Directive 96/61/EC, (d) EU Directive 2003/87/EC and (e) Commission Directive 2003/35. [203722]

Joan Ruddock: The information requested is as follows.

(a) Steps taken to implement EC Regulation 166/2006

The EC regulation of the European Parliament and of the Council concerning the establishment of a European Pollutant Release and Transfer Register (E-PRTR) and amending Council directives 91/689/EEC and 96/61/EC was agreed on 18 January 2006 and came into force on 24 February 2006. PRTRs are publicly accessible compilations of data that describe the releases of substances to the environment and waste transfers. The E-PRTR regulation is a directly binding piece of European legislation and does therefore not need to be transposed into domestic law. In August 2007 DEFRA published a consultation document concerning among other issues proposals on designating competent authorities, enforcement, reporting requirements and quality assessment of the collected emissions data. We have recently published the Summary of Responses received during the consultation period.

(b) Steps taken to implement EC Regulation 1882/2002

This regulation is published and updated daily and contains, for information, the Standard Import Values for determining the entry prices, on import into the EU, for certain fruit and vegetables. These values are used for customs tariff purposes by HM Revenue and Customs and importers. The regulation does not require implementation.

(c) and (e) Steps taken to implement Council Directive 96/61/EC and Commission Directive 2003/35

The Council directive 96/61/EC on integrated pollution prevention and control (IPPC) was agreed on 24 September 1996 and came into force on 30 October 1996. The IPPC directive provided a transitional period from 30 October 1999 to 30 October 2007 during which existing installations could be brought under the requirements of the directive. New installations had to comply from the outset.

In England and Wales the IPPC directive was transposed through the Pollution Prevention and Control (England and Wales) Regulations 2000. The PPC regulations were introduced under the Pollution Prevention and Control Act 1999.

The parts of the Public Participation directive 2003/35/EC which amended the IPPC directive and came into force on 25 June 2003 were transposed in England and Wales on that date through the PPC regulations. This directive provides an increase in the already high level of public participation in the process by which regulators consider applications for environmental permits to operate new or substantially changed industrial installations subject to the IPPC directive.

From 6 April 2008 the PPC regulations have been superseded by the Environmental Permitting (England and Wales) Regulations 2007.

The IPPC directive and its subsequent amendments have since been codified and repealed by directive 2008/1/EC of the European Parliament and of the Council of 15 January 2008 concerning integrated pollution prevention and control (codified version).

(d) Steps taken to implement EU Directive 2003/87/EC:

The EU emissions trading directive 2003/87/EC was agreed on 22 July 2003 and came into force on 25 October 2003. The directive has been transposed into UK legislation through the greenhouse gas emissions trading scheme regulations.

On 24 May 2005 the UK published the approved National Allocation Plan (NAP) and installation-level allocations for Phase I of the EU ETS, which ran from 2005 to 2007. The approved NAP and final allocation decision for phase ii of the scheme, running from 2008 to 2012, were published on 16 March 2007.

On 23 January 2008, the European Commission published its draft proposals for the review of the EU ETS required under article 30 of the EU directive on the EU ETS. The role of the review is to develop the EU ETS in a positive way post-2012 and learn from experiences so far. The UK welcomed the European Commission's ambitious proposals for tackling climate change and delivering a low-carbon economy in Europe. The UK will now be entering into negotiations with other member states and the Commission and will also be releasing a formal consultation soon. Once agreed by the European Council and European Parliament, the changes will need to be transposed into UK law.

Fly-Tipping: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many incidents of fly-tipping there were in the London Borough of Bexley in each of the last five years; and how many people were prosecuted in each such year for such offences. [203383]

Joan Ruddock: Data are only available from 2004 onwards.

I have arranged for a table to be placed in the Library of the House showing the number of fly-tipping incidents and prosecutions recorded in each local authority by local authorities on Flycapture for 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07.

Following the release of the 2006-07 Flycapture statistics on 9 October 2007, this information has been sent to all MPs. It is also available to download electronically on DEFRA'S Flycapture website at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/localenv/flytipping/flycapture-data.htm

Food: Waste Disposal

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment has been made of the effects of kerbside food waste collections on levels of household composting. [202953]

Joan Ruddock: Separate collections of food waste are relatively novel in the UK. In the 19 trials being conducted by the Waste and Resources Action Programme, early indications are that public participation in collections is of the order of 60-80 per cent. Of the food waste being put out for disposal around 70 per cent. is being captured by the food waste collection. The remainder is being disposed of in the residual bin. This excludes any food waste that may be home-composted. Many of the trials are being conducted in urban areas where the uptake of home composting is low as properties have either very small or no gardens. However, a customer survey in some of the trial areas indicated that between 58 per cent. and 74 per cent. of respondents considered that the availability of a food waste collection had not changed what they put in their home composting bin.

WRAP proposes to continue to monitor the food waste collection trials, and will be reporting on its findings in due course.

Some local authorities are trialling the collection of food waste with garden waste collections. The partial evidence available so far suggests that these arrangements are not generally successful in capturing food waste from the residual waste stream, Furthermore, separate research carried out by WRAP in 2007 indicates that the existence of kerbside garden/organic collections has limited impact on levels of home composting by home composting households. The main reasons given are:

1. They consider home composting to be more environmentally friendly and divert as much via that route as they can, using collection services only for items that they decide are unsuitable for home composting (pernicious weeds, large and woody items etc.)

2. As they are keen gardeners they want to make as much compost as possible, and will use the collection service only for items that don't readily compost

3. At certain times of the year their gardens produce an excess of certain waste materials and they will consider using the kerbside service to get rid of this excess material.

The inference is that food waste collected with garden waste has little overall impact on the amount of material which is home-composted.

Nature Conservation: EU Law

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what shadow price per hectare of salt marsh he has used for the purpose of implementation of Council Directive 92/43/EEC on the conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora. [204622]

Joan Ruddock: A key mechanism for delivery of this Directive is the flagship agri-environment scheme, environmental stewardship. Shadow prices are not used to determine payment rates for this scheme as they are derived from the income forgone by the landowner in carrying out the prescribed management. The payments for salt marsh options available under the environmental stewardship higher level scheme, were, in common with all the other options, calculated in 2004. There are a number of options available ranging from the maintenance of coastal saltmarsh (30/ha) to the creation of inter-tidal/saline habitat on arable land (at 700/ha).

Regeneration: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on what funding allocated by his Department for the Castle Point Regeneration Partnership is planned to be spent. [203642]

Joan Ruddock: The Castle Point Regeneration Partnership includes various bodies such as the Department for Communities and Local Government, the East of England Development Agency, the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds, Essex county council and Castle Point borough council which contribute funding to the project. Neither DEFRA nor Natural England has set aside funds for the Castle Point Regeneration Partnership.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department has powers to sanction local authorities that do not offer waste disposal free of charge to schools and prisons. [202485]

Joan Ruddock: The duty on a local authority to collect household waste is contained in section 45(1) of the Environmental Protection Act 1990. Waste from schools and prisons is classified by schedule 2 of the Controlled Waste Regulations 1992 (CWR) as household waste. Local authorities have no powers to charge for the disposal of household waste.

There are no powers in the EPA for DEFRA or the Secretary of State to sanction any authorities that charge for the disposal of household waste.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1373W, on Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges, if he will place in the Library a copy of the August letter to local authorities on section 46 powers. [204578]

Joan Ruddock: I have arranged for the information requested to be placed in the Library of the House.

Waste Management: Prisons

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations his Department has received from local authorities on Schedule 2 waste obligations to collect rubbish from prisons without imposing a charge. [202944]

Joan Ruddock: Since January 2008 DEFRA has received four letters from local authorities and one from the Local Government Association (LGA) asking the Government to consider the right of Schedule 2 waste producers to free waste disposal.

The letter from the LGA and my reply to it have both been published on the LGA's website.

Waste Management: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on the inclusion of (a) incineration and (b) recycling facilities in projects undertaken as part of his Department's waste private finance initiative funding scheme; and if he will make a statement. [202946]

Joan Ruddock: Local authorities are best placed and responsible for deciding the most appropriate waste management facilities for their areas. Recovering energy from waste is a sustainable option for residual waste that would otherwise go to landfill. It is important that plans for energy from waste facilities emerge out of local waste strategies, so that all options for reuse, recycling and composting can be explored first.

The Government wish to encourage local authorities to consider using anaerobic digestion. Other than this, we do not generally think it appropriate to express a preference for one technology over another. Any given technology is (where applicable) more beneficial if both heat and electricity can be recovered. Particular attention should therefore be given to the siting of plant to maximise opportunities for Combined Heat and Power.

The current Waste Private Finance Initiative (PFI) criteria were issued in May 2006. Projects must meet these criteria in order to be considered for PFI credits. The criteria aim to ensure that PFI credits are allotted to projects that are value for money and enable the investment in residual waste infrastructure necessary if the demanding targets in the Landfill Directive and Waste Strategy for England 2007 are to be met.

The following criteria are included:

2. PFI credits are awarded to authorities primarily to deliver increased diversion of biodegradable municipal waste from landfill. Proposals should demonstrate how the schemes:

contribute to or complement longer-term national targets for recycling and composting as well as diversion of biodegradable and other municipal waste from landfill, indicating the amount of biodegradable and other municipal waste expected to be diverted from landfill over the whole life of the project; support or complement the authorities' plans for recycling set out in their Municipal Waste Management Strategies.

5. The use of residual waste treatment options involving recovery, including energy from waste solutions, will have an integral role in treating the waste we cannot 'design out', re-use or recycle. Such options should be considered while also demonstrating that there is no future barrier to meeting reduction, reuse and recycling targets.

6. Proposals should demonstrate that other relevant authorities, the public, and interested parties have been consulted and that there is a broad consensus supporting a recognised long term waste management strategy which is reflected in the proposed solution.

10. Preferential consideration will be given to capital projects which focus on residual treatment plant only, including, but not limited to, Energy from Waste, Mechanical Biological Treatments and Anaerobic Digestion. The full criteria are available on the DEFRA website.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Anguilla: Politics and Government

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on negotiations on the constitutional future of Anguilla. [203990]

Dr. Howells: At the beginning of 2006, the Governor of Anguilla appointed a Constitutional and Electoral Reform Commission to take forward Anguilla's constitutional review process. The commission reported in August 2006. Following this, a first round of constitutional talks between Anguilla and the UK, scheduled for July 2007, was postponed at the request of the Government of Anguilla to allow for greater public consultation and for the people of Anguilla to be better informed about the constitutional options. The most recent public forum was held in April 2008. The Government are awaiting the outcome of these consultations, and are available to open constitutional talks when the Government of Anguilla are ready.

Belarus: Surveillance

Adam Price: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the (a) sale of covert surveillance technology by UK companies to the Belarusian security service and (b) use of such equipment by the Belarusian security service. [203959]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 7 May 2008]: The Government are aware of reports of meetings between UK surveillance technology companies and the authorities of Belarus. The Government are not involved in these meetings and therefore have no information about their content.

All export licence applications for military and dual use goods, including surveillance equipment, are closely examined and assessed on a case-by-case basis against Consolidated EU and National Arms Export Licensing Criteria.

Where licensable surveillance equipment is concerned, particular attention is given to Criterion 2 of the Consolidated Criteria - "The respect of human rights and fundamental freedoms in the country of final destination". The Government will not issue an export licence for any military or dual use goods where there is a clear risk that the proposed export might be used for internal repression.

Cameroon: Politics and Government

Mr. Oaten: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the implications of the recent change to the constitution of the Republic of Cameroon altering the limits of presidential terms for the political situation in that country. [203937]

Dr. Howells [holding answer 7 May 2008]: The amendment to the Cameroonian constitution to remove presidential term limits was passed in the Cameroonian National Assembly on 10 April. The constitution now places no restrictions on the number of terms for which a president, including the incumbent, may serve. It also accords some immunities to presidents for acts committed during their tenure and allows a longer period for the organisation of elections in the case of a presidential vacancy.

As noted in my answer of 23 April 2008, Official Report, column 2121W, the Government supported an EU public statement concerning the amendment of the constitution of Cameroon on 27 March. We will continue to work with EU partners. In addition, our high commission in Yaounde has raised the constitutional amendment bilaterally with a number of Cameroonian Ministers and stressed the need for urgent action to deal with the democratic deficits and other reforms that need to be addressed.

China: Falun Gong

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Government of China on the Falun Gong. [204367]

Dr. Howells: We remain concerned by reports of the mistreatment of Falun Gong adherents in various provinces of China, particularly those detained in Re-education Through Labour (RTL) camps. We raise our concerns, over individual practitioners and for the need to reform RTL, with the Chinese Government at every appropriate opportunity. We did this most recently at the 16th round of the UK-China Human Rights Dialogue in Beijing on 28 to 31 January.

Commonwealth: Scholarships

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 24 April 2008, Official Report, columns 2189-90W, on the Chevening scholarships programme, how many Commonwealth scholarships were awarded in each of the last five years. [204115]

David Miliband: The following number of Foreign and Commonwealth Office-funded Commonwealth scholarships was awarded in each of the last five years:

Country	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	Total
Australia	21	24	19	13	11	88
Bahamas	0	0	0	1	0	1
Brunei Darussalam	1	0	0	0	0	1
Canada	27	26	25	27	25	130
Cyprus	0	1	0	0	1	2
Malta	1	2	1	2	2	8
New Zealand	7	9	5	11	6	38

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs on how many occasions he has visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [204396]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not, as yet, visited the devolved Administrations in his official capacity.

East Africa: Peace Negotiations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will assess the merits of convening a regional conference on East Africa and related countries to include Sudan, Eritrea, Ethiopia, Somalia, Uganda and Kenya to discuss common objectives towards peace in that region; and if he will make a statement. [203500]

Dr. Howells: The Government will continue to work closely with countries in East Africa on regional as well as other issues. We have no plans to convene a conference of all these countries to discuss peace across the whole region. These countries, along with Djibouti, are the constituent members of the Intergovernmental Authority on Development (IGAD). IGAD was created in 1996 as an intergovernmental body for development in the East and Horn of Africa. The African Union has also identified IGAD as one of Africa's sub-regional intergovernmental organisations that can help contribute to peace and security in Africa. The Government actively support IGAD's work to promote peace and stability across the region.

Egypt: Torture

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Government of Egypt on the use of torture. [204361]

Dr. Howells: The Government are concerned about the use of torture by Egyptian authorities and the wider human rights situation in Egypt. I raised human rights issues directly with the visiting Speaker of the Egyptian Parliament on 21 January 2008.

In addition, on 11 March, officials from our embassy in Cairo met the Egyptian Deputy Minister for Human Rights to express our concerns over Egyptian conduct across a range of human rights areas.

We also look forward to having an active discussion with Egypt on these issues at the forthcoming EU-Egypt political sub-committee, established under the European Neighbourhood Policy Action Plan.

Gaza: Fuels

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the Government of Israel on fuel supplies to the Gaza Strip. [204191]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friends the Foreign Secretary and the Secretary of State for International Development issued a joint statement on 25 April 2008 expressing concern that fuel shortages in Gaza meant that the UN Relief and Works Agency was unable to continue much of its relief work. This left hundreds of thousands of people in need of food, water and medical supplies. A steady supply of fuel is essential for the provision of these basic services. We have urged the Government of Israel to ensure that, in line with their own public commitments, their actions do not result in humanitarian crisis in Gaza. This message was reiterated in a series of high-level meetings held in London on 2 May, involving Palestinian Prime Minister Fayyad and Israeli Foreign Minister Livni.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on whether British personnel taken hostage in Iraq have passed into the custody of Iran's Revolutionary Guard; and if he will make a statement. [203875]

Dr. Howells: We have received no substantive evidence of Iranian involvement in the case of the British nationals taken hostage in Iraq, although we have seen speculative media reports. It is our policy not to discuss the operational details of the Government's response or analysis when we judge that doing so would not be in the interests of the hostages.

Pakistan

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has made to the Pakistan Government on the Riaz Marsh and Muhammed Shafiq case in the Lahore Court. [203829]

Dr. Howells: We have made no representations to the Lahore Court on behalf of Mr. Muhammed Shafiq, who is no longer detained in Faisalbad jail.

We have also made no representations to the Lahore Court on behalf of Mr. Riaz Maish, who is unknown to Foreign and Commonwealth Office officials.

Russia: Human Rights

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Government of Russia on the observance of civil liberties and human rights. [204326]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Sir Peter Ricketts, the Foreign and Commonwealth Office Permanent Under-Secretary, raised rule of law issues with Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Titov during his visit to Moscow on 22 to 24 April.

The UK holds annual bilateral human rights discussions with Russia. These were last held in January 2007, and the next meeting is planned for later this year. We also raise our concerns through the EU/Russia human rights consultations, which were last held on 17 April.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received of the observance of human rights and levels of political freedom in Russia. [204327]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We have a mature and frank relationship with Russia and do not shy away from making our concerns known on human rights and democracy. We want to see democracy in Russia deliver political pluralism and all its associated freedoms. We believe that an open and democratic Russia will consolidate Russia as a stable and reliable international partner for the global community.

During the parliamentary election in December 2006 and the presidential elections in March 2007, the UK, along with the EU and international observers, raised concerns about the degree of democracy exhibited throughout the election periods. Of particular concern were the unacceptable conditions Russia placed on international observers, limits to restrict the field of candidates and the lack of equal media access for opposition candidates.

According to recent reports by Human Rights Watch and Amnesty International, both the non-governmental organisation law and the law on extremist behaviour have been used to target and restrict certain individuals and non-governmental organisations. Media freedom and the situation facing human rights defenders are recurrent themes during both the bilateral and EU/Russia human rights dialogues. As a result, we welcome President Medvedev's focus on the need to strengthen the rule of law in Russia.

Sudan: Census

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the progress of Sudan's fifth census which began on 22 April; and what help he is offering to ensure its successful completion. [203830]

Dr. Howells: My right hon. Friends the Foreign Secretary and the Secretary of State for International Development discussed progress on the census in their meeting on 28 April with Sudanese Foreign Minister Deng Alor. Officials from both the Government of National Unity and the Government of South Sudan have reported that the census is going well, although there have been some logistical difficulties and some communities have not co-operated with enumerators. Movements in Darfur have spoken out against the census, although initial reports suggest that enumeration has taken place in many areas of Darfur. At the UK's suggestion, language in support of the census and all parties' acceptance of the results was included in UN Security Council Resolution 1812 of 30 April for renewal of the UN Mission in Sudan mandate.

Tibet: Human Rights

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Government of China to provide access for human rights organisations to monitor the human rights situation in Tibet. [203473]

Dr. Howells: We believe that the Chinese Government should lift restrictions on access to the region which would aid an independent assessment of the situation. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister raised the issue of access to Tibet in his telephone call to Chinese Premier Wen on 19 March. We continue to encourage China to issue an open invitation to all UN Special Rapporteurs to visit China, including the UN Special Rapporteur on Freedom of Religion or Belief.

Treaty of Lisbon

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with EU institutions on the process of ratification of the Lisbon treaty, including in member states where the ratification process is by referendum; and if he will make a statement. [204730]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has regular contact with EU institutions on a variety of issues, including the Lisbon treaty. It is up to all 27 member states to ratify the Lisbon treaty in accordance with their respective constitutional requirements.

So far, 13 countries have ratified the Lisbon treaty.

Only one member state (the Republic of Ireland) out of 27 member states is planning to hold a referendum. This will take place on 12 June 2008.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Irish Government on the process of ratification of the Lisbon treaty; and if he will make a statement. [204731]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary and I have regular contact with our Irish counterparts on the full range of European issues, including the Lisbon treaty.

USA: Navy

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effects of the US naval presence in the Mediterranean sea on the surrounding regions. [202373]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The US naval presence in the Mediterranean has long had a positive and welcome stabilising effect in the region, due in part to the extent to which it has worked together closely with other allies and partners, including the UK.

HEALTH

Abortion

Mrs. Dorries: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) on what grounds each abortion took place in non-NHS hospitals or institutions at (a) 16 weeks, (b) 17 weeks, (c) 18 weeks, (d) 19 weeks, (e) 20 weeks, (f) 21 weeks, (g) 22 weeks, (h) 23 weeks and (i) 24 weeks gestation in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement; [204012]

(2) To ask the Secretary of State for Health on what grounds each abortion took place in NHS hospitals at (a) 16 weeks, (b) 17 weeks, (c) 18 weeks, (d) 19 weeks, (e) 20 weeks, (f) 21 weeks, (g) 22 weeks, (h) 23 weeks and (i) 24 weeks gestation in each year since 1997; and if he will make a statement. [204013]

Dawn Primarolo: The information in the following table shows the grounds for abortions (at 16-24 weeks gestation) that were funded by the national health service and took place on NHS premises; funded by the NHS and took place in the private sector under contract 'NHS Agency'); and were not funded by the NHS.

Care Homes: Fees and Charges

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many people receiving domiciliary care were (a) funded by the local authority, (b) privately funded and (c) paying an additional amount to meet the full cost of their fees in each year since 1996; [204614]

(2) how many people receiving residential care were (a) funded by the local authority, (b) privately funded and (c) relied on a relative or other third party to pay an additional amount to meet the full cost of their fees in each year since 1996; [204615]

(3) how many older people received (a) residential and (b) domiciliary care in each year since 1996. [204616]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We are informed by the Information Centre for health and social care that information is not held centrally on the numbers of people receiving domiciliary care or residential care that is privately funded or involves the payment of an additional sum in order to meet the full cost.

The available information is shown in the following table. It shows the number of people who received domiciliary care or residential care, funded wholly or in part by councils with adult social services responsibilities as at 31 March of each year in total and for those aged 65 years or more. Information on domiciliary care services is only available from 2001. It is not possible to separate the figures into the numbers of people who received full or partial funding from the local authority for either domiciliary or residential care.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

Mr. Llwyd: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department plans to take to ensure that recommendations on research into myalgic encephalomyelitis and chronic fatigue syndrome, such as those outlined in the guidelines recently issued by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence, are met, with particular regard to (a) the cause of the illness, (b) the effectiveness of current intervention strategies and (c) identification of efficient ways to deliver domiciliary care for those who are severely affected. [203520]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the reply I gave the hon. Member for Sutton and Cheam (Mr. Burstow) on 29 April 2008, Official Report, column 252W.

Codex Alimentarius

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what status the Codex Alimentarius has in the regulatory regime for medicines; and what assessment the Government have made of the effects of full introduction of the Codex on the regulation of natural, herbal and homeopathic medicines. [203513]

Dawn Primarolo: The Codex Alimentarius Commission was created in 1963 by the Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO) and the World Health Organisation (WHO) to develop food standards, guidelines and related texts such as codes of practice under the Joint FAO/WHO Food Standards Programme. The Codex Alimentarius standards are used as a reference point for consumers, food producers and processors, national food control agencies and the international food trade.

The Codex Alimentarius is not part of the regulatory framework for medicinal products and has not therefore been taken into consideration when regulating natural, herbal and homeopathic medicinal products. However, certain excipients in medicines, such as colourings, are covered by food standards which are taken into account by the Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency before allowing their use in medicinal products in the United Kingdom.

Construction

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many construction projects his Department undertook in each of the last three years for which the capital cost was greater than £1.5 million; and what the combined value was of these projects; [202538]

(2) how many construction projects his Department undertook in each of the last three years for which the capital cost was less than £1.5 million; and what the combined value of these projects was. [202540]

Mr. Bradshaw: The construction of most new health facilities by national health service bodies is undertaken by means of three particular procurement methods. These are the private finance initiative (PFI) for hospital facilities, ProCure 21 to deliver public capital funded hospital facilities and local improvement finance trust developments in respect of primary care facilities that are commissioned by primary care trusts (PCTs).

Information on the number and capital value of projects and the date that construction began for these three programmes is held centrally and is given in aggregated form in the table.

Details are not held centrally on construction projects undertaken by the NHS by means other than the three procurement methods identified. These are predominantly the smaller public capital funded schemes commissioned locally by NHS trusts and PCTs and which are below departmental delegated approval limits.

Doctors: Working Hours

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what progress has been made in (a) negotiating the retention of the European Working Time Directive individual opt-out and (b) addressing the other issues raised by the SiMAP/Jaeger judgments. [204539]

Ann Keen: The European Working Time is a key dossier for the United Kingdom Government. The Government remain committed to the retention of the individual opt-out and a solution to the issues from the SiMAP/Jaeger judgments.

We are disappointed not to have reached an agreement in the European Union on this dossier but are hopeful that one can be found soon.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect of the implementation of the European Working Time Directive on (a) medical training and (b) training for surgeons; and what research his Department has considered as part of its policy formulation in this area. [204540]

Ann Keen: The Government have commissioned Sheffield University to undertake independent research on the impact of the European Working Time Directive on medical training, including a joint project with the Royal College of Surgeons to identify practical solutions for surgical training.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether negotiations are under way on an extension of the timetable for the implementation of the European Working Time Directive as it relates to NHS doctors beyond 2012. [204542]

Ann Keen: No. National health service services are planning to implement the European Working Time Directive by August 2009.

Health Services: Contracts

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance he issues to primary care trusts on procedures to be followed when letting alternative provider medical service (APMS) contracts, with particular reference to (a) tendering processes, (b) timescales, (c) criteria used to select the successful bidder, (d) per patient cost estimates and (e) bid scoring; what reports he has received of the tendering process conducted by Camden Primary Care Trust to run the Camden Road, Kings Cross and Brunswick Centre general practitioner practices; and if he will make a statement. [202124]

Mr. Bradshaw: In December 2007 the Department published the PCT Procurement Framework—Equitable Access to Primary Medical Care—Local Procurement of GP Practices and Health Centres, to support primary care trusts (PCTs) in procuring the new general practitioner (GP) practices and health centre services. This framework is based on existing guidance from the Office of Government Commerce and contains a set of procurement tools and template documentation, including a number of suggested evaluation criteria. The precise mix of these criteria and their associated weightings will be determined locally by primary care trusts based on local circumstances. Copies of the framework and evaluation plan have been placed in the Library.

Additionally, the Department wrote to strategic health authority chief executives in December to confirm the core criteria and proposed time scales that will underpin the development of new GP practices and health centres. A copy of the letter has been placed in the Library.

The Department has not received any reports on the procurement conducted by Camden Primary Care Trust for three new GP practices. This was a locally managed process outwith the current procurements of new practices and health centres.

Health Services: Greater London

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what reports he has received on the outcomes of London Strategic Health Authority's review of the property assets held by London's healthcare trusts. [202144]

Mr. Bradshaw: No formal review of the London Strategic Health Authority's (SHA) property assets has been commissioned. However, the SHA does regularly monitor the NHS's usage of its estate, and whether this is delivering best value for money.

NHS: Drugs

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent estimate he has made of the savings to the NHS that could be achieved by extending the prescription of generic drugs. [203105]

Dawn Primarolo: Using the quarterly potential generic savings report produced by the prescription pricing division of the NHS Business Services Authority, it is possible to determine that for the latest period available, October 2007 to December 2007, the potential savings, in England, that may be achieved by prescribing generically rather than by brand is £8.6 million.

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he has made an estimate of the extra costs incurred by the NHS in treating patients whose conditions have worsened as a result of them not being able to afford their prescribed medication. [203106]

Dawn Primarolo: We have made no such estimate.

We agree it is vitally important that people get the medicines they need. There are already extensive arrangements in place for exemption from prescription charges, particularly for those on a low income. People who do pay for their prescriptions can manage the cost by purchasing a prescription prepayment certificate, which allows them to get all the prescription items they need for £27.85 for three months and £102.50 for a year.

NHS: Information and Communications Technology

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he has had negotiations with Fujitsu on that company (a) exiting and (b) changing their contracts with Connecting for Health; and what minimum number of suppliers to the central Connecting for Health contracts is allowed under the terms of the NHS IT programme. [202329]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department continues to negotiate constructively with Fujitsu on the company's proposals to reset its supplier contract under the national programme for information technology. Reset is a normal, repeatable, process, for contracts with a long lifetime to ensure that their ongoing delivery reflects progress to date, current priorities, and deployment plans for the future, and that they continue to support the evolving needs of the national health service. Reset also allows for the option of agreeing enhancements to existing services or functionality that does not effect a change in contract scope or risk allocation.

The original procurement strategy for the national programme was to avoid reliance on a single supplier to deliver the programme, and recognised that some suppliers might fail and need to be replaced, but without reference to a maximum or minimum number of suppliers.

Pharmaceutical Price Regulation Scheme

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills on the impact of the renegotiation of the pharmaceutical price regulation scheme on research, development and innovation in the biopharmaceutical sector. [202818]

Dawn Primarolo: The Government's position in the renegotiation of the pharmaceutical price regulation scheme is coordinated across Government at both official and ministerial level.

Pharmacy: Private Sector

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations he has received on the viability of independent pharmacies; and if he will make a statement. [204624]

Ann Keen: Since the publication of our White Paper "Pharmacy in England—Building on strengths, delivering the future" on 3 April 2008, the Department has received a number of representations on a range of issues, including the viability of independent pharmacies. We are actively seeking feedback on the White Paper generally and on key proposals for structural change, including through the series of public events currently being held across the country.

Press

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the cost of the press offices of (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies was in each year since 1996-97; what the cost was for each quarter since 1 April 2007; and if he will make a statement. [189661]

Mr. Bradshaw: A return on the number and cost of press officers in the Department's Media Centre is published at the end of each financial year. Information for the financial year 2007-08 has not yet been audited.

The Department has two executive agencies. The NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency does not employ press officers, and media services are supplied by the Media Centre.

The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA) was set up in 2005-06 and the annual cost of providing media relations services is in the following table.

	Cost (£)
2006-07	195,675
2005-06	135,166

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many press office staff were employed by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies (i) in each year since 1996-97 and (ii) at the latest date for which information is available. [189662]

Mr. Bradshaw: A return on the number and cost of press officers in the Department's Media Centre is published at the end of each financial year.

Social Services

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people in each local authority area had their long-term care needs assessed as (a) low, (b) moderate, (c) substantial and (d) critical in each year since the Fair Access to Care Services criteria were introduced. [204612]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: These data are not held centrally.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Crime

Mr. Burns: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females in the Chelmsford local authority area were arrested for alcohol-related offences in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [204253]

Mr. Coaker: The arrests collection undertaken by the Ministry of Justice provides data on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences), by age group, gender, ethnicity, and main offence group, i.e. violence against the person, sexual offences, robbery, burglary, etc. More detailed data about specific offences do not form part of this collection.

Security Industry Authority

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the written statement of 31 January 2008, Official Report, columns 29-30WS, on Security Industry Authority (entitlement to work in the UK), how many of those who have had licences revoked have also had national insurance numbers withdrawn. [189916]

Mr. Timms: I have been asked to reply

None of those who have had their licences revoked by the Security Industry Authority have had their national insurance numbers (NINOs) cancelled.

The current practice is for a NINO, once allocated, not to be cancelled except in specified circumstances. This is because a NINO, even if only used for a limited period, links an individual to their national insurance contribution record, not all of which may have been accrued whilst working illegally, and to any future legitimate right to contributory benefits.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills pursuant to the Answer of 25 April 2008, Official Report, columns 2289-92W on apprentices, to the hon. Member for Edmonton, how those apprenticeships in Wirral Local Authority area referred to breakdown by (a) sex of apprentice and (b) type of occupation in which the apprenticeship was offered; if he will publish the further information he has regarding Wirral; and if he will make a statement. [204666]

Mr. Lammy: The information requested is provided in the following tables. I am glad our apprenticeships programme is helping so many young people in the Wirral and that the number of people completing an apprenticeship framework is increasing. In World-class Apprenticeship we outline how we will continue to expand the programme to ensure that all suitably qualified young people who want an apprenticeship will be able to do so from 2013.

Department for Education and Skills

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will break down by subheading each line in Table 8.9 in the 2007 Annual Report of the former Department for Education and Skills. [203878]

Bill Rammell: The breakdown of the information contained in Table 8.9 in the 2007 Annual Report of the former Department for Education and Skills is already publicly available and is contained in Tables 4a, 6 and 7 of the LSC published accounts covering the period 2001-07.

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by him in the last six months. [201761]

Mr. Lammy: The Department's systems are currently unable to provide the breakdown requested and to do so would incur disproportionate cost. I can confirm that since the beginning of this Session and up to 31 March 2008 the Department has received a total of 1,151 PQs: 141 Named Day and 1,010 Ordinary Written PQs. The parliamentary team have been maintaining a manual check on all Named Day PQs to monitor the timeliness of replies and the Department's statistics for answering named day PQs for the months of November 2007 to March 2008 are shown in the table as follows.

	Total Named Day PQs received	Total Named Day PQs answered on time (%)

Higher Education: EU Nationals

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the likely amount of bad debt arising from outstanding tuition fees from students from EU countries studying at English universities after April 2010; and what provision he has made for such debt. [192346]

Bill Rammell: Loans for tuition fees to higher education students from other European Union (EU) member states began in September 2006. The Student Loans Company has established payment arrangements for borrowers from those countries. They are informed of the methods of repayment available to them; and the SLC is putting in place enforcement procedures which will include the use of external trace agents, international debt collection companies and—where necessary—litigation against those defaulting on their repayments. Legal action against defaulting borrowers across the EU is underpinned by EC regulation 44/2001 which allows the SLC to obtain judgments in UK courts which can be enforced by courts in other EU countries.

The salary thresholds above which borrowers repay have been set at levels appropriate to each EU member state, taking into account living costs, so that borrowers' repayments take local circumstances into account.

Some students from EU member states will stay in the UK to work after graduation, in which case they are expected to obtain a national insurance number and make loan repayments through the UK tax system.

While there is not yet enough information about repayments from EU students accurately to estimate a default rate there is no evidence to suggest that these students will be less likely to honour their loan repayment obligations than UK borrowers.

Learning and Skills Council for England

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will publish a reconciliation of Table 8.9 in his Department's Annual Report with Table 4a in the 2007 Annual Report of the Learning and Skills Council. [203874]

Bill Rammell: The two tables are compiled at different points in the year: the figures in the 2007 Departmental Annual Report (DAR) were based on December 2006 forecasts and the figures in the 2006-07 LSC accounts are the audited figures as at 31 March 2007. In addition, the administration budget for the LSC is not included in Table 4a of the 2006-07 LSC accounts while the European Social Fund budgets are not included in Table 8.9 of the DAR. These are the reasons for the differences that occur between these two sets of published numbers.

Overseas Students: Loans

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills (1) what total value of Student Loan Company loans is held by students from European Union member states other than the UK; [187650]

(2) how many students from EU member states other than the UK hold loans from the Student Loan Company. [187651]

Bill Rammell: The Student Loans Company issued tuition fee loans to students from other European Union countries for the first time in September 2006. During the 2006-07 academic year 7,100 EU students studying in England borrowed £9.7 million in tuition fee loans. This represents 2.5 per cent. of tuition fee loans issued in England.

The Student Loans Company has established payment arrangements for borrowers from other EU countries. Those staying in the UK are expected to obtain a National Insurance Number and make repayments through the UK tax system. If they are going abroad arrangements are in place for repayments to be scheduled and these borrowers are made aware of the methods of repayment available to them.

So that all who can pay contribute to the costs of their education we have put in place variable threshold bands which are dependent on where the borrower lives. Effective collection across the EU is underpinned by EC regulation 44/2001, which allows the SLC to obtain judgments in UK courts, which can be enforced by courts in other EU countries.

Students: Debts

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the average debt a student beginning a higher education degree course in 2008 is likely to have on graduating. [194090]

Bill Rammell: We estimate that students beginning higher education degree courses in 2008 are likely to graduate with personal debt, on average, of some £16,000. However, the average will depend on: how many students choose to take-up a loan for tuition fees; whether those students who are eligible for grants thereby reduce how much they borrow for maintenance; and whether trends in the level of commercial debt remain stable.

Student loans have very different features to most commercial loans. Repayment is based on income, not the amount owed. Graduates only repay once they are in work and only when their annual income reaches £15,000. Interest is charged at the rate of inflation, so students only pay back in real terms the amount they originally borrowed.

In July last year we announced plans to introduce greater flexibility in the repayment of student loans by allowing borrowers to take repayment breaks of up to five years.

A generous package of support is available to students, particularly those from low income households. In 2006/07 over half of eligible full-time students received a full or partial maintenance grant of up to £2,700. From 2008/09 onwards, the minimum threshold (of household income) for a full maintenance grant of up to £2,835 per year will be extended from £17,500 a year to £25,000 a year; with a partial grant available up to an income threshold of £60,005. This will mean that two thirds of all eligible students in England entering higher education in the academic year 2008/09 are expected to be entitled to a full or partial non-repayable grant—compared to just over half now.

Students: Fees and Charges

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the average annual tuition fee paid by first degree part-time undergraduates in the last 12 months for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [202199]

Bill Rammell: The information requested is not available, as it is not collected centrally. Part-time tuition fees are not regulated; each institution sets fee levels for its own courses.

Statutory support for part-time students was first introduced in 2000/01. Part-time higher education students studying at least 50 per cent. of an equivalent full-time course can apply for means-tested course grants and fee grants. In 2006/07, we introduced the most generous package of financial support ever for part-time students in England. This included increasing the maximum fee grant by 27 per cent. and an above-inflation increase in the income threshold for receiving this support.

Students: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate his Department has made of the proportion of first degree undergraduates with a parental household income of (a) £25,000, (b) £30,000, (c) £40,000, (d) £50,000, (e) £60,000 and (f) £70,000; and if he will make a statement. [203153]

Bill Rammell: We have not made specific estimates of the proportion of students at each household income level. For full-time students, the recently announced reforms for 2008/09 mean we estimate that around one third of eligible students will be entitled to a full grant. These students will have a residual household income of £25,000 or less. We also estimate around a third will be entitled to a partial grant, equivalent to an income between £25,000 and £60,005.

Due to these reforms for full-time students, by 2011, the number of students receiving some level of grant will increase by around 100,000. As part of this change, an extra 50,000 students will receive a full grant.

For part-time students the uncertainties are greater as the student support package is generally not available to students above a household income of around £26,000 (2007/08 support).

JUSTICE

Bail Accommodation and Support Service

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many residential accommodation places are being provided by ClearSprings for (a) persons on bail and (b) offenders released early from jail in 2008-09; and how many such places they will provide in each of the next three years; [204732]

(2) what steps ClearSprings is required to take to consult local authorities before providing housing for (a) persons on bail and (b) offenders released early from jail; and how many complaints against ClearSprings for not consulting he has received; [204733]

(3) what steps he is taking to ensure that correct procedures are followed by ClearSprings to (a) inform and (b) consult local authorities before sourcing residential accommodation for housing (i) persons on bail and (ii) offenders released early from jail; [204734]

(4) pursuant to the answer of 11 March 2008, Official Report, column 144, on what evidence he stated that Basildon council did not veto proposals by ClearSprings to purchase properties in Basildon to provide accommodation for offenders released early from prison. [204736]

Mr. Hanson: ClearSprings have to date been asked by NOMS to provide 160 properties for those bailed by the courts or released from prison on home detention curfew. The Regional Offender Managers and Directors of Offender Management keep the requirement under review and will seek further provision and adjustments to the geographical spread as demand requires.

ClearSprings are required to consult the police, probation and local authorities about addresses under consideration. They give an opportunity for any concerns to be registered. If there are objections these are discussed with the Regional Offender Manager/ Director of Offender Management who will make the final decision on whether to proceed with an address.

There have been a small number of complaints from or on behalf of local authorities about lack of consultation, or delay in consultation. Local authorities will not be consulted until specific addresses are under consideration.

An audit of ClearSprings' past consultation was conducted during April and the report is expected shortly.

We were wrongly advised by ClearSprings that Basildon district council had not responded to ClearSprings' approach to them about potential addresses for the service.

Crimes of Violence: Curfews

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice under what circumstances a judge may suspend a curfew placed on a violent offender; what procedures exist to challenge such a ruling; and if he will make a statement. [204618]

Mr. Hanson: A court may impose a curfew as a condition of a community order or suspended sentence order. It would be open to the court when sentencing to make specific direction as to the start date of the curfew condition, under the general powers to impose such a condition set out in the Criminal Justice Act 2003. It is also open to the court subsequently to vary such a condition, should it see fit, upon application by either the offender or the Offender Manager.

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much was spent on translation services into (a) Welsh and (b) other languages by his Department, associated agencies and non-departmental public bodies (i) in 2003-04, (ii) in 2004-05, (iii) in 2005-06, (iv) in 2006-07 and (v) in 2007-08. [203872]

Maria Eagle: Information on how much was spent on translation services in Welsh is not separately recorded and could be ascertained only at a disproportional cost. Total costs spent on translation services for each part of the Department are as follows:

MoJ HQ (including former DCA)

While OCJR did have some documents translated into Welsh throughout the years listed, details of what they were and their costs have not been retained centrally. Expenditure on translation services is not separately identifiable within the Department's accounts and may be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

NOMS (including HMPS and Probation Service)

NOMS do not separately identify expenditure on translation services within their accounts and data may only be provided at a disproportionate cost.

National Offender Management Information System

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much has been spent on his Department's Offender Management computer scheme. [203711]

Mr. Hanson: The NOMIS Programme has been funded by the Ministry of Justice since its formation and prior to that by the Home Office. The total expenditure to the end of April 2008 is estimated at £193 million, of which £125 million was expensed in 2006/07 and earlier years. The newly revised CNOMIS Programme to improve the sharing of vital information between public prisons and probation areas, and support the much needed replacement of at-risk IT systems will ensure both the protection of the public and the continued successful implementation of the Offender Management Model.

Prisoners

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average number of hours was a prisoner spent outside his or her cell (a) per day and (b) per week in each of the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement. [199933]

Maria Eagle: The National Offender Management Service (NOMS) collects time outside of cell data per weekday and therefore cannot answer the question in the format requested. The table below shows the average number of hours a prisoner spent outside his or her cell per weekday in each of the last 10 years.

Average time out of cell per prisoner per weekday

	Hours
1997-98	10.9
1998-99	10.6
1999-2000	10.2
2000-01	9.6
2001-02	9.6

2003-04	9.9
2004-05	10.0

2006-07	10.1

Prisoners: Disabled

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what requirements there are for (a) diversity and (b) disability training for prison officers; and what the (i) duration and (ii) frequency of the training programmes is. [199676]

Maria Eagle: Prisons and HQ groups decide what training their staff should receive within the parameters of legal requirements and the Prison Service commitment to training and developing staff. There is a variety of training, of varying duration, available to staff and managers and the overall theme of diversity, including race and disability issues, is threaded through aspects of Prison Service learning and development.

Though embedded in training courses, diversity is specifically addressed in first line manager training as part of the Introductory Certificate in Management, and in both Operational Manager (Excellence in Management and Leadership in the Prison—EMALPS) and Senior Operational Manager (Leadership Excellence and Performance in Prisons—LEAPP) programmes. The full range of the diversity strands is also included in the Intensive Development Scheme (IDS) induction programme.

Training for newly recruited prison officers begins with an eight week Prison Officer Entry Level Training (POELT) course. Diversity issues are threaded throughout the POELT course but there are two specific four hour sessions to address knowledge of diversity issues including disability, race, age and gender.

Within the private sector, individual contractors are responsible for training their staff in line with current legislation specified in the contract. Arrangements are in place in all private sector prisons for Prison Custody Officers to receive diversity training.

Prisoners: Employment

Mr. Burrowes: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners were (a) employed, (b) unemployed, (c) on short-term sick leave, (d) on long-term sick leave, (e) retired and (f) on maternity leave at the latest date for which information is available. [203702]

Maria Eagle: Information on the employment related activities of prisoners is not collected centrally.

A 2003 resettlement survey of a representative sample of 1,945 British national sentenced prisoners aged 18 and above showed that 32 per cent. of prisoners were in employment, training or education in the four weeks before custody. The proportions varied according to prisoner groups: adult men 34 per cent., women 14 per cent., young offenders 41 per cent. Of these in employment, 65 per cent. were in permanent jobs, 25 per cent. temporary and 9 per cent. under a fixed contract.

14 per cent. of prisoners in the survey said they had never had a paid job before custody (11 per cent. of adult men; 26 per cent. of women; 25 per cent. of young offenders). Niven, S. and Stewart, D (2005) Resettlement Outcomes on Release from Prison in 2003. London: Home Office.

More detail on the 2003 survey is available in Home Office Research Findings 248 which is available on the RDS website:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/rfpubs1.html

Prisoners: Females

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average length of time served in prison on remand was for women in (a) each of the last 10 years and (b) in 2008 to date; and if he will make a statement. [199906]

Maria Eagle: Data on the length of time offenders spend on remand are not routinely collected. However we can estimate the average time on remand by comparing the average remand population and total number of remand receptions each year. On this basis, the following table shows the average length of time in days spent by women on remand in prison establishments in England and Wales in each year between 1997 and 2006 (more recent data are not yet available):

	Average time on remand
1997	43
1998	41
1999	41
2000	39
2001	39
2002	40
2003	40
2004	42
2005	46
2006	44

These figures have been estimated based on data drawn from administrative IT systems which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisons: Basildon

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he plans (a) to introduce a Titan prison and (b) to instruct ClearSprings to acquire residential property in Basildon district (i) in 2008 and (ii) in the following three years. [204735]

Mr. Hanson: The regional offender manager for the East of England has not yet finalised plans in relation to ClearSprings property in Basildon in 2008 for the Bail Accommodation and Support Service. If decisions are made we will inform the hon. Member.

Prisons: Overcrowding

Dr. Vis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prisoners were held two to a cell in cells certified for one person in each prison at the end of February 2008. [201716]

Maria Eagle: Establishments report the number of prisoners who, at unlock on the last day of the month, are held in crowded conditions. This includes those held two in a cell with a certified normal accommodation (CNA) for one (doubling). The number of prisoners who were held two to a cell in cells certified for one person in each prison at the end of February 2008 is shown in the table as follows.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how much his Department spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204098]

Mr. Woodward: The Northern Ireland Office, along with the majority of central Government Departments, is a member of the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF). The GCOF aims to fulfil the Government's commitment to offset emissions attributable to all official and ministerial air travel in central Government. It is available to all central Government Departments and provides a simple and cost effective way to offset, as well as ensuring high environmental integrity. The GCOF runs for an initial period of three years (2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09).

The GCOF is being managed by EEA Fund Management Ltd, which won the contract to source and deliver 255,000 Certified Emission Reduction Credits, with a provision for a further 50,000 credits, over three years from a range of Clean Development Mechanism (CDM) projects. Credits will be supplied from the project portfolio of Trading Emissions plc, to which EEA is the investment adviser.

My Department paid £11,384.56 into the GCOF for 2006-07, to offset some 1,148 tCO_2e from air travel. Data is currently being collected for the 2007-08 reporting year and will be available later in the year.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many (a) full-time and (b) part-time employees there were in the Northern Ireland Office on (i) 1 April 2007 and (ii) 1 April 2008. [203435]

Paul Goggins: The following table shows the number of full-time and part-time staff in the Northern Ireland Office at 1 April 2007 and 1 April 2008. The figures have been taken from the figures published in the monthly manpower reports.

	Number
Number full-time staff
April 2007	1,827
April 2008	1,841
Number part-time staff
April 2007	252
April 2008	258

Firearms: Licensing

Mr. Donaldson: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland whether any person with a conviction for membership of a proscribed paramilitary organisation in Northern Ireland has been granted a licence to carry a personal firearm since 1998. [203660]

Paul Goggins: The Chief Constable of the Police Service for Northern Ireland has advised that the information requested is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Offensive Weapons

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland (1) what further steps he is considering to reduce the level of knife crime in Northern Ireland following previous amnesties; [203726]

(2) what plans he has for (a) a further amnesty and (b) other measures to seek to reduce the level of knife crime in Northern Ireland. [204662]

Paul Goggins: A number of initiatives have been introduced since the last amnesty and are now in operation across Northern Ireland to reduce the level of knife crime. PSNI have rolled out the use of metal detectors and also introduced a stop and search policy. New legislation has been introduced to make it more difficult to obtain knives by raising the minimum age limit for purchase to 18. Last month, it became illegal in Northern Ireland to manufacture, sell, hire or import samurai swords. The recent Criminal Justice (NI) Order contains powers which double the penalties for possessing a knife in public and also for selling/manufacturing/marketing knives to under 18s.

Knife disposal bins have been retained on site at civic amnesty locations and PSNI education officers continue to raise awareness in schools on a number of key issues, including the dangers of carrying a knife.

Knife crime is totally unacceptable. While the Government currently have no plan to re-run the knife amnesty, we will continue to consider a range of policies and initiatives to tackle knife crime in Northern Ireland.

SCOTLAND

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how much his Department spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204097]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office forms part of the Ministry of Justice. The Scotland Office has not spent anything in relation to carbon offsetting in the last three years. However, the Scotland Office is committed to playing its full part in the Ministry of Justice's Sustainable Action Plan, published on 14 March 2008. The plan included details of how it intends to achieve carbon neutral status by 2012, which will involve carbon emissions offsetting.

TRANSPORT

Roads: Freight

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what volume of freight was carried by road between Felixstowe and Nuneaton in each of the last 10 years; and what volume is projected to be carried on the route in (a) 2009, (b) 2010, (c) 2011, (d) 2012 and (e) 2013. [204022]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The information requested is not available.

TREASURY

European Union Solidarity Fund

Mr. Laurence Robertson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what (a) gross and (b) net amounts he expects the UK to receive from the EU Solidarity Fund to compensate for flood damage; what the reasons for the difference between the two figures are; and if he will make a statement. [204617]

Kitty Ussher: The UK expects to receive €162.4 million from the EU Solidarity Fund, around £110 million at the exchange rate at the time of application. The net value to the UK of this receipt is around £31 million, calculated as the full benefit (around £110 million) minus the UK contribution through the EC Budget (around £19 million) and the resultant reduction to the UK abatement (around £60 million).

Minimum Wage: Prosecutions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, columns 143-4W, on minimum wage: prosecutions, how many employers have accrued minimum wage arrears in relation to (a) under five employees, (b) five to 15, (c) 15 to 30, (d) 30 to 50, (e) 50 to 100, (f) 100 to 200, (g) 200 to 500 and (f) over 500 employees in each year since the minimum wage was introduced, broken down by region. [203868]

Jane Kennedy: The information is not available in the format requested.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, columns 143-4W, on minimum wage: prosecutions, how many employers have accrued minimum wage arrears of (a) under £5,000, (b) £5,000 to £25,000, (c) £25,000 to £50,000, (d) £50,000 to £75,000, (e) £75,000 to £100,000 and (f) over £100,000 in each year since the minimum wage was introduced, broken down by region. [203869]

Jane Kennedy: The information is not available in the format requested.

Northern Rock

Mr. Dunne: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when he plans to issue an invitation to tender for the role of independent valuer in relation to Northern Rock; when he expects to appoint an independent valuer; and when the independent valuer will be required to report to him. [204552]

Kitty Ussher: The position of independent valuer to assess any compensation for those affected by the transfer of Northern Rock into public ownership will be advertised shortly. The valuer's remit is set out in the Northern Rock plc Compensation Scheme Order 2008. Under the order the independent valuer does not report to the Treasury (beyond copying to the Treasury any compensation assessment notices that he or she issues).

Northern Rock: Manpower

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the headcount of Northern Rock bank was on (a) 21 February and (b) 30 April 2008. [204629]

Kitty Ussher: During this period of temporary public ownership, Northern Rock is managed by its board at arm's length from Government on commercial principles. It is a matter for the company's management to release specific business updates or provide any required disclosures in their audited annual report and accounts.

Northern Rock: Republic of Ireland

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what discussions he has had with the board of Northern Rock bank on the future of the bank's Republic of Ireland operations. [204628]

Kitty Ussher: During this period of temporary public ownership, Northern Rock is managed by its board at arm's length from Government on commercial principles.

Northern Rock published a business plan on 31 March 2008. The Chancellor of the Exchequer has approved the business plan and has placed a copy in the Library of both Houses. In the business plan, the Board announced that they would retain their savings operation in the Republic of Ireland.

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the budgeted financial balance of Northern Rock Bank (Ireland) is for the financial year 2008-09. [204630]

Kitty Ussher: During this period of temporary public ownership, Northern Rock is managed by its board at arm's length from the Government on commercial principles. It is a matter for the company's management to release specific business updates or provide any required disclosures in their audited annual report and accounts.

Physical Activity Review

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the cross-Government Physical Activity Review. [203883]

Yvette Cooper: In the context of the Government's commitment to deliver on the Comprehensive Spending Review, Olympics and Olympic Legacy, and provide a world-class community sports infrastructure, a number of Government Departments are considering the most efficient and effective way of maximising the impact of investment in sport and physical activity. Findings of this work will be integrated into a number of forthcoming announcements.

Poynter Review

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer when the final report of the Poynter Review will be published. [204468]

Yvette Cooper: I refer the hon. Member to the Chancellor's statement of 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 612.

Jane Kennedy: The hon. Member's constituent's tax credit award was affected by the administrative problem with certain claims as detailed in my written statement on 25 July 2007, Official Report, columns 62-63WS.

The Acting Chairman of HM Revenue and Customs replied to the hon. Member on 8 May 2008 and has apologised for the long delay.

Smoking

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many smoking shelters were built at each of his Department's London buildings in each of the last five years. [205050]

Angela Eagle: One smoking shelter was built at Trevelyan house, Great Peter street when the Office of Government Commerce (OGC) was in occupation. The shelter was modified subsequently, in July 2007, to comply with changes in legislation. OGC vacated the building in September 2007.

Smuggling: Tobacco

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if the UK will sign the EU anti-smuggling agreement with Japan Tobacco International; and if he will make a statement. [204472]

Angela Eagle: The UK is not currently party to the agreement between Japan Tobacco International and the European Community and its member states ("the JTI Agreement"). Since the launch of the Government's Tackling Tobacco Smuggling Strategy in 2000, a comprehensive range of new measures has been introduced to counter the threats from tobacco smuggling. In particular, HM Revenue and Customs have Memoranda of Understanding (MoUs) with all major UK tobacco manufacturers, which form a strong framework for cooperation with the industry to tackle the illicit trade in tobacco. In 2006, when the strategy was refreshed, these MoUs were underpinned with the introduction of new supply chain control legislation, which places a legal obligation on tobacco manufacturers not to facilitate smuggling, along with penalties of up to five million for those who fail to comply.

The MoUs and the legislation cover many of the same issues contained in the JTI Agreement, though with some key differences in detail. For example, the legislation contains no significant exclusions, whereas the JTI Agreement does not cover products that have been duty paid in another EU member state and then smuggled into the UK. This would limit the Agreement's impact on the UK tobacco smuggling problem and could also cause legal difficulties if the Agreement and the UK legislation were to operate in parallel.

It is important also to note that the UK legislation and MoUs cover all major manufacturers. This ensures a level playing field for manufacturers, as well as guarding against the risk that smuggling is displaced to products not covered by an Agreement. We are committed to keeping our position on Agreements such as the JTI Agreement under review, to take account of any further Agreements that might be signed.

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will assess the effect that the Memorandum of Understanding Gallaher signed with Customs and Excise on 23rd April 2002 had on the subsequent proportion of Customs and Excise's seizures of smuggled tobacco products in 2003-04 that were genuine Gallaher brands; and if he will make a statement. [204536]

Angela Eagle: HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) publishes details of the cigarettes and hand-rolling tobacco seized in its annual reports.

The Memoranda of Understanding (MoUs) agreed between HMRC and leading UK tobacco manufacturers form one strand of the Government's "Tackling Tobacco Smuggling" strategy—a comprehensive package of measures which together have resulted in a steady decline in the size of the illicit tobacco market, from around 20 per cent. in 2001-02 to around 13 per cent. in 2005-06. Levels of seizures can be affected by a number of factors, so it is not possible to attribute changes in the proportion of seizures made up of a tobacco manufacturer's genuine brands directly to a MoU. Even if it were possible, the level of seizures would be only one indicator of the effectiveness of the Government's strategy. The key indicator is the size of the illicit market. HMRC publishes estimates of the illicit market share annually in the 'Measuring Indirect Tax Losses' report, which can be found in the Commons Library. In the last few years, seizures of genuine cigarettes made by HMRC have made up a progressively smaller share of total seizures, which is a further indicator of the positive effect of the MoUs.

Social Security Benefits: Easington

John Cummings: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in Easington constituency were in receipt of (a) working tax credit, (b) child tax credit and (c) pension credit at the most recent date for which figures are available. [203790]

Jane Kennedy: Estimates of the number of recipient families with tax credits, by constituency, at 5 April 2008, are available in the HMRC snapshot publication "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Geographical Analyses. April 2008", which is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-geog-stats.htm

Information is not held separately for child tax credit and working tax credit.

As at May 2007 there were an estimated 6.3 thousand individuals receiving pension credit in the Easington constituency. This information can be found on the DWP website at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/tabtool.asp

Mr. Timms: DWP has published research at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd5A/VP29.pdf

and also in the Library, which shows that migration from the EU accession countries has not had a significant impact on claimant unemployment.

Mr. Rob Wilson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many migrant workers have been given national insurance numbers in each of the last three years. [196550]

Mr. Timms: The number of new national insurance number registrations for adult foreign nationals by year of registration for 2004-05 to 2006-07 is published in table 2 on page 16 of the report "National Insurance Number Allocations to Overseas Nationals entering the UK (previously Migrant Workers Statistics) 2007: Full Report" on the Department's website at

National Insurance: Illegal Immigrants

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many national insurance numbers issued to illegal immigrants were cancelled in each of the last five years. [181634]

Mr. Timms: There are only very limited circumstances in which NINOs are cancelled. It is not possible to say whether any of those numbers cancelled had been obtained by illegal immigrants.

Where a NINO applicant is identified as an illegal immigrant, Jobcentre Plus notifies the UK Border Agency.

I also refer the hon. Member to today's written ministerial statement on national insurance numbers.

National Insurance: Immigrants

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) when his Department began to check the national insurance numbers and the national insurance status of the illegal workers in the security industry identified in the oral statement of 13 November 2007, Official Report, columns 531-3, on the security industry authority, made by the Home Secretary; [181146]

(2) pursuant to the answer of 18 February 2008, Official Report, column 447W, on immigrants: national insurance, when he expects the information on national insurance numbers to be available; and what is the timescale for the exercise being conducted on determining the right to work status of EEA nationals. [195357]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 18 March 2008]: The Security Industry Authority's (SIA's) immediate priority was to complete the revocations of the licences of those who had no right to work. Only once this process was completed could the appropriate follow up action be commissioned. In accordance with this procedure, on the 7 March 2008, the SIA provided the DWP with a list of the individuals who have had their licences revoked.

These data were shared with the DWP by the SIA as soon as it was in a position to do so, taking account of the need to ensure that only the relevant information was passed to DWP. The checking process is now under way and is expected to be completed by the end of May.

Justine Greening: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how much electricity was (a) consumed on and (b) produced from onsite renewable sources on the Parliamentary Estate in each year from 2002 to 2007. [202191]

Nick Harvey: The quantities of electricity consumed on the House of Commons part of the parliamentary estate in each year from April 2003 to March 2008, derived from invoices, are given as follows. The data for the year 2002-03 are not readily available.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Polling Stations: Disabled

Helen Jones: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what guidance has been issued to returning officers on (a) access to polling stations for those with disabilities and (b) steps to be taken in the event of non-delivery of polling cards. [204642]

Peter Viggers [holding answer 9 May 2008]: The Electoral Commission informs me that its guidance for returning officers covers access to polling stations for those with disabilities. This includes a checklist of issues to consider when choosing buildings for use as polling stations. The polling station handbook for use by presiding officers and poll clerks on election day also contains advice on accessibility.

The Commission's guidance also includes information about the production and distribution of polling cards and the Commission provides advice on request in the event of non-delivery of polling cards.

WALES

Departmental Translation Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how much was spent by his Department on translation and interpretation services in 2007-08, broken down by language. [205175]

Mr. Paul Murphy: My Department spent £6,620 on translation services in the last financial year; all translation costs were for the Welsh language.

Parc Prison: Mental Health Services

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what steps he is taking to ensure the provision of child and adolescent mental health services in Parc Prison, Bridgend; and if he will make a statement. [203586]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Child and Adolescent Mental Health Service (CAMHS) is devolved to the Welsh Assembly Government.

Health Commission Wales (HCW) is currently working towards the provision of a Forensic Adolescent Consultation and Treatment Service (FACTS) in South and North Wales. HCW anticipate the service to be available in the summer of this year (2008). Part of the FACTS remit of the South Wales team will be to provide assessment and treatment advice for children in Pare prison with mental health problems. The FACTS will also assist local CAMHS teams in the development of specific services to the prison population.

The Welsh Assembly Government has made a commitment to CAMHS in its 'One Wales' document. The budget settlement included an additional £4.8 million—£1 million in 2008-09 and £1.6 million and £2.2 million in successive years—to enhance service delivery. This clearly demonstrates the priority that the Assembly Government attaches to these services. In addition, some £6.5 million has been allocated to counselling in schools over the same period.

The 2001 document "Everybody's Business" is embedded in the development of policy within the Assembly Government. The well-being of children and adolescents in Wales, including their mental emotional health, is of paramount importance to this Government.

The National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services in Wales (NSF) embeds this philosophy and the setting of targets via the Service and Financial Framework for the NHS in Wales has ensured that services are improving as evidenced by the NSF Self Assessment Audit Tool results for 2006-07.

A review of CAMHS covering all relevant agencies is being undertaken by the Wales Audit Office and Healthcare Inspectorate Wales. The outcome of this review, which is expected towards the end of 2008, will contribute positively to future service developments.

TRANSPORT

A4123

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she plans to complete the de-trunking of the A4123. [204250]

Mr. Tom Harris: Subject to the completion of the statutory procedures, it is intended that the A4123 should be detrunked by March 2009.

A4123: Accidents

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport (1) how many accidents took place on the A4123 involving (a) pedestrians and (b) cyclists in the last five years; [204247]

(2) how many accidents resulting in fatalities have occurred on the A4123 in the last five years. [204248]

Mr. Tom Harris: The number of accidents on the length of A4123 for which the Highways Agency is responsible, for the latest five year period for which data are available, is as follows:

Personal injury accidents: 48 pedestrians; 18 cyclists.

Fatalities: four, of which two involved pedestrians.

A4123: Cycleways

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment her Department has made of the feasibility of introducing improved provision for cyclists on the A4123. [204251]

Mr. Tom Harris: The Highways Agency has given consideration to the provision of cycle routes on the A4123 footways near junctions but no specific schemes have so far been identified.

A4123: Pedestrians

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what plans her Department has to improve facilities for (a) pedestrians and (b) cyclists on the A4123 in Dudley and Sandwell. [204245]

Mr. Tom Harris: Currently there are no schemes planned in the 2008-09 financial year to improve the facilities already available for pedestrians and cyclists on the A4123. A scheme identified for future consideration is the improvement of pedestrian facilities in the vicinity of Mason Street, Coseley but this is unlikely to be completed prior to the proposed detrunking of this route.

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the risk of accident to (a) pedestrians and (b) cyclists on the A4123 in Dudley and Sandwell. [204246]

Mr. Tom Harris: There have been two formal studies carried out into the accident risk to pedestrians and cyclists on the A4123 in the last three years. These were A4123 Pedestrian and Cyclists Accidents Birmingham to Wolverhampton Safety Study (April 2005) and The A4123 Operational Review (January 2008). In addition a review of the needs of pedestrians under the Disability Discrimination Act has also been completed for the whole of the route. All resulted in schemes that have either been taken forward or are being considered for future development.

A4123: Safety Measures

Mr. Ian Austin: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps her Department has taken to improve safety for pedestrians crossing the A4123 between the Foxyard and Priory estates in Dudley. [204249]

Mr. Tom Harris: There is an existing signal controlled crossing facility on the A4123 at Priory road. The Highways Agency has given consideration to the provision of additional facilities at Tipton road but this is unlikely to be completed prior to the proposed detrunking of this route.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much her Department and its predecessors spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204103]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The majority of central Government Departments are members of the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF). The GCOF aims to fulfil the Government's commitment to offset emissions attributable to all official and ministerial air travel in central government. It is available to all central government departments and provides a simple and cost effective way to offset, as well as ensuring high environmental integrity. The GCOF runs for an initial period of three years (2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09).

The GCOF is being managed by EEA Fund Management Ltd., who won the contract to source and deliver 255,000 certified emission reduction credits, with a provision for a further 50,000 credits, over three years from a range of clean development mechanism(COM) projects. Credits will be supplied from the project portfolio of Trading Emissions Plc, to whom EEA is the investment adviser.

As a participant in the GCOF, the Department for Transport contributed £13,445.17 to offset air travel in the year 2006-07. In addition, the Government Car and Despatch Agency contributed £22,621.31 to offset Government road fleet emissions. Data are currently being collected for the 2007-08 reporting year and will be available later in the year.

Departmental Disciplinary Proceedings

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of her Department's civil servants have been (a) suspended and (b) dismissed for accessing (i) obscene and (ii) other prohibited material on work computers in each of the last five years. [188781]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Regular reminders are issued to staff about their responsibilities with regard to the use of e-mail and internet systems. In order to ensure that these systems are not abused, or that the Department for Transport's (DFT) security is not compromised, e-mails and internet use may be monitored from time to time.

Following are the details of the number of DFT staff either suspended or dismissed over the past five years for accessing either obscene or other prohibited material on work computers.

	Suspended	Dismissed
2007	<5	<5
2006	[1]<5	[2]18
2005	<5	<5
2004	<5	<5
2003	<5	<5
Total	9	26

[1] Includes one case where an individual was suspended but resigned before disciplinary charges could be investigated.
[2] Includes 17 people who were dismissed from DVLA after it was discovered that staff had been accessing and circulating inappropriate material.

Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 33W, on public transport: concessions, what representation of those with mental health disabilities there is on the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee. [204018]

Ms Rosie Winterton: There is no specific representation of those with mental health disabilities on the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee (DPTAC).

Section 125 (3) of the Transport Act 1985 provides that at least half of the membership of the Committee should consist of persons who are disabled. Currently over 60 per cent. (13 out of 21) of the Committee are disabled. Members are appointed on merit and have experience of disability issues in general and understanding of the particular issues pertaining to certain impairments. DPTAC has a pan-disability approach to its work and its advice regularly reflect the views and concerns of people with different types of impairments.

Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency: Disclosure of Information

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many requests from (a) private individuals, (b) car park enforcement companies and (c) other sources were submitted to the Driver and Vehicle Licensing Agency for the release of information from the vehicle register under the provision of reasonable cause in each of the last five years; and how many of these were (i) agreed and (ii) rejected in each such year. [205159]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The following table includes all requests for vehicle keeper details processed under the 'reasonable cause' provisions. These include requests from insurance and finance companies, private car park enforcement companies, members of the public and solicitors, for keeper details at a specific date of event. It also contains requests where the current registered keeper requires the full history of his vehicle and from mileage companies for investigations into vehicle 'clocking'. The DVLA does not keep separate figures for each category of requests, so is unable to provide figures on how many requests were from private individual, car park enforcement companies, or other sources.

Felixstowe to Nuneaton Railway Line: Finance

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was spent on the Felixstowe to Nuneaton rail route in each year since 1997; how much her Department plans to spend in (a) 2009, (b) 2010, (c) 2011, (d) 2012 and (e) 2013; and how much of this expenditure is intended to improve the freight carrying capacity of the line. [204023]

Mr. Tom Harris: The amount of money spent on the Felixstowe to Nuneaton route since 1997 is a matter for Network Rail. The White Paper—'Delivering a Sustainable Railway'—provided for £200 million to create a strategic freight network of which £50 million has been proposed for Ipswich to Nuneaton capacity enhancements. A further £80 million of Productivity—Transport Innovation Fund money was announced in October 2007 for gauge and capacity enhancements between Peterborough and Nuneaton.

All this expenditure is intended to enhance freight capacity on the route but will benefit passenger services as well. The annual breakdown of spend on these projects between 2009 and 2013 is a matter for Network Rail.

GoVia

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 1117W, on GoVia, by what date she expects to have made an announcement regarding the South Central rail franchise. [203524]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 6 May 2008]: The Government will be making a further announcement with regard to the South Central franchise before the end of May.

M20: Noise

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1445W, on M20: noise, how many sites having been designated as high priority for resurfacing have been resurfaced when the road surface has been assessed as being structurally sound. [203876]

Mr. Tom Harris: None.

Official Vehicles: Accidents

Mr. Binley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport in how many accidents (a) ministerial vehicles and (b) accompanying police vehicles have been involved in each of the last 10 years, broken down by ministerial office; and what the cost of repairs was in each case. [204010]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Official cars for Ministers are provided by the Government Car and Despatch Agency. There have been no accidents involving ministerial cars and accompanying police vehicles since the Agency was formed in 1997.

Oil: Prices

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 4 March 2008, Official Report, columns 2263-4W, on oil: prices, whether she plans to revise her projections for the future price of oil in (a) 2010, (b) 2015 and (c) 2020. [204668]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 9 May 2008]: The Department for Transport uses oil price projections from the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (BERR) in its transport modelling. On 2 May 2008, BERR published revised oil price assumptions to (a) $65; (b) $68; and (c) $70 for the years requested. These are in 2007 prices and refer to their central scenario.

We are in the process of using these updated projections to make new road traffic and congestion forecasts. The new oil price projections will also be incorporated into the latest versions of Department guidance and software used in developing business cases for funding by promoters.

Railways: Construction

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what preparatory steps she has taken in connection with the possible future construction of high-speed rail lines. [203339]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The Secretary of State has invited Network Rail to lead work on the development of our understanding of the complex options that may be needed in the future, in the context of the Department for Transport's wider strategic planning process. This will include looking at the feasibility and potential role of new railway lines, whether high speed or conventional.

Railways: Consultants

Stephen Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the Answer of 26 March 2008, Official Report, column 173W, on railways: consultants, (1) what work is being carried out by consultants on behalf of her Department on the feasibility of a high speed rail link between London and Birmingham; [202168]

(2) what work is being done by her Department on the feasibility of a high speed rail link between London and Birmingham. [202169]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 28 April 2008]: The Secretary of State has invited Network Rail to lead work on the development of our understanding of the complex options that may be needed in the future, in the context of the Department for Transport's wider strategic planning process. This will include looking at the feasibility and potential role of new railway lines, whether high speed or conventional.

Roads: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what funds have been allocated by her Department at national and regional level to Essex county council's feasibility study into an additional access road for Canvey Island. [204603]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The question of a proposed access road to Canvey Island is a matter for Essex county council, as local highway authority. The Department for Transport has not specifically allocated any funding for a feasibility study for any proposed scheme either at national or regional level.

Trains

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to ensure that the electric version of the proposed Inter-City Express will be equipped with an automatic coupler to facilitate the attachment of a diesel locomotive. [204179]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 8 May 2008]: It is a requirement of the Invitation to Tender, published by the Department for Transport last year, that electric IEP trains can be automatically coupled to diesel powered vehicles.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what role her Department will have in the procurement process for the new Inter-City Express rolling stock. [204180]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 8 May 2008]: The Department for Transport has been leading the procurement process to-date, and will continue to do so through to completion in 2009.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will take steps to ensure that rail vehicles intended for use on (a) Thameslink and (b) Crossrail routes will be compatible for use on either line. [204181]

Mr. Tom Harris [holding answer 8 May 2008]: Thameslink and Crossrail are similar in concept. Both aim to connect together national rail routes with a high frequency metro style service through central London. However, Thameslink uses existing tunnels built in the 19th century, whereas Crossrail will use a new, purpose built tunnel. As a result the constraints on the physical size of the trains are different for the two projects and for that reason it is unlikely that they will be fully compatible.

Transport

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport by what date she expects to publish her Green Paper on transport challenges; and what topics will be covered by the Paper. [203337]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 1 May 2008]: Since the publication of "Towards a Sustainable Transport System" in October 2007, the Department for Transport has been discussing with stakeholders how to define the challenges that we will need to address in our transport strategy for 2014 and beyond. Those discussions finished at the end of March. We aim to publish our response to these stakeholder discussions, and our view on how the process of generating and selecting options should work, shortly.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Employment

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to his statement of 16 January 2008, Official Report, column 944, that there was record employment under Labour, including record numbers of British jobs, how many (a) people and (b) working age people were in employment in each year since 1997; what the (i) employment rate and (ii) working age employment rate was of (A) the UK population, (B) UK citizens, (C) UK born citizens and (D) non-UK citizens in each year; what the figures were in each quarter since 1 January 2006; and if he will make a statement on Government targets for the employment rate in the UK. [181903]

Mr. Timms: The information requested, as well as information on all those aged 16 and over in employment, is given in the following tables.

Notes:

1. Figures are rounded to the nearest 100,000 (in the case of foreign nationals to the nearest 10,000).
2. Tables B to D are not seasonally adjusted. This means direct comparisons between different quarters are not possible.
3. The figures in Table A are seasonally adjusted headline employment figures based on population estimates published in 2006.
4. In order to provide the more detailed breakdown that is required to answer the second part of the question in Tables B to D, it is necessary to use data that are based on population estimates made in 2003—these are the latest estimates available for use in respect of particular categories of the labour force such as migrants. The figures in Table A are based on population estimates published in 2006 and as such the figures presented in Tables B to D are not directly comparable to the figures in Table A. The totals for the UK population as a whole—Table A—will not be equal to the sum of the numbers shown for UK and foreign nationals—Tables B and D respectively. In May 2008, the Office for National Statistics (ONS) will be releasing re-weighted data based on 2007 population estimates, which will lead to some changes in the figures in the tables.
5. Tables B to D exclude individuals whose nationality is unknown.
6. As these figures are based on a sample survey they are also subject to sampling variability.
7. It should be noted that the nationality question in the LFS is an undercount because: it excludes those who have not been resident in the UK for six months; it excludes students in halls who do not have a UK resident parent; it excludes people in most other types of communal establishments (e.g. hotels, boarding houses, hostels, mobile home sites, etc); it is grossed to population estimates that only include migrants staying for twelve months or more.

Employment: Hearing Impaired

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what mechanisms are in place to help deaf people into employment. [202742]

Mr. Timms: We are committed to helping all people, including deaf people, into suitable, sustainable employment through Jobcentre Plus.

Access to Work can provide a range of individually tailored support to enable disabled people to enter or stay in employment. Access to Work can fund specialist support for deaf and hearing impaired people in work. One type of support that deaf people may find particularly helpful is the funding provided through Access to Work for British Sign Language Interpreters, Lip Speakers or Palantypists.

People with health conditions, including deaf people, may also benefit from the help that is available through Pathways to Work. This service provides extra support and opportunities to help people with health problems and disabilities gain employment and retain it. Pathways to Work provides a series of interviews with an adviser and access to programmes to increase skills or confidence, or to help manage a health condition. Financial incentives may also be available to help people move into work.

Disability Employment Advisers in Jobcentre Plus work with people needing more extensive support. They need not be receiving benefits and may be in employment but worried about losing their job due to their disability. Disability employment advisers can advise on appropriate employment opportunities, act as advocates on the customer's behalf, and negotiate with employers, as well as refer people, where appropriate, for an occupational health assessment, or draw on the professional expertise of work psychologists specialising in working with disabled people. Disability employment advisers can also advise on specialised support available for disabled people. This includes Work Preparation, WORKSTEP, New Deal for Disabled People where it is in operation, Residential Training Colleges, Job Introduction Scheme and Access to Work.

Between December last year and March of this year, we undertook a public consultation 'Helping people achieve their full potential: Improving specialist disability employment services'. The consultation sought views about ways in which the Access to Work programme and other programmes for disabled people could be further improved, and ways to enhance aspects of the disability employment adviser role. We will publish our response during the summer.

Housing Benefit: Antisocial Behaviour

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people in each of the eight local authority pilot areas have (a) received written warnings for housing benefit sanction and (b) had their housing benefit withdrawn because of antisocial behaviour. [203244]

Mr. Plaskitt: So far none of the local authorities taking part in the pilot for the sanction of housing benefit related to antisocial behaviour has issued a written warning or applied a sanction.

Jobcentre Plus

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 20 March 2008, Official Report, column 1405W, if he will place in the Library a copy of the report on Jobcentre Plus's investigation into the feasibility of introducing advance payments. [202207]

Mr. Timms [holding answer 28 April 2008]: The administration of Jobcentre Plus is a matter for the chief executive of Jobcentre Plus, Lesley Strathie. I have asked her to provide the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Lesley Strathie, dated 12 May 2008:

The Secretary of State has asked me to reply to your question asking pursuant to the answer of 20 March 2008, Official Report, column 1405W, if he will place in the Library a copy of the report on Jobcentre Plus's investigation into the feasibility of introducing advance payments. This is something which falls within the responsibilities delegated to me as chief executive of Jobcentre Plus.

I have no plans to place a copy of the report in the Library as this is subject to ongoing policy development. I would be pleased to arrange for you to be briefed by one of my senior officials, if you would find that helpful.

Pensioners: Low Incomes

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of pensioners that will have a weekly income below the minimum income guarantee in each year to 2050; and what proportion of these will be (a) women, (b) aged over 75, (c) aged over 80 and (d) aged over 85 years. [200645]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Pension credit ensures that no-one aged 60 and over need live on an income of less than £124.05 a week. We want every pensioner to claim the benefits to which they are entitled which is why The Pension Service continue to undertake a wide range of activities to encourage people to claim the pension credit they are entitled to, including data matching to identify those who may be eligible but who are not receiving benefits, home visits for vulnerable customers and ever closer working with partner organisations.

Social Security Benefits

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will (a) undertake an impact assessment of the proposal to reduce the backdating period for pension credit, housing benefit and council tax benefit claims and (b) make it his policy to publish the assessment before implementing any change in policy. [203686]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer given to the hon. Member for Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey (Danny Alexander) on 24 April 2008, Official Report, column 2174W.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 29 April 2008, Official Report, column 49W, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, whether (a) elements of British forces will have a command relationship subordinate to the US 24th Marine Expeditionary Force and (b) elements of the US 24th Marine Expeditionary Force will have a command relationship subordinate to British forces in 2008. [203581]

Des Browne: Both Task Force Helmand and the US 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit are under the control of the Commander of the International Security Assistance Force.

British forces will be neither commanded by, nor in command of the US 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit, but individual arrangements may be made between UK and US forces as dictated by the practical execution of military operations.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the adequacy of the number of (a) infantry battalions, (b) helicopters, (c) aircraft and (d) training teams available to NATO forces deployed in Afghanistan to achieve their objectives. [203776]

Des Browne: The Bucharest summit saw a number of nations make significant additional commitments to the International Security Assistance Force; in particular President Sarkozy confirmed the deployment of an additional battalion of French troops to the east of the country.

Nevertheless, there remains a need for more training and mentoring personnel; combat forces in the south and east of Afghanistan; and key enablers, such as helicopters and other aircraft, to meet the Combined Joint Statement of Requirements for Afghanistan. The UK continues to work with partners to address these shortfalls.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many UK personnel are deployed on operations, broken down by location. [205127]

Des Browne: The following table shows the number of UK service personnel deployed on operations by location at 28 April 2008. The number of personnel in theatre will naturally fluctuate on a daily basis for a variety of reasons, including leave (rest and recuperation), temporary absence for training, evacuation for medical reasons, the roulement of forces and other factors.

Number of personnel deployed by location[1]

Location	Number
Total	14,410
of which:
Afghanistan	8,900
Iraq	4,000
Qatar	410
Cyprus	280
Kuwait	260
Oman	210
Kosovo	140
At Sea	80
Bahrain	80
Other	40

[1] Countries with 10 or more personnel are shown separately. Other countries with fewer than 10 personnel per Country include Bosnia, Georgia, Nepal, Sudan, Sierra Leone, Democratic Republic of Congo and Liberia. With the exception of Bosnia, personnel in these countries are participating in smaller UN operations, e.g. we contribute five military personnel to the United Nations Observer Mission in Georgia (UNOMIG).

Notes:

1. Figures for Iraq and Afghanistan have been rounded to the nearest 100 for operational security reasons. Other figures have been rounded to the nearest 10. Due to rounding, the total is not equal to the sum of the individual locations.
2. Figures for Afghanistan are artificially high due to the handover period while a Relief In Place (RIP) is in operation. The operational establishment for Afghanistan is 7,800.

Armed Forces: Finance

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the change in the budget of the armed forces in (a) cash, (b) real and (c) percentage terms will be in (i) 2008-09, (ii) 2009-10, (iii) 2010-11 over the preceding year in each case; and if he will make a statement. [200274]

Des Browne: The defence budget over the years 2007-08 to 2010-11 can be found in the 2004 spending review (CM6237) and the 2007 pre-Budget report and comprehensive spending review (CM7227) White Papers. These figures can be converted to real terms using the GDP deflator, available on HM Treasury's website.

Armed Forces: Housing

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many homes for service personnel there are in (a) Northumberland and (b) County Durham. [203785]

Derek Twigg: There are 294 service family accommodation properties in Northumberland and 54 in County Durham.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which unit will provide the Spearhead Land Element requirement for the UK during the service in Kosovo of the 2nd Battalion The Rifles. [204566]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The 3 SCOTS will be providing the Spearhead Land Element requirement for the UK while 2 Rifles are deployed in Kosovo.

Armed Forces: Young Offenders

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with the Ministry of Justice on employing the armed forces on training programmes with young offenders; how many armed forces personnel he expects to be involved in such programmes; what proportion of the cost for such programmes will be borne by his Department; and how much that is expected to be. [203413]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There has been a preliminary discussion between MOJ and MOD on the wider issue of strengthening the links between the armed forces and Prison Service to broaden the scope of opportunities for ex-offenders within the military. There are currently no plans to employ members of the armed forces on training programmes with young offenders.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what progress has been made on the procurement of Ridgeback armoured vehicles; and if he will make a statement. [203206]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 482W.

Army: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the average tour interval for each battalion in the (a) infantry and (b) Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers was in the latest period for which figures are available; [200943]

(2) what the average tour interval was for each regiment in the (a) Royal Artillery, (b) Royal Engineers, (c) Royal Logistic Corps and (d) Royal Corps of Signals in the latest period for which figures are available. [200954]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Historical data to support the calculation of the average tour interval for each battalion or regiment of the infantry or the Royal Artillery are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

As at 1 April 2008, the last tour interval for each battalion of the infantry and each regiment of the Royal Artillery is shown in the following tables.

[1] 1 RS and 1 KOSB amalgamated to form 1 Scots in August 2006. 1 Scots is to deploy for the first time as a formed unit to Iraq in December 2007. For the purposes of this question, 1 Scots was counted as one unit with a tour interval of 17 months.

[2] 1 Korbr, 1 Kings and QLR amalgamated in July 2006 to form 1 Lancs and 2 Lancs. Operation Telic 11 will be the first unit operational deployment for 1 Lancs. Because of the nature of this amalgamation, it is not representative to calculate the average tour intervals of 1 Lancs and 2 Lancs based on the previous operational deployments of 1 Korbr, 1 Kings and QLR, as such for the purpose of this question, no unit tour interval value for 1 Korbr, 1 Kings, QLR, 1 Lancs or 2 Lancs was included in the calculation.

[3] 1 RGBW and 1 DDLI amalgamated in March 2007 to form 1 Rifles. 1 Rifles has yet to deploy as a formed unit. For the purposes of this question, 1 Rifles was counted as one unit with a tour interval of 43.5 months.

[4] 1 Para transferred to directorate special forces in August 2005 and for the purposes of this question, no unit tour interval value was included in the calculation.

The unit tour interval is a less relevant measure when applied to the Corps of Royal Engineers, Royal Corps of Signals and the Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers. This is due to the frequency with which personnel move between formed units within these Corps (the personnel deployed with a unit will be substantially different from the personnel deployed with the same unit on a previous occasion). Unit tour interval data for these Corps are not therefore, routinely collated.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what period has elapsed since personnel serving with 2nd Battalion The Rifles were last deployed on operations. [204560]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: 2 Rifles are due to deploy to Kosovo shortly. Their previous deployment was to Iraq from November 2006 to March 2007.

BAE Systems

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions his Department has had with BAE Systems. [204355]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Ministers and officials at varying levels hold numerous discussions with BAE systems regularly. This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Bombs

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent discussions he has had with the Foreign Secretary on negotiations towards a legally binding treaty to prohibit cluster munitions. [204353]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Defence has held a number of discussions with the Foreign Secretary recently to determine how best to achieve a legally binding instrument that will prohibit the use, production, transfer and stockpiling of those cluster munitions that cause unacceptable harm to civilians.

Defence Estates: Assets

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assets were held by Defence Estates in (a) England, (b) Scotland, (c) Wales and (d) Northern Ireland at the latest date for which information is available; what the estimated value of each asset is; and if he will make a statement. [204740]

Derek Twigg: Details of all Ministry of Defence (MOD) holdings over £1 million and their latest asset valuation are available in Chapter 7 of the National Asset Register (CM7022), which can be found on HM Treasury's website. All land and building assets of the MOD are held by Defence Estates. All other assets of Defence Estates are held by Defence Equipment and Support.

Providing details of all property below £1 million in value could be carried out only at disproportionate cost.

Defence Estates: Sales

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what factors determine the distribution of receipts from the sale of Defence Estates' property between devolved administrations and Government budgets other than those of Defence Estates. [204738]

Derek Twigg: In line with HM Treasury guidance, receipts retained by the Ministry of Defence from the sale of Defence Estates property are reinvested by the Department in key priorities.

Defence: Procurement

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what representations he has received from defence equipment suppliers on the effects on them of the separation of the emissions trading scheme; and if he will make a statement. [203803]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No known representations on emissions trading have been received.

Departmental ICT

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he has taken to ensure that counterfeit routers and other counterfeit hardware are not utilised in his Department's computer networks. [203242]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: It is not in the interests of the UK's national security for Departments to confirm whether they hold information about malicious attacks against their IT systems.

Disabled

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what targets his Department has set in relation to its employment of people with disabilities over the next five years. [199056]

Derek Twigg: We are waiting for the successor to the civil service 10 point plan, to be released in late 2008, before determining further targets.

Iraq: Armed Forces

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the estimated total cost has been of equipment gifted to the Iraqi forces in each year since 2003. [183079]

Des Browne: The estimated total cost of equipment gifted to the Iraqi Security Forces per financial year is as follows:

Financial year	Cost (£)
2003-04	21,500.00
2004-05	12,678,300.00
2005-06	7,518,200.00
2006-07	3,357,400.00
2007-08	[1]341,600.00

[1] This includes costs until 28 March 2008

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence which units have served (a) one tour, (b) two tours and (c) three tours and more in (i) Iraq and (ii) Afghanistan. [190602]

Des Browne: These data are not currently held in the format requested. Officials are working to collate this information from a number of sources. I will therefore write to the hon. Member.

Substantive answer from Des Browne to Liam Fox:

This has proved to be a complex question to answer. You will be aware that most Infantry battalions have deployed on operations at least once in the last five years. The Infantry tend to deploy as formed units with the tour intervals in relation to Army units being based on (a) 'Units' defined as any Regiment deploying with a Regimental Headquarters and more than two Sub Units and (b) 'deployment' as any Unit deploying for four months or more. The Army's Harmony Guidelines recommend that Army units achieve 24 months between each six month operational tour.

Elements from other Arms and Services regularly deploy as sub-units, on attachment to other units, or as individual augmentees. For example, this is the case for Royal Engineers, Royal Electrical and Mechanical Engineers and Explosive Ordnance Disposal personnel. Information on some units, such as Logistics have not been included in the return as this would incur disproportionate cost. Although other Corps may deploy with an RHQ and two or more sub units, it may not always be with the same formation or with the same individuals and would therefore make the information very difficult to collate.

A Squadron is the key unit of deployment for the RAF and figures are collated accordingly. Additional Wings have been formed due to the increasing demand for Force Protection and this is the reason why some Wings have deployed fewer than others.

You can see from the table that while some Army units have undertaken three deployments, others have only completed one. Whilst operations have been continuing in Iraq and Afghanistan, units will also have been covering endorsed standing Military tasks such as commitments in Northern Ireland, Cyprus, the Balkans and the Falkland Islands as well as Public Duties, in addition to conducting essential training and recuperating from operations. Moreover, there have been occasions where one or two sub units of a Battalion or Regiment have deployed, but these instances do not qualify as unit deployments and are therefore not included in the table.

I am sorry that this information has taken so long to compile, but its collation has involved trawling through a substantial amount of information to ensure as full and accurate a response as possible based on the criteria set out above. Now that this detail has been gathered it will be maintained to prevent any such delay occurring in the future.

I am placing a copy of this letter in the Library of the House.

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many servicemen and women normally resident in East Dunbartonshire were serving in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan at the latest date for which figures are available; and how many such service personnel have served in each country in the last five years. [204553]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 9 May 2008]: Data on the UK residential location of armed forces personnel are not held centrally in databases of individual records and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many members of the Territorial Army are on active service in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [204561]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: As at 31 March 2008, there were 512 members of the Territorial Army serving in the Afghanistan Joint Operational Area (JOA), and 122 in the Iraq JOA.

Joint Rapid Reaction Force

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 58W, on the Joint Rapid Reaction Force, which units will form the UK's commitment to the Headquarters Allied Command Europe Rapid Reaction Corps from July to December 2008. [203475]

Des Browne: The Allied Rapid Reaction Corps (ARRC) is a High Readiness Force (Land) assigned to NATO. Sixty per cent. of its established posts are found by the UK. Headquarters ARRC's intimate supporting elements are Headquarters 1 Signal Brigade, 252 Close Support Squadron, the ARRC Support Battalion and 12 Military Intelligence Company.

Kosovo: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with his European counterparts on providing the strategic airlift required to deploy the UK's commitment for NATO's Operational Reserve Force in Kosovo. [203217]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: None. Our forward planning for this task will allow us to make maximum use of commercial charter aircraft.

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what equipment will be made available to the UK operational reserve battalion for its deployment to Kosovo. [204140]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Equipment to be made available to the UK Operational Reserve Battalion includes Snatch Land Rovers, standard Land Rovers, Saxon personnel carriers, 4-ton trucks, engineering equipment, battlefield ambulances, riot control equipment (including shields and batons), body armour, personal light weapons and communications equipment, along with general items such as fuel, food, personal kit, vehicle spares and ammunition.

The overall need for airlift has been reduced by the pre-positioning of heavy equipment by road. Commercially chartered aircraft will be used for the transfer of personnel and further equipment wherever possible although some military aircraft have been allocated for use where necessary.

Marchwood Sea Mounting Centre

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reasons his Department has imposed a 65-tonne weight limit on commercial loads which can be handled on the Falklands Jetty at Marchwood Sea Mounting Centre; when this limit was determined; whether its impact on the planning consent given for the construction plans for the new Marchwood Power Station was considered before the limit was laid down; and if he will make a statement. [204537]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 9 May 2008]: An internal review of the Falklands Jetty at the Sea Mounting Centre (SMC) Marchwood was carried out in 2005. It was concluded that the Jetty can continue to routinely handle military and commercial loads weighing up to 65 tonnes. While requests for the Jetty to be used for heavier loads are still considered, these tend to be handled through alternative facilities at the SMC. The SMC holds no records to suggest it was involved in the planning considerations for the Power Station in 2001-02.

Since Marchwood Power Limited started utilising the SMC in August 2007, the MOD has worked closely with the company to ensure that its requirements are met as practicably and safely as possible.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what the weight limit is for military loads which can be handled on the Falklands Jetty at Marchwood Sea Mounting Centre; [204538]

(2) what the weight was of the heaviest load handled on the Falkland Jetty at Marchwood Sea Mounting Centre since 2001. [204544]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 9 May 2008]: Since 2005, the heaviest piece of equipment that can routinely be handled from the Falklands Jetty is the military Challenger II tank, which weighs 65 tonnes. These vehicles are, however, usually loaded via Roll-On/Roll-Off facilities at the SMC's quayside. Requests for the Jetty to be used for heavier loads are still considered although these tend to be handled through alternative facilities at the Sea Mounting Centre. Prior to 2005, the heaviest load handled from the Falklands Jetty was a 215 tonne reactor in 2001.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what assessment was made of the (a) effect on traffic from the Port of Southampton to the Marchwood Power Station site and (b) cost of delivering the main heavy plant for the power station by road, when the decision to impose a 65 tonne limit on commercial loads handled at the Falkland Jetty at the Sea Mounting Centre was taken; [204545]

(2) if he will instruct his Department to give permission for up to 12 loads to be delivered to the new Marchwood Power Station via the Sea Mounting Centre and exempted from the 65 tonne limit. [204546]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: When the decision to impose a routine weight restriction of 65 tonnes for loads on the Falklands Jetty was made in 2005, no assessment was carried out by MOD of the effects on traffic or the cost of delivering such loads by road. This is because an alternative loading solution exists that involves the acceptance of heavier loads using a floating crane to lift them over the Sea Mounting Centre's quay wall either onto the quayside or waiting rail transportation. To date, some 36 loads for the Marchwood Power Station, weighing between 98 and 171 tonnes, have been moved in this way.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many serviceable helicopters are available to (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Navy and (c) the Royal Air Force; and how many were available to each in 2005. [204194]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: For the purposes of MOD reporting, a serviceable helicopter is defined as one that is used, is capable of being used or could be made ready for a period of two hours flying within a planned flying programme. Fit For Purpose is the metric that is used to measure serviceability, and the figures in the table represent the average Fit For Purpose figures for the month of March in each of the specified years. The numbers of helicopters that are considered to be Fit For Purpose will vary from day to day due, primarily, to routine maintenance requirements, and does not include helicopters in transit.

The number of serviceable helicopters available in the Forward Fleet for the month of March in 2005 and 2008, broken down by Service are shown as follows:

	March
	2005	2008
Royal Navy
Sea King HC Mk 4 and 6	19	16
Lynx Mk 3	16	12
Lynx Mk 8	13	14
Merlin Mk 1	10	13
Sea King Mk 5	5	7
Sea King Mk 7	6	4
RN total	69	66
Army Air Corps
Apache AH Mk 1	22	25
Agusta A 109	3	3
Lynx Mk 7 and 9	47	39
Gazelle HC Mk 1	58	36
AAC total	130	103
Royal Air Force
Chinook HC Mk 2	18	21
Merlin HC Mk 3	6	8
Puma MC Mk 1	19	13
SAR Sea King Mk 3/3a	Not available	18
RAF total	43	60
Total FFP	242	229

The figures for 2008 do not include the eight RAF Chinook Mark 3 helicopters that are being converted to a Battlefield role but do include three of the six RAF Merlin helicopters recently acquired from Denmark, as announced by the Secretary of State on 30 March 2007. The figures for 2008 also reflect the planned reductions in the Gazelle and Lynx Mk 7 fleets. The number of serviceable Apache will increase as the capability continues to be fielded.

Territorial Army: Manpower

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of Territorial Army personnel are drawn from (a) small, (b) medium and (c) large businesses. [204607]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Figures for the Territorial Army are not available separately from the rest of the Volunteer Reserve Forces (VRF). Latest data show that, of the 59 per cent. of VRF with employers:

27 per cent. work for employers with one to nine employees

26 per cent. work for employers with 10 to 49 employees

23 per cent. work for employers with 50 to 200 employees

10 per cent. work for employers with 200 to 500 employees

14 per cent. work for employers with 500+ employees.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: Overseas Aid

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much money was spent by his Department on aid programmes for Africa in each year since 2004, broken down by development objective. [201664]

Gillian Merron: Department for International Development (DFID) expenditure, both bilateral and multilateral, on aid programmes for Africa since 2004 is set out in the following tables.

Burma: Storms

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development (1) what assessment he has made of the humanitarian situation in Burma following the recent cyclone; and what UK assistance has been offered to Burma; [204620]

(2) what steps the Government are taking to seek to ensure that humanitarian agencies are permitted access to cyclone-affected parts of Burma; and if he will make a statement. [204621]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I refer the hon. Member to the statement that I made in the House on 8 May 2008, Official Report, column 863.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204111]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) is a member of the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF). The GCOF aims to fulfil the Government's commitment to offset emissions attributable to all official and ministerial air travel in central Government. It is available to all central Government Departments and provides a simple and cost-effective way to offset, as well as ensuring high environmental integrity. The GCOF runs for an initial period of three years (2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09).

The GCOF is being managed by EEA Fund Management Ltd. who won the contract to source and deliver 255,000 Certified Emission Reduction Credits, with a provision for a further 50,000 credits over three years from a range of Clean Development Mechanism (CDM) projects. Credits will be supplied from the project portfolio of Trading Emissions Plc, to whom EEA is the investment adviser.

DFID has to date contributed £175,741 to the scheme, paid during 2007-08 in respect of air travel during 2006-07.

DFID is currently focussing its efforts on reducing carbon emissions from its estate, including the implementation of equipment and procedures to maximise energy efficiency equipment, which for instance has in recent months reduced our electricity consumption in our London Headquarters by over 10 per cent. We were also recently awarded the Energy Efficiency Accreditation certification. Once these measures have been implemented we will make appropriate arrangements to offset any residual carbon emissions.

Departmental Data Protection

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the Answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, column 1182W, on departmental data protection, if he will include information assurance data on data loss incidents in previous years in his Department's next annual report. [199178]

Mr. Malik: I refer the hon. Member to the statement made by my right hon. Friend, the Prime Minister on 21 November 2007, Official Report, column 1179 and the written ministerial statement made my right hon. Friend the Minister for the Cabinet Office on 17 December 2007, Official Report, column 98WS. The review by the Cabinet Secretary and security experts is looking at procedures within Departments and agencies for the storage and use of data.

The interim report of 17 December 2007 committed to put in place a programme to examine and improve data handling procedures. An update on this commitment will be included in the final report, expected in spring 2008, and this report will detail the information to be included by Departments on data loss in their annual reports

Developing Countries: Climate Change

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the significance of policies to reduce carbon dioxide emissions related to energy for the achievement of the Millennium Development Goals related to the world's poorest countries. [203551]

Mr. Thomas: Our assessment is that policies to reduce energy-related carbon dioxide emissions need not limit efforts to improve energy access in the world's poorest countries; indeed these two objectives could in some instances be complementary.

Policies to reduce carbon dioxide emissions will include adopting cleaner technologies, improving energy efficiency and increasing the use of renewable energy. In the longer term it will require the use of emerging technologies such as carbon capture and storage.

In developing countries, improved access to reliable and affordable energy services is needed in order to achieve the Millennium Development Goals. Energy access is lowest in rural areas, notably in sub-Saharan Africa and in South Asia, often beyond the reach of grid-connected supplies. In these cases, decentralised energy production, using a wide range of renewable and conventional technologies, may offer the best solutions for increasing access to poor households and communities. A recent study by the World Bank's Energy Sector Management Assistance Programme concluded that renewable energy is more economical than conventional energy for many such applications.

Developing Countries: Education

Mr. Moore: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support his Department has provided for education in recent humanitarian responses in (a) Kenya, (b) Mozambique, (c) Bangladesh and (d) Chad. [202752]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) has provided both direct and indirect support for education as part of its global response to recent humanitarian crises. In Bangladesh, the UK and other donors provided 400 temporary classrooms following the cyclone in November 2007. Other DFID-funded immediate relief helped to buy textbooks and other learning material for children in the affected areas, as well as providing technical support to help the Bangladesh Government develop a long-term school reconstruction plan.

In Kenya, Mozambique and Chad direct support to education was not provided early on in the crises as DFID's humanitarian response aimed to address the most basic humanitarian needs first—shelter, food, clean water and health.

UK humanitarian support is also provided through the UN's Central Emergency Relief Fund (CERF) where DFID remains the largest donor. In 2006, the CERF released approximately £500,000 to UNICEF for education interventions in Chad. Of this allocation, the UK's share amounts to approximately £100,000. Since the start of 2008, Mozambique has been allocated £2.4 million from the CERF, with provisions used towards the education sector.

Developing Countries: HIV Infection

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his policy is for tackling HIV/AIDS in the developing world in the next three years; and if he will make a statement. [204723]

Gillian Merron: Following a public consultation, the UK Government are currently updating "Taking Action - The UK's strategy for tackling HIV and AIDS in the developing world". The updated strategy is due to be launched in the near future.

Developing Countries: Human Rights

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what recent steps the Government have taken to promote and protect human rights in developing countries. [204169]

Gillian Merron: I refer my hon. Friend to the written answer given to his previous question on 28 April, Official Report, column 369W, which gives specific examples of how the UK Government have promoted human rights in developing countries.

The Foreign and Commonwealth Office leads the Government's efforts to promote human rights abroad and the Department for International Development (DFID) supports this in developing countries. DFID provides funding to partner governments once assessments have been made to ensure they are committed to respecting human rights as well as reducing poverty and strengthening financial management and accountability. The UK Government policy on integrating human rights into development is set out in the DFID strategy paper: "Realising human rights for poor people", at www.dfid.gov.uk/publications

Drugs: Patents

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department's policy is on patent pools for essential medicines. [201942]

Gillian Merron: The UK Government believe that there is merit in examining the benefits that voluntarily established patent pools could bring in facilitating access to medicines. The Department for International Development is participating in a process organised by UNITAID, the international drug purchase facility, which is examining the feasibility of establishing a patent pool for antiretroviral medicines for the treatment of HIV/AIDS.

Gaza: UN Relief and Works Agency

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assistance his Department gives to the work of the UN Relief and Works Agency in Gaza. [204190]

Mr. Malik: The Department for International Development (DFID) has committed £100 million to the UN Relief and Works Agency (UNRWA) for Palestinian refugees in the region for the period 2007-12. This will increase our support from £15.6 million in 2007-08, to £19 million in 2008-09 and then progressively to £23.4 million in 2011-12. Around 10 per cent. of this funding is linked to UNRWA achieving targeted improvements of its management and service delivery.

DFID funding helps UNRWA provide health, education and other services to 4.5 million Palestinian refugees, including over a million refugees in Gaza and over 700,000 in the West Bank. 70 per cent. of Gazans are registered refugees and will therefore benefit from the support we provide to UNRWA. We expect more than 30 per cent. of our funding to UNWRA to be allocated to Gaza.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what proportion of farmers in (a) Forest of Dean constituency and (b) England have not yet received their Single Farm Payment for (i) 2005, (ii) 2006 and (iii) 2007; and if he will make a statement. [204032]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 8 May 2008]: Detailed analysis of all the payments made under the Single Payment Scheme (SPS) is not yet available. Once the remaining scheme payments have been completed a decision will be taken on the level of detail that will be published.

The proportion of English claimants who have not yet received SPS payments are:

2005: 8

2007: 8.3 per cent.

2005 and 2006 numbers are too low to register as meaningful percentages and the outstanding payments for these years relate to complex cases, mainly involving legal and probate issues.

RPA is working to finalise remaining payments as soon as possible.

Air Pollution

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs at how many sites in England levels of (a) carbon monoxide, (b) sulphur dioxide and (c) nitrogen dioxide are monitored. [204301]

Jonathan Shaw: The number of sites monitoring levels of the pollutants is currently in flux due to preparations for the implementation of the EU Directive on Ambient Air Quality and Cleaner Air for Europe. The number of sites currently in operation is as follows:

		Number of sites
(i)	Carbon monoxide	26
(ii)	Sulphur dioxide	45
(iii)	Nitrogen dioxide	104

Once the directive monitoring requirements are fully implemented the number of sites will be:

		Number of sites
(i)	Carbon monoxide	26
(ii)	Sulphur dioxide	45
(iii)	Nitrogen dioxide	120

Air Pollution: EU Law

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had on the introduction of the EU Directive on Ambient Air Quality and Cleaner Air for Europe. [204299]

Jonathan Shaw: The Secretary of State has not had any recent discussions on the new ambient air quality directive.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made on changes to the UK automatic monitoring network in preparation for the introduction of the EU Directive on Ambient Air Quality and Cleaner Air for Europe. [204300]

Jonathan Shaw: During the negotiation of the EU Directive on Ambient Air Quality and Cleaner Air for Europe, DEFRA undertook a review of the automatic monitoring networks taking into account the requirements of the directive.

The changes to the Automatic Urban and Rural, and Hydrocarbons networks fall into three broad areas:

(i) A reduction in the number of carbon monoxide and sulphur dioxide monitors, commensurate with the generally low levels of both pollutants currently found. However, there will be increased sulphur dioxide monitoring in some areas around particular industrial hotspots.

(ii) Movement of oxides of nitrogen monitors from agglomerations to zones, and from urban background to roadside.

(iii) The creation of a $PM_{2.5}$ network, and changes to the PM_{10} network. In addition to setting the minimum number of PM monitors to be operated, the directive specifies the ratio of PM_{10}:$PM_{2.5}$ and urban background: roadside sites which must be operated; in both cases this ratio must be between 2:1 and 1:2.

This will result in:

the closure or removal from the network of 20 complete sites the opening or affiliation into the network of 33 new sites (mainly for PM_{10}/$PM_{2.5}$ and oxides of nitrogen) the removal of 51 carbon monoxide analysers

the removal of 32 and the addition of five sulphur dioxide analysers the movement and/or addition of 29 oxides of nitrogen sites

the addition of 67 $PM_{2.5}$ sites

the movement and/or addition of 21 PM_{10} sites

the movement of 11 benzene sites

the removal of 13 and the addition of four ozone sites

To date the following have been completed:

the closure or removal from the network of 20 complete sites (from 1 October 2007).

the dissemination of data from 51 carbon monoxide and 32 sulphur dioxide sites stopped on 1 October 2007.

the addition of 17 local authority sites into the network; a further five sites will be brought into the network during May/June. For the remaining sites, work is ongoing to identify suitable local authority sites to bring into the network.

the purchase of type approved gaseous analysers for DEFRA-owned sites to replace existing non-type approved equipment. These analysers will be installed during routine site visits during 2008.

the installation of 22 reference method equivalent PM_{10} analysers and the procurement of 11 $PM_{2.5}$ analysers.

an OJEU notice has been published to procure the remainder of the particulate matter analysers.

Animals: MRSA

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he has taken to reduce the incidence of methicillin-resistant staphylococcus aureus in animals. [203489]

Jonathan Shaw: Methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus (MRSA) has not been detected in farmed livestock in the UK and there is no current evidence that food-producing animals form a reservoir of infection in the UK. The organism has been isolated from dairy cows, pigs and chickens outside the UK, as well as in companion animals (including cats, dogs and horses) both in the UK and elsewhere. Ongoing monitoring of the international picture is being maintained. A 12-month long study to provide an initial overview of the presence of MRSA in breeding pig herds across Europe began in January 2008. This is being carried out under Community legislation. It is anticipated that the results of this study will be published in mid 2009 and that they will inform the direction of future work by DEFRA.

DEFRA's Antimicrobial Resistance Co-ordination (DARC) Group continues to provide guidance on policy relating to antimicrobial resistance. The membership of the DARC Group reflects a partnership approach and includes representatives from many organisations involved in both human and animal health throughout the UK. DARC created a MRSA sub-group in 2005, through which DEFRA is assisting and encouraging various initiatives relating to MRSA from the Bella Moss Foundation (a UK registered charity promoting awareness of MRSA in animals), industry and the veterinary profession. DEFRA has funded research to better understand the epidemiology of MRSA in companion animals and livestock and any role it may play in human infections.

In addition to chairing the DARC Group, DEFRA's Veterinary Medicines Directorate have used various means including legislation, publication of guidance and liaison with interested parties, such as the RUMA (Responsible Use of Medicines in Agriculture) alliance, to achieve a co-ordinated and integrated approach to raise awareness of the issues surrounding antimicrobial resistance in animals and promote the responsible use of antimicrobials.

Beekeeping

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the contribution of beekeeping to the agriculture sector; and if he will make a statement. [204201]

Jonathan Shaw: Through their important role in pollinating flowering plants, honey bees make a vital contribution to sustainable agriculture. Reflecting this, DEFRA continues to fund a programme of controls and education for beekeepers via the National Bee Unit and the Bee Inspectorate.

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the contribution of research to the formulation of policy on beekeeping. [204202]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA's Bee Health Programme underpins bee health policy and covers work on exotic and statutory pests and diseases of bees. Research is carried out to fill gaps in the knowledge base used to support policy and to allow evidence-based policy decision making. The research should deliver results which can be used by Government and the craft of bee keeping in combating pests and diseases.

Bees

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of recent trends in the bee population; and if he will make a statement. [204199]

Jonathan Shaw: It is too early to assess disease incidence this season although there are indications of some significant colony losses across the country. These are under investigation.

Bees: Disease Control

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research the Government is funding on (a) acaricide-resistant varroa destructor and its associated viral diseases, (b) European foulbrood, (c) bee viruses and (d) nosema. [204196]

Jonathan Shaw: In 2008-09, the research programme will continue to focus on the development of a monitoring and surveillance system for the Small Hive Beetle (Aethina tumida (Murray)) and assessing the effectiveness of the 'shook swarm' technique for the control of European Foul Brood (EFB). A three-year PhD studentship studying bee viruses, including those that are not transmitted by Varroa, which is based at the University of Surrey, will continue to build on recent progress.

Last year, the National Bee Unit analysed samples for the two Nosema species known to infect bees, Nosema apis and Nosema ceranae. Both species are present in England and Wales, although exact details of the spread and prevalence of these species are currently unknown.

No research is currently being carried out on Varroa destructor. However, this has been identified as a potential future research priority in the draft Bee Health strategy, which has recently been published for public consultation.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Compensation

Mr. Clifton-Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs for what reasons dairy non-pedigree calved females are valued more highly than pedigree calved females over 36 months in tabular valuations related to bovine tuberculosis. [203466]

Jonathan Shaw: To support table valuations, sales data are collected from a large number and wide range of sources across Great Britain. We capture around 98 per cent. of the sales data for cattle sold at public auction, and, in our view, the table valuations reflect the market situation for same category cattle. Table values are only applied for any category in any month if adequate amounts of data have been obtained. Otherwise individual valuation is used to establish market value.

The non-pedigree table value has been higher than the pedigree value for the dairy calved female category on three occasions (between January and March 2008) since monthly table valuations for cattle compensation were introduced in February 2006. This reflected the underlying sales data that we received. I would stress that the approach we take is completely objective; sales data are not manipulated in any way.

Non-pedigree table values are based on one month's data, whereas for pedigree categories we use six months' data to cover seasonal variability in pedigree trade and to obtain adequate amounts of sales data.

Carbon Emissions

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the level of reductions necessary for each household from 2002 to 2050 assuming the current breakdown of carbon dioxide emissions between the different component elements for the reduction of carbon dioxide emissions by (a) 60 per cent. and (b) 80 per cent. to be achieved by 2050. [202488]

Mr. Woolas: Under the Climate Change Bill, the Committee on Climate Change must provide its first advice to the Secretary of State before 1 December 2008. That advice must include recommendations on the levels of the first three budgets as well as on the level of the 2050 target. It must also refer to the sectors of the economy in which there are particular opportunities for contributions to be made towards meeting the carbon budget.

The Government will consider the Committee's advice before announcing the first three budgets alongside fiscal Budget 2009. It is required to lay before Parliament a report on proposals and policies for meeting those budgets, including how they affect different sectors of the economy.

The Government's existing package of measures in the household sector, as set out in the 2007 Energy White Paper, is designed to reduce UK household emissions to less than 30 million tonnes of carbon (MtC) from today's level of 40 MtC.

Cetaceans: Conservation

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the extent to which the UK has met its obligations under the EU by-catch regulation (EC) No. 812/2004; and what impact this has had on cetacean populations in UK waters. [203996]

Jonathan Shaw: The UK has reported on its implementation of EC 812/2004 in June 2006 and June 2007. As can be seen from these reports, we have fully met our obligation to monitor cetacean by-catch. This work is being carried out by the Sea Mammal Research Unit, and the annual reports of this research are published on the Departments website. However, technical problems with current designs have precluded full deployment of acoustic deterrent devices. No assessment has been made of the impact of these actions on cetacean populations in UK waters.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many UK vessels are using acoustic deterrent devices to reduce cetacean by-catch . [203997]

Jonathan Shaw: Acoustic deterrent devices, "pingers", are required to be used in certain fisheries under Council Regulation (EC) 812/2004. Prior to enforcing the use of pingers, the UK Government wants to be sure that the pingers we recommend to be used are safe and cost-effective for the industry and offer maximum protection to porpoises. The European Commission has recognised that because of deployment problems, some member states are not able to implement pingers as required by the Council Regulation, and have recommended that member states should continue with trials to develop a working pinger. The Sea Mammal Research Unit are currently looking at the effects that a 'super-pinger' has on the population distribution of porpoises. These 'super-pingers' are larger and therefore fewer devices are required, reducing deployment problems. We will consider the results of this research when it becomes available. We are therefore not aware of how many UK vessels are currently using acoustic deterrent devices to reduce by-catch of cetaceans.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent research on cetacean by-catch in UK waters his Department has commissioned. [204000]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department has implemented a comprehensive system of by-catch monitoring under the requirements of the EC Habitats Directive and Council Regulation 812/2004. The Sea Mammal Research Unit (SMRU) produces annual reports of this research for DEFRA, and these are published on the Department's website.

Since 2000, the UK has put over £2 million into researching by-catch mitigation measures and monitoring by-catch on vessels through observers. This is to try to identify those fisheries responsible for high levels of cetacean by-catch and mitigation measures that are effective at deterring cetaceans over the long-term and are safe and cost-effective for the industry. We are due to receive the final report project on By-catch Mitigation Research from SMRU at the end of May. A new research contract on this issue has recently been agreed with SMRU.

In 2003, the UK was the first member state to publish a cetacean by-catch response strategy for small cetaceans.

Cetaceans: South West

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will publish the most recent available data on cetacean strandings in Cornwall and Devon. [203995]

Jonathan Shaw: All data on Cetacean strandings across the UK, up to and including the 2006 data, are publicly available on the Defra website in the form of UK Cetacean strandings investigation programme (CSIP) Annual reports:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/wildlife-countryside/resprog/findings/.

The 2007 Annual report is currently being drafted and will be available on the website in the near future.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much his Department and its predecessors spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204105]

Mr. Woolas: Figures currently available cover 2005-06 (where applicable) and 2006-07. Data are currently being collected for the 2007-08 reporting year and will be available later in the year.

DEFRA has paid £60,014.07 into the GCOF, to offset some 6,056tCO_2 equivalent from a variety of sources from April 2005 to April 2007.

Departmental Public Participation

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what (a) surveys, (b) questionnaires and (c) other services were provided by polling companies for his Department in financial year 2007-08, broken down by company. [200005]

Jonathan Shaw: This information is not held centrally, and so the following information is what could be gathered without disproportionate cost. It lists the surveys, questionnaires and other services conducted by third parties which received funding from Defra and which sought opinion, and which were provided in completed and agreed form during the financial year 2007-08.

Disabled

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what targets his Department has set in relation to its employment of people with disabilities over the next five years. [199046]

Jonathan Shaw: We have not set targets in relation to the employment of people with disabilities, other than for the senior civil service. Our target for 31 March 2008 was 3 per cent. and we achieved 2.6 per cent.

However in an earlier response to the Baroness Byford on 23 October 2007, Official Report, House of Lords, columns WA98-99, we highlighted that our disabled employee representation had increased across the Defra network over the last year.

Our workforce information tells us that about 6 per cent. of our staff have declared that they are disabled. However, disability declaration is voluntary and we believe that the actual number of disabled people in the Defra workforce is in fact higher.

In developing our new disability equality scheme our disabled and deaf staff have told us that they lack confidence in the fairness of recruitment processes for disabled and deaf people. To address the concerns raised we intend to review our recruitment and selection policies and processes and improve the monitoring of the whole process to identify and eliminate barriers that disabled and deaf people may experience in securing work with Defra.

Our diversity team supports the business to ensure that the Defra workforce is representative of the wider community. We have set up a Disability Equality Scrutiny and Advisory Group made up of independent disabled experts to monitor and advise on our progress against our action plans.

Dogger Bank: Environment Protection

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what plans he has to protect the Dogger Bank as an offshore special area of conservation under the EU Habitats Directive. [203992]

Jonathan Shaw: Dogger Bank has been identified as a draft Special Area of Conservation (SAC) under the Habitats Directive Annex III Stage 1 selection criteria. Draft SACs (dSACs) are areas that have been formally advised to the UK Government as suitable for selection as SACs, but have not been formally approved by Government as sites for public consultation. Further information in support of the recommendation is currently being gathered.

Elephants: Conservation

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what initiatives the Government (a) funds directly and (b) otherwise supports for the protection and conservation of elephants; and if he will make a statement. [204260]

Joan Ruddock: Elephants are at risk from a number of factors including habitat destruction, poaching for ivory and human-elephant conflict. The UK supports several measures to tackle these threats internationally.

Through its membership of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species (CITES) the UK works to protect endangered species of plants and animals at threat from trade by controlling and monitoring international trade in them. Since 2005 the UK has made payments to support the work of the Monitoring of the Illegal Killing of Elephants (MIKE) and has been funding the Elephant Trade Information System (ETIS) since 2003-04. These programmes will enable the international community to monitor whether the sale of legally stockpiled ivory has an effect on the amount of poaching and illegal global trade. Since 2003-04, the UK has also supported the work of the IUCN African Elephant Specialist Group (AfESG) and in May 2007 allocated £10,000 to support elephant dialogue meetings.

In addition, DEFRA's Darwin Initiative contributes to the conservation and sustainable use of the world's biodiversity. Over the last five years to 2008 funding for the programme has increased from 3 million to 7 million per annum, we will be announcing a new Round soon. To date the Darwin Initiative has funded 464 projects in over 130 countries. A number of these have specifically focused on the protection and conservation of elephants, including building capacities for mitigating human-elephant conflict in Assam and Kenya.

Environment Protection: Canvey Island

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received on the use of land owned by the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds for improvements to the A130 Canvey Way. [204596]

Joan Ruddock: My Department has received no such representations.

Fisheries: Environment Protection

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what capacity his Department has to assess what fishing takes place in the proposed offshore special areas of conservation sites at (a) Braemar Pockmarks, (b) Scanner Pockmark, (c) North Norfolk Sandbanks and Saturn Reef, (d) Haig Frais, (e) Stanton Banks, (f) Darwin Mounds and (g) Wyville Thomson Ridge. [203965]

Jonathan Shaw: The Marine Fisheries Agency (MFA) assesses fishing that takes place in the proposed offshore special areas of conservation and has access to sightings data collected from both aerial and surface surveillance units (namely fishery protection aircraft and the Royal Navy vessels within the Fishery Protection Squadron). The MFA also has access to satellite monitoring data but this is only in relation to vessels over 15 m in length, transmitting their positions every two hours.

The MFA can also access fisheries statistics in relation to species caught and landed from a particular area via the Fisheries Statistical Unit to the level of the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (ICES) statistical rectangles.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the (a) actual and (b) potential environmental damage or risk of environmental damage from fishing and related activities within the proposed offshore special areas of conservation sites at (i) Braemar Pockmarks, (ii) Scanner Pockmark, (iii) North Norfolk Sandbanks and Saturn Reef, (iv) Haig Frais, (v) Stanton Banks, (vi) Darwin Mounds and (vii) Wyville Thomson Ridge. [203966]

Jonathan Shaw: The Joint Nature Conservation Council made the following assessments of the impacts of fishing on the condition of the proposed offshore special areas of conservation (SAC) sites as part of the Offshore Marine Natura consultation process, which took place in 2007.

Braemar Pockmarks

The biological and physical structure of the interest feature at the Braemar pockmarks site are known to have been partially impacted by bottom trawling. This has dispersed, fragmented and possibly buried some of the carbonate formations, and may also have modified the structure of the encircling pockmarks (John Hartley, pers. comm., 2005). However, much of the interest feature is still intact.

The prospects of this feature in terms of maintaining its structure in the future (taking into account unfavourable influences and reasonable conservation effort) are good. A mechanism is available through the European Commission's common fisheries policy regulations to modify fishing activity in the area if this is deemed to be necessary.

Scanner Pockmark

The biological and physical structure of the habitat at the Scanner pockmark site is intact on the available evidence but may have been impacted by bottom trawling for Norway lobster (Nephrops norvegicus) (the main commercial demersal stock in the Witch Ground). Bottom trawling could have modified the structure of the pockmark, causing burial of some of the submarine structures, as well as breaking and displacement of carbonate pieces. Some fishing nets were observed caught on the structures. However, the feature appears to be largely undamaged.

The prospects of this feature to maintain its structure in the future, taking into account unfavourable influences and reasonable conservation effort, are good. A mechanism is available through the European Commission's common fisheries policy regulations to modify fishing activity in the area if this is deemed to be necessary.

North Norfolk Sandbanks and Saturn Reef

The biological and physical structure of the North Norfolk Sandbanks have been impacted locally by some gas extraction infrastructure and aggregate extraction. It is also possible that the fauna of the banks have been impacted by bottom trawling, which may have reduced the number of long-lived or fragile organisms associated with the interest feature. The physical structure of the banks is intact, if not pristine, and the biology is representative of the habitat.

The prospects of this feature to maintain its structure in the future, taking into account unfavourable influences and reasonable conservation effort, are good. Regulations are in place to control oil and gas activity in and around SACs in the UK continental shelf designated area and developments are subject to appropriate assessment if they are likely to affect the features of a SAC. A mechanism is available through the European Commission's common fisheries policy regulations to modify fishing activity in the area if this is deemed to be necessary. The aggregates industries' operations are currently subject to environmental assessment, and would be subject to appropriate assessment if likely to affect SAC interest features.

Haig Fras

Available evidence indicates that the biological and physical structure of the reef interest feature at Haig Fras are intact (Rees, 2000).

The prospects of this feature to maintain its structure in the future (taking into account unfavourable influences and reasonable conservation effort) are good, since the basic physical structure is resilient to mechanical impacts and the reef is isolated from terrestrial sources of pollution. Due to the shape of the feature, it is likely to be avoided by bottom trawlers which could damage the reef fauna. However, a mechanism is available through the European Commission's common fisheries policy regulations to modify fishing activity in the area if this is deemed to be necessary.

Stanton Banks

The biological and physical structure of the reef habitat at Stanton Banks is intact to the best of our knowledge.

The prospects of this feature in terms of maintaining its structure in the future (taking into account unfavourable influences and reasonable conservation effort) are excellent. A mechanism is available through the European Commission's common fisheries policy regulations to modify fishing activity in the area if this is deemed to be necessary.

Darwin Mounds

The biological and physical structure of the biogenic reef in this area is mainly intact although some areas have been damaged by bottom trawling. Evidence of damage was provided from sidescan sonar images in 1999 (Bett, 1999). New damage (smashed coral strewn on the sea bed) was also visible over about a half of the Darwin Mounds East during summer 2000 (Bett, 2001). A trawler was operating nearby during the surveys. Reef damage means a loss of not only the habitat itself, but the species assemblages it supports.

The prospects of this feature to maintain its structure in the future, taking into account unfavourable influences and reasonable conservation effort, are moderate. The European Commission, at the request of the UK, has adopted common fisheries policy measures which prohibit the use of bottom trawling gear within the SAC boundary. However, it is possible that some further bottom trawling may have occurred in the months before these common fisheries policy measures were in place. Equally, it is possible that illegal fishing activities take place on this site. Therefore, this feature could be degraded by fisheries in spite of reasonable conservation effort.

Wyville Thomson Ridge

The biological and physical structure of habitats on Wyville Thomson Ridge is intact on the basis of available evidence, although some scarring from bottom trawling has been observed.

The prospects of this feature to maintain its structure in the future, taking into account unfavourable influences and reasonable conservation effort, are good. A mechanism is available through the European Commission's common fisheries policy regulations to modify fishing activity in the area, if this is deemed to be necessary.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what ongoing monitoring of potential damage from fishing and related activities he plans to undertake in the proposed offshore special areas of conservation sites at (a) Braemar Pockmarks, (b) Scanner Pockmark, (c) North Norfolk Sandbanks and Saturn Reef, (d) Haig Frais, (e) Stanton Banks, (f) Darwin Mounds and (g) Wyville Thomson Ridge. [203968]

Jonathan Shaw: Monitoring of fishing activities in the proposed Special Areas of Conservation (pSACs) sites is undertaken on the basis of a risk-based programme of monitoring and enforcement, including the use of inspections on land and at sea. This will often be in conjunction with enforcement in respect of fishing activity, though not exclusively, because other marine activities are also required to comply with the Offshore Marine Conservation Regulations 2007.

The enforcement programme will seek to identify those areas where there is the highest probability of offences occurring and to prioritise resources to those areas to ensure compliance. Intelligence information will also be used when it becomes available from any reliable source.

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he plans to take to prevent fishing activity if the Joint Nature Conservation Committee advises that fishing damages or has the potential to damage the proposed offshore special areas of conservation sites at (a) Braemar Pockmarks, (b) Scanner Pockmark, (c) North Norfolk Sandbanks and Saturn Reef, (d) Haig Frais, (e) Stanton Banks, (f) Darwin Mounds and (g) Wyville Thomson Ridge; and how he plans to prevent environmental damage from fishing and related activities at each site. [203969]

Jonathan Shaw: The Offshore Marine Conservation (Natural Habitats, &c.) Regulations 2007 ensure that certain activities that have an effect on important species and habitats in the offshore marine environment can be controlled. The regulations apply in the "offshore area" beyond 12 nautical miles from the UK coast. They protect marine habitats, species and wild birds, through a number of offences.

The regulations take account of the fact that the regulation of commercial fishing activities is conducted in the framework of the Common Fisheries Policy (CFP) (as the European Community has exclusive competence). Where measures are necessary to control commercial fishing activities to meet the conservation objectives of an offshore Special Areas of Conservation (SAC) the UK will work with the European Commission to deliver proportionate and effective measures through CFP regulation.

Fisheries: Fuels

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will meet representatives of the fishing industry to discuss the effects of fuel prices on competitiveness in the industry. [204626]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 9 May 2008]: I am always pleased to meet representatives of the fishing industry and do so on a regular basis. I have recently agreed to meet with representatives of the National Federation of Fishermen's Organisations to discuss fuel prices.

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will commission research on the effects of fuel prices on competitiveness in the fishing industries. [204627]

Jonathan Shaw: [holding answer 9 May 2008]: The price of fuel is one of the factors taken into account in formulating policy intended to maximise the competitiveness of the UK fishing industry. I have no plans to commission research into the effects of fuel prices in isolation.

Fisheries: Special Areas of Conservation

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what records his Department holds of fishing in marine waters at the proposed offshore special areas of conservation sites at (a) Braemar Pockmarks, (b) Scanner Pockmark, (c) North Norfolk sandbanks and Saturn reef, (d) Haig Frais, (e) Stanton Banks, (f) Darwin Mounds and (g) Wyville Thomson Ridge. [204015]

Jonathan Shaw: The Joint Nature Conservation Council (JNCC) is required to prepare Conservation Objectives and Advice on Operations as after sites are submitted to the European Commission. Subsequently, for each of the offshore Special Areas of Conservation (SAC) subject to consultation in 2007-2008, it has prepared draft documents which include information on the impact of fishing. This information has been compiled making use of existing knowledge and in consultation with various Government Departments and agencies who hold such information, including the Marine Fisheries Agency and the Scottish Fisheries Protection Agency.

Fisheries: Subsidies

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will make it his policy to subsidise fuel for British fishing fleets; and if he will make a statement. [204093]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 8 May 2008]: It is not Government policy to subsidise fuel costs, including for commercial fishing vessels. Such subsidies can lead to over capacity, distort business decisions, act against the long term interests of the industry, can be discriminatory, and are not sustainable.

The emphasis of any aid to the fishing industry should be on building a sustainable future and that is where we are directing our efforts.

Floods: Compensation

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether (a) homeowners, (b) tenants, (c) businesses and (d) farmers are eligible to apply for compensation for flood damage in Selsey. [204979]

Mr. Woolas: There is no general compensation scheme for those who are uninsured, not least because it would be unfair to those who paid for cover. Also, flood defences are provided under permissive powers; there is no legal obligation on the Government to protect property to any given standard, or at all. This has been the policy of successive Governments.

While compensation is not payable for those affected by flooding, grants and loans are available from the Department for Work and Pensions to help those in most need following flooding.

Floods: Research

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many (a) research studies and (b) reviews have been commissioned by his Department into the flooding in summer 2007; who commissioned them; who is carrying them out; and how much they will cost. [204207]

Mr. Woolas: A review of the flooding, its causes and subsequent management including recovery issues, was commissioned by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, the Minister for the Cabinet Office, and the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government. This is being led by the independent Chair Sir Michael Pitt, and being carried out by the Cabinet Office with support from DEFRA and CLG. Until the Review has been concluded, we will not have final costings.

Floods: Thames Gateway

Dr. Stoate: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to promote the development of an integrated approach by local authorities, developers, highways authorities and water companies to the management of storm water within the Thames Gateway growth area; and if he will make a statement. [198990]

Mr. Woolas: Planning Policy Statement 25 on Development and Flood Risk promotes the strategic consideration of flood risk at all levels of the planning process. This is done through a constructive partnership approach between local planning authorities, the Environment Agency and other stakeholders, in the early consideration of, and planning for, new development in flood risk areas.

In the Thames Gateway, strategic flood risk assessments, which are co-ordinated by the Environment Agency, are providing all stakeholders with a common understanding of risk from all forms of flooding.

Genetically Modified Organisms: Crops

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent representations he has received on genetically modified crops; and what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for International Development on genetically modified crops and developing countries. [204302]

Mr. Woolas: Defra has received a range of representations on GM crops, and we keep in close touch with the Department for International Development on any cross-cutting issues to do with the use of GM crops in developing countries.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Energy Saving Trust on the launch of the Green Homes Service. [204297]

Mr. Woolas: We have had a variety of discussions with the Energy Saving Trust on the issue of the Green Homes Service, at both ministerial and official level.

Landfill Tax: Fly-tipping

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect on fly-tipping of the landfill tax escalator. [204486]

Joan Ruddock: No formal assessment has been made.

However, the Government are monitoring levels of fly-tipping and ways in which the effects can be mitigated. In April 2004, the Flycapture database was set up to help local authorities and the Environment Agency improve information on the scale of fly-tipping and to help focus resources and identify trends in this growing environmental crime. Flycapture is enabling central and local government to demonstrate the true nature, extent and scale of fly-tipping, both nationally and locally. The data are being used to develop more effective, evidence-based policies and strategies.

DEFRA also funded a research report by the Jill Dando Institute of Crime Science into the causes and incentives of fly-tipping. The report concludes that there is not one cause of fly-tipping but a number of separate ones.

Assessing the specific effect of the landfill tax on fly-tipping would be extremely difficult, not least because there are a number of different causes of fly-tipping, some of which may need to coincide before a person decides to act illegally. Fly-tipping levels also reflect the level of enforcement and other prevention activity undertaken by the Environment Agency and local authorities, which can offset any increase in illegal activity.

Although the research recognises that one of these causes may be the cost of legitimate waste disposal, the landfill tax is an important instrument in reducing our reliance on landfill and moving to more sustainable waste management options. The actual increases, together with the knowledge of the future rate of tax, is sending a strong signal. This will change behaviour, while allowing business time to adjust and make the necessary investment in alternative waste treatment routes.

Leisure: Staffordshire

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the levels of amenity available to the residents of the parishes of Lapley, Stretton and Wheaton Aston in Staffordshire. [203694]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA has no responsibility for the provision of local amenities and therefore has made no such assessment.

Nature Reserves: West Sussex

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the plans of Natural England and the Environment Agency to flood areas of Medmerry; and if he will make a statement. [204980]

Mr. Woolas: Natural England has no powers to decide flood defence policy. The Environment Agency has not published any plans to flood areas of land behind the Medmerry coastline. The draft Pagham to East Head Coastal Defence Strategy will make an assessment of the impacts of all options in accordance with DEFRA guidance. The options will include changes to land use as a result of managed realignment of the coastline. The draft strategy is due to be issued for public consultation at the end of May.

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the financial value of the palaeontological remains in the on-shore cliffs at the Medmerry frontage. [204981]

Joan Ruddock: There have been a number of attempts to put a financial value on wildlife assets, all of which have encountered problems. To date, as far as we are aware, no one has attempted to do this for palaeontological assets generally, let alone for those present at the Medmerry frontage.

Nitrate Vulnerable Zones

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to publish a response to the consultation on nitrate vulnerable zones; what the next steps will be; and when he expects to announce the Government's policy. [204213]

Mr. Woolas: We intend to announce and publish our response to the nitrate vulnerable zones consultation before Parliament breaks for summer recess. This will include a summary of what the Department plans to do as a result of the consultation responses.

Nitrogen Oxides

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps his Department is taking to ensure that the UK meets its targets for the reduction of nitrogen oxides by 2010 under the EU national emissions ceiling directive and the UN Gothenburg protocol. [208915]

Jonathan Shaw: The UK reported in December 2007 for the first time that the 2010 national emission ceiling for nitrogen oxides (NOx) was likely to be exceeded by some 10 per cent. Though there remain considerable uncertainties with the projections, the increase is a consequence of changes in projections of emissions from energy production, and an improved methodology for predicting emissions from non-road transport mobile sources and machinery. We have commissioned a study to examine options for improving the prospects of achieving compliance, which will be finalised early in May 2008.

Pollution Control

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what factors were taken into account in setting the fee levels for pollution prevention and control permits; what the cost of administering the permit scheme is; and if he will make a statement; [204214]

(2) what estimate he has made of the cost of a Pollution Prevention and Control permit in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [204227]

Joan Ruddock: There are three categories of pollution prevention and control permits: IPPC permits issued by the Environment Agency, IPPC permits issued by local authorities, and air pollution control permits issued by local authorities.

DEFRA (for the latter two categories) and the Environment Agency consult annually on the level of fees and charges for the coming financial year. Those consultations cover the factors taken into account and regulatory costs.

Papers for this year's DEFRA consultation, which closed on 4 January, are available on the DEFRA website. The Environment Agency consultation closed on 7 December, and the papers are available on the Environment Agency website.

Regional Development Agencies: Finance

Mr. Pike: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what arrangements he has agreed with regional development agencies and Natural England to account for exchange rate variations. [203931]

Jonathan Shaw: Budgets for Regional Development Agencies and Natural England are set in sterling. Exchange rate variations have no immediate impact on these bodies. However, DEFRA is working closely with the delivery bodies and the paying agency, the Rural Payments Agency, to manage and account for the total resources for the Rural Development for England Programme over the seven-year programming period.

Rural Areas: Finance

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much EU funding was provided for the individual axes of the European Rural Development Programme for England, expressed in euro; what the sterling equivalent was at the time the sum was settled; and what it is at the most recent exchange rate. [203928]

Jonathan Shaw: The European Agricultural Fund for Rural Development (EAFRD) contribution to the Rural Development Programme for England 2007-2013 is set in euros. Details are set out in the financial tables of the programme document, which was approved by the European Commission in December 2007. The sums are:

Total EAFRD	3,217,464,635
of which:
Axis 1	344,877,726
Axis 2	2,441,251,505
Axis 3	269,018,937
Axis 4	160,894,083
Technical assistance	1,422,384

At the time of programme approval, the exchange rate was 0.71475. Sterling equivalents as at December were therefore:

Total EAFRD budget	2,299,682,847
of which:
Axis 1	246,501,355
Axis 2	1,744,884,513
Axis 3	192,281,285
Axis 4	114,999,046
Technical assistance	1,016,649

The current exchange rate is 0.78895, as specified by the European Commission and used to convert EAFRD payments for May 2008.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how often his Department draws down funding for the European Rural Development Programme from the EU; and what exchange rate is used to allocate that funding to the regional development agencies and Natural England. [203929]

Jonathan Shaw: The EU funding is paid in arrears, following receipt of a claim for reimbursement from the Rural Payments Agency. The claim for reimbursement is submitted on a quarterly basis in Euros.

Budgets for the Regional Development Agency and Natural England Rural Development Programme for England are allocated by DEFRA, in sterling. The Regional Development Agencies and Natural England are responsible for committing the expenditure, but payments to beneficiaries and claims for reimbursement from the European Commission are made by the Rural Payments Agency, the Paying Agency for the Programme. Expenditure commitment details are provided by the Regional Development Agencies and Natural England, in Sterling, to the Rural Payments Agency, which makes the payments in sterling. It is the responsibility of the Rural Payments Agency to convert the sterling payments into euro claims for reimbursement from the European Commission. The exchange rate used is set by the European Central Bank rate, on the last but one day in the month before the payments were made.

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding he has allocated to the European Rural Development Programme from UK funds as matched funding; and what effect changes in the euro/sterling exchange rate will have on that sum. [203930]

Jonathan Shaw: The total Exchequer budget (matched funding) for the RDPE 2007-2013 is £1,682 million. Fluctuations in exchange rates will not affect this sum. Under Council Regulation 1698/2005, the Rural Development Regulation, any unspent European funds may be rolled forward by up to two calendar years following the year in which they were originally allocated. The effect of exchange rate fluctuations can therefore be managed over the seven-year programming period as a whole.

Sea Mammal Research Unit

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what role the Sea Mammal Research Unit at St Andrews University plays in UK marine policy. [203998]

Jonathan Shaw: The Sea Mammal Research Unit (SMRU) is an independent research centre, and is used by Defra as a contractor to provide scientific research and monitoring. The unit is currently responsible for monitoring cetacean by-catch under the requirements of the EC Habitats Directive and Council Regulation 812/2004, and for developing mitigation measures to reduce the by-catch of marine mammals.

SMRU is also a member of the Healthy and Biologically Diverse Seas Evidence Group, one of the groups falling under the umbrella of the UK Marine Monitoring and Assessment Strategy. Defra is committed to evidence-based policy development, and therefore scientific evidence and information derived from monitoring initiatives such as this plays an important role.

Sea Mammal Research Unit: Finance

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what funding he provides to the Sea Mammal Research Unit (SMRU) at St. Andrews University; what proportion of the work carried out by the SMRU relates to whaling; and if he will make a statement. [203999]

Jonathan Shaw: Defra has committed £35,555 for the period 2008-09 for the research project entitled "Conservation of whales and the management of whaling". The project is being taken forward by the Sea Mammal Research Unit (SMRU).

This project forms the basis for UK representation on the International Whaling Commission (IWC) Scientific Committee. Its overall aim is to provide independent scientific advice to Defra and the IWC, through its Scientific Committee, on matters related to the conservation of large and small cetacean populations and the management of whaling and other human-induced mortality, thus informing policy. The results are intended for Defra, the IWC and the wider scientific community.

The work which comprises this project will enable the scientific interests of the IWC to be pursued by: assisting the IWC Scientific Committee to provide the best possible advice to the Commission; providing scientific advice to Defra on IWC-related matters; summarising UK cetacean research in the annual National Progress Report to the IWC; and ensuring a high standard of publications in the IWC Journal of Cetacean Research and Management.

Seas and Oceans: Environment Protection

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the percentage of UK waters that would need to be turned into no-take marine reserves to (a) preserve biodiversity within the UK's marine environment and (b) help fish stocks recover from over-fishing. [203993]

Jonathan Shaw: Our objective is to designate an ecologically coherent network of well-managed marine protected areas by 2012. Various figures have been suggested for the proportion of our seas that might need to be protected to achieve that aim. These figures have been based on a range of assumptions and criteria. They have also been produced without the benefit of the detailed work which we have asked the statutory nature conservation agencies to undertake with stakeholders. At this stage, and without the detailed work having been carried out, we think it would be wrong to set a fixed target for the proportion of the sea which needs to be protected in order to achieve our conservation objectives.

Seas and Oceans: EU Law

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how he plans to comply with the UK's mandatory obligations in relation to the marine environment under the EU Habitats Directive. [203967]

Jonathan Shaw: The Conservation (Natural Habitats, &c.) Regulations 1994 ("The Habitats Regulations") transpose council directive 92/43/EEC on the conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora (EC habitats directive) into national law. The Habitats Regulations apply as far as the limit of territorial waters (12 nautical miles from baseline) and allow the UK to meet its mandatory obligations under the habitats directive in this area.

DEFRA introduced the Offshore Marine Conservation (Natural Habitats, &c.) Regulations in 2007 to comply with the UK's mandatory obligations under both the EU habitats and wild birds directives beyond UK territorial waters.

Tobacco: EU Grants and Loans

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was paid in 2007 by the EU to subsidise tobacco production in member states. [203894]

Jonathan Shaw: The EU expenditure for tobacco premiums in 2007 was €335.5 million.

UK Emissions Trading Scheme

Mr. Ingram: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate has been made of the level of funds likely to be generated by the auctioning of allowances under the UK Emissions Trading Scheme in each year from 2008 to 2012; and how the funds will be disbursed. [199307]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The UK is a participant in the EU Emissions Trading Scheme, where it will auction 7 per cent. of its total allowances in Phase II (2008-12), amounting to approximately 85 million allowances. Revenues from auctions will depend on market conditions at the time of auction. The Government do not make price predictions and has not therefore made an estimate of likely auction revenues. Revenues from auctions will go to the Consolidated Fund.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations have been made to his Department on (a) charges for the collection of household waste and (b) regulations regarding powers to fine in relation to household waste offences, by police forces, police authorities or those representing them. [204503]

Joan Ruddock: No such representations have been received.

Waste Management

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what guidance has been issued to waste collection authorities by (a) his Department and (b) the Waste and Resources Action Programme on (a) closed lid and (b) no-side waste collections. [204500]

Joan Ruddock: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 14 January 2008, Official Report, column 869W.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the timetable is for the introduction and commencement of joint waste authorities. [204502]

Joan Ruddock: Powers to create joint waste authorities (JWA) commenced on 27 March 2008 under the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act 2007 (Commencement No. 5 and Transitional, Saving and Transitory Provision) Order 2008 (S.I. No. 2008/917).

Secondary legislation is required to establish the application details for becoming a JWA. This is currently subject to a consultation, available on DEFRA's website, with a closing date of 9 June. After the consultation has been completed, we expect that the regulations will be laid in Parliament and finalised during autumn/winter 2008.

Waste Management: Recycling

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of likely trends in the numbers of waste collection authorities operating commingled collections. [205014]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA has made no assessment of the future use of different recycling collection services. Decisions on local waste collection and recycling services are rightly for individual local authorities to make in close consultation with their residents. Government strongly encourages local authorities to use good practice and to consider the overall carbon impact of their collection services. The Waste and Resources Action Programme provides local authorities with advice on good practice.

Whales: International Cooperation

Tom Brake: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether the Prime Minister discussed possible legal action by Australia against Japan on whaling at his recent meeting with the Australian Prime Minister; and if he will make a statement. [201902]

Jonathan Shaw: Whaling was not discussed at this meeting. However, I recently spoke to the hon. Peter Garrett MP, Australian Minister for the Environment about whether legal action might reasonably be pursued and if so, how. I understand Australia is currently considering what, if any, legal avenues are available to challenge Japan's whaling operations. I assured Mr. Garrett that we would be prepared to examine carefully any suggestions that the Australian government might feel able to make in the light of those considerations.

We also discussed the meeting I held with the Japanese deputy ambassador on 8 January to express the UK's outrage over Japan's 'scientific' whaling activities. I assured Mr. Garrett that I had left Japan in no doubt as to the strength of feeling in the UK on the issue and that the UK government will continue to make our opposition to whaling known to Japan at every appropriate opportunity.

We also discussed the recent seminar on commercial whaling I attended in Copenhagen on 10 March. The event was co-hosted by the British embassy and the Society for the Conservation of Marine Mammals. The aim was to raise awareness among the Danish public of the cruel and unsustainable nature of whaling and to attempt to persuade Denmark to take a more pro-conservationist approach at this year's International Whaling Commission (IWC) meeting.

I confirmed the UK will once again play an important role in the conservation and protection of cetaceans at the next annual meeting of the IWC to be held in Santiago, Chile in June 2008. We agreed our countries would continue to be at the forefront of the fight to ensure that countries seeking to remove protection for cetacean species around the world do not succeed.

White Fish

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many vessels from (a) the UK and (b) other EU countries are involved in the pair trawling fishery for bass in the Western Channel. [203994]

Jonathan Shaw: Current information indicates that there is only one UK bass pair-trawler operating in the Western Channel at present. We do not hold information on pair-trawlers from other member states.

PRIME MINISTER

Abortion

Mr. Amess: To ask the Prime Minister on what occasions (a) he and (b) his special advisers have attended (i) conferences and (ii) meetings where (A) abortion and (B) euthanasia were discussed in each of the last six months; on what dates such conferences and meetings took place; where each took place; and if he will make a statement. [205011]

The Prime Minister: My officials and I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others on a wide range of subjects.

Constitutions

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Prime Minister what recent discussions he has had with ministerial colleagues on referendums on the future of the constitution of the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [205193]

The Prime Minister: I have regular meetings and discussions with ministerial colleagues and others on a wide range of subjects.

WOMEN AND EQUALITY

Departmental Sustainable Development

Norman Baker: To ask the Minister for Women and Equality when the Government Equalities Office plans to publish its sustainable operations policy statement. [195945]

Barbara Follett: The Government Equalities Office is a small department based in Eland House in London, the Communities and Local Government headquarters building. Sustainable operations policy relates mainly to, assessing, reporting and improving performance in managing land and buildings sustainably, and GEO, as a tenant of CLG, is party to CLG's sustainable operations policy and practices and has no plans to develop its own policy.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Higher Education: Kettering

Mr. Hollobone: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will meet the hon. Member for Kettering and local authority representatives to discuss the provision of a university in Kettering. [197390]

Bill Rammell [holding answer 31 March 2008]: I am delighted by the interest that our new university challenge has generated. This policy offers towns and cities the opportunity to unlock the potential in their area by working with those involved in regeneration and economic planning to provide locally-based HE provision. The Secretary of State has agreed to meet a delegation from Kettering to discuss these issues.

Teachers: Training

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many and what proportion of those universities which offer a degree in teaching provide special educational needs teacher training at (a) undergraduate and (b) postgraduate level. [205032]

Bill Rammell: All universities which offer initial teacher training courses provide special educational needs teacher training at both undergraduate and postgraduate level.

OLYMPICS

Apprentices: Olympic Games Sites

6. John Robertson: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what additional training opportunities for apprentices will be available on London Olympic Games sites during the construction phase. [204435]

Tessa Jowell: The Games give us a tremendous opportunity to create a lasting skills legacy. The Olympic Delivery Authority, together with its partners, aim to get at least 2,000 people (approximately 4 per cent. of the workforce) into trainee apprenticeships and work placements up to 2012 on the Olympic Park and other venues. This will benefit local people, including previously workless people.

Contracts: Companies Outside London

7. Ms Keeble: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what percentage of contracts for the 2012 London Olympic Games have been awarded to companies based outside London. [204436]

Tessa Jowell: 46 per cent. of the Olympic Delivery Authority's contracts to date have been awarded to businesses based outside of London. This includes 2 per cent. of the total which was awarded to overseas businesses.

Nottingham

8. Mr. Allen: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what assessment she has made of the effects of the 2012 London Olympic Games on Nottingham. [204437]

Tessa Jowell: Nottingham stands to gain from the wide range of opportunities created by the 2012 Games, in the same way as other towns, cities and regions across the UK. Over the next four years I want to see all parts of the UK taking advantage of the sporting, cultural, economic and other opportunities that will be available.

I understand that the ODA has already awarded 27 contracts to companies registered in the East Midlands and 26 facilities from the region are included in the official pre-Games Training Camp Guide.

2012 Olympic Games: Housing

Lyn Brown: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what steps are being taken to ensure the housing built for the 2012 Olympic Games will be made available to local people for affordable rent or purchase after the Games have taken place. [204434]

Tessa Jowell: At least 30 per cent. of the homes created from construction of the Olympic Village will be affordable. We want the legacy housing to be mixed tenure, available to a wide range of people, including those from existing local communities, to create new, diverse, sustainable neighbourhoods. The allocation of affordable homes after the Games will be agreed between the relevant London boroughs and the Housing Corporation.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Arrests

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people were (a) arrested for, (b) proceeded against for and (c) convicted of the offence of being drunk and disorderly in 2006. [193586]

Jacqui Smith: The Court Proceedings Database held by the Office for Criminal Justice Reform—within the Ministry of Justice, shows that the number of people proceeded against at magistrates courts for the offence of drunk and disorderly under the Criminal Justice Act 1967 S.91(1) in England and Wales for the year 2006 is 16,143. The number of people found guilty at all courts for the same offence is 13,939.

In addition, under the penalty notice for disorder (PND) scheme, fixed penalty notices of £80 may be issued by the police for the offence of 'drunk and disorderly'. The number of PNDs issued for the offence in England and Wales was 43,556 in 2006.

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have received (a) a fine, (b) an antisocial behaviour order, (c) a community sentence and (d) another penalty after being convicted for purchasing alcohol on behalf of a person aged under 18 years in each year since 1997. [198230]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 1 April 2008]: The number of persons fined, issued with a community sentence and given another penalty after being convicted of purchasing alcohol on behalf of a person aged under 18 years in each year since 1997 can be viewed in the following table.

The Antisocial Behaviour Order (ASBO) collection held by my Department does not contain information on offences committed which resulted in an ASBO being issued. It is therefore not possible from this collection to provide information on the number of persons issued with an ASBO as a result of purchasing alcohol on behalf of a person aged under 18 years.

Number of persons fined, issued with a community sentence and given another penalty after conviction at all courts for certain alcohol related offences[1], England and Wales for the years 1997 to 2006[2, 3]

Purchasing intoxicating liquor for consumption by person under 18 in bar. Licensing (Occasional Permissions) Act 1983 Schedule (Sec 3) para 4(3). Licensing Act 1964 Sec 169(3). Person who buys or attempts to buy alcohol on behalf of an individual under 18. Licensing Act 2003 S149(3,4,7b).

[2] These data are on the principal offence basis.

[3] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, other agencies, and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

[4] Otherwise dealt with includes Sentences of Compensation, Hospital or Guardianship Orders under the Mental Health Act 1983, police cells, recognizance and other disposals not separately shown elsewhere. Also includes sentences passed in pilot studies (except for intermittent custody) and cases where the result of the court proceeding was incorrectly recorded.

[5] Staffordshire police force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates' courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.

Foreign Workers

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate she has made of the number of A8 migrants registered on the Worker Registration Scheme who have returned to their home country. [202899]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The purpose of the Worker Registration Scheme is to measure the number of A8 migrants entering the UK labour market and as such A8 migrants are not required to notify the Scheme when they return to their home countries.

However, estimates of net migration by A8 migrants are produced and published by the Office for National Statistics on their website.

Immigration

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many members of staff in her Department work on assessing the effects of migration on public services. [202870]

Jacqui Smith: Home Office and UK Border Agency officials across various teams spend part of their time working on the impacts of migration, including on public services. UKBA policies look to balance economic need with the impacts of migration on communities, and public services in particular. We have established the Migration Advisory Committee to look at the economic aspects, and the Migration Impacts Forum to look at the social aspects of this. Communities and Local Government lead on the impacts of migration across Government.

Offensive Weapons: Crime Prevention

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many members of staff in her Department work on the formulation of policies to tackle (a) knife and (b) gun crime. [202869]

Jacqui Smith: The work on policy development on gun and knife crime is interconnected and it is not possible easily to disaggregate these functions. The Public Space Violence Team in the Violent Crime Unit develops policy on gun and knife crime and totals 11 members of staff. In addition, the Children and Young People Team has the remit for cross-cutting policy development relating to young people.

Home Office staff in Government Offices for the Regions also work on local policies relating to gun and knife crime in their local areas.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Hospitals: Waiting Lists

Peter Bottomley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster when the National Statistician and the Statistics Authority will next review the NHS quarterly waiting time statistics. [202769]

Phil Hope: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Michael Scholar, dated 9 May 2008:

As chair of the UK Statistics Authority, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking when the National Statistician and the Statistics Authority will next review the NHS quarterly waiting time statistics. (202769)

The UK Statistics Authority took responsibility for oversight of the UK official statistics system on 1st April 2008. The Authority has just appointed a Head of Assessment, a statutory post, whose holder will be responsible for the assessment and designation of all National Statistics against a Code of Practice for Statistics. The UK Statistics Authority will consider when and how these statistics should be assessed on the advice of the Head of Assessment, once that advice is available.

Non-Domestic Rates

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the Answer of 18 March 2008, Official Report, column 1061W, on non-domestic rates, if he will provide the information broken down by turnover band of (a) less than £50,000, (b) £50,000 to £99,999, (c) £100,000 to £499,999, (d) £500,000 to £1,999,999, (e) £2,000,000 to £9,999,999, (f) £10,000,000 to £49,999,999, (g) £50,000,000 to £999,999,999 and (h) £1,000,000,000 or more. [203914]

Phil Hope: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 12 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking for expenditure on national non-domestic rates by businesses in England, by turnover band, as percentages of turnover, purchases and gross value added (GVA). (203914)

Our Annual Business Inquiry (ABI), which covers most of the economy but excludes some sectors, such as agriculture, finance, local and central government, collects data on national non-domestic rates. The latest figures published for England alone relate to 2005. 2006 estimates will be available in June 2008.

The ABI is normally stratified using employment sizebands but the turnover sizebands used in the analysis are as requested.

The table below shows the data as per your request:

National non-domestic business rates in England as a percentage of:

	Total turnover			Total purchases of goods and services			Gross value added (GVA)

Further details of the coverage of the annual business inquiry are given at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/abi

The annual business inquiry is a sample survey so the figures are subject to sampling error. This is likely to be greater for the figures relating to small businesses than for businesses in the larger turnover bands.

Non-Profit Making Associations: Finance

Margaret Moran: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how much social enterprise funding is being provided to voluntary sector bodies in 2008-09. [203688]

Phil Hope: Government social enterprise policy is set out in the social enterprise action plan, which was launched in November 2006. Social enterprises come from a variety of backgrounds and a proportion of them will start as voluntary sector organisation looking to become more enterprising and diversify their income stream.

A number of funds focus specifically on supporting social enterprise and enterprising third sector organisations. The Cabinet Office has two such programmes:

Futurebuilders offers support and investment to third sector organisations to deliver public services. Cabinet Office committed a further £65 million to this fund over the 2008-11 CSR period, brining the total fund up to £215 million.

A Risk Capital Fund which will, over the life of the fund, provide up to £10 million government money for co-investment in social enterprise, matched by up to £10 million from the private sector.

In addition the Department of Health is investing £100 million over the next four years to create and support a vibrant social enterprise sector in health and social care.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Music: Internet

Martin Linton: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps the Government is taking to protect the music industry from illegal downloading. [204464]

Malcolm Wicks: The Government take the illicit use of peer-to-peer technology to download music and other copyright material very seriously. We accept it is difficult for the music industry to develop exciting and viable new business models in the face of such unlawful activity. That is why we are actively encouraging rights holders and internet service providers to agree a way forward—it is in both their longer term interests, and a voluntary arrangement that was effective and fair would be the best solution. However, the Government have also made it clear that in the absence of such an industry solution we will consult on regulatory options with a view to introducing legislation.

Working Hours: Tribunals

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many claims about (a) working hours and (b) flexible working by employees in the (i) public sector and (ii) private sector were accepted for hearings by employment tribunals in each year since 1997; and in how many such cases the tribunals found in favour of the claimant. [201908]

Mr. Wills: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested is in the following tables:

Table 1: Working hours and flexible working hours data

A claim may be bought under more than one jurisdiction or subsequently amended or clarified in the course of proceedings. Table 1 does not include claims brought under Flexible Working Hours (these are detailed in Table 2).
[2] This includes cases where there was an ACAS conciliated settlement, withdrawn cases, default judgments and cases disposed of otherwise.
[3] The disposal figures for 1999-2000 include cases where working time directive was the main jurisdiction cited.

[2] In the annual report Flexible Working cases are reported on in the 'Other' category and cannot be separated out, therefore only the receipts can be provided, the receipt figures come from the management board statistics produced for ETS and a breakdown of jurisdictional receipts incl. flexible working hours cases were only reported on from September 2004. In the annual reports flexible working hours cases would be included in the 'Others' description so a breakdown cannot be provided from the published statistics.

HEALTH

Alzheimer's Disease

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he discussed policy to tackle Alzheimer's disease and the French Plan on Alzheimer at his recent meeting with the French Minister of Health; and if he will make a statement. [204862]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State had discussions with the French Minister of Health on 14 April 2008 on a range of issues, including on measures to tackle dementia, including Alzheimer's disease.

Dementia is now a priority for the Government, and in August 2007 we announced the development of a new National Dementia Strategy and Implementation Plan. The strategy will focus on three key themes: improving awareness; early diagnosis and intervention; and improving the quality of care. Work on the strategy is already under way and draft recommendations are due to go out for public consultation in June 2008.

Care Homes: Fees and Charges

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average residential care home fee in each local authority area for (a) local authority-funded residents and (b) privately-funded residents was in each year since 1996. [204613]

Mr. Ivan Lewis [holding answer 9 May 2008]: The information requested is not held centrally.

Care Homes: Standards

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to ensure that older people in care homes receive a minimum standard of care; and if he will make a statement. [204592]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Government established the Commission for Social Care Inspection (CSCI) under the Health and Social Care (Community Health and Standards) Act 2003 as a single inspectorate to bring together all strands of inspection, monitoring and the regulation of social care services, including care and nursing homes for older people.

We introduced national minimum standards (NMS) for care homes, domiciliary care and adult placements. The NMS are intended to ensure vulnerable and older people can live in a safe environment, where their rights and dignity are respected and staff are properly trained. All care homes in England are regulated—registered and inspected—by CSCI in accordance with statutory regulations and the NMS. CSCI has a wide range of enforcement powers and will take action to protect the welfare of residents, with the aim of raising the quality of care and level of protection for vulnerable people and ensuring that service users and their families can be confident that their welfare and interests are safeguarded.

We introduced the Protection of Vulnerable Adults Scheme in July 2004. This scheme, which operates as a work force ban, prevents dangerous or unscrupulous people from gaining access to older and vulnerable people in care homes or being cared for in their own homes.

On the recommendation of the Bichard inquiry, we are introducing a new centralised vetting and barring scheme for people working with children and vulnerable people. This scheme, as set out in the Safeguarding Vulnerable Groups Act 2006, will extend the coverage of the existing barring scheme and draw on wider sources of information to provide a more comprehensive and consistent measure of protection for vulnerable groups across a wide range of settings, including the whole of social care and the national health service. The new scheme will make it far more difficult for abusers to gain access to some of the most vulnerable groups in society.

In November 2006, the Department launched the first ever national Dignity In Care campaign. Our intention is to create a care system where there is zero tolerance of abuse and disrespect of older people and a situation where people are as outraged by the abuse of parents and grandparents as they are at the abuse of children.

Subject to the passage of the Health and Social Care Bill, all health and adult social care providers that come within the scope of registration will be required to register with the new regulator of health and social care services, the Care Quality Commission (CQC). We expect CQC to begin its work in April 2009, when it will take over the duties of CSCI, the Healthcare Commission and the Mental Health Act Commission.

CQC will provide assurance of essential levels of safety and quality of care to people using health and adult social care services in England. Our aim is to ensure that the registration system will apply equally to all health and adult social care providers, whether from the NHS, local authority or independent sectors. For the first time, there will be a single coherent, enforceable set of requirements for all providers of these services. In order to be granted registration, care providers will need to demonstrate that they can meet, or are already meeting the registration requirements. To maintain registration, they will be required to demonstrate an ongoing ability to meet those requirements.

Continuing Care

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which local authorities were providing long-term care services to people with (a) low needs, (b) moderate needs, (c) substantial needs and (d) critical needs in each year since the Fair Access to Care Services criteria were introduced. [205089]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The data are not held centrally.

Home Care Services

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people received local authority-funded, long-term care services in their own homes in each local authority area in each year since the Fair Access to Care Services criteria were introduced. [205088]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: A table showing the estimated number of clients receiving home care funded fully or partially by the local authority during the period 1 April to 31 March for each year since 2003-04, has been placed in the Library.

Some of the services may not necessarily be for long-term home care and there are no data held centrally to show the length of time the service has been in place.

Learning Disability: Day Centres

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many day centres serving people with learning disabilities and their families have closed since March 2001; and what alternative services were provided in each case. [204610]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: This information is not held centrally.

It is for local authorities to decide on the closure of a day centre and to determine what services they provide to best meet the needs of their local populations. This includes services for people with learning disabilities.

In our consultation on "Valuing People Now", we said that we recognise that, for many families, day centres have provided essential respite from the day to day demands of caring. The services that replace them must result in improvements for both users and their families. Copies of the consultation document are available in the Library.

The consultation to "Valuing People Now" has now closed and we will be responding with our full strategy in the early autumn.

Learning Disability: Health Services

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what consideration his Department has given to increasing the number of (a) health facilitators and (b) learning disability liaison nurses in the NHS; and if he will make a statement; [204675]

(2) which NHS trusts have a disability equality scheme in place; and how many such schemes include provision to meet the needs of patients with learning disabilities; [204682]

(3) how many people with a learning disability had a health action plan in place at the latest date for which figures are available; [204683]

(4) how many (a) learning disability liaison nurses and (b) health facilitators there are in the national health service; and how many of each are on (i) permanent and (ii) fixed-term contracts; [204689]

(5) what plans he has to reduce the health inequalities experienced by people with a learning disability; and if he will make a statement. [204690]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: We will be looking at these and other roles on primary care and specialist services as part of our consideration of the consultation responses to "Valuing People Now". The deadline for responses to this consultation was 28 March 2008 and the responses are currently being analysed. We will publish a revised strategy which takes account of the consultation responses in the early autumn.

The Department's good practice guidance on "Commissioning specialist adult learning disability services", published in October 2007, highlights the importance of the health facilitation role working with primary care teams, community health professionals and staff involved in delivering secondary health care.

The information requested on how many learning disability liaison nurses and health facilitators there are in the national health service, and how many of each are on permanent and fixed-term contracts is not held centrally. We do notcollect data on national health service staff contracts.

Information on the numbers of learning disability liaison nurses and hea'th facilitators: neither group is separately identified in the NHS workforce census. However, the number of specialist learning disability nurses is collected in the census and this information is shown in the following table.

The information on how many NHS trusts have a disability equality scheme is not collected centrally. All NHS trusts are required under the terms of the Disability Discrimination Act to publish disability equality schemes that set out, among other things, how they intend to meet their duties towards disability equality. To assist them in this the Department published best practice guidance—"Creating a disability equality scheme a practical guide for the NHS"—in October 2006. Further guidance, specific to learning disabilities, is to be published shortly.

The information requested on how many people with a learning disability had a health action plan in place is not held centrally.

The Department recognises that more needs to be done to improve access to NHS services for people with learning disabilities. That is why health care is one of the key priorities within the "Valuing People Now" consultation document.

The Department has committed to a wide-ranging programme of action, set out in the document "Promoting Equality" that was published in March 2007 (and copies of which are available in the Library) to respond to recommendations made by the Disability Rights Commission. This action includes:

a programme of work to support wider implementation of annual health checks for people with learning disabilities;

supporting primary care trusts (PCTs) (as commissioners of health services) in understanding and acting on the needs of people with learning disabilities and involving them in commissioning and reviewing services, in particular through sponsoring PCT commissioning 'exemplar sites'; overseeing work with professional, regulatory and educational bodies to address understanding of learning disability in education and training for general practitioners, nurses and other health staff;

improving the way that the Department of Health and the NHS evaluate key health initiatives for their impact on people with learning disabilities; and improving collection and management of information about health needs, services and health outcomes for people with learning disabilities and developing a more coordinated approach to performance monitoring.

The Department published commissioning guidance for specialist learning disability health services—"Commissioning specialist adult learning disability health services—Good practice guidance 31 October 2007—and will shortly publish further guidance on meeting the disability equality duty in relation to people with learning disabilities. The Department is also taking forward a Human Rights in Health Care Programme, helping the NHS to recognise and respect the fundamental human rights of all patients.

NHS: PFI

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the effects will be on his Department's (a) resource and (b) capital budget for (i) 2009-10 and (ii) 2010-11 of bringing NHS private finance initiative projects on balance sheet. [203442]

Mr. Bradshaw: My right hon. Friend the Chancellor announced in the March 2008 budget that the accounts of central Government Departments would be produced under International Financial Reporting Standards from financial year 2009-10. The Department is now undertaking a full assessment of moving to the new standards which includes examining the accounting and resource (capital and revenue) implications for the national health service's private finance initiative and other public private partnership schemes.

Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many men were diagnosed with prostate cancer in the Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Trust area in each year since 2001; and if he will make a statement. [203470]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated May 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent Parliamentary Question asking how many men were diagnosed with prostate cancer in the Peterborough and Stamford Hospitals NHS Trust area in each year since 2001. [203470]

The latest available figures of newly diagnosed cases of prostate cancer are for the year 2005. Registrations of newly diagnosed cases of cancer are collected by the eight regional cancer registries in England and collated by Office for National Statistics (ONS). The cancer registration data held by ONS does not include NHS Trust.

Information on newly diagnosed cases of cancer by NHS Trust is held by the regional cancers registries in England. Details of the regional cancer registries in England can be found in Chapter 6 of Cancer statistics: Registrations, Series MB1, available from the National Statistics website at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/StatBase/Product.asp?vlnk=8843&Pos=&ColRank=1&Rank=272

The number of newly diagnosed cases of prostate cancer by primary care trust was given in reply to a question asked by Christopher Fraser MP on 22 April 2008, reference 201666, but not yet published in the Official Report.

St. Luke's Hospital Market Harborough

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will investigate the rate of progress of the redevelopment of St Luke's Hospital in Market Harborough; and if he will make a statement. [204854]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: East Midlands Strategic Health Authority (SHA) reports that the public consultation on the future of community health services in Leicestershire and Rutland, including St. Luke's hospital and other community hospitals, is now planned to commence later in the year, following a change to the national and regional NHS Next Stage Review: "Our NHS, Our Future" timetable.

The review by Leicestershire county and Rutland primary care trust (PCT) of community health services is part of a broader national review being carried out across the national health service in England, which is now almost complete. The national review is the culmination of nearly a year of engagement with NHS staff, patients and stakeholders which will influence the shape, style and delivery of health care for the next 10 years. In turn, Leicester, Leicestershire and Rutland NHS trusts have been reviewing how they can work together to deliver the best health care services for the communities they serve.

The national and regional timetable has been revised to take into account further detail at national and regional level, and this means that Leicestershire county and Rutland PCT will need to wait to ensure that its proposals are consistent with the wider picture.

The East Midlands SHA further reports that it is planned that the PCT's Board will approve the public consultation document at its meeting on 5 June 2008, and the public consultation will follow this.

Following the public consultation, the PCT will prioritise developments to its community hospitals according to a number of criteria, including local needs, minimising service disruption, and availability of capital finance.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Dance

6. Chris Mole: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to assist the development of dance. [204453]

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what support his Department provides to dance as a cultural activity. [204466]

Margaret Hodge: DCMS sponsors Arts Council England to promote and invest in the development of the arts, including dance. Arts Council England's investment in dance in 2008-09 is £46.5 million, an increase of almost 100 per cent. since 1996-97. This funding will support dance companies and organisations across the country.

At the same time, the recent Government response to Tony Hall's dance review has committed £5.5 million to youth dance and dance in schools (over the next three years).

Big Lottery Fund

10. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he next expects to meet representatives of the Big Lottery Fund to discuss its administrative costs. [204457]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Chairman and the Board of the Big Lottery Fund are committed to keeping their administrative costs to a minimum.

Film

11. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps he has taken to promote collaboration between British and other European film producers. [204459]

Andy Burnham: The UK is signed up to the European Convention on Cinematographic Co-production which promotes collaboration between British and other European film producers. Since its inception in 1994 the UK has participated in 412 co-productions under the convention.

Also, the UK Film Council actively works to encourage collaboration at key film festivals such as Cannes and the Berlinale by providing networking and information sharing opportunities for UK and European filmmakers.

Stonehenge

12. Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what plans he has for the future of Stonehenge; and if he will make a statement. [204460]

Margaret Hodge: The Department for Culture, Media and Sport's plans for the future of Stonehenge remain to find a new solution to improve the setting for this iconic World Heritage Site, including new visitor facilities, in time for the Olympics in 2012. To this end, the Stonehenge Project Board has been reconvened and has met twice since December.

National Museums

13. Mr. Neil Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what assessment he has made of recent trends in visits to national museums. [204461]

Margaret Hodge: The most recent figures show that visits to the former charging sponsored museums in England have almost doubled since the introduction of free access in December 2001. This represents an extra six million visits a year or 37 million visits over the six years since entry charges were abolished.

Overall, visits to the national museums are continuing to increase each year, with number of visits rising from 24 million in 1997-98 to over 40 million in 2007-08.

Digital Switchover

16. Mrs. James: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what progress has been made on digital switchover, with particular reference to assistance for vulnerable people. [204465]

Andy Burnham: Figures from the Ofcom Digital Television Update October to December 2007 showed that nationally, 86.7 per cent. of homes had converted their primary set to digital.

Help will be available from the Digital Switchover Help Scheme for those aged 75 or over and those with disabilities. Those outside the scheme who may still need some additional assistance can get help from the digital outreach programme set up by Digital UK.

Women and Girls' Sport

18. Barbara Keeley: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to increase participation by women and girls in sport and fitness activities. [204467]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department is committed to ensuring that people from all sections of society are given the opportunity to participate in sport; and to breaking down the barriers that prevent them from doing so.

Sport England provides annual funding to the Women's Sport and Fitness Foundation, which works to improve and promote opportunities for women and girls in sport.

Sport England is developing a new strategy to deliver a world leading community sport system, to sustain and increase participation in sport, and allow everyone to develop their sporting talent to the full. Sport England will encourage more people from under-represented groups to get involved in sport, including women and girls.

Through the joint DCMS and DCSF PE and Sport Strategy for Young People the Government are investing an additional £100 million to offer five hours of high quality PE and sport to all pupils aged five to 16 and three hours for those aged 16 to 19. This will bring our total investment to at least £755 million over the next three years and will enable the provision of further sporting opportunities that recognise and respond to girls' needs and abilities.

Pistol Shooters

Mr. Crabb: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent representations he has received on arrangements for target pistol shooters to train and compete in the UK; and if he will make a statement. [204462]

Mr. Sutcliffe: I have had no recent meeting to discuss the issue of Olympic target pistol shooters. This issue is being taken forward by colleagues at the Home Office who have secured agreement in principle from the Ministry of Defence on use of their ranges by a small squad of elite pistol shooters. Home Office Ministers have also agreed to allow a small number of elite shooters to possess their pistols at home for 'dry training', subject to satisfactory checks under section 5 of the Firearms Act 1968.

Strip Clubs

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what estimate his Department has made of the change in the number of lap-dancing clubs licensed by local authorities since the introduction of the Licensing Act 2003. [205404]

Mr. Sutcliffe: The Department does not hold this information. As part of its data collection in connection with the Alcohol, Entertainment and Late Night Refreshment Licensing Statistical Bulletin, which was published on 8 November 2007, the Department has broadly recorded a number of licensable activities that have been carried out under the 2003 Act. However, these data are not broken down into specific types of entertainment, such as lap dancing.

Tourism

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to publish his Department's report on measuring elasticities of tourism demand. [203012]

Margaret Hodge: We expect to publish our report estimating elasticities of tourism demand in July.

VisitBritain: Publications

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to publish the VisitBritain Strategic Review of UK Tourism Support. [203877]

Margaret Hodge: I expect to publish the VisitBritain Strategic Review by the end of July.

JUSTICE

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much his Department and its predecessors spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204109]

Maria Eagle: As a central Government Department, the Ministry of Justice supports DEFRA's Global Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF). As the Ministry was created in May 2007 and the 2007-08 data have not yet been verified and offset, we are unable to provide data for the Ministry of Justice. For 2005-06, the Home Office will report on their old structure and the Ministry of Justice will report on the Department for Constitutional Affairs.

The Department for Constitutional Affairs joined the GCOF in 2006 and offset £606.72 for the 2006-07 reporting year. The payment was made to the GCOF approved portfolio of Certified Emission Reductions from Trading Emissions plc. More information can be found at:

http://www.defra.gov.uk/environment/climatechange/uk/carbonoffset/government.htm

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice on how many occasions he visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [204391]

Mr. Straw: In the last 12 months, Ministers in this Department have visited Scotland twice, Wales six times and Northern Ireland five times. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Diamond Project

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will hold discussions with (a) Unlock, (b) other representatives of the third sector, (c) individuals and (d) companies on the Diamond Project. [203197]

Mr. Hanson: There has been regular communication between my Department and Unlock over the past six months, the latest of which was a letter I wrote to them on 22 April 2008. They have also met with officials.

Drugs: Misuse

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have been (a) proceeded against, (b) found guilty and (c) imprisoned for the offence of possessing (i) heroin, (ii) cocaine, (iii) ecstasy and (iv) LSD under section 5(2) of the Misuse of Drugs Act 1971 in each of the last 10 years. [200549]

Mr. Straw: The number of people proceeded against at magistrates courts for possession of cocaine, heroin, ecstasy, and LSD, and subsequently found guilty at all courts, and sentenced to immediate custody in England and Wales, for the years 1997 to 2006 can be viewed in the following tables.

These data are on the principal offence basis. The figures given in the table on court proceedings relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences, the offence selected is the one for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

Court proceedings data for 2007 will be available in the autumn of 2008.

[4] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts, other agencies, and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

House of Lords: Reform

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent representations he has received on further reform of the House of Lords. [204016]

Mr. Straw: Following an invitation from the Leader of the House, the Cross-Party Group on House of Lords Reform has received three written representations from peers. These have been circulated to members of the Cross-Party Group, with an invitation to comment on proposals in the papers. In addition, I have received one representation from a joint group of MPs and peers. We also continue to receive correspondence on this subject from members of the public.

Prison Governors' Association

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what discussions he has had with the Prison Governors' Association on the introduction of prison councils. [204286]

Mr. Hanson: The policy on prisoners' councils is set out in PSO 4480, a copy of which I have placed in the Libraries of the House. The Prison Governors' Association have not discussed, or requested to discuss, this issue with either the Secretary of State or Prisons Ministers. National Offender Management Service officials maintain an ongoing dialogue with PGA representatives, and are willing to discuss with the PGA any views or concerns it may have.

Prison Service: Females

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans his Department has to encourage more women to become prison governors. [204282]

Maria Eagle: Although the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) does not target women differentially, either in the provision of development opportunities to Prison Service employees, or in its recruitment and selection processes, it works to maximise access across all groups; and the proportion of women in the senior operational manager and operational manager grades has increased from 19.5 per cent. in April 2005 to 22.9 per cent. in April 2008. In particular, NOMS operates two fast-track schemes for direct entry into operational manager grades—the intensive development scheme and the senior prison manager programme. In the three most recent completed campaigns, 54 per cent. of SPMP recruits, and 65 per cent. of IDS recruits, have been female.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many female prison governors there are. [204283]

Maria Eagle: The numbers of in-charge governors and deputy governors in public sector prison establishments are as follows:

	In-Charge	Deputy Governors
Female	25	30
Male	93	86
Total (excluding vacant posts)	118	116
Percentage female	21.2	25.9

The 11 contracted prison establishments (which do not use the same grading structures as the public sector service) employ four female directors (equivalent to in-charge governor) and three female deputy directors.

Prisoners

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of category C prisoners are detained in category D prisons. [204308]

Mr. Hanson: Category C prisoners are not held in category D prisons. All prisoners are assessed as to their risk of escape or abscond, which ensures allocation of prisoners to a prison providing appropriate levels of security. Only those considered suitable would be held in category D open conditions.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent estimate he has made of the average time taken to re-categorise prisoners. [204309]

Mr. Hanson: The information required for such an assessment is not collated centrally and could be obtained only by asking every prison to review the categorisation history of a sufficiently large sample group of prisoners. This could not be done without incurring disproportionate cost.

Prisoners: Further Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills on the impact of the churn of prisoners on further educational provision in prisons. [204288]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice are working with the Department for Innovation Universities and Skills as well as the Learning and Skills Council to minimise the effect on learning of prisoner movements between prisons. This work includes facilitating the LSCs roll-out of a learner summary record to assist with educational record availability. In addition the current offender skills and curriculum area reviews are expected to produce a consistent core to the curriculum offered wherever prisoners are held.

Prisoners: Grendon Prison

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what proportion of prisoners in (a) HMP Grendon and (b) HMP Springhill are from the Thames Valley area. [204264]

Maria Eagle: As at 31 March 2008 (the latest date for which figures are available);

(a) At HMP Grendon, 11 per cent. of the prisons' population come from the Thames Valley area.

(b) At HMP Spring Hill, 32 per cent. of the prisons' population come from the Thames Valley area.

Prisoners: Pay

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how his Department defines purposeful activity for which prisoners are eligible for payment. [204281]

Maria Eagle: Purposeful activity is defined as undertaking work, induction, education, training or offending behaviour programmes. These are set out in Prison Service Order 4460 Prisoners' Pay.

Prisoners: Per Capita Costs

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average cost to the public purse of each prisoner was in each of the last five financial years; and if he will make a statement. [201811]

Mr. Hanson: The average resource cost per prisoner was as follows:

2006-07	37,500
2005-06	36,400
2004-05	34,100
2003-04	33,000
2002-03	35,800

The figures include the total expenditure of HM Prison Service and also prison-related expenditure met centrally by the National Offender Management Service. From 2003-04 expenditure on prisoners' health is the responsibility of the Department of Health and the Welsh Assembly Government as appropriate and is not included. Expenditure on prisoners' education is the responsibility of the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills and is not included.

Prisoners: Personal Property

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice under what circumstances prisoners are allowed to retain personal items of value while in custody; and what restrictions apply in such circumstances. [204258]

Maria Eagle: Prisoners may retain a reasonable amount of their personal property with them while in custody. The amount and type of property retained is at the discretion of the governor and restrictions will apply for the maintenance of good order and security. Any property which a prisoner states to be of particular value must be recorded as such and placed in secure conditions with the prison establishment unless the governor allows the prisoner to retain it in his/her possession.

Prisoners: Rehabilitation

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the impact on the rehabilitation of prisoners of the interaction between inmates and prison staff on prison councils. [204287]

Maria Eagle: The policy on prisoners' councils is set out in PSO 4480, a copy of which I have placed in the Library. While there has been no formal assessment of the impact of prison councils on the rehabilitation of prisoners, any engagement with prisoners is seen as constructive and enables staff to understand issues from a prisoner's perspective.

Prisoners: Release

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) what estimate he has made of the number of prisoners released while on the waiting list for approval for day release in the last 12 months; [204279]

(2) what recent estimate he has made of the average time taken for a prisoner to be approved for day release. [204310]

Mr. Hanson: Data are not held centrally on the length of time taken to consider an application for temporary release as each application is considered on its merits. The volume of information required to complete the necessary risk assessment will vary according to the individual circumstances of the prisoner and the type of release applied for. Likewise, data are not held centrally on the number of prisoners released from custody on completion of their sentence while waiting for an application for temporary release to be considered.

The Prisoners' Requests and Complaints procedures are available to prisoners for any complaints they may have about any aspect of prison life. Prisoners may use these procedures to make a complaint to the Governor if they consider their ROTL application has been unduly delayed.

Prisons: Carbon Emissions

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what measures are in place to ensure that prisons take steps to reduce carbon dioxide emissions. [203301]

Maria Eagle: The Prison Service is working with the Carbon Trust to undertake a full Carbon Management Program. They are also in the process of undertaking an energy awareness campaign across the Prison estate that is due to commence this month for all staff.

Young Offender Institutions: Drugs

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) inmates of and (b) visitors to young offender institutions were found to be in possession of illegal drugs in each year since 1997. [203897]

Mr. Hanson: The best measure of the number of inmates found in possession of illegal drugs can be drawn from the adjudications data for the offence of possession of a controlled drug. Data are not published by establishment type at this level of offence detail.

The published data are available on the Ministry of Justice website. The latest data can be found in supplementary tables 9.4M&F, 9.4M and 9.4F to the Offender Management Caseload Statistics 2006. Similar tables are available for the publications covering the years 1997-2005. Before 2003, please refer to Prison Statistics, England and Wales, chapter 8.

Visitors

The number of visitors to prisons found in possession of illegal drugs is not recorded. The number of incidents occurring in establishments that involved the arrest of a visitor and a drug being found are given in the following table:

Financial year	Number of incidents involving visitors to YOIs being arrested and an illegal drug being found
1996-97	213
1997-98	188
1998-99	134

Financial year	Number of incidents involving visitors to YOIs being arrested and an illegal drug being found
1999-2000	53
2000-01	29
2001-02	62
2002-03	50
2003-04	86
2004-05	34
2005-06	45
2006-07	23
2007-08	41

This has been matched by a parallel reduction in drug misuse as measured by random mandatory drug testing.

All data in this answer have been drawn from administrative data systems. Although care is taken when processing and analysing the returns, the detail collected is subject to the inaccuracies inherent in any large scale recording system. The data are not subject to audit.

All data in this answer are drawn from establishments designated by the Prison Service Strategy and Performance Group as Young Offender Institutions. They exclude some establishments which are not deemed YOIs but do house young offenders. Typically these are "split" establishments which cater for both adults and young offenders. It is important to note that the number of establishments deemed to be YOIs has varied since 1996-97.

Young Offender Institutions: Mental Health Services

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) psychologists, (b) psychiatrists and (c) psychiatric nurses work in (i) privately and (ii) publicly operated youth offender institutions in England and Wales. [202775]

Mr. Hanson: The information requested for young offender institutions (YOIs) in England is not collected.

In England, a national mapping and inventory exercise of child health, child and adolescent mental health services (CAMHS) and maternity services is undertaken annually by the Department of Health and Durham University.

The next report will, for the first time, include data specific to children and young people subject to the criminal justice system. This is expected in November 2008.

Further information is available on the Child Health, CAMHS and Maternity Mapping website at:

http://www.childhealthmapping.org.uk/

The commissioning of secondary/tertiary care health services to YOIs based in Wales is the responsibility of the Welsh Assembly Government/NHS Wales.

Young Offender Institutions: Restraint Techniques

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many injuries sustained by offenders held in (a) secure training centres, (b) secure children's homes and (c) young offender institutions resulted in the offender receiving hospital treatment in each year since 2000, broken down by establishment; and if he will make a statement. [204314]

Mr. Hanson: The Youth Justice Board has collected data on self-harm, assault and restraint using common definitions across the secure estate since April 2007. Data compiled before that time are not comparable between different sectors.

The following table shows the requested information for the period 1 April 2007 to 29 February 2008. It shows the number of injuries resulting in hospitalisation as a result of assault, restraint or self-harm in secure training centres, young offender institutions and secure children's homes.

Young Offender: Crimes of Violence

Jenny Willott: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many instances of prisoner-on-officer violence were recorded in each (a) secure training centre, (b) secure children's home and (c) young offender institution in each year since 2000; and if he will make a statement; [204372]

(2) how many instances of prisoner-on-prisoner violence were recorded in each (a) secure training centre, (b) secure children's home and (c) young offender institution in each year since 2000, broken down by establishment; and if he will make a statement. [204374]

Mr. Hanson: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 1 April 2008, Official Report, column 897W.

Young Offenders

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average number of hours per day spent in purposeful activity was by prisoners in (a) young offender institutions and (b) juvenile custodial institutions in each week of February and March 2008. [204259]

Mr. Hanson: The following table shows the average number of hours per day spent in purposeful activity by prisoners in (a) young offender institutions and (b) juvenile custodial institutions, for each week in February and March 2008.

Week commencing	YO male	Juvenile male
3 February 2008	3.9	4.2
10 February 2008	3.7	4.1

Young Offenders: Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what recent estimate he has made of the average number of hours of education undertaken by a prisoner in a young offender institution per week. [204263]

Mr. Hanson: The average number of hours spent in educational activity per week per prisoner in young offender and juvenile institutions during 2007-08 was 12.2 hours. Data are provisional and subject to end year validation, which may see an increase in educational activity undertaken by prisoners.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Arson

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the cost of arson to the economy in each of the last five years. [204983]

Mr. Dhanda: Estimates for the cost of arson to the economy for the five years to 2004 are shown as follows. Work will commence this year to produce estimates for subsequent years. Around 60 per cent. of the estimated costs are directly attributable to the occurrence of arson fires, with the remainder due to measures taken in anticipation of arson fires, such as installing fire prevention measures.

Total cost of deliberate fires, England and Wales, 2000-04

Caravan Sites: Squatting

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what powers local authorities have to deal with the illegal use of caravans sited in holiday parks as permanent residences. [204008]

Mr. Iain Wright: When granting planning permission for the use of land as a site for caravans for holiday use, local authorities may impose conditions which prevent the caravans from being used at certain times of the year. The aim of such conditions is generally to ensure that the premises are only used by visitors and do not become part of the local housing stock.

Where a condition is breached, local authorities can serve a breach of condition notice to ensure that the conditions are complied with.

Children in Care

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what proportion of children's homes were assessed as providing inadequate provision in each year from 1996-97 to 2007-08; and if she will make a statement. [201141]

Kevin Brennan: I have been asked to reply.

Since April 2007, children's homes have been regulated by the Chief Inspector for Standards in Education, Children's Services and Skills; prior to that they were regulated by the Commission for Social Care Inspection. Data on the outcome of inspections of individual homes are not held centrally by this Department.

We recognise that standards need to improve and are taking a number of steps to improve provision in children's homes. The Children and Young Persons Bill, currently before Parliament, includes provisions to strengthen the Chief Inspector's powers to address poor performance. In addition, we are taking forward work, through the Children's Workforce Development Council, to develop a framework of skills which all those caring for children in residential homes will be expected to demonstrate. We will also be piloting a social pedagogic approach in children's homes, in order to support residential care staff in working more effectively with children in a group setting.

Community Relations

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the Answer of 3 March 2008, Official Report, column 2133W, on community relations, when she expects to publish guidance on tension monitoring. [203976]

Mr. Dhanda: I have today published DCLG's guidance for local authorities on community cohesion contingency planning and tension monitoring. It is a web based tool and can be found on the DCLG website:

www.communities.gov.uk/publications/communities/cohesionplanning

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many occasions she has visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [204400]

Ms. Dhanda: In the last 12 months, the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government visited Scotland once and Wales once. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the ministerial code.

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many freedom of information requests made to her Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201720]

Mr. Dhanda: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of requests for information other than routine or "normal course of business" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however Communities and Local Government answered 88 per cent. of resolvable requests "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, there were 103 such requests, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are treated in the statistics as routine business.

Fire Prevention: Insurance

Mr. Betts: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what discussions she has had with the Association of British Insurers on the use of Section 4.4 of the Technical Briefing on Fire Performance of Sandwich Panel Systems document (2003) by panel manufacturers. [204531]

Mr. Iain Wright: The purpose of the Association of British Insurers (ABI) Technical Briefing is to assist insurance surveyors and under-writers to assess the use of sandwich panels in the construction of buildings, with respect to potential economic loss in the event of a fire.

Current statutory provisions and supporting standards for fire protection in buildings are made only for the purposes of securing the health and safety of people in and around buildings, not to reduce economic loss, therefore no such discussions have taken place with the ABI.

Fire Services

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many occasions fire and rescue services were required to evacuate residents from their homes in each year since 1994. [204838]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Fire Services: Aviation

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many aircraft incidents were attended by the fire service in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [204986]

Mr. Dhanda: The number of aircraft incidents attended by fire and rescue services since 1997-98 is set out as follows.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many firefighters were injured in the course of operational incidents in fire and rescue services in England in each of the last 10 years. [204837]

Mr. Dhanda: The number of firefighters that were injured in operational incidents in fire and rescue services in England since 1998-99 is tabled as follows. Information prior to 1998-99 is not held centrally.

Fire Services: Youth Services

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the merits of (a) the Wiltshire Fire Service Salamander scheme and (b) other fire service youth community projects. [204234]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department commissioned research, published in March 2006, looking into the effectiveness of youth training and diversion schemes. The research found that where schemes were evaluated independently there are examples of projects that have achieved clear and demonstrable outcomes for young people. Such outcomes include boosting young people's confidence and motivation; changing attitudes towards offending and antisocial social behaviour; and achieving re-engagement with education. The Wiltshire Fire Service Salamander scheme was not launched until July 2006 and therefore did not form part of the Department's research.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of young people who have participated in youth community projects run by fire services in England in each of the last three years. [204235]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department provided £11.4 million funding for 2006-08, through its Fire Prevention Grant, to Fire and Rescue Services in England to develop a range of schemes, some of which are youth community projects. The Department has commissioned evaluation of the grant scheme, including levels of participation, which will be published later this year.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which youth community projects are run by fire services in England. [204236]

Mr. Dhanda: The Department does not hold centrally a list of youth community projects run by fire and rescue services in England. The results of a recent London fire brigade national survey of youth focused projects run by fire and rescue services will be jointly published by London fire brigade and the Department later in the summer.

Fires

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the total insured fire losses for (a) dwellings and (b) commercial premises in each fire and rescue service were in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available, broken down by region. [204984]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not available centrally. However, the ABI represents the majority of the UK insurance market and publishes annual statistics on the total value of claims from domestic and commercial fires each year. This information is available by subscribing to the ABI's statistical service.

Greenbelt

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government with reference to the Prime Minister's Statement of 11 July 2007, Official Report, columns 1449-51, on the draft legislative programme, what the Government's policy on Green Belt (a) designation and (b) protection is. [205431]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Government's policy on the designation and protection of green belt is set out in Planning Policy Guidance Note 2: "Green Belts".

Proposals for new green belt should be considered through regional spatial strategies in the first instance. Local planning authorities proposing to establish a new green belt should demonstrate why normal planning and development control policies would not be adequate and whether any major changes in circumstances have made the adoption of this exceptional measure necessary. It should also show what the consequences of the proposal would be for sustainable development.

There is a general presumption against inappropriate development in the green belt. Such development should not be approved, except in very special circumstances.

As the Prime Minister made clear in his statement of 11 July 2007, we will continue robustly to protect the land designated as green belt.

Hazardous Substances

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many (a) chemical and (b) fuel (i) spills and (ii) suspected spills the fire and rescue service in each fire authority area and each region attended in each year since 2001. [204985]

Mr. Dhanda: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Homelessness

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households in England and Wales were classified as homeless in each of the last three years, broken down by region. [204383]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level. This information includes the number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty. The duty owed to an accepted household is to secure suitable accommodation. If a settled home is not immediately available, the authority may secure temporary accommodation until a settled home becomes available.

Data on the number of households in England accepted as being owed a main homelessness duty are also published in the Department's quarterly statistical release on Statutory Homelessness, which also provides data on the number of accepted households in temporary accommodation at the end of each quarter. Table 3 of the release provides a breakdown of acceptances by Government Office region for each year from 1997 onwards. The tables are published on our website and placed in the Library each quarter. The latest release was published on 10 March 2008, and contains data for the period up to December 2007, and is available at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/714966.xls

The Department does not hold statistics for the devolved Administrations.

Homelessness: Armed Forces

Patrick Mercer: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many former armed forces service personnel were estimated to have been homeless in (a) 1997 and (b) 2007. [203455]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level, in respect of households rather than people. Information reported includes the number of households accepted by local authorities as eligible for assistance, unintentionally homeless and in priority need, and therefore owed a main homelessness duty. The duty owed to an accepted household is to secure suitable accommodation.

Since 2005, data have been collected on the number of accepted households whose reason for loss of last settled home was having left HM forces. In 2007, 211 applicants accepted as owed the main homelessness duty cited the reason for loss of their last settled home as having left HM forces, representing 0.3 per cent. of total acceptances.

Information is also available by the priority need of the household. In 2007 there were 36 households accepted as being in priority need primarily as a result of being vulnerable through having served in HM forces. This represents less than 0.1 per cent. of all acceptances in the year. However some ex-forces personnel will be hidden within other priority need categories, for example, the presence of dependent children or having a mental illness), and so will not show up as ex-forces in these figures.

Many of those applicants with the HM forces priority need are likely to have the reason for loss of having left HM forces accommodation, so there will be overlap between the two figures.

Local authorities who conduct rough sleeper counts collect information on any individuals sleeping rough, and these are published annually on our website. Figures include those rough sleepers who have previously served in HM forces, but these are not shown separately.

Rough sleeping among ex-armed forces personnel has dropped. There are no specific data for 1997 but studies at the time suggested between a quarter and one fifth of rough sleepers had been in the armed forces at some stage. There is specific information for London provided under the Combined Homelessness and Information Network (CHAIN) recording system. In 2006-07, for those rough sleepers in London contacted by services, 5 per cent. had spent some time in the armed forces in the past. This has remained consistent over the last four years.

Households: Temporary Accommodation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many homeless households were in temporary accommodation in (a) each Government Office region and (b) each local authority in each year since 1997. [204520]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information about English local authorities' actions under homelessness legislation is collected quarterly at local authority level. Data on the number of households in temporary accommodation in each Government office region are published in the Department's quarterly statistical release on Statutory Homelessness, at the end of each quarter.

Table 7 of the statistical release provides information on temporary accommodation by Government office region for each year from 1997 onwards. The tables from the latest release, published on 10 March 2008, have been deposited in the Library of the House and are available from our website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/housing/xls/714966.xls

A table summarising homelessness figures for each local authority for the past 10 years, including the total number of households in temporary accommodation, is available in the Library of the House.

Housing: Armed Forces

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the requirements are on local authorities to prioritise service personnel for accommodation. [203989]

Mr. Iain Wright: Under section 167 of the Housing Act 1996 ("the 1996 Act"), local authorities must allocate housing in accordance with their allocation scheme. Such schemes must give reasonable preference to certain categories of person (e.g. those who are homeless, those in overcrowded housing and those who need to move on medical or welfare grounds). The legislation also allows (but does not require) local authorities to take into account other factors in determining relative priorities between those in the reasonable preference categories, including whether or not a person has a local connection with the local authority district. Local connection is defined by s.199 of the 1996 Act. This is particularly relevant in the case of service personnel, since, under the current legislation, a person will not establish a local connection with an area because of residence or employment while he is posted there in the armed forces.

The homelessness legislation (Part 7 of the Housing Act 1996) provides an important safety net for people who become homeless or threatened with homelessness. In particular, English local housing authorities must secure suitable accommodation for applicants who are eligible for assistance, homeless through no fault of their own and fall within a priority need group. The priority need groups include applicants who are vulnerable for some reason, including those vulnerable as a result of having been a member of the armed forces.

The Housing and Regeneration Bill which is currently before Parliament will amend section 199 to remove the provisions which prevent members of the armed forces from establishing a local connection in a district through employment or residence and will ensure that members of the armed forces are put on an equal footing with civilians when applying to local authorities for social housing and/or homelessness assistance.

Housing: Carbon Emissions

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs on the launch of the Green Homes Service. [204357]

Mr. Iain Wright: Ministers and officials have regular discussions with Ministers and officials at the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs, including on policies to promote the environmental sustainability of homes.

Housing: Foreigners

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many individuals who are not UK citizens are housed by (a) Cross Keys Homes and (b) other registered social landlords in Peterborough under the Accession (Immigration and Worker Registration) Regulations 2004. [162842]

Mr. Iain Wright: Information on individuals housed by registered social landlords who are not UK citizens and who are subject to the Accession (Immigration and Worker Registration) Regulations 2004 is not collected centrally.

Housing: Immigration

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment her Department has made of the impact of immigration on housing demand in the United Kingdom. [199852]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the right hon. Member for Hitchin and Harpenden (Mr. Lilley) on 16 January 2008, Official Report, column 1259W.

Housing: Insulation

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will issue guidance to (a) home improvement agencies and (b) other agencies responsible for introducing energy efficiency measures on the effect of different weather conditions on older Bradstone-built houses when adapting those houses through the installation of cavity wall insulation. [204674]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department for Communities and Local Government has no plans to issue further guidance on cavity wall insulation beyond that which already exists within the Building Regulations Part C—site preparation and resistance to contaminants and moisture. This indicates that the complete filling of cavities in a cavity masonry wall, for all property types, is not recommended in certain locations and under certain weather conditions.

Further guidance on the installation of cavity wall insulation is provided by the Energy Saving Trust and also within Building Research Establishment's booklet BR 262—Thermal insulation: avoiding the risks.

Housing: Low Incomes

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many affordable homes were built in the London borough of Bexley in each year since 1997. [204912]

Mr. Iain Wright: Figures for the number of affordable homes built in the London borough of Bexley are tabulated in the table. The figures include Social Rent and Intermediate Affordable Housing new build; they exclude affordable housing acquisitions.

Registered Social Landlord new build figures from the Housing Corporation, Local Authority new build completions from P2 returns

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what measure of inflation her Department uses in calculations affecting shared equity home ownership schemes sponsored by her Department and its agencies. [204925]

Mr. Iain Wright: Measures of inflation used in calculations affecting the Government's sponsored shared ownership and shared equity schemes relate to rent and equity loan charges.

Rent paid under the Government's New Build HomeBuy shared ownership scheme is capped at 3 per cent. of the value of the un-owned equity in the first year, with a target of 2.75 per cent. From the second year, the rent can increase by the Retail Price Index plus 0.5 per cent. This charging arrangement is set out in the shared ownership lease.

The Government's new shared equity Open Market HomeBuy scheme enables purchasers to buy a property with the help of an equity loan. The loan is required to be repaid on resale of the property or earlier, if the purchaser wishes. The amount which is repaid is based on the market value of the property at the date of repayment or sale. The charges on the equity loan vary depending on which one of two products is chosen by purchasers.

Housing: Planning Permission

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reasons additional restrictions on extended permitted development rights for households (a) apply in conservation areas and (b) do not apply in (i) areas of outstanding natural beauty and (ii) national parks. [202591]

Mr. Iain Wright: Additional restrictions on householder permitted development rights generally apply equally to conservation areas, areas of outstanding natural beauty and national parks.

On 6 April 2008 the Government introduced changes that allow for certain types of small-scale renewable energy to be installed by householders without the need to apply for planning permission. On balance, and given the desire to encourage the take-up of microgeneration, it was decided that a more restrictive approach should apply to conservation areas, but not to national parks and areas of outstanding natural beauty. We believe that development of the scale permitted will not have an adverse impact on national parks and areas of outstanding natural beauty which are protected because of the beauty of the natural landscape.

Local Government and Regeneration Division

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1266W, on the local government and regeneration division, if she will list each of the smaller boards, working groups and committees within the division referred to in her answer. [202470]

Mr. Dhanda: Local Government and Regeneration Group co-ordinates the following smaller boards, working groups and committees. The number, remit, and membership of such smaller boards and working groups changes depending on the group's business at any one time.

Mobile Homes

Mr. Marsden: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the number of (a) park homes and (b) caravans intended as holiday and temporary accommodation which are registered with local authorities. [204193]

Mr. Iain Wright: No park homes or caravans are required to be registered with local authorities. Caravan sites (including park home sites) are required to have a site licence issued by the local authority under the Caravan Sites and Control of Development Act 1960.

We estimate there are approximately 84,000 park homes on 1,950 sites in England intended for residential use. The industry estimates there are 240,000 caravans on 3,000 sites in England intended as holiday accommodation. No estimate has been made of the number of caravans intended as temporary accommodation.

Planning Permission: Fees and Charges

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the application of the de minimis principle, in relation to the Community Infrastructure Levy, will be in terms of number of buildings or value of buildings; and if she will make a statement. [204949]

Mr. Iain Wright: In its publication of 24 January 2008 on the Community Infrastructure Levy (CIL), the Government announced that there would be a de minimis threshold below which development would not be liable to pay CIL. This would include householder development by homeowners and could, subject to consultation, include some development deemed to have been granted permission under the General Permitted Development Order.

The Government have announced that it will take a criteria-based approach towards considering whether there should be any exemptions from CIL, and the details of how CIL will operate will be set out in secondary legislation, which will be subject to full consultation. Further announcements on CIL will be made in due course.

Planning: Floods

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent assessment her Department has made of planning regulations in the light of the floods in summer 2007. [204343]

Mr. Iain Wright: Sir Michael Pitt's interim conclusion from his inquiry into the lessons learned from the floods last summer, is that the new policy in Planning Policy Statement 25 Development and Flood Risk (PPS25), is sound but should be rigorously applied by local authorities. Work on achieving this is already well in hand. The Practice Guide to PPS25, which will provide practical advice to local authorities on implementing the policy, is due to be published shortly.

We have decided to amend the Town and Country Planning (General Permitted Development Order) 1995, so that in future, householders will only be able to pave over their front gardens without planning permission, if the surface provided would be permeable. We are taking this step because surface water run-off was a significant contributory factor to last summer's floods. We anticipate this amendment coming into force in October.

Regional Equality and Diversity Partnerships

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the name and address of each regional equality and diversity partnership is; and how much funding is allocated to each for 2008-09. [203056]

Mr. Dhanda: The Government do not require the creation of regional equality and diversity partnerships. However, such partnerships have been formed in a number of regions and are funded by a variety of organisations, both public (including regional development agencies, regional assemblies, local authorities and the Big Lottery Fund) and private (including business, trade associations and trade unions).

Identifying and disaggregating each public and private organisation's contribution to their activity could be done only at disproportionate cost.

The names and addresses of those partnerships for which we have contact details are:

	Address
Equality South West	East Reach House, East Reach, Taunton, Somerset TA1 3EN
West Midlands Equality and Diversity Partnership	Regional Partnership Centre, 3rd Floor, Albert House, Quay Place, 92-93 Edward Street, Birmingham, B1 2RA

Repossession Orders: Hampshire

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent reports she has received on strategies to manage housing repossessions in each housing authority in Hampshire; and if she will make a statement. [202929]

Mr. Iain Wright: Under the Homelessness Act 2002, local authorities were required by July 2003 to publish a strategy for tackling and preventing homelessness and ensuring that accommodation and support is available to people in their district who are homeless or at risk of homelessness. This must be reviewed and published every five years and as such all authorities must have completed a review by July 2008.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Detainees: Guantanamo Bay

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what response he has received from the US authorities on the Government's request for the return of Mr. Binyam Mohamed from Guantanamo Bay; and what reports he has received of plans to try Mr. Mohamed before a US military tribunal. [200080]

David Miliband: As I set out in my written ministerial statement on 13 December, Official Report, columns 56-57WS, the US is not currently inclined to agree to our request for the release and return of Mr. Mohamed to the UK. However, my officials continue to discuss his case with the US. While he was charged under the previous Military Commissions arrangements, our contacts with the US have not revealed formal proceedings against him under the new Military Commissions Act.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of the United States on the Military Commissions Act. [204320]

Dr. Howells: UK officials most recently discussed the Military Commissions Act with the US Government in February 2008, in the context of discussions over Binyam Mohamed, a former UK resident currently detained at Guantanamo Bay.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of the United States on the treatment of unlawful enemy combatants. [204321]

Dr. Howells: Officials have most recently discussed treatment of "unlawful enemy combatants" with the US in the context of discussions over the two former UK residents currently held at Guantanamo Bay; Binyam Mohamed and Shaker Aamer.

EU External Relations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether defence attachés or military representatives of EU member states will form part of the EU's proposed External Action Service; and if he will make a statement. [204574]

Mr. Jim Murphy: There have not yet been any detailed discussions on the organisation and functioning of the European External Action Service (EEAS), but its creation will have no impact on the ability of national Defence Attaches and Military Representatives to perform their bilateral representative duties. The decision to launch the EEAS will not be taken until after the Treaty enters into force.

Gaza: Borders

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2008, Official Report, column 2322W, on Gaza: borders, what conditions need to be met for the EU border assistance mission at the Rafah crossing to resume operations; and if he will make a statement. [204080]

David Miliband: The EU is ready to consider resuming its border assistance mission at Rafah (Gaza-Egypt crossing) when the parties agree and when the security conditions allow.

Jordan: Tourism

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the Minister of Tourism of Jordan on sustainable tourism. [204458]

Dr. Howells: The subject of the welfare of the horses which serve the tourism industry at Petra is one of real concern to many British visitors. There is a long history of efforts to improve the lot of the horses at Petra. The Brook hospital is well established there, providing veterinary care for the horses and awareness-raising for their owners for over 20 years. Although a great deal has been achieved over the years, there is still a need to improve the standards of treatment and welfare for the horses and further improvement on the ground is likely to take some time.

While my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has no plans to raise this specific issue with the Minister of Tourism of Jordan, officials in London have raised this with the Jordanian embassy in London and our ambassador in Amman will be taking up this issue with a range of relevant individuals and organisations in Jordan.

South Africa: Chemical and Biological Warfare

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 7 May 2008 to Question 192701, on South Africa: chemical and biological warfare, whether the evidence given to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission considered in the investigation included evidence that Wouter Basson used a house in the home counties of England to meet UK scientists and to circumvent the sanctions regime against South Africa; and if he will make a statement. [205152]

Dr. Howells: As stated in my reply to my hon. Friend on 7 May 2008, Official Report, column 935W, UK investigations initiated following allegations of assistance to South Africa's Project Coast, considered information from a variety of sources including evidence given to the Truth and Reconciliation Committee. I can neither confirm nor deny details of specific evidence considered during these investigations.

Syria: Nuclear Weapons

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the Government's policy is on steps the International Atomic Energy Agency should take to investigate the alleged existence of a nuclear weapons programme in Syria and its links with North Korea; and if he will make a statement. [204118]

David Miliband: The Director General of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA), Mohammed el Baradei, said on 25 April that the IAEA

> "will treat this information with the seriousness it deserves and will investigate the veracity of the information".

Mohammed el Baradei went on to say

> "under the nuclear non-proliferation treaty (NPT), the agency has a responsibility to verify any proliferation allegations in a non-nuclear weapon state party to the NPT and to report its findings to the IAEA Board of Governors and the Security Council, as required".

We await the outcome of the IAEA's investigation.

The US evidence highlights the need for states to agree and implement an additional protocol if the IAEA is to be able to give adequate assurance that they have no undeclared nuclear activities.

Treaty of Lisbon

Mr. Carswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which areas of domestic legislative competence are unaffected by the EU Reform Treaty. [202203]

Mr. Jim Murphy: For the first time the Lisbon Treaty defines the Union's competences, setting out where the EU can and cannot act. These competences are set out in Article 2(12) of the Treaty of Lisbon (Cm 7294 pages 52-55) presented to Parliament in December 2007. The Treaty explicitly states that competences not conferred on the EU remain with member states.

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with European counterparts on the scope of responsibility of the (a) posts and (b) institutions to be established by the Lisbon Treaty; and if he will make a statement. [204729]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 9 May 2008]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has regular contact with all of our EU partners on a variety of issues.

The scope of responsibility of the posts and institutions provided for by the Lisbon treaty is set out in its provisions.

As set out in my letters of 22 April to the chairs of the Commons European Scrutiny Committee and Lords EU Select Committee, technical level discussions to prepare for implementation have begun. While it is only sensible to ensure that the EU is ready to implement the treaty—if all countries have ratified—we have made it clear to, and agreed with, our EU partners that no final decisions can be taken until ratification is confirmed.

United Nations: Finance

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had at the UN on strategic reserves for rapid response in emergency situations. [204364]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for International Development (DFID) is in regular discussions with all United Nations (UN) agencies delivering humanitarian assistance, such as the World Food Programme (WFP), the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) and the United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF), on the locations and quantities of their emergency stockpiles. This is part of our wider efforts to build global capacity for humanitarian response. Most recently, DFID officials met with WFP officials to discuss their Humanitarian Response Depots, which are currently being set up in five locations around the world. Emergency food supplies from the WFP stockpile in Brindisi, Italy, have already been drawn on to assist those affected by the recent cyclone in Burma.

Zimbabwe: Arms Control

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government are taking to secure an international moratorium on arms sales to Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [204088]

David Miliband: Following on from the UN Security Council discussion on 29 April, we are encouraging the Southern African Development Community countries to continue to prevent arms transfers to Zimbabwe and to further explore how the international community can support these efforts. We will continue to press for an international moratorium until democratic governance is restored to Zimbabwe.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which countries have sold arms to Zimbabwe in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [204087]

David Miliband: We do not maintain a record of other countries' arms purchases or sales. The EU and US have an embargo on the sale of arms to Zimbabwe and we are supporting the call for a temporary moratorium on all arms sales until Zimbabwe has a democratic government in place.

Zimbabwe: United Nations

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals the UK has made for action to be taken by the UN on Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [204090]

David Miliband: The deteriorating situation in Zimbabwe warrants the highest level of international engagement. In addition to various contacts I have had with UN Secretary-General, Ban Ki-moon, we have called on the UN to deploy a Human Rights monitoring mission to Zimbabwe, and strongly supported the inclusion of discussion of Zimbabwe at the UN Security Council meeting on 29 April. We will continue to press for active UN engagement, including the deployment of observers for any second round of the presidential election.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Assessments: Absenteeism

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of trends in levels of absence from key stage 3 tests; how many pupils registered to take key stage 3 tests were absent from these tests in the last year for which figures are available, broken down by local authority; and if he will make a statement. [202812]

Kevin Brennan: The absence rate for key stage 3 (KS3) national curriculum tests is between 3 per cent. and 4 per cent. whereas the absence rate for key stage 2 (KS2) tests is around 1 per cent. The proportion of pupils absent or unable to access the KS3 tests in 2007, broken down by local authority, can be found on the Department's Achievement and Attainment Tables website at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/performancetables/ks3_07.shtml.

Bird and Bird

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what contracts were awarded by his Department to Bird and Bird Solicitors in each year since 2005; and what the (a) value and (b) duration of each such contract was. [201636]

Kevin Brennan: Since 2005, the Department has contracted with Bird and Bird using the Office of Government Commerce Buying Solutions open L-Cat Framework agreement for procuring external legal services. The Department does not hold a comprehensive central contracts record. However, the following table presents available information, including known payments for the contracts concerned. Further information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Building Schools for the Future Programme: Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what representations he has received on the effects of the Environment Agency's requirements for flood risk assessments on development related to the Building Schools for the Future programme in (a) Canvey Island and (b) Essex. [204601]

Jim Knight: I am aware of the issues affecting Essex's wave 4 Building Schools for the Future project—and, in particular, the schools on Canvey Island—through regular ministerial reports from officials and Partnerships for Schools (PfS). PfS and my officials have been working with the local authority to minimise the delays to the delivery of new and refurbished schools, and associated educational transformation, in south Essex. I am not aware of any specific representations to the Secretary of State.

Children and Adoption Act 2006

John Hemming: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families when he plans to implement the provisions relating to parenting in the Children and Adoption Act 2006. [204244]

Kevin Brennan: The provisions of part 1 of the Children and Adoption Act 2006 relating to Family Assistance Orders and risk assessments were implemented in October 2007. The time scale for implementing the remaining provisions in part 1 of the Act is subject to completion of a number of tasks, including preparing for the provision of 'contact activities', making necessary changes to the court rules, putting new administrative systems for court staff in place and staff training. The Ministry of Justice published a consultation paper on draft rules on 7 May. The Government will shortly be making a written ministerial statement (WMS), outlining the timetable for implementation of the remaining provisions in part 1 of the Act.

Children in Care

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children in care were placed with a member of their extended family in each of the last 10 years. [203900]

Kevin Brennan: Information on the number of children in care who were placed with a member of their extended family in each of the last 10 years is not collected centrally by the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF). However, table A3, taken from the Statistical First Release (SFR 27/2007) entitled "Children looked after in England (including adoption and care leavers) year ending 31 March 2007", shows the number of children looked after by English local authorities, who were placed with a foster carer, who was either a relative or friend at 31 March for each year from 2003 to 2007. The SFR is located at:

http://www.dcsf.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000741/index.shtml

and table A3 can be found within the first set of Excel tables on the website.

Children: Abuse

Mrs. Gillan: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 24 April 2008, Official Report, columns 2220-1W, on children: abuse, if he will take steps to ensure that his Department's guidance on reporting alleged abuse to a local authority designated officer makes clear that this obligation is not specified in primary legislation. [204988]

Kevin Brennan: The guidance "Safeguarding Children and Safer Recruitment in Education" sets out, in paragraphs 1.6 to 1.12, the relevant legislation pertaining to this subject. This guidance is relevant for the purposes of section 157 (and the regulations made under that section) and section 175 of the Education Act 2002. All schools, including independent schools, should use the guidance to ensure they have effective safeguarding systems in place, which include the notification of local authority designated officers.

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average age of (a) childcarers in maintained nurseries, (b) childcarers in private, voluntary and independent nurseries and (c) childminders was in each year since 1997. [204842]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information about the age of staff working in full day care provision and the age of childminders. The 2006 figures on the percentage of full day care staff in each age group, by the ownership of the provision, are shown in Table 1. Data for previous years are not available.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much his Department and its predecessors spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204107]

Kevin Brennan: The majority of central Government Departments are members of the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF). The GCOF aims to fulfil the Government's commitment to offset emissions attributable to all official and ministerial air travel in central Government. It is available to all central Government Departments and provides a simple and cost effective way to offset, as well as ensuring high environmental integrity. The GCOF runs for an initial period of three years (2006-07, 2007-08 and 2008-09). Cabinet Office and DEFRA have offset an extra year (2005-06).

The GCOF is being managed by EEA Fund Management Ltd., who won the contract to source and deliver 255,000 Certified Emission Reduction Credits, with a provision for a further 50,000 credits, over three years from a range of Clean Development Mechanism (COM) projects. Credits will be supplied from the project portfolio of Trading Emissions plc, to whom EEA is the investment adviser.

Each GCOF participant will be able to provide cost figures for their contributions to the fund. Figures currently available cover 2005/06 (where applicable) and 2006/07. Data are currently being collected for the 2007/08 reporting year and will be available later in the year.

DEFRA has paid £60,014.07 into the GCOF, to offset some 6,056tCO2e from a variety of sources from April 2005 to April 2007.

The Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) has paid £4,635.35 into the GCOF from April 2006 to April 2007. DCSF has also paid Climate Care £94.08 to offset carbon emissions generated from the Sustainable Schools consultation exercise and launch events held during 2006/07. DCSF are committed to offsetting carbon emissions generated from the production of all Sustainable Schools materials.

Departmental Consultation Papers

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many (a) consultation papers and (b) new regulations have been issued by his Department and its predecessors in each year since 1 January 1997; and if he will make a statement. [201199]

Kevin Brennan: The Department for Children, Schools and Families, and its predecessors, (the Department for Education and Employment and the Department for Education and Skills up until 28 June 2007) have issued (a) 370 consultation papers and (b) 1,639 new regulations since 1 January 1997. The annual breakdown is shown in the following table.

2005	45	150

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement. [200728]

Kevin Brennan: Employer contribution rates for the Teachers' Pension Scheme from 1990-91 to the present are shown in the following table. The increase in the contribution rate on 1 April 2003 reflected a change in the way the scheme was financed with pensions increase (i.e. the inflation increases in the value of pensions in payment) now reflected in the total contribution rate paid by members and their employers rather than being met separately by the Exchequer.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 29 April 2008, Official Report, columns 402-3W, on departmental public expenditure, if he will provide a breakdown of the proportion of his Department's budget which is not devolved to schools or local authorities; and if he will make a statement. [203923]

Jim Knight: Pursuant to the answer of 29 April 2008, Official Report, columns 402-3W, being 18 per cent. the following list provides a breakdown of the proportion of budgets not devolved to schools or local authorities in DCSF.

Pupils: Offensive Weapons

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pupils in England were found to be in the possession of (a) a weapon and (b) drugs on school premises in each of the last three years. [204378]

Jim Knight: The requested information is not collected centrally.

Runaway Children: Protection

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much funding his Department allocated to initiatives to ensure the safety of child runaways in each of the last three years. [204469]

Kevin Brennan: The lead responsibility for responding to the needs of young people who have run away from home/care, including funding local initiatives if appropriate, lies with local authorities under their broader responsibilities to safeguard vulnerable young people. The Department does not routinely fund local provision, but has made funding (totalling £410,500 in 2006/07 and 2007/08) available to the London Refuge, following on from the community-based refuge pilots, to support the Refuge while they develop alternative sustainable funding sources.

Ensuring the safety and well-being of all children and young people, including those who run away from home or care, is important to this Government. In 2002, £2 million was committed over three years to pilot community based refuges for young runaways, with a subsequent evaluation of these pilots. In 2006/07, £31,000 was given to The Children's Society to support their research on how effectively local authorities were responding to the needs of young runaways.

Following The Children's Society report "Stepping Up" (August 2007) a cross- departmental working group on young runaways was established, supported by a consultative group made up of experts from the voluntary sector, to drive improvements in services for young runaways. An action plan, to be published in June, will set out ongoing actions to improve services at local, regional and national level.

Schools: Admissions

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many fully subscribed schools in England (a) applied for and (b) received capital funding from their local authority for expansion (i) between 1997 and 2006, (ii) between 2006 and January 2008 and (iii) since January 2008. [201590]

Jim Knight: The Department is continuing to support huge capital investment in schools. Over CSR07 this will total £21.9 billion. This is invested through a combination of our strategic, targeted and devolved programmes to local authorities and schools. Investment priorities take account of a number of factors, including the need to expand schools—which is subject to the local decision making process. Accordingly, the Department does not collect information centrally on the number of applications to local authorities for capital funding to support school expansions.

Available data show that (i) between 1999 (the first year for which information is available) and 2006, there were 20 approved proposals from schools to enlarge and increase the admission number by 27 or more, 16 approved proposals to enlarge sixth forms, and 444 smaller expansions; (ii) between 2006 and January 2008 the figures were 22, 36, and 102; and (iii) since January 2008, the figures are nine, four, and eight. We do not have figures on which of these schools were over-subscribed, or which involved a capital cost.

Additionally, since 2004 the Department has also operated a funding mechanism whereby successful and popular schools can, with or without the support of their local authority, apply for funding toward to the cost of expanding by a form of entry. Provided they meet the criteria set out in guidance, capital support will follow provided the expansion is agreed through the local decision making process. 22 such expansions have been agreed, and additional bids are currently being considered.

Schools: Cricket

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) how many (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in England play cricket at least once a week in the summer term; [205153]

(2) how many maintained schools in England have at least 10 competitive cricket fixtures each summer term; [205154]

(3) how much the Youth Sport Trust spent on cricket in schools in each of the last three years; and what those funds were spent on. [205155]

Kevin Brennan: This information is not held centrally. The 2006/07 School Sport Survey found that 90 per cent. (up from 85 per cent. in 2003/04) of maintained schools in England provided cricket during the academic year. The survey also found that 56 per cent. (up from 45 per cent. in 2003/04) of schools were linked to a local cricket club.

Inter-school competition will be further enhanced by the national network of Competition Managers, which will be in place from January 2009.

As a registered charity, the work of the Youth Sport Trust is to help build a better future for young people through sport. They are working with the network of school sport partnerships and sports colleges across the country to ensure all young people have access to at least five hours of PE and school sport by 2012. Their remit is not to fund individual sports, so they have not spent any money directly on cricket, or any other individual sport.

Sixth Form Education: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the Answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 238W, on sixth form education: finance, on what date he plans to publish the KPMG report on the funding gap between school sixth forms and further education colleges; and if he will make a statement. [203907]

Jim Knight: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) Statement of Priorities, published in November 2007, stated that introducing a standard common 16-18 funding system for schools, colleges and providers will help us to narrow further the funding gap between school sixth forms and colleges. The KPMG independent research report on the 16-18 FE/School Sixth Form Funding Gap is available on the LSC's website from 8 May 2008. That report highlights the progress made in closing the gap from more than 14 per cent. in 2004/05 by 8 per cent. points in 2008/09. The LSC will be contacting external stakeholders by e-mail advising of the publication of the report and also giving the website link.

Sure Start Programme: Internet

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 1 May 2008, Official Report, column 707W, on Sure Start programme: internet, what proportion of expenditure on updating the Sure Start website was attributable to staff salaries in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08; and how many staff are employed to update the website. [204781]

Kevin Brennan: A contracted editorial resource was used, at the cost of £55,375 for 2006-07 and £63,305 for 2007-08, to provide editorial services and to update the Sure Start website. None of these costs were attributable to civil service staff salaries, however there are civil service salary costs for the project management of the Sure Start website. The proportion of time spent by two civil servants managing the Sure Start website equates to no more than £22,535 for 2006-07 and the same for 2007-08.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what percentage of pupils in secondary education in (a) Chorley and (b) other areas in Lancashire were classed as persistent truants in the most recent period for which figures are available. [204982]

Kevin Brennan: The available information relates to persistent absentees (pupils who are absent for more than 20 per cent. of possible sessions of attendance) and is given in the table.

[4] A persistent absentee is defined as missing more than 63 sessions in the year—typically, missing more than 20 per cent. of the school year.

TREASURY

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency uses its automated valuation model to value newly built homes for council tax purposes. [202561]

Jane Kennedy: No. I also refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1669W.

EU Economic Policy: Zimbabwe

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what assessment he has made of the compliance by Northern Rock Bank and its subsidiaries with the requirements of EU Regulation 898/2005, as amended, on financial sanctions against members of the Zimbabwean government; [204998]

(2) what discussions he has had with the Board of Northern Rock Bank on the compliance of the bank and its subsidiaries with the requirements of EU financial sanctions against Zimbabwe. [204999]

Kitty Ussher: During this period of temporary public ownership, Northern Rock is managed by its board at arm's length from Government on commercial principles.

We expect any bank subject to UK law to comply with all relevant rules and regulations.

Gas and Electricity Markets Authority: Consolidated Fund

Mr. Ingram: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will set out the amounts transferred by Ofgem to the Consolidated Fund under section 1 of the Civil List Act 1952 for each of the years 2005-2008; and if he will make a statement. [204070]

Angela Eagle: Ofgem transfers amounts to the Consolidated Fund in respect of the Fossil Fuel Levy. The following amounts were surrendered to the Consolidated Fund for calendar years 2005-08:

2005	150
2006	160
2007	150
2008 (to date)	65

Insurance

Ben Chapman: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what assessment he has made of the effects of demographic trends on the future of the insurance industry. [204189]

Kitty Ussher: It is for the insurance industry to consider future demographic trends when designing products and developing business models.

The Financial Services Authority (FSA) was established by the Government in 2001 to act as the UK's independent financial regulator. As part of its supervision of insurance firms, the FSA takes a risk-based approach to discussing demographic considerations with insurers, for example when assessing the robustness of an insurer's approach to risk management. The FSA requires insurers to sign off their annual returns through auditors and actuaries. This would typically involve an assessment of the impact of demographic trends.

International Monetary Fund

John Bercow: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on reform of the International Monetary Fund. [204296]

Kitty Ussher: The Government have been heavily engaged with stakeholders in formulating their agenda for the reform of the International Monetary Fund, which the Chancellor then set out at the Spring Meetings of the International Monetary and Financial Committee last month. The Government recognise that solutions to global problems, such as the financial turbulence of the past year, require greater international cooperation, and has therefore been working to build international support for reforms that will deliver a more effective and legitimate International Monetary Fund.

Smuggling: Fuels

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer on how many occasions HM Revenue and Customs staff in Northern Ireland have visited premises which were suspected to be centres for the distribution and sale of fuel either illegally produced or on which the appropriate duty had not been paid in the last 12 months. [204755]

Angela Eagle: HMRC has a regular programme of visits to retail fuel sites and fuel distribution centres. These include visits to both suspect locations and to non-suspect locations. During year ending 31 March they made 284 such visits in Northern Ireland. Some locations were visited on more than one occasion.

It would not be appropriate to disclose the number of visits to suspect locations as this could indicate the extent of intelligence held by HMRC.

This reply covers visits made by HMRC Detection staff only. It does not include any visits made by Direct Taxes, Indirect taxes or any other HMRC staff.

Tax Yields

Mr. Frank Field: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the change in levels of revenue which would accrue if all non-personal tax relief was allowed at the standard rate only. [205163]

Jane Kennedy: Estimates of the revenue impact of changing the rates at which all non-personal tax reliefs are allowed under the relevant tax regimes to the standard rate of income tax are not available. Latest estimated costs of tax expenditures and structural reliefs are published on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/menu.htm

Unfair Practices: Sales Methods

Mr. Evans: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much his Department has spent (a) to raise public awareness of and (b) on consumer protection measures relating to fraud associated with illegal share sales boiler room operations in the last 12 months; [204155]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of cases of fraud involving illegal share sales boiler room operations in 2007. [204156]

Kitty Ussher [holding answer 8 May 2008]: The Treasury does not undertake consumer protection activity or raise awareness of boiler room frauds directly. The Financial Services Authority has a specific statutory objective to protect consumers, which includes advising and protecting investors against boiler room frauds.

Expenditure on the prevention of boiler room fraud cannot be disaggregated from other crime prevention or awareness raising work by the agencies concerned, such as the Home Office, Financial Services Authority or City of London Police.

However, the FSA are able to estimate that the budget for enforcement staff working on unauthorised businesses (of which boiler rooms account for 60 per cent.) numbers 20 staff. They estimate that this will equate to around £20,000 hours at a cost of £650,000 for 2008.

The FSA have in the last 12 months taken part in a total of 11 broadcast media appearances on the issue, including a number of radio interviews and TV appearances on programmes such as the Money Programme and the BBC News at 1. The Police have likewise been working with the media, for example targeting publications that cater to the most at risk groups.

In the last 12 months, the FSA have also opened 250 boiler room inquiries, and the names of 215 boiler room firms have been added to their unauthorised firms list, an average of 18 per month. No estimate of cases of fraud involving boiler room operations in 2007 is available. However, the Office of Fair Trading published a report in December 2006 entitled 'Research on impact of mass marketed seams', which did assess the number of victims of high-risk investment scams more widely. The number of victims of boiler room fraud specifically could not be disaggregated from this total.

VAT: Fuels

Mr. Carmichael: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will consider the merits of (a) suspending and (b) reducing value added tax on domestic fuel to assist low income households with heating costs. [204311]

Jane Kennedy: Supplies of fuel and power for domestic use already benefit from a reduced rate of VAT of 5 per cent. This is the lowest rate available under our VAT agreements with our European partners.

Welfare Tax Credits: Scotland

Mr. Sarwar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many people in Scotland are eligible for (a) working tax credits, (b) child tax credits and (c) pension credits; and what recent estimate he has made of the level of uptake of each credit. [204384]

Jane Kennedy: Estimates of the take-up rate for child and working tax credits in 2005-06, for which latest figures are available, by country and region, are produced in Table 9 of the HMRC publication "Child and Working Tax Credit Take-up rates 2005-06". This publication is available on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-take-up.htm.

We do not produce statistics separately for child tax credit and working tax credit.

Estimates of eligibility and the take-up rate for pension credit are not available below the level of Great Britain. However, latest estimates of take-up rates and the number of pensioners who were entitled to but not claiming pension credit in Great Britain were published in the "Income Related Benefits Estimates of Take-Up in 2005/06" report. A copy of this report is available in the Library.

Mr. Tom Harris: The information requested cannot easily be provided for the whole A14 other than at a disproportionate cost.

A14: Road Traffic

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what estimate she has made of the volume of traffic between each pair of adjacent junctions on the A14 in each year since 1997; and what projections have been made for (a) 2009, (b) 2010, (c) 2011, (d) 2012 and (e) 2013. [204021]

Mr. Tom Harris: Predictive data for the A14 are not held in the format requested.

Bus Services: Concessions

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the Answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 33W, on public transport: concessions, what account was taken of representations relating to those affected by mental health disabilities in determining the eligibility criteria for concessionary bus travel under the Transport Act 2000. [204017]

Ms Rosie Winterton: The Department receives a large number of representations from interest groups during the development of any policy, and due regard is given to each before proposals are finalised. The eligibility criteria contained in the Transport Act 2000 was subject to debate during the passage of that Bill. Also, the Disabled Persons Transport Advisory Committee (DPTAC) was consulted on Government amendments which, among other things, clarified the various categories of disability included on the face of the Bill.

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many occasions she visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [204388]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In the last 12 months, Ministers in this Department have visited Scotland on seven occasions and Wales twice in their official capacities. No visits have been made to Northern Ireland during this period. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the "Ministerial Code".

Departmental Orders and Regulations

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many statutory instruments have been (a) made and (b) revoked by Ministers in her Department and its predecessors since 1997. [204763]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In the period from the creation of the Department for Transport in May 2002 until 31 March 2008 approximately 834 general statutory instruments and 9,512 local statutory instruments were made in the name of the Secretary of State for Transport.

The number of statutory instruments made by Ministers of predecessor Departments, and of statutory instruments revoked, could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Essex

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport on how many occasions she has visited Essex in the last 12 months. [204975]

Jim Fitzpatrick: In the last 12 months, Ministers in this Department have visited Essex on three occasions in their official capacities. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the "Ministerial Code".

Fuels

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what steps the Government has taken to encourage motorists to use greener fuels since 1997. [204547]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The main way that the Government have encouraged the use of alternative fuels since 1997 is through differentials in fuel duty between petrol and diesel and other fuels. There are also incentives through reduced rates of Vehicle Excise Duty for cars that run on certain alternative fuels and registered after 1 March 2001. Vehicles powered wholly by electric power are exempt from VED.

The Government fund the running of an Infrastructure grant programme. The grants assist the building of refuelling stations for alternative fuels (natural gas/biogas, hydrogen and bio-ethanol). It is also funding research and development into battery electric and plug-in hybrid vehicles through a Low Carbon Vehicles Innovation Platform, which brings together funding from the Department for Transport, Technology Strategy Board and the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council. Previously low carbon vehicle research and development funding was provided through the Energy Saving Trust.

The Government have also introduced the Renewable Transport Fuel Obligation (RTFO). The RTFO, which came into effect from 15 April 2008 aims to ensure that sustainable biofuels make up an increasing percentage of total UK road transport fuels, and means that biofuels are starting to become available in low blends at the majority of forecourts in the UK.

The Government previously provided grants through the Powershift and Clean Up programmes to encourage the purchase of low carbon vehicles. However it was clear that the funding levels available would not bring about the required market transformation so the funds were diverted to other environmental transport initiatives.

London Airports

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many times her Department hired VIP facilities at (a) Heathrow, (b) Gatwick, (c) Luton and (d) Stansted airports in each month since May 2006; and what the expenditure on VIP facilities at each was in each of those months. [205147]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Since May 2006, the Department for Transport has hired VIP facilities at the aforementioned airports on one occasion. This occurred at Heathrow in July 2006 where the Department met a delegation of senior officials and a Transport Minister from outside the UK. The cost of hiring the facilities was £269.62.

M69: Repairs and Maintenance

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport when she expects the roadworks taking place on the M69 to be completed and all carriageways re-opened to traffic. [204743]

Mr. Tom Harris: The resurfacing work on the M69 is due to be completed and all carriageways re-opened by the end of the second week in May.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport for what reasons the roadworks taking place on the M69 were carried out concurrently to the roadworks taking place on the M1 motorway near junction 26; and if she will make a statement. [204744]

Mr. Tom Harris: The work currently being undertaken on the M1 near Junction 26 is part of an ongoing major widening scheme; the M69 work is a shorter scale resurfacing scheme. To minimise disruption to road users, the Highways Agency's policy is to ensure, where possible, that concurrent roadworks are not carried out within 10 km of each other. The M1 and M69 schemes comply with that policy, being more than 50 kms apart.

Roads: Accidents

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2008, Official Report, columns 1066-7W, on roads: accidents, how many (a) men and (b) women were killed in car accidents in East Lancashire where at least one driver involved was aged 21 or under and (i) male and (ii) female in each year since 2000. [205544]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The numbers of (a) male and (b) female car occupant fatalities in reported road accidents where the driver was (i) male and (ii) female and aged 21 years or under in East Lancashire in 2000 to 2006 are shown in the table.

Number of fatalities

	0-21 year old male car driver		0-21 year old female car driver
	Male fatality	Female fatality	Male fatality	Female fatality
2000	2	1	0	0
2001	7	0	0	0
2002	4	1	0	0
2003	2	0	0	0
2004	3	0	0	0
2006	1	0	0	0

Shipping: Fees and Charges

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the Government's policy is on the proposal from Norway and Denmark for a charge and fund scheme for international shipping. [204969]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I assume the hon. Member is referring to the proposal from Denmark for a global levy on marine bunker fuel. The Government support the aims and intentions behind the proposal.

The Government are clear that, as shipping volumes continue to grow, the industry must take its share of responsibility for tackling the problem of climate change. We also believe it is vital to investigate all options for reducing emissions from international shipping, including improved technology, better operator practices and market-based measures.

The Government therefore welcome the opportunity to debate the proposal at the forthcoming International Maritime Organization Marine Environment Protection Committee working group on greenhouse gas emissions in Oslo in June, together with the wide range of other ideas on the table.

Trains

Robert Key: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many of the 1,300 extra railway carriages referred to in the high-level output statement published in 2007 have been (a) ordered from manufacturers, (b) delivered and (c) brought into use. [204480]

Transport Appraisal

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what representations she has received on the methodology integral to the New Approach to Transport Appraisal. [205160]

Ms Rosie Winterton [holding answer 12 May 2008]: The Government have recently consulted on a number of matters relating to the New Approach To Appraisal with the document 'The NATA Refresh: Reviewing the New Approach to Appraisal'. The consultation period closed on 31 March 2008 and officials are now reviewing the 101 responses received ahead of the Department's response.

West Coast Railway Line

Mr. Lancaster: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether she expects the West Coast Main Line timetable due to be implemented in December 2008 to be implemented on time. [205335]

Mr. Tom Harris: The current expectation of Network Rail is that the modernisation will be completed in December as scheduled. The Office of Rail Regulation has undertaken a review of the delivery plan of Network Rail and found it to be robust.

Some issues remain to be resolved between Network Rail and passenger and freight train operators in relation to the timings and detail of the possessions needed for the works to take place.

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales whether his Department met the Civil Service diversity targets set out on page 51 of Cabinet Office Annual Report 2007 by April 2008. [204708]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The latest published statistics against overall civil service targets were at October 2007, and are available on the civil service website at:

David Cairns: Nothing.

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland what steps the Calman Commission has taken to (a) publicise its work outside Scotland, (b) obtain evidence from people resident outside Scotland and (c) obtain evidence on (i) the impact Scottish devolution has had on the rest of the United Kingdom and (ii) on the effect that further devolution of powers would have on the rest of the United Kingdom; and if he will make a statement. [205366]

David Cairns: The remit of the Commission on Scottish Devolution was made known in my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Scotland's written ministerial statement of 25 March 2008, Official Report, column 8WS.

It will consult as widely as possible and listen to all voices in Scotland and the rest of the UK. Its work will be published on its website:

throughout the review process.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Crimes of Violence: Children

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many violent crimes where a child under five years was a victim resulted in a conviction in Northern Ireland in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [204664]

Paul Goggins: The information is not available in the format requested. Northern Ireland conviction data do not include victim information in relation to the commission of an offence and violent crimes against children under five years do not constitute separate offences by legislation.

It is only possible to give the number of convictions for those violent offences, which in their definition, refer to a child or children. The data provided in the following table cover the calendar years 2002 to 2006 (the latest available) and are collated on the principal offence rule; so only the most serious offence with which an offender is charged is included.

Arts

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he will publish the schedule for the implementation of the proposals in the McMaster Review of the Arts. [203880]

Margaret Hodge: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for South-West Surrey (Mr. Hunt) on 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1729W.

Consultants

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what payments VisitBritain made to Connect Public Affairs in each of the last five years; on what dates; and for what purpose in each case. [202284]

Margaret Hodge: VisitBritain has provided the following information about the dates, amounts and purpose of payments made by them to Connect Public Affairs during the last five years:

Date	Purpose/Service	Net amount (£)
monthly since November 2006	Political monitoring - daily email plus weekly summary of the week ahead and special reports e.g. on the Budget	850
monthly since November 2006	Office expenses, including phone, photocopying, @ 6.75 per cent. of professional fees	57.38

Internet: Direct Mail

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what steps his Department is taking to reduce the incidence of spam on the internet. [200677]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

The Information Commissioner's Office has responsibility for enforcing the regulations that control unsolicited e-mails (spam) and considers complaints about breaches. A breach of an enforcement notice is a criminal offence that can attract a maximum fine of up to £5,000.

Spam is a global problem and one which, it is estimated, accounts for over 80 per cent. of all internet traffic[1]. Much spam originates outside the UK. For that reason, the steps we can take in the UK to reduce its incidence are limited.

However, my Department has frequent discussions with internet service providers (ISPs) on improving filters and other mechanisms to prevent mischievous traffic reaching their customers, and making end users more aware of the tools available to them to counter spam. Many ISPs have specific spam mail boxes where individuals can report and complain about specific e-mails, as well as offering filtering software which can be used to prevent spam being received.

Internet: Suffolk

Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what percentage of homes in rural Suffolk have access to (a) dial-up internet connections, (b) broadband connections and (c) high-speed broadband connections; [201496]

(2) what estimate he has made of the number of households in Suffolk without access to the internet, broken down by income band. [201494]

Malcolm Wicks: I have been asked to reply.

The matter raised is the responsibility of the independent regulator, the Office of Communications (Ofcom), which is accountable to Parliament rather than Ministers. Accordingly, I have asked the chief executive of Ofcom to reply directly to the hon. Member. Copies of the chief executive's letter will be placed in the Libraries of both Houses.

Theatres: Kent

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what recent assessment he has made of the effect of Arts Council England's regional theatre policy on theatres in Kent. [195143]

Margaret Hodge: Arts Council England is responsible for assessing the impact of its policies on individual art forms.

Arts Council England does recognise the potential effect of its investment strategy on theatre in Kent. The Arts Council is committed to making the highest quality arts available to the widest possible audience throughout Kent and is currently exploring a number of ideas on how best to build theatre activity in the area.

Arts Council England will continue to support organisations such as the New Marlowe in Canterbury, Margate Theatre Royal, Gulbenkian Theatre in Canterbury, and the Trinity Theatre in Tunbridge Wells through a number of schemes including Grants for the Arts, the Arts Councils scheme for funding one off projects to individuals and organisations.

Visual Arts: Finance

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how much his Department spent on art storage in each of the last five years. [204149]

Margaret Hodge: Between 70 per cent. to 75 per cent. of the Government Art Collection's works of art are out on display at any one time. The remaining works available for selection are held at the GAC's premises. A small number of works of art are too large to be housed at the GAC and are in commercial storage. There is an active programme of taking these large works of art out of storage and placing them on display in suitable buildings.

The Government Art Collection spent the following on storage charges in the last five years.

2003-04	7,266.87
2004-05	9,348.28
2005-06	8,507.00

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Catering

Mr. Oaten: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what proportion of chicken served in the House of Commons estate was produced under the RSPCA's Freedom Food scheme in the most recent period for which figures are available; and if the Commission will make it its policy to provide such figures annually. [205255]

Nick Harvey: Since January 2008, the House of Commons Catering Service has secured a supply of chicken produced under the RSPCA's Freedom Food scheme, and this now accounts for almost 40 per cent. of the Department's purchases of fresh chicken meat. The quality, reliability and relative affordability of this supply has enabled the Department to move forward from a position in 2007 when less than 10 per cent. of chicken supplied for the House of Commons restaurants met higher welfare standards consistent with those developed by the RSPCA.

Subject to availability and affordability constraints, the Catering Service aspires to further increase the proportion of higher welfare chicken purchased, and met with representatives of Freedom Food earlier this month to discuss how this might be achieved.

The Commission does not publish detailed food procurement statistics, but the director of Catering and Retail Services will be happy to provide periodic details about the proportion of chicken sourced from RSPCA Freedom Food approved sources. The director has suggested that this could be published as part of a regular update on food provenance issues that is being developed for the Catering and Retail Services intranet pages.

Mr. Oaten: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission what proportion of meat produce served in the House of Commons was Freedom Food-approved in the most recent period for which figures are available. [205256]

Nick Harvey: All fresh meat served in the House of Commons is sourced from producers that demonstrate high levels of animal welfare under an accredited farm assurance scheme such as the 'Red Tractor' scheme, which encompasses 'Assured British Pigs' and 'Assured British Meat'. All pork is free range.

Other than chicken, no meat currently served in the House of Commons restaurants is accredited under the RSPCA's Freedom Foods scheme. However, the director of Catering and Retail Services met with Freedom Food representatives earlier this month to discuss the supply of pork, beef and lamb and to identify ways of working together to establish a supply chain.

Drinking Water

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission how much was spent per day on bottled water on the parliamentary estate in the most recent period for which figures are available. [201264]

Nick Harvey: Daily expenditure on bottled water is not recorded across the parliamentary estate. Annual expenditure by the House of Commons for 2007-08 and an approximate daily cost based on the number of working days in 2007-08 are as follows:

Total cost of purchases for 2007-08	29,866
Approximate daily cost	118.35

In addition, the total cost of bottled water purchased by Catering and Retail Services for sale to customers during the same period was £32,979.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Buckinghamshire and Milton Keynes Fire and Rescue Authority: Finance

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what representations she has received on Buckinghamshire and Milton Keynes Fire and Rescue Authority funding for 2008-09. [204358]

John Healey: The consultation period on the 2008-09 and provisional 2009-10 and 2010-11 local government finance settlements ran between 6 December 2007 and 8 January 2008.

During this consultation period, we received three representations from Buckinghamshire and Milton Keynes Fire and Rescue Authority.

The representations contained points on the population data used in the settlements, transitional funding and the overall financial settlement.

Construction: Fraud

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the cost to local authorities of collusion, bid rigging or cover pricing by the construction sector in the last five years; and if she will make a statement. [204506]

John Healey: The OFT is currently carrying out an investigation into such allegations in construction in both the public and private sectors. No specific estimate has been made for the cost to local authorities.

Council Tax

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many households are liable for council tax and are not exempt or in receipt of 100 per cent. council tax benefit. [204517]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him on 11 December 2007, Official Report, column 541W.

Data for Wales are available on the Welsh Assembly Government website.

Council Tax: Tax Allowances

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will list each type of local council tax discount introduced by billing authorities under the Local Government Act 2003 in the most recent financial year for which figures are available. [204507]

John Healey: Details of the types of local council tax discount that were being awarded by billing authorities under the Local Government Act 2003 as at 8 October 2007, the latest date for which figures are available, are listed as follows. At this date, 37 authorities reported they were making local council tax discounts to either individuals or a particular class of taxpayer. The discounts shown may have been awarded by one or more authority.

Particular classes of taxpayer or property:

Pensioners;

Properties affected by flooding;

Various classes of empty properties;

Single occupiers who are called up for 28 days or more as members of the reserve forces;

Those to whom, because they have been affected by the change in regulations since a discount was originally awarded, a discount has been awarded so as to not disadvantage them;

Properties that are no one person's sole or main residence where access is restricted;

Occupied and unoccupied furnished properties that do not have the benefit of mains services including beach chalets;

Difficult to let properties;

Taxpayers who can comply with the council's Mooring Policy.

Other discretionary discounts based on individual cases:

Property affected by the proximity of a electricity generating wind turbine;

Hard to sell property;

Problems with a chalk mine;

Property damaged by fire;

RAF personnel where redundancy was delayed owing to events abroad;

New unfinished property;

Hardship.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department and its predecessors spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting were made in each such year. [204106]

Mr. Dhanda: Communities and Local Government spent £2,730 to offset 275 tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalent emissions from its ministerial and official air travel in 2006-07. These figures do not include data from the Department's Executive agencies or the regional Government offices.

This was the first year that the Department offset any emissions. Data are being gathered to offset emissions from air travel undertaken during 2007-08.

The Department currently only offsets emissions from is air travel and does this through the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF).

The GCOF is being managed by EEA Fund Management Ltd., who won the contract to source and deliver 255,000 Certified Emission Reduction Credits, with a provision for a further 50,000 credits, over three years from a range of Clean Development Mechanism (CDM) projects. Credits will be supplied from the project portfolio of Trading Emissions plc, to whom EEA is the investment adviser.

Departmental Computer Software

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many copies of Adobe Acrobat, excluding Adobe Reader software, are licensed to her Department. [203058]

Mr. Dhanda: There are 79 copies of Adobe Acrobat licensed for use within the Department.

Flood Control: Buckingham

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent discussions her Department has had with the Environment Agency on the Buckingham Flood Alleviation Scheme. [204360]

John Healey: My Department has not held any recent meetings with the Environment Agency to discuss the Scheme. However, there may have been discussions held at a regional level on the Buckingham Flood Alleviation Scheme.

Floods: Costs

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate her Department has made of the cost to the (a) public purse, (b) local community and (c) local economy of the flooding in Buckingham of 21 July 2007. [204359]

John Healey: We do not hold information about the total costs to specific local areas of the county. Nor do we hold figures for the financial impact on local economies which is also difficult to quantify. However, the South East Regional Development Agency has reported that 110 businesses were affected across the South East. Only one business in Buckingham applied to the RDA for grant aid and as a result received a payment of £1,382.04.

Infrastructure Planning Commission: Appeals

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what provision for appeals against decisions made by the Infrastructure Planning Commission she plans to put in place; and what role the Planning Inspectorate will play in such procedures. [204182]

John Healey: Under the proposals in the Planning Bill, decisions made by the Infrastructure Planning Commission will be challengeable through a claim for judicial review rather than through an appeal mechanism.

Infrastructure Planning Commission: Pollution

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Infrastructure Planning Commission considers (a) air quality and (b) noise pollution factors in determining major infrastructure planning applications. [204185]

John Healey: Under the proposals in the Planning Bill, when determining major infrastructure applications, the Infrastructure Planning Commission will be required to have regard to the relevant National Policy Statement, other matters which may be set out in secondary legislation and any other matters which the Commission thinks are important and relevant to its decision.

National Policy Statements will be subject to an appraisal of sustainability and will take into account other government policies, including policies on air quality and noise impacts, where they are relevant. The Infrastructure Planning Commission will also have to ensure that relevant provisions of European Community environmental law are complied with, including those covering air quality and noise pollution.

Infrastructure Planning Commission: Public Appointments

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) when she plans to announce the names of members of the Infrastructure Planning Commission; [204183]

(2) when she expects the Infrastructure Planning Commission to commence operation. [204184]

John Healey: Subject to gaining parliamentary approval for the necessary primary legislation, we expect the first appointments to the Infrastructure Planning Commission (IPC) to be made in spring 2009 with the IPC ready to advice applicants later the same year. We expect the IPC to begin determining applications in 2010 and we will be consulting with potential applicants about the appropriate length of time between national policy statements, regulations and guidance being issued and the new regime coming into effect.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what consideration she will give to expertise in (a) air quality and (b) noise pollution in planning decisions relating to road or aviation infrastructure when making appointments to the Infrastructure Planning Commission. [204187]

John Healey: The White Paper "Planning for a Sustainable Future" stated that commissioners would be appointed from a wide range of fields such as national and local government, community engagement, planning, law, engineering, economics, business, security, environment, heritage and health, as well as, if necessary, specialist technical expertise related to a particular sector.

Leisure: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government for what reason the hon. Member for Warrington North was not (a) notified of or (b) invited to her briefing on the Orford Park Project. [205257]

Mr. Dhanda: I understand that Warrington borough council made a request to meet the Regional Minister for the North West in the margins of a conference she was attending, in order to brief her on the Orford Park Project. This meeting was arranged on the afternoon of Wednesday 7 May.

In accordance with paragraph 10.9 of the ministerial code, the hon. Member was notified about, and invited to the event on Thursday the 8 May, via the Private Office of the Regional Minister for the North West.

Local Authorities: Culture

Mr. Vaizey: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what guidance her Department has issued to local authorities on the production of local cultural strategies; and whether such strategies are submitted to her Department. [200298]

Mr. Dhanda: Councils are no longer required to produce or submit free-standing local cultural strategies. Instead they are expected to subsume planning for the longer-term cultural priorities for their area within their broader Sustainable Community Strategy. This approach is in line with a wider process of devolving greater freedoms to councils—in part by reducing the number of statutory plans they were required to produce.

Guidance on how best to achieve this expectation was issued by the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in June 2004 entitled "Leading the good life: guidance on integrating cultural and community strategies".

Guidance on Sustainable Community Strategies was first issued in 2000. This has since been updated in draft form as part of a broader package of guidance also covering, for example, Local Strategic Partnerships and Local Area Agreements. This guidance, entitled "Creating Strong, Safe and Prosperous Communities", was issued in draft on 30 November 2007. Following a public consultation on this guidance which closed on 12 February we will be issuing the final guidance this summer. This guidance states that > 'The purpose of a Sustainable Community Strategy is to set the overall strategic direction and long-term vision for the economic, social and environmental wellbeing of a local area'

(see paragraph 3.1). Sustainable Community Strategies continue to be required to be produced by local councils but are not submitted to the Government.

Local Government Finance

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what information her Department holds on local authorities' equity to debt ratios; and what guidance her Department provides to local authorities on appropriate levels for those ratios. [204641]

John Healey: Communities and Local Government collects data on the amount and nature of local authority borrowing, lending and investments to varying levels. Analyses of these data are published. The Department is also currently collecting data that could be used to calculate local authority equity (the difference between their assets and liabilities) as part of the Whole of Government Accounts exercise, but this exercise is still in its experimental phase.

By statute local authorities' debt is secured on their revenues and not their assets. The Department does not therefore provide guidance on equity to debt ratios for local authorities. We have, however, given statutory backing to the Prudential Code issued by the Chartered Institute of Public Finance and Accountancy on the affordability of borrowing by local authorities, and to the Institute's code of practice on treasury management as it applies to local authorities.

Regional Planning and Development

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer to the hon. Member for Peterborough of 3 April 2008, Official Report, column 1275W, on regional planning and development, if she will place in the Library a copy of each development plan independent examination report published by a planning inspector appointed by the Secretary of State to date since the coming into force of the 2004 Act. [202482]

Mr. Iain Wright: A copy of each of the 68 reports provided on completed development plan document examinations will be deposited in the Library of the House.

Regional Planning and Development: South East

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will ensure that her proposed changes to the South East plan are published before 25 June 2008. [203192]

Mr. Dhanda: The Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government intends to publish her Proposed Changes to Regional Spatial Strategy for the South East before the summer recess.

I am sure the hon. Lady will understand that because of the nature of the work under way and the importance of the matters under consideration it would not be wise to commit, as she requests, to a more definitive timeframe.

Tenants: Deposits

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department plans to take to increase awareness of the tenancy deposit protection scheme among (a) tenants and (b) landlords. [205364]

Mr. Iain Wright: The Department was involved in an extensive publicity campaign in the run-up to the launch and immediately after the scheme's introduction. We will continue to encourage the three tenancy deposit protection scheme providers to promote awareness of the requirements to landlords. We also encourage consumer organisations, such as the Citizens' Advice Bureau and Shelter, to help increase tenants' awareness.

Greg Mulholland: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many and what percentage of landlords of assured short hold tenancy property to which tenancy deposit protection applies have registered with the tenancy protection schemes established under contracts let by her Department. [205365]

Mr. Iain Wright: Over one million deposits for tenants with assured shorthold tenancies have been protected since tenancy deposit protection provisions commenced in April 2007. We do not hold a breakdown of the number or percentage of landlords this represents.

Valuation Office: Local Authorities

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many times the Valuation Office Agency's Local Authority Liaison Group met in the last 36 months. [204496]

John Healey: The Local Authority Liaison Group has met eight times in the last 36 months.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many local authorities routinely submit CR10 reports to the Valuation Office Agency. [204497]

John Healey: In the three years to 2007-08 CR10 reports have been registered for all billing authorities.

Valuation Office: Publications

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library copies of the Valuation Office Agency's Billing Authority Newsletter from the last 36 months. [204495]

John Healey: The Valuation Office does not produce a central newsletter for Billing Authorities.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Air Pollution: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many sites in (a) Castle Point constituency and (b) constituencies adjacent to Castle Point monitor air quality. [204697]

Jonathan Shaw: The are no national air quality monitoring sites within Castle Point constituency, although we are aware of the local authority monitoring site at Furtherwick Park School on Canvey Island. This is in the London Air Quality Monitoring Network, and is managed by King's College London.

There are two national air quality monitoring sites in constituencies close to Castle Point. These are at Chalkwell Park in Southend-on-Sea, and at Abbott's Hall Close in Stanford-le-Hope.

Further information on the national air quality monitoring networks can be found on the National Air Quality Information Archive at:

www.airquality.co.uk

Angling: Licensing

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 29 April 2008, Official Report, columns 280-81W, on angling: licensing, what steps the Environment Agency is taking to improve disabled and senior anglers access to angling; and if he will make a statement. [204091]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 8 May 2008]: In 2007-08, £393,000 of Environment Agency funding was provided to 37 projects involving improved access. Together with partner contributions of £665,000 this resulted in a total spend of £1.058 million.

The Environment Agency collaborated with the British Disabled Angling Association to produce comprehensive "Access Guidelines for Fisheries" on how to improve access for disabled anglers. This provides a reference point for all fishery owners on the design and issues of improving access for all.

In 2008-09, subject to achieving licence sales targets, an additional £300,000 has been allocated to improving access, giving a projected spend of £600,000. The new work includes a joint programme with representatives of Disabled Angling groups of over 100 projects to identify where access can be improved for disabled anglers in particular. There will be additional access improvements projects delivered on the ground with fishery owners.

Since 2006, the Environment Agency has produced free Angling Guides in paper and internet format. This provides information on the location of publicly accessible fisheries and whether these cater for disabled anglers.

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 29 April 2008, Official Report, columns 280-81W, on angling: licensing, what proportion of the monies raised by higher duty rates will be used to improve access to angling for disabled and senior anglers. [204092]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 8 May 2008]: The Environment Agency spends £2 million each year on fisheries improvement projects, of which £300,000 is nominally allocated to improve access.

The forecast increased income arising from the concessionary change will be around £600,000. Subject to licence sales targets being achieved and suitable fisheries owners coming forward to work with them, it is anticipated that up to £300,000 (50 per cent.) of this extra income will be used in 2008-09 to undertake new work. This will provide a total spend of £600,000 on access improvement by the Environment Agency and its partners.

Biofuels: Research

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the value was of grants made by his Department for research into biofuels since 1 January 2006; and to which organisations they were given. [204990]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA's bio-energy R and D focuses on the genetic improvement and selection of biomass crops such as willow and miscanthus. Current spend is about £900,000 per year, which provides underpinning R and D for both second generation biofuels and solid biomass for energy. Other relevant work is being funded jointly with industry to breed wheat and oilseed rape varieties that require reduced fertiliser inputs (£331,000 in 2008-09 and approximately £814,000 in 2006-07 and 2007-08 combined).

It is difficult to separate out the work exclusively on biofuels, but a specific project was funded in 2007 to assess 'Greenhouse gas emissions and environmental sustainability of international biofuels production and use' (£37,000).

Organisations funded by DEFRA since 2006 are Aberystwyth university (IBERS), Rothamsted Research, AEA Technology, the National Institute of Agricultural Botany (NIAB), Warwick HRI and ADAS.

DEFRA, through the International Sustainable Development Fund, are also funding two (desk) studies into Brazilian biofuels and their sustainability. One is by the university of Campinas, into bioethanol, and the other is by the university of Sao Paulo, into biodiesel. They are around £50,000 each.

Bovine Tuberculosis: Disease Control

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he will decide his policy on whether to cull badgers to combat bovine tuberculosis; and if he will make a statement. [204659]

Jonathan Shaw: There is no timetable for a decision on this issue. There is a great deal of complex evidence to consider and the matter is receiving our attention.

Coastal Areas: Rights of Way

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the likely impact that an extension of coastal access will have on (a) rural business owners and (b) landowners. [204896]

Jonathan Shaw: An Impact Assessment of proposals to improve access to the English coast has been carried out. It was published along with the draft Marine Bill on 3 April 2008 and is available on DEFRA's website.

Departmental Retirement

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much is planned to be spent on his Department's voluntary retirement scheme in each of the first three years of its existence. [194800]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 19 March 2008]: This Department's 2007-08 voluntary early departure scheme is not a multi-annual scheme but was open for applications between September 2007 and January 2008 with provision set aside in this financial year for any payments to retirees, consequent on their departure under this scheme, which might fall in future years. It immediately followed a previous voluntary early departure scheme which ran from December 2006 to July 2007.

It is estimated that during financial years 2006-07 and 2007-08 this Department will have spent £14.8 million and £49 million, respectively, on the funding of voluntary early departures under either scheme. There are currently no plans to launch further voluntary early departure schemes.

The forecast core DEFRA paybill savings for the CSR07 period due to early departures via the two schemes of VER/S are:

	£ million
2007-08	10
2008-09	17.2
2009-10	17.8
2010-11	18.5

For the Rural Payments Agency the estimated costs during the financial year 2006-07 was a credit of £0.074 million, this was due to a reduction in the provision for exit costs as a result of some staff from 2005-06 withdrawing from their arrangements. In 2007-08 the estimated cost is £1.062 million.

Dredging: North Sea

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the impact on the East Coast of dredging for aggregates in the North Sea, with particular reference to the impact on coastal sea defences; and whether aggregates obtained from dredging of riverbeds and main watercourses are used by the construction industry. [204586]

Jonathan Shaw: Marine minerals dredging in English waters is carefully controlled through the Environmental Impact Assessment and Natural Habitats (Extraction of Minerals by Marine Dredging) (England and Northern Ireland) Regulations 2007. All marine mineral dredging applications are required to assess the physical effects of the proposed dredging operation and its implications for coastal erosion by way of a Coastal Impact Study (CIS). A permission to dredge will only be issued if the regulator (the Marine and Fisheries Agency (MFA) on behalf of the Secretary of State), their advisors, consultees and major stakeholders are content that the proposed dredging is environmentally acceptable. In making this judgment the precautionary principle is always adopted and should the CIS show a potential to contribute to coastal erosion a permission would not be issued.

Modelling and field studies on the impact of both individual offshore dredging licences and of the cumulative impacts of such licences have concluded that UK offshore dredging has not contributed to coastal erosion. There may be a potential impact on the coastline in relation to estuary and near-shore dredging for navigation purposes. However, in these cases, there is a clear need to balance economic and social imperatives of continued port operations with any environmental impact.

Disposal of navigational dredgings in tidal waters is licensed under the Food and Environment Protection Act (FEPA) 1985. Before any licence can be issued for disposal, consideration must be made as to whether alternate waste management options are possible, including re-use. FEPA licences are not normally granted where practicable alternative means of recovery or disposal exist. We are working with the industry to secure ways to ensure the arisings of appropriate dredging spoil are more closely linked to suitable construction projects where re-use would not entail excessive costs.

There have been a number of examples where materials that are to be dredged for navigational reasons have been diverted to alternative use, including for construction, land reclamation and for landscape bunding etc. For example, the Port of Southampton disposed of, for commercial use, a significant quantity of sand dredged from their navigational channels and the proposed London Gateway port development envisages using some 25 million tonnes of dredged materials for land-raising/ landscaping works. It is not uncommon for port authorities to make available suitable dredged materials for use in maintaining beaches and inter-tidal areas. Harwich Haven Authority has previously entered into various agreements with local coast defence authorities to re-use suitable sand for beach replenishment.

DEFRA continues to fund research into alternative uses of dredged material to improve understanding of how these can be used and, with its Marine and Fisheries Agency which regulates disposal of marine dredgings, are engaged with the Central Dredging Association (CEDA) to promote and increase beneficial use of materials.

Energy Supply: Carbon Emissions

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent meetings he has had with energy suppliers on the carbon dioxide emissions reduction target. [204298]

Mr. Woolas: I attended a meeting at No. 11 Downing street with energy suppliers, ministerial colleagues and advisors on 24 April where among other issues, CERT was discussed.

Energy: EU Law

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what timetable has been set for the implementation of Lot 1 of the Energy-using Products Directive. [205442]

Joan Ruddock: The Commission has not yet set a formal timetable for bringing forward the implementing measure on Lot 1 of the Energy-using Products Directive, but has indicated that it expects the measure to go to the Regulatory Committee for a vote towards the end of 2008 or beginning of 2009.

Environment Agency: Consultants

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what payments the Environment Agency made to Zennor Consulting Ltd in each of the last three years; and on what date and for what purpose each such payment was made. [204532]

Mr. Woolas: The following table shows transactions paid by the Environment Agency to Zennor Consulting Ltd in the 2006-07 financial year. It has no recorded transactions with Zennor Consulting Ltd in either 2005-06 or 2007-08.

Environment Protection: Dogger Bank

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will propose the Dogger Bank as an offshore special area of conservation under the EU Habitats Directive; and if he will make a statement. [204639]

Jonathan Shaw: Dogger Bank has been identified as a draft Special Area of Conservation (SAC) under the Habitats Directive Annex III Stage 1 selection criteria. Draft SACs are areas that have been formally advised to the UK Government as suitable for selection as SACs, but have not been formally approved by the Government as sites for public consultation.

Further information in support of the recommendation for Dogger Bank is currently being gathered. Only after the necessary evidence has been collected can a recommendation be made.

EU Solidarity Fund

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs when he expects to receive the £120 million allocated to the UK by the EU Solidarity Fund. [203826]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

The Government are in the process of finalising the arrangements for the receipt of the funding and we expect to receive this shortly.

The UK applied to the EU Solidarity Fund last August, and it was confirmed by the European Parliament in April that €162.4 million (£110 million) would be provided to the UK to help meet the costs of recovering from the summer 2007 floods.

Flood Control

Mr. Peter Ainsworth: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made on flood defence schemes announced for construction in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [204669]

Mr. Woolas [holding answer 9 May 2008]: I have asked the chief executive of the Environment Agency to write with this information.

Pollution Control: EC Action

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the costs of pollution prevention and control permits in other EU member states for benchmarking purposes; and if he will make a statement. [204524]

Mr. Woolas: My Department does not hold any information of the costs of pollution prevention and control (PPC) permits in other EU member states. Directive 2008/1/EC concerning integrated pollution prevention and control (codified version) is silent on the subject of member states charging for PPC permits. Some member states may not charge for IPPC permit applications, but may recover varying proportions of their costs from the regulated industry, while others bear the cost in general taxation. This is a political decision for each national Government. The differing practices which are in place make it difficult to make comparisons of the costs of PPC permits across the EU. In England and Wales regulators are required, in accordance with HMT guidance and the 'Polluter Pays Principle', to recover the costs of regulation from those they regulate.

Rights of Way

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many wardens as defined by section 18 of the Countryside Rights of Way Act 2000 have been appointed in (a) each region and (b) each local authority area since 2001. [204893]

Jonathan Shaw: This information is not centrally held and could be gathered only at a disproportionate cost.

Seas and Oceans: Environment Protection

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1371-2W, which (a) special areas of conservation with marine components and (b) special protection areas with marine components in UK inshore waters listed on the Joint Nature Conservation Council website are not included on the European Commission's equivalent lists; and for what reasons in each case. [204477]

Jonathan Shaw: Special Areas of Conservation (SACs) and Special Protection Areas (SPAs) together form a network of Natura 2000 sites to protect habitats and species of European importance. SACs are designated under the EC Habitats Directive (Council Directive 92/43/EEC on the Conservation of natural habitats and of wild fauna and flora) and SPAs are designated under the EC Wild Birds Directive (Council Directive 79/409/EEC on the conservation of wild birds).

Sites in the UK that meet the qualifying criteria under the relevant directive are identified by the Joint Nature Conservation Council (JNCC) and are recommended to the Government for submission to the EC for adoption as SACs or SPAs respectively. The lists of Marine SACs and SPAs which appear on the JNCC website therefore correspond with those held on the EC's equivalent lists.

Waste Disposal: Fees and Charges

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department and its agencies have commissioned, funded or utilised on the social impact of charging for the collection of household waste. [204484]

Joan Ruddock: The final report to DEFRA by Eunomia Consulting entitled "Modelling the Impact of Household Charging for Waste in England" reviewed a range of research including on the social impacts of charging for the collection of household waste.

The Government's Impact Assessment for powers to pilot local authority incentives for household waste minimisation and recycling also drew on a range of research on amounts of waste produced by households of different sizes, and income data for households of different sizes.

Waste Management

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many individuals have been issued with fixed penalty notices for breaching (a) no side and (b) closed lid waste collection policies since such notices were introduced. [204490]

Joan Ruddock: Powers for local authorities to issue fixed penalty notices for offences relating to waste receptacles were introduced in April 2006. In 2006-07 local authorities in England issued 988 fixed penalty notices for offences of this nature. Data for 2007-08 will be available later this year. DEFRA does not collect information that would enable a breakdown of these figures to identify the numbers of fixed penalty notices issued specifically for breaches of side waste or closed lid collection policies.

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what initial assessment he has made of the effects of site waste management plans on waste management practices. [204654]

Joan Ruddock: Site Waste Management Plans (SWMPs) were first introduced as a voluntary code of practice in July 2004. The latest assessment of their effects was produced by DEFRA by the Building Research Establishment. This was published on the Construction Waste page of DEFRA's website in February 2008.

New regulations became effective on 6 April 2008 and make SWMPs mandatory for construction projects exceeding a £300,000 project cost. An assessment of their effects will be made within three years of this date.

Whales: Iceland

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions the Prime Minister had with the Prime Minister of Iceland on 24 April on the resumption of commercial whaling by Iceland; and if he will make a statement. [204852]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 12 May 2008]: I did not attend the meeting on 24 April. However, at this meeting my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister reiterated the UK's strong opposition to whaling. The Prime Minister of Iceland was left in no doubt as to the strength of feeling in the UK on the issue.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

BAE Systems

Roger Berry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what meetings (a) he and (b) Ministers in his Department have had with legal representatives of BAE Systems since 10 April 2008. [203903]

Malcolm Wicks: Neither my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State nor his ministerial team have met with BAE Systems lawyers.

Berkeley Power Station

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what consideration he has given to options for future uses of the former Berkeley Nuclear Laboratories site, Gloucestershire; and which organisations have been commissioned by his Department to undertake evaluation of those options. [201299]

Malcolm Wicks: I understand the question to refer to the Berkeley Centre, which is a de-licensed part of the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority's Berkeley site. The NDA have appointed King Sturge to market the Berkeley Centre site.

Construction: Cartels

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform under what legislation construction industry cartels are prohibited; what prosecutions have been undertaken in cases where legal proceedings have been completed against (a) individuals and (b) companies for acting as a cartel in each of the last five years for which figures are available; and if he will make a statement. [203543]

Mr. Thomas: Cartels are prohibited under the Competition Act 1998 and the Enterprise Act 2002 allows for prosecutions against individuals involved in cases acting in a cartel. There have been no prosecutions of individuals in the last five years, however three individuals have recently been charged and are awaiting a court hearing in respect of a cartel involving marine hoses and ancillary equipment. As the criminal cartel offence applies only to individuals, no company has been prosecuted. However, 13 decisions in civil proceedings have been made against 166 companies in relation to breaches of the Chapter 1 prohibition of the Competition Act 1998 (anti-competitive agreements) since 2003.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his policy is on offering rewards to members of the public for information about alleged illegal cartels in the construction industry; what legislation governs this; how many calls the cartels hotline has received; and how many (a) prosecutions and (b) convictions resulted from information provided in such calls in each year since the hotline's inception. [203544]

Mr. Thomas: On 29 February 2008, the OFT announced a policy under which it will pay financial rewards of up to £100,000 in return for information which helps it to identify and take action against illegal cartels. Rewards will be paid only where information is accurate, verifiable and proves to be useful in the OFT's anti-cartel enforcement work. Any reward is calculated according to a set formula and not subject to negotiation. This policy will run for an initial period of 18 months, after which a decision will be made whether this should be a permanent arrangement. This is an extra-statutory policy and applies to all industries, including but not limited to the construction industry. The OFT announcement can be found a the following web link:

www.oft.gov.uk/news/press/2008/31-08

The OFT has recorded 227 calls on its cartel hotline since 2001. To date none of these calls have resulted in a prosecution or conviction, although the material of some calls is the subject of on going investigations.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many construction firms were (a) investigated and (b) prosecuted for (i) bid rigging and (ii) cover pricing in each of the last 10 years for which information is available. [203560]

Mr. Thomas: 31 roofing contractors were investigated and fined by the OFT for bid rigging, which also included the practice of cover pricing. A further 112 construction firms are the subject of a current OFT investigation into bid rigging including the practice of cover pricing. No infringement decisions or fines have yet been issued as each firm under investigation has recently been issued with a Statement of Objection which sets out the OFT's formal allegations and evidence. Each firm has been given the opportunity to respond to the Statement.

The OFT received evidence of cover pricing implicating many more companies on thousands of tender processes, but has focused its investigation on approximately 240 alleged infringements which are being pursued in the Statement of Objections. The OFT has used objective selection criteria in order to focus the investigation, based on evidence received up to the point when it closed the door to further leniency applications, including the number of times a company was discovered allegedly to have infringed the Competition Act 1998.

Construction: Contracts

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what legislation regulates competitive tendering in the construction industry; what changes have been made to it since enactment; and if he will make a statement. [203562]

Mr. Thomas: There is no legislation which specifically regulates competitive tendering in the construction industry. Construction is covered by generic procurement and competition legislation. In terms of procurement, construction is regulated by the Public Contracts Regulations 2006 (Statutory Instrument 2006 No 5) which implements the EU public procurement directive. A further set of rules (Utilities Contracts Regulations 2006—SI 2006 No 6) applies to relevant operators (both public and private) in the utilities sector when they wish to procure works or services. For projects above certain financial thresholds, these set out procedures to be followed in setting out specifications, selection of candidates and the award of the contract. They are intended to enforce the EC treaty principles of transparency and free movement of goods and services.

Construction: Fines

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on which occasions the Office of Fair Trading imposed penalties on construction companies in each of the last five years; what penalty was imposed; on which company each was imposed; for what reasons each was imposed; to what purpose the fines received have been put; and if he will make a statement. [203561]

Mr. Thomas: 31 roofing contractors have been fined in respect of bid rigging, in breach of Chapter 1 of the Competition Act 1998. The following table shows those companies concerned and the specific level of fine imposed. The level of fines imposed include any reduction for leniency, in accordance with the OFT's penalties guidance whereby reductions, or in certain circumstances complete immunity from fines are available in return for significant cooperation with the OFT's investigation. Total fines imposed amounted to £2,555,547 and were paid into the Consolidated Fund for use by HM Treasury to their own policy objectives.

Consumer Direct: Finance

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the budgeted operating cost for Consumer Direct will be in (a) 2009-10, (b) 2010-11 and (c) 2011-12. [203912]

Mr. Thomas: The budget has not been set. The OFT works on a year-by-year basis and the figure for 2009-10 will not be determined until later this financial year.

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many people were serving on the boards of the non-departmental public bodies which his Department sponsors at the latest date for which figures are available. [203731]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 7 May 2008]: The Cabinet Office publication Public bodies 2007 lists the number of people serving on the boards of public bodies as at 31 March 2007. These figures are broken down by individual Departments. The figure for the Department is 864. Public bodies 2007 can be downloaded from www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp. Copies are also available in the Library of the House.

Disabled

Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what targets his Department has set in relation to its employment of people with disabilities over the next five years. [199055]

Mr. Thomas: Departmental targets relating to the employment of people with disabilities, to be achieved by April 2008, are as follows:

Progress towards numerical targets

				1 April 2008		10 point plan target		BERR target
	10 point plan target (%)	BERR target (%)	Number minority staff	Number of staff at Band	Current %age	Number of staff required to meet target	Difference	Number of staff required to meet target	Difference

Band C disabled	None set	None set	59	1,014	6	—	—	—	—

10 Point Plan for a Diverse Civil Service, published in November 2005, set a target that 3.2 per cent. of Senior Civil Service (SCS) posts are to be filled by disabled people by April 2008. Final measurements of achievement against this target will be available by October 2008.

The Department is in the process of agreeing a Diversity Strategy for the period April 2008 to March 2011. An appropriate target for the representation of people with disabilities is currently under consideration.

13 per cent. of staff responding to the November 2007 Staff Opinion Survey reported that they had a disability or long term health condition.

Energy Supply

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with National Grid on the supply of electricity in the UK during summer months. [204290]

Malcolm Wicks: BERR officials met National Grid on 9 April 2008 to discuss its Summer Outlook Report 2008, which covers the supply of electricity during the summer months.

The Summer Outlook Report was launched on 15 April 2008 and can be accessed via the following link:

http://www.ofgem.gov.uk/Pages/MoreInformation.aspx@docid=1&refer=Markets/WhlMkts/CustandIndustry/Outlook.

Energy: Housing

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans he has to assist low income households with the rising costs of fuel for heating. [204523]

Malcolm Wicks: We are concerned about the impact of higher prices on vulnerable people and we continue to encourage energy suppliers to adopt initiatives to restrict price rises for the most vulnerable.

In Budget 2008, the Government said they would like to see the amount energy suppliers spend on social programmes increase to at least £150 million a year over the period ahead. A new voluntary agreement has recently been signed individually with the six major energy suppliers to treble their individual investment on social programmes in the next three years, reaching collective investment of £150 million by 2010-11. This will take spend to £100 million in 2008-09, £125 million in 2009-10 and £150 million in 2010-11.

In addition, winter fuel payments helped keep 11.7 million people warm in winter 2006-07 and Budget 2008 announced an additional one-off payment of £100 to over-80s households and £50 to over-60s households in 2008-09.

Energy: Meters

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) funded on the interoperability of communication platforms for the introduction of smart meters; [201890]

(2) what discussions he has had with suppliers of (a) energy and (b) water smart meters to co-ordinate their provision of services to households. [201893]

Malcolm Wicks: My Department's draft Impact Assessment recognises the role that providing smart metering to gas and electricity customers could play in facilitating wider policy goals, including water conservation. The scope for providing additional services, including water metering, is among the issues we shall explore as we refine our Impact Assessment with interested parties over the coming months. Last year, my Department commissioned economic analysis of a range of issues associated with smart metering, including interoperability and telecommunications. This analysis, by Mott MacDonald, has now been published, and has also informed our Impact Assessment. We will undertake more analysis over the coming months.

In the meantime, powers have been included in the Energy Bill to enable the Secretary of State to modify relevant gas and electricity licences to require the provision and installation, or facilitate the provision and installation of, smart meters. These powers will enable a roll out of advanced meters to medium sized businesses in the first instance (as announced in 2008 Budget). Subject to further ongoing analysis these powers would enable us to move forward with a roll out to small businesses and domestic consumers when we have the information to make these decisions.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with (a) the Local Government Association, (b) energy suppliers, (c) housing developers and (d) major energy users on the introduction of smart meters. [201891]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has held discussions with a range of interested parties over about smart meters. The Office of Government Commerce has been in discussion with local authorities as part of its work to promote the provision of advanced metering in public buildings operated by both central and local government. The Government's consultation on metering and billing was open to all groups, including large energy users. The largest energy users will, however, already use half-hourly electricity, or daily-read gas, meters. Over 200,000 larger sites below these categories will receive advanced meters under the proposals that were confirmed in the Budget 2008.

In the meantime, powers have been included in the Energy Bill to enable the Secretary of State to modify relevant gas and electricity licences to require the provision and installation, or facilitate the provision and installation of, smart meters. These powers will enable a roll out of advanced meters to medium sized businesses in the first instance (as announced in 2008 Budget). Subject to further ongoing analysis these powers would enable us to move forward with a roll out to small businesses and domestic consumers when we have the information to make these decisions.

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to his oral statement of 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 333, if he will place in the Library a copy of the study undertaken on behalf of his Department by Mott MacDonald on the costs and benefits of smart metering. [204024]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 8 May 2008]: A copy of the report by Mott MacDonald, "Appraisal Costs and Benefits of Smart Meter Roll Out Options", has been placed in the Library. The report is also available on the BERR website at:

www.berr.gov.uk/files/file45997.pdf

Energy: Skilled Workers

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps the Government is taking to ensure that the UK has enough skilled people to work in the (a) nuclear waste industries and (b) the energy efficiency and renewable energy sectors. [202514]

Malcolm Wicks: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 874W.

Fuels: Prices

Jo Swinson: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of (a) the average household fuel bill and (b) the average household fuel bill as a proportion of household income in the latest period for which figures are available, broken down by region. [204554]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 9 May 2008]: Estimates for this response are based on data collected through the Expenditure and Food Survey. The average household fuel bill and average disposable income are available in the Family Spending 2007 publication, available online at:

http://www.statistics.gov.uk/downloads/theme_social/Family_Spending_200607/FamilySpending2007_web.pdf

This shows detailed household expenditure by UK countries and Government office regions in 2006 and the following has been derived from table A37 and A44.

Furniture: Standards

Mrs. Moon: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many incidents of sales of dangerous and substandard furniture have been investigated by the Scambuster pilots since 2006. [201985]

Mr. Thomas: The Scambuster pilots have investigated two incidents of alleged dangerous or substandard furniture. 161 pieces of furniture were seized as a result of investigations although those tested complied with the Furniture and Furnishing (Fire) (Safety) Regulations 1998. A further sample of cushions failed the Regulations.

Internet: Data Protection

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform if he will bring forward legislative proposals to prohibit the re-publication without the subject's permission of images of persons posted on social networking sites; and if he will make a statement. [199411]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 21 April 2008]: The use of computerised personal information in the United Kingdom is regulated by the Data Protection Act 1998. The Information Commissioner who administers and enforces the Act independently of the Government. The Act does not prohibit the dissemination of personal data to third parties, including via the internet, but it regulates the circumstances in which this can take place through a code of enforceable good practice principles. Among other things, they require personal data to be processed fairly and lawfully, obtained only for specified and lawful purposes, and not further processed incompatibly with those purposes.

Any directly affected person may ask the Information Commissioner to assess whether it is likely or unlikely that any processing of personal data has been or is being earned out in compliance with the Act. If the Commissioner concludes that any of the Act's principles are being breached, it is open to him to take enforcement action against the organisation concerned.

Manufactured Goods: Production

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the report by the Office for National Statistics into the volume of output in the UK's production industries in the first quarter of 2008; and if he will make a statement. [202912]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 6 May 2008]: According to the ONS, seasonally adjusted production sector output fell by 0.1 per cent. in the first quarter of 2008 compared to the last quarter of 2007. Manufacturing sector output grew 0.5 per cent. in 2008 Q1—up on the previous quarter's growth in the sector, and the highest quarterly volume of manufacturing output since the first quarter of 2001—but this was offset by falls on the quarter in mining and quarrying output, and electricity, gas and water supply output. However, the figures for 2008 Q1 are preliminary estimates, subject to revision as more information becomes available.

Total production output was 0.7 per cent. higher in the first quarter of 2008 compared to the corresponding quarter in the previous year. Within the total production sector, both manufacturing and electricity, gas and water output increased in the year to the first quarter of 2008, by 1.2 per cent. and 1.7 per cent. respectively, while mining and quarrying output fell by 5.1 per cent. over the same period.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he expects the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State to respond to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire, dated 19 March 2008, on online privacy. [202392]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 29 April 2008]: I apologise for the delay in responding to the hon. Member. A reply will be issued shortly.

Mobile Phones

Chris Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations his Department has received from mobile network operators on mobile number portability. [201835]

Malcolm Wicks: All the mobile phone network operators meet with BERR officials and Ministers on a regular basis to discuss all types of mobile phone related issues. I am aware that some operators are not comfortable with the arrangements concerning mobile number portability, clearly these matters are commercially sensitive and we are not able to comment on company specific policy.

Chris Bryant: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of whether UKPorting will meet the September 2009 deadline set by Ofcom to ensure that the time taken to move a telephone number between mobile telephone operators is reduced to two hours. [201836]

Malcolm Wicks: At present we have not made our own assessment on whether the deadline set by Ofcom to ensure that the time taken to move a telephone number between mobile telephone operators is reduced to two hours will be met. Pending an ongoing Competition Appeals Tribunal investigation into this issue on 18 June 2008, it would be inappropriate to provide any comment until after that appeal has been heard.

Motor Vehicles: Fuels

Mr. David Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment his Department has made of the effectiveness of ultracapacitors as a power source for road vehicles. [204117]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department has made no assessment of the effectiveness of ultracapacitors as a power source for road vehicles. However, a pre-competitive research project on development of super capacitors as a means of energy storage for hybrid vehicles, entitled 'SuperC', was funded as part of the Foresight Vehicle programme, and concluded in 2002. Details of the project can be found on the Department for Transport website at:

http://www.dft.gov.uk/rmd/project.asp?intProjectID-7978.

It is now for project partners to seek commercial applications for any resulting technologies.

Nuclear Power

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer of 2 April 2008, Official Report, column 1078W, on nuclear power, from which elements and components the 10 per cent. discount rate is derived; and what value is assigned to each. [204595]

Malcolm Wicks: The choice of a 10 per cent. discount rate was based on its use in a number of studies of costs across nuclear and other electricity generation technologies by the International Energy Agency and other organisations. The rate has not been disaggregated in any way into component parts. Sensitivity analysis was, however, carried out to observe the impact of using both higher and lower discount rates.

Office of Fair Trading

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what (a) primary and (b) secondary legislation governs the powers of the Office of Fair Trading; what changes have been made to each since their entry into force; and if he will make a statement. [203542]

Mr. Thomas: The primary legislation that governs the Office of Fair Trading's (OFT) powers in relation to competition law and enforcement are:

(i) The Competition Act 1998 ("the Act"). The OFT is responsible for enforcing the prohibitions contained in the Act which outlaw anti-competitive agreements and abuses of a dominant position within a market. The Act also empowers the OFT to obtain information, enter premises to conduct investigations, make interim and final decisions and impose financial penalties.

(ii) The Enterprise Act 2002 provides the OFT with powers in relation to the regulatory control of mergers, market investigations and to the enforcement of the cartel offence and certain consumer legislation.

Further powers given to the OFT under secondary legislation are:

(i) Competition Act 1998 (Office of Fair Trading Rules) Order 2004 which outlines the procedural rules followed by OFT in carrying out investigations under the Competition Act 1998.

(ii) EC Regulation 1/2003, which came into force May 2004, gives the OFT the power to enforce the prohibitions against anti-competitive agreements and abuses of a dominant position which may affect trade between EU member states. This regulation is about the implementation of the rules on competition laid down in Articles 81 and 82 of the treaty of Rome.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many press office staff were employed by (a) his Department, (b) its agencies and (c) its non-departmental public bodies (i) in each year since 1996-97 and (ii) at the latest date for which information is available. Renewable Energy: Standards

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether targets for renewable energy usage for the United Kingdom take account of regional variations. [203812]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 7 May 2008]: The European Commission's proposed target of 15 per cent. renewable energy in the UK by 2020 does not specify where in the UK renewables should be located. The Government will consult over the summer on what more we should do to increase renewable energy use to meet the UK's share of the target.

Sales Methods: Unfair Practices

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps the Government plans to take to tackle unfair sales practices. [203735]

Mr. Thomas [holding answer 7 May 2008]: The Consumer Protection from Unfair Trading Regulations 2008, which come into force on 26 May, prohibit traders in all sectors from engaging in unfair marketing and selling practices with consumers. In particular, the regulations prohibit misleading and aggressive practices and ban 31 specific practices outright. The regulations will put in place a more comprehensive framework for tackling sharp practices and rogue traders harming consumers' economic interests.

Seychelles

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many officials in his Department and its predecessor visited the Seychelles on official business in 2007, broken down by grade; and what the equivalent number was in (a) 1983, (b) 1987 and (c) each year between 1998 and 2005. [205075]

Mr. Thomas: No official in BERR or its predecessor Department has visited Seychelles on official business for many years. No records are available for 1983 and 1987.

Smoking

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many smoking shelters were built at each of his Department's London buildings in each of the last five years. [205052]

Mr. Thomas: The Department has not built any smoking shelters at its London buildings over the last five years.

Stichling Hahn Hilbrich

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the (a) purpose and (b) value was of each (i) contract and (ii) transaction between his Department and Stichling Hahn Hilbrich in each of the last five years; and on what date each such (A) contract was signed and (B) transaction took place. [204926]

Mr. Thomas: Central records indicate that no payments have been made to Stichling Hahn Hilbrich in any of the last five years.

Sustainability Live

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what (a) ministerial and (b) official representation his Department plans to have at the environmental trade show Sustainability Live on 20 to 22 May. [203970]

Malcolm Wicks: The Department recognises the opportunities for business presented by the environmental trade show Sustainability Live. UK Trade and Investment's Meet the Buyer event at the show will bring 33 overseas buyers from 10 markets.

Although no Ministers will be available on this occasion, both BERR and UK Trade and Investment officials, including overseas commercial officers, will be promoting environmental opportunities and solutions to climate change.

Trade Competitiveness: Heathrow Airport

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Transport on the impact of the performance of Heathrow airport on UK competitiveness. [204294]

Mr. Thomas: My officials have regular discussions with officials in Department for Transport about the operation and future development of UK airports, including Heathrow airport.

Venture Capital: Females

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what funding his Department is providing to support women's venture capital initiatives in 2008-09; and what steps he is taking to increase access to venture capital for women's enterprise. [203667]

Mr. Thomas: Enterprise Capital Funds (ECFs) are the Government's principal equity fund intervention and are available to a diverse range of businesses, including women-owned and women-led businesses. In addition, the Government made a commitment in their recent Enterprise Strategy to provide £12.5 million of capital to set up a fund to invest equity finance primarily in women-led businesses, with the aim of securing up to a total of £25 million of investment by working in partnership with the private sector. Capital for Enterprise Limited, which manages the Department's venture capital and loan activity, has been tasked with designing the fund and will invite proposals in the summer.

The fund is an integral part of a strong package of measures on women's enterprise announced recently in the Government's Enterprise Strategy. Those measures include provision for women's business centre pilots; enhanced mentoring support; a new national enterprise centre of expertise; a media campaign and activity aimed at opening up procurement opportunities to women-owned businesses. More information on the Strategy is available at:

Wind Power: Thames Estuary

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he was informed that Shell would be withdrawing from the London Array wind farm project. [204094]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 8 May 2008]: The composition of the London Array Consortium is a commercial matter for the parties involved. A number of successful offshore wind projects have changed ownership in the past, and we would therefore anticipate that the London Array project should be able to proceed. The Secretary of State was informed in confidence that Shell were re-considering their involvement in the London Array project a short time before their public statement. As Shell made clear in their announcement, the decision was a commercial matter and not related to the availability of Government support.

Charles Hendry: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has received from participants in the London Array wind farm project on (a) the operation of the renewable obligation certificates system and (b) the Government's proposed changes to the system. [204095]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 8 May 2008]: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and his officials meet regularly with representatives from the offshore wind industry including members of the London Array consortium. These meetings are to discuss a range of issues surrounding the increased deployment of renewable generation in the UK, including planning, grid connection and changes to the Renewables Obligation (RO).

In addition the Government received 174 responses to the consultation on the reform of the RO which closed on 6 September 2007. This includes responses from members of the London Array consortium. Copies of all responses, except those who have requested confidentiality, can be found at:

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Africa: Malaria

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his most recent estimate is of the incidence of malaria in Africa; and what steps (a) the UK and (b) international organisations plan to take to combat the disease. [204661]

Gillian Merron [holding answer 9th May 2008]: According to the latest estimates there are up to 500 million cases of malaria globally, and at least one million deaths annually. Around 90 per cent. of these deaths occur in sub-Saharan Africa, mostly in young children. The UK Government's support for malaria control is provided through international organisations and partnerships, bilateral programmes and research.

In April the Prime Minister announced that the UK will provide 20 million insecticide treated bed nets which are vital for preventing malaria. This is one of the first pledges made to "Cover The Bed Net Gap" launched by the Roll Back Malaria Partnership (RBMP) to rally donor countries, multilateral institutions, the private sector, and the general public to achieve the goal of universal bed net coverage by 2010. This new RBMP initiative is a direct response to the UN Secretary-General's call for universal coverage of malaria control in Africa by the end of 2010 to mark World Malaria Day on 25 April 2008.

The UK Government, through the Department for International Development (DFID) have committed £1 billion by 2015 to the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, TB and Malaria. To date the fund has disbursed US$ 5.5 billion; 25 per cent. of which goes to malaria programmes. DFID also provides funding contributions to the WHO, UNICEF and the World Bank's International Development Association as well as the RBMP which plays a central role in helping countries develop and secure finance for national malaria plans. DFID supported UNITAID, the international drug purchase facility, with €20 million in 2007 to purchase drugs for anti-malarial treatments as well as for TB and HIV/AIDS. Our contribution will rise to €60 million by 2010. DFID has also contributed over £16 million for new drug development to the Drugs for Neglected Diseases Initiative (DNDI) and the Medicines for Malaria Venture (MMV).

Burma: Storms

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what aid and assistance the Government have made available to Burma following the recent cyclone. [204989]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The UK made an initial pledge of £5 million for the immediate relief effort following Cyclone Nargis and stands ready to contribute much more. These funds will be used to help meet urgent humanitarian needs and will be channelled through UN agencies, the Red Cross and NGOs delivering assistance on the ground. This contribution will be in addition to the UK's long-term humanitarian programme inside Burma.

We have readied our stockpile of emergency supplies including tents, water containers, blankets, and plastics sheets. And we have sourced additional logistic equipment and other relief items. The first airlift of these materials has departed.

A DFID team of emergency response experts arrived in Burma on weekend of 10/11 May, to support the DFID Burma Office and help to maximise the impact of DFID emergency funding.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether he plans to give additional aid to Burma following the recent cyclones. [205095]

Departmental Equality

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department met the civil service diversity targets set out on page 51 of Cabinet Office annual report 2007 by April 2008. [204714]

Gillian Merron: The latest published statistics against overall civil service targets were at October 2007, and are available on the civil service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/diversity/monitoring.asp

The final measurement against the target will be published in autumn 2008.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much was spent on the most recent redesign and implementation of his departmental website. [200148]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development (DFID) website was last redesigned in 2004. This work was largely carried out by DFID staff as part of a wider range of responsibilities. It is not possible to disaggregate the costs of the project from day-to-day publishing and IT support for the website.

Developing Countries: Children

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what assessment his Department has made of the United Nations Children's Fund report, "Our climate, our children, our responsibility;" and if he will make a statement. [203474]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development (DFID) welcomes the recent UNICEF UK report "Our climate, our children, our responsibility" as a valuable contribution to the growing evidence base on the social impacts of climate change, and in particular the impacts on children. Climate change will most affect developing countries, and the poorest and most vulnerable in those societies, including children. This report further underlines the need for the international community to act urgently, both to mitigate the causes of climate change and to support developing countries to adapt to its impacts.

Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps his Department is taking towards achievement of the Millennium Development Goals in respect of the world's poorest children. [203550]

Gillian Merron: The UK Government have committed £8.5 billion for education in developing countries over the 10 years to 2015-16. During the French President Sarkozy's recent visit to London, the UK and France agreed to each help support eight million children in school by 2010.

The UK Government commitment also include £150 million for children affected by HIV/AIDS (2004-07), over £10 million for addressing forced labour and child labour and over £16 million to combat trafficking of women and children.

The Department for International Development (DFID) supports children and young people through direct funding to non-governmental organisations, this includes £3.1 million to Plan UK for the period 2007-11 and £2.7 million to Save the Children for the period 2005-11. DFID has committed £7 million over the period 2006-09 to the 'Young Lives project', which is a 15-year study of child poverty in four countries.

The UK Government's work to enhance economic growth and to address inequality in developing countries also benefits the world's poorest children.

Developing Countries: HIV Infection

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his Department plans to spend on combating HIV/AIDS in developing countries in each year from 2007-08 to 2009-10. [201940]

Gillian Merron: The Department for International Development (DFID) has set out its overall country level spending plans for the next three years in its Annual Report which was published on 8 May (for more information see http://www.dfid.gov.uk/pubs/files/departmental-report/2008/default.asp). These spending plans have been developed as part of an overall planning framework to ensure delivery of the 2008-11 public service agreement on International Poverty Reduction and the underlying DFID Departmental Strategic Objectives.

The UK remains committed to fighting HIV and AIDS in developing countries and has already made an unprecedented long-term commitment to the Global Fund to fight AIDS, TB and Malaria of up to £1 billion over 2008-15. More details on DFID's approach to tackling HIV and AIDS will be set out in an updated strategy due to be launched in the near future.

Developing Countries: Overseas Aid

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development for which (a) countries and (b) regions his Department will be developing new country assistance plans in 2008 and 2009; and what arrangements he plans to make for consultation on these plans. [205258]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The following country and regional plans have been or are currently scheduled to be submitted for agreement during 2008 and 2009: Vietnam, Democratic Republic of Congo, Malawi, Mozambique, India, Pakistan, Ethiopia, Ghana, Indonesia, Caribbean, Kenya, Sudan, Rwanda, Uganda, Bangladesh, Afghanistan, Nigeria, Somalia, Yemen, Palestine, Nepal, Sierra Leone, and Zimbabwe. For many of these countries, consultations have already been undertaken or are taking place.

When country and regional plans are being prepared, my Department follows Cabinet Office guidance on consultation processes, including a 12-week public consultation publicised on the Department for International Development (DFID) external website. In addition to discussions with partner governments, in-country and external consultation takes place with other donors, civil society, NGOs and the private sector, and with other UK Government Departments.

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development when he plans to publish the final country assistance plans for (a) countries and (b) regions adopted following recent consultations. [205259]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The country and regional planning process was revised in March 2008. Country and regional plans approved by me will continue to be published on DFID's external website and in hard copy. Future country and regional plans will appear as shorter documents, showing more clearly the link between the UK Government's investment and development needs, where and how funds will be spent and accounted for, and the outcomes expected as a result of our investment. The timetable for doing so will normally be not more than 12 weeks following approval of a country or regional plan.

Mozambique: Overseas Aid

Mark Pritchard: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much financial aid the Government gave to Mozambique in 2007. [203979]

Mr. Malik: In 2006-07, total UK bilateral expenditure in Mozambique was £56.3 million, of which, £46.8 million was delivered as financial aid. Data for 2007-08 will be published later this year in the next edition of Statistics in International Development.

The UK's imputed share of multilateral official development assistance to Mozambique in 2006-07 was £25.7 million.

Pakistan: Overseas Aid

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much his Department has spent on aid to (a) Pakistan and (b) India in each year since 2000. [203770]

Mr. Malik: Details of the Department for International Development's (DFID) bilateral assistance and imputed multilateral assistance to India and Pakistan since 2000 are laid out in the following tables:

Palestinians: Overseas Aid

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2008, Official Report, column 2325W, on Palestinians: overseas aid, what detailed criteria will be applied in making decisions about further UK disbursements; and if he will make a statement. [204079]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: As with every country programme of the Department for International Development (DFID), our aid is given on the basis of need and a shared commitment to poverty reduction.

The Palestinian reform and development plan was the basis for all the $7.7 billion donor pledges at the Paris pledging conference. The UK pledge of £243 million is linked to tangible progress in peace negotiations, including progress on reform and the easing of movement and access restrictions.

UK aid helps the Palestinian Authority fulfil its commitments to the peace process, deliver institutional reform, provide essential services that benefit the poor and vulnerable, and ensure a better security environment.

Taylor Nelson Sofres

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what the value of contracts awarded to Taylor Nelson Sofres by his Department was in each year since 1997. [201660]

Mr. Malik: The value of contracts awarded to Taylor Nelson Sofres by the Department for International Development (DFID) in each year since 1997 is as follows:

2002-03	66,039
2007-08	60,840

Zimbabwe: Overseas Aid

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much UK aid was delivered to Zimbabwe in each of the last five years. [203695]

Mr. Malik: Details on UK aid to Zimbabwe over the last five years are shown in the following tables. Since 2003, none of our aid funding has been given through the Government of Zimbabwe but has been directed instead through the United Nations and non-governmental organisations.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

UK-Israeli Relations

11. Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on UK-Israeli relations on the 60th anniversary of the state of Israel. [204805]

David Miliband: I wish to add my congratulations to the state of Israel on its 60th anniversary, and its remarkable achievements in politics, business, arts and science. We enjoy a close bilateral relationship. We seek to use our position as a friend of both Israel and the Palestinians to help make progress towards a two state solution, allowing both peoples to live in peace.

Iranian Nuclear Programme

12. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the Iranian nuclear programme. [204807]

David Miliband: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Clwyd, West (Mr. Jones) today.

EU Foreign Policy

13. Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his French counterpart on EU foreign policy. [204808]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The UK Government have regular contact and discussions with the French Government on EU and other foreign policy issues. Our recent discussions have included exchanges of views on Burma, Afghanistan, Zimbabwe, Kosovo, Iran and Georgia.

Middle East

14. Mr. Spring: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of progress in the Middle East peace process; and if he will make a statement. [204809]

Meg Munn: The obstacles to peace are huge, but the talks between the Israelis and Palestinians, under way as part of the Annapolis process, offer the best hope for years of making progress. We, with our international partners, are doing all we can to support this process. On 2 May we co-hosted a series of high level meetings in London to focus on supporting Palestinian institutions.

Zimbabwe

15. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Zimbabwe. [204810]

Meg Munn: Since the elections, elements of the security forces have systematically brutalised ordinary Zimbabweans, with almost 700 people beaten, 6 murdered and over 7,000 people displaced. The majority of Zimbabweans have already rejected Robert Mugabe as President. For any second round to be free and fair, violence must cease and international observers be given access now. We will continue to urge for a UN human rights mission or envoy to investigate abuses.

22. Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Zimbabwe. [204817]

Meg Munn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Shipley (Philip Davies) today.

23. Sir Nicholas Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on the political situation in Zimbabwe. [204818]

Meg Munn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. Member for Shipley (Philip Davies) today.

24. Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make a statement on human rights in Zimbabwe. [204819]

Meg Munn: More than 700 verified cases of politically motivated violence have been recorded, at least 120 people have been hospitalised and six murdered since 29 March. 7,000 people have been displaced. The UK is supporting the victims of violence through DFID's aid programme, and continues to press for a UN human rights mission or envoy to visit Zimbabwe to investigate abuses.

Gaza

16. Mr. Streeter: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the political situation in Gaza. [204811]

Meg Munn: We are very concerned about the grave situation with renewed violence in the Gaza Strip, and the firing of rockets from Gaza into Israel. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has been in regular contact with the Government of Israel and the Palestinian Authority. Prime Minister Fayyad, Israeli Foreign Minister Livni and key international figures came to London on 2 May to discuss the situation as well as how we can support Palestinian institutions.

Darfur

17. Mr. Tom Clarke: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent progress has been made on the UK initiative to host peace talks on the crisis in Darfur. [204812]

Meg Munn: There has been little movement in the Darfur political process owing to fragmentation among rebel groups and continued violence. The UK has offered further support for international efforts, including a possible meeting in the UK, if that would help revitalise the process. We are exploring the scope for this with the United Nations and African Union, Sudan's neighbours and international partners, the Government of Sudan and Darfur movements.

19. Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress is being made on securing a London Conference of all parties on Darfur. [204814]

Meg Munn: I refer my hon. Friend to the written answer I gave to my right hon. Friend the Member for Coatbridge, Chryston and Bellshill (Mr. Clarke) today.

Non-Proliferation Treaty

18. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made on securing a Non-Proliferation Treaty review in 2010. [204813]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The non-proliferation treaty is subject to a review cycle, with the next review in 2010. Prior to 2010 the UK will use the NPT Preparatory Committee to take forward work to strengthen the treaty. The UK will promote consensus around key measures encompassing the treaty's three pillars—zero tolerance of proliferation; safe, secure and peaceful use of nuclear technology; and reinvigorated commitment to a world free from nuclear weapons.

Iraq

20. Mr. MacNeil: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he proposes to establish an inquiry into the Government's discharge of its responsibilities in relation to the war in Iraq. [204815]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has previously acknowledged the requirement for an inquiry into the military action we undertook in Iraq, and to look at the lessons from our experiences.

He has also stated that the time for that inquiry is after our forces have completed their work in Iraq.

Pakistan

21. Christine Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government is taking to support democracy in Pakistan. [204816]

Mr. Jim Murphy: We are working with the Government of Pakistan, both bilaterally and through the EU and other multilateral organisations, to help meet the political and economic challenges it faces.

Recent visits by my right hon. Friends the Home Secretary and Foreign Secretary have underscored the UK's commitment to promote good governance, strengthen democratic institutions, and combat terrorism. The UK played an active role in the EU's Election Observation Mission in February.

Cuba: Political Prisoners

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent estimate he has made of the number of political prisoners in Cuba. [204583]

Meg Munn: It is difficult to estimate the number of political prisoners in Cuba as the Cuban government maintains tight control over such information.

In a January 2007 report, the Personal Representative of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights on the situation of human rights in Cuba, Christine Chanet, noted that 59 of the 75 dissidents detained during the spring 2003 opposition crackdown remained in prison. In July 2007 the Cuban Commission for Human Rights and National Reconciliation cited 246 cases of political prisoners. Since then, four political prisoners have been released and exiled to Spain.

Amnesty International now identifies at least 58 dissidents that remain incarcerated in Cuba.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204102]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) is committed to the Government's carbon offsetting programme. In 2006 the FCO spent £200,000 on carbon credits to offset the carbon dioxide, and other emissions, generated by the air travel of Ministers and officials based in the UK in 2004. These credits were bought through the Renewable Energy and Energy Efficiency Partnership (REEEP) carbon offset scheme from South African wind developer Genesis ECO-Energy (Pty) Ltd. A further £812,608 has been paid to REEEP to offset the same category of travel undertaken in 2005 and 2006. This will be used to purchase credits in a scheme in a developing country which is also a key climate change partner. Travel undertaken in 2007 will be similarly offset once the level of emissions are known.

English Channel

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on attempts to rename the English Channel. [204026]

Meg Munn [holding answer 8 May 2008]: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has not discussed the renaming of the English Channel with EU counterparts.

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to oppose any moves to change the name of the English Channel at the next United Nations Conference on the Standardization of Geographical Names. [204027]

Meg Munn [holding answer 8 May 2008]: The next UN Conference on the Standardisation of Geographical Names is in 2012. The Conference cannot legislate, or pass resolutions, on renaming specific geographical locations. We are unaware of any move to rename the English Channel.

Malaysia: Military Decorations

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will publish the correspondence between officials from his Department and the Malaysian authorities concerning the Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medal. [204651]

Meg Munn: We have no plans to do so.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 29 April 2008, Official Report, column 371W, on Malaysia Military Decorations, on (a) how many occasions and (b) what dates officials from his Department and the Malaysian High Commission met to discuss the Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medal. [204652]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office holds regular bilateral meetings with officials from the Malaysian high commission, as it does with all other embassies and high commissions. The Pingat Jasa Malaysia medal was discussed on a number of occasions, during meetings, by email and on the telephone during the course of 2005. The honours secretary from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office met with officials from the Malaysian high commission to brief them on the outcome of the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals' discussions on 20 December 2005, prior to the decision being made public.

Mr. Touhig: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs for what reasons there was no correspondence between the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals and the Malaysian authorities prior to the decision by the Committee that British veterans may accept, but not wear the Pingat Jasa Malaysia Medal. [204653]

Meg Munn: It is not usual for the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals (HD Committee) to enter into correspondence with a country offering a medal to British citizens. The Foreign and Commonwealth Office is responsible for relations with overseas governments and relays relevant views and factors (such as bilateral relations) to the committee. The HD Committee considers these alongside other issues such as the importance of upholding the rules, which govern the British honours system.

Nigeria: Security

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the security situation in Nigeria. [204325]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) reviews the security situation in Nigeria continually and its assessment is reflected in the FCO's Travel Advice.

We advise against all travel to some of the Niger Delta States (Bayelsa, Delta and Rivers, including Port Harcourt) and riverine areas of the Cross River State. We advise British nationals in these states to leave. Additionally, the FCO advise against all but essential travel to the Akwa Ibom State. This advice is due to the high risk to individuals of kidnapping, armed robbery and other armed attacks in these areas.

The FCO does not advise against travel to other areas of Nigeria. However, travellers should be aware of an increase in violent street crime in the south of the country. Demonstrations and outbreaks of localised civil unrest and violence can occur with little notice throughout the country. We continue to keep the security situation in Nigeria under review and update our travel advice accordingly.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent (a) assessment he has made of the intensity of conflict and (b) estimate he has made of the deaths occurring in southern Sudan; and if he will make a statement. [204337]

Meg Munn: We are aware of recent clashes in the Nuba Mountains in South Kordofan, one of the three disputed areas along the border between North and South Sudan. These have mostly been small scale inter-tribal skirmishes, but during 24-29 April involved clashes between units of the Sudan People's Liberation Army and armed elements of the Misseriya tribe. Reports from the UN Mission in Sudan (UNMIS) suggest fighting was localised and calm has since been restored. Reliable casualty figures are hard to ascertain, but UNMIS suggest a total of 31 casualties.

My right hon. Friends the Foreign Secretary and the Secretary of State for International Development and my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, raised the issue of the disputed border between North and South Sudan during their meetings with the Sudanese Foreign Minister of 28-30 April. They urged the Government of National Unity and the Government of Southern Sudan to engage with the Assessment and Evaluation Commission as a suitable body to broker a resolution for the border disputes.

Sudan: Human Rights

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of Sudan on its (a) treatment of refugees and (b) compliance with UNHCR protocols and commitments. [204340]

Meg Munn: We monitor refugees in Sudan through the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), who has reported that refugees arriving in Sudan are assessed at one of the recognised refugee camps near Kassala in the border area with Eritrea. Refugees are required to stay in the camps and are not normally granted the right to travel from a designated area. A UNHCR legal team attends any court cases where recognised refugees have been arrested.

Sudan: Refugees

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent reports he has received on the treatment of refugees in Sudan, with particular reference to those from Eritrea. [204339]

Meg Munn: Our officials in Khartoum monitor the status of refugees in Sudan through the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR) to whom we give strong support. As a result of UNHCR's lobbying, the Government of Sudan has set up a committee to revise domestic legislation on asylum.

Zimbabwe: African Union

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans there are to send an African Union (a) envoy and (b) observer mission to Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [204845]

Meg Munn [holding answer 12 May 2008]: The Chairperson of the African Union (AU) Commission undertook a mission to the Southern African region, including Zimbabwe, from 3-5 May 2008. The mission was part of a wider effort, by the AU, to engage with the situation in Zimbabwe. No plans have emerged for a further specific envoy to be sent. The AU sent an observer mission to monitor elections in Zimbabwe and have indicated that a farther mission would be deployed to observe any second round.

Zimbabwe: Elections

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with leaders of African Union states on steps to resolve the electoral crisis in Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [204843]

Meg Munn [holding answer 12 May 2008]: My right hon. Friends the Prime Minister, the Foreign Secretary and my noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, have been in regular contact with a large number of Heads of State and Foreign Ministers in Africa and elsewhere. We continue to encourage their engagement and press them to use their influence to bring a speedy and peaceful resolution to the electoral crisis and an end to human rights abuses.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Apprentices

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will list the 10 largest employers in the country that have declined to participate in apprenticeship schemes. [205322]

Mr. Lammy: We do not hold information to answer this question. The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) works with many of the largest employers in England to resolve skills issues and implement workforce development solutions. The LSC through its National Employer Service has a current programme to engage with 300 of the largest companies by 2011.

Apprentices: Disabled

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will make a statement on the impact of Government policy changes in respect of Remploy Ltd. on the number of disabled people on apprenticeships. [205320]

Mr. Lammy: Remploy's new learning business is currently looking at how the organisation could support the Learning and Skills Council in increasing the number of disabled apprentices within its overall business strategy of supporting 20,000 disabled people into work every year by 2012. We are introducing an entitlement to an apprenticeship for all suitably qualified young people and together with Remploy's modernisation programme I expect this will have a positive impact on the number of people with a disability accessing an apprenticeship.

Apprentices: Employment

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of apprenticeships that are statistically (a) most and (b) least likely to end in employment within 12 months of close of training. [205318]

Mr. Lammy: Data are not available for the 12 months following an apprentice completing their framework. The information provided in the following table shows apprentice destinations immediately following the completion of their apprenticeship.

Campusalam

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what funds have been allocated to the Campusalam website by his Department and its predecessor in each year for which figures are available. [205417]

Mr. Lammy: The Department has not allocated any funds to the Campusalam website.

Higher Education

Mr. Boswell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what mechanisms exist for co-ordination of higher education policy between the Government and the devolved administrations. [204589]

Bill Rammell: Each administration determines its own higher education policies and all HE institutions are autonomous. Ministers and officials meet from time to time to discuss each others' policies and issues of common interest, such as information given to students about the support available if they study outside their home country.

University for Industry: Citigate Public Affairs

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what payments (a) University for Industry and (b) Learn Direct made to Citigate Public Affairs in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202263]

Mr. Lammy: The payments made by Ufi at this level of detail are not collected by my Department. This is an operational matter for Ufi since they determine any payments to local providers, partners and other organisations that are necessary to support the delivery of the Ufi's key priorities and targets. Sarah Jones, Ufi's chief executive, has written to the hon. Member with further information and a copy of her reply has been placed in the House Library.

Letter from Sarah Jones, dated 1 May 2008:

I write following your Parliamentary Question regarding the payment of fees to Citigate Public Affairs over the last five years.

The table below outlines the expenditure of Ufi, the company which owns and operates learndirect services in England, Wales and Northern Ireland, in relation to this public affairs company:

Provision of briefings on MPs to Ufi staff in preparation for visits by MPs to learndirect centres.

Children: Day Care

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government have taken to assist working parents with childcare outside school hours since 1997. [204548]

Beverley Hughes: Since 1997, the total number of registered childcare places has more than doubled; and the number of places in out of school clubs has increased from 78,700 to 365,400 over the same period.

Childcare, including activity based provision that parents can use as childcare, is a key part of the extended schools core offer. Primary schools are expected to provide access to traditional childcare between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. in line with demand as well as a range of activities. Secondary schools are expected to deliver access to activities that provide a safe place for children and young people to be between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m. Over 10,500 schools are already delivering access to the full core offer and many more schools are delivering access to the childcare and activities elements of it. All schools will provide access to the core of extended services by 2010, with at least half of all primary schools and a third of secondary schools doing so by September 2008.

All local authorities were required to complete assessments of the sufficiency of childcare in their areas by 31 March, identifying supply, demand, and gaps between the two. Since 1 April, local authorities have also been under a new duty to secure sufficient childcare for working parents, and that will help parents who are seeking childcare outside school hours to find the flexible, affordable, high quality provision that they want for their children.

We appreciate the impact that childcare costs can have on the family budget and are providing substantial help—over £3.5 million a day—through the tax credits system to help working parents with the cost of childcare. Parents making use of childcare out of school hours are, like other parents, benefiting from this.

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families on how many occasions he has visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [204401]

Kevin Brennan: My right hon. Friend has visited (a) Scotland once, (b) Wales once but has not visited (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity since June 2007. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

Education Maintenance Allowance

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will consider reforming the eligibility criteria for the education maintenance allowance (EMA) to allow children under the age of 16 years who have been advanced one school year or more and are studying at a post-16 educational level to receive the EMA. [205136]

Jim Knight: We have no plans to make EMA available to young people under the age of 16. EMA is not based on the academic level a pupil reaches. It is targeted at those who reach the end of their compulsory school phase who have the option of dropping out of learning.

The purpose of EMA is to remove barriers to learning, and increase participation and retention rates among learners who can legally leave education. Therefore, EMA is not available to learners who by law must remain in education.

Education: Assessments

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families by what date he expects (a) Key Stage 2 and (b) Key Stage 3 pupils to receive the results of their 2008 national tests; and if he will make a statement. [205022]

Jim Knight: The National Assessment Agency, which administers the National Curriculum tests for Key Stages 2 and 3, has stated that all schools will receive their test results by Tuesday 8 July 2008.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what discussions his Department has had with ETS on the training of markers of Key Stage 2 and 3 national tests; and if he will make a statement. [205023]

Jim Knight: None. The National Assessment Agency and ETS Europe, as its delivery partner, are responsible for the recruitment and training of markers for National Curriculum tests for Key Stages 2 and 3. All markers receive professional training in applying the mark scheme. Supervising markers attend a minimum of two full-day training meetings, focusing on the application of the mark scheme and on supporting markers in doing so.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what procedures his Department has in place to ensure that all markers of national tests are qualified; and if he will make a statement. [205025]

Jim Knight: The criteria for recruiting markers for 2008 are the same as in previous years. The new test operations contractor, ETS Europe requires markers to have an educational qualification and teaching experience in the relevant Key Stage and subject. All markers are also subject to a referee check by the Test Operations Agency. Markers are required to attend a full-day training meeting. If markers do not attend the relevant training meeting they are not allowed to mark. Following the training meeting, all markers are required to successfully pass "standardisation", a process whereby markers are required to mark a set number of national standard scripts. Markers that do not pass the standardisation process are not permitted to mark pupils' scripts.

Employment Tribunals Service: Complaints

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many complaints his Department has received about the administering of national tests by ETS; and if he will make a statement. [205024]

Jim Knight: Records show that the Department has received four inquiries over the last week about the administration of national tests by the test operations contractor, ETS Europe. These are matters for the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority.

Extracurricular Activities

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what steps the Government have taken to increase participation in after-school activities on the part of school pupils since 1997. [204549]

Beverley Hughes: The Government are committed to making out of school activities available to all children, and has put in place a large range of action to support this as part of the extended schools programme.

Our commitment is that by 2010 all schools will be providing access to a core range of extended services, including a varied menu of activities from 8am to 6pm. We are making very good progress, with more than 10,500 schools now providing the full core offer, and many more already providing the varied menu of activities aspect of the core offer.

A total of £840 million of Government funding was made available to local authorities and schools up to 2008 to support them in developing extended services, with some funding also available to promote and encourage effective programmes of study support available as part of the school development grant. A further £1.3 billion has been announced and will be available over the next three years to support the start-up and sustainability of services. Also as part of this, specific funding will be made available to support access to activities for children from disadvantaged backgrounds.

The Training and Development Agency support schools and local authorities to develop extended services, together with other partner organisations from the private and voluntary sectors. Guidance on extended schools and study support has provided practical advice for schools and their partners on setting up activities, developing and funding them, and has highlighted the significant benefits of doing so.

Flexible Working

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2008, Official Report, column 2095W, what the standard procedure for requesting flexible working arrangements in his Department is; what guidance is given to employees in his Department advising them on how they can request flexible working; and if he will place a copy of this guidance in the Library. [203035]

Kevin Brennan: Any member of staff can request a change in working pattern and line managers should consider requests in line with the published policy and guidance.

I have arranged for a copy of the guidance to be placed in the Library of the House as requested.

GCE A-Level

Kelvin Hopkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the average A-level points score per pupil was for secondary schools with sixth forms containing (a) 50 or fewer, (b) 51 to 100, (c) 101 to 150, (d) 151 to 200, (e) 201 to 250 and (f) more than 250 pupils in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [205109]

Jim Knight: The information is in the following table:

	Number of pupils studying at A level or equivalent 2006	Average point score per student in schools of each size 2007
50 or fewer	632.9	645.4
51 to 100	746.5	758.1
101 to 150	810.6	827.1
151 to 200	832.8	848.8
201 to 250	844.3	808.5
More than 250	851.8	867.7

Note:
Figures relate to 16-18 year olds (age at start of academic year, i.e. 31 August) in all schools with sixth forms published in the achievement and attainment tables.

Figures for 2004-05 have not been provided as they are not comparable to the figures given for 2005-06 and 2006-07. Up to 2005-06 the UCAS tariff was used to calculate average point scores. However, this did not extend to cover the new range of qualifications now included as equivalencies, so the Qualifications and Curriculum Authority (QCA) developed a tariff to calculate point scores for all Level 3 qualifications approved under Section 96 of the Learning and Skills Act (2000).

Higher Civil Servants

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of his Department's and its predecessors' senior civil service staff had flexible working arrangements in each year since 1997. [200557]

Kevin Brennan: Flexi-time working arrangements do not apply to senior civil service staff. However, they can work flexibly in terms of working patterns and working from home.

Data are only held on my Department and not predecessor departments. Currently, there around 11 per cent. of senior civil service staff (12 out of 114) who work part-time and a number also work from home occasionally through remote access to our IT systems. Information on home working is not held centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Nursery Schools

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many pages of guidance his Department and its predecessors sent to nursery school headteachers in each of the last 10 years. [201852]

Kevin Brennan: Maintained nursery schools have received a wide range of statutory and non statutory guidance over the last 10 years. Statistical data on the number of pages included in these documents are not normally collected and would be possible to find out only at disproportionate costs.

The number of documents sent to all primary schools which would also have been sent to maintained nursery schools is detailed in the following table. The Department stopped sending regular paper mailings to schools in December 2004 replacing it with a regular fortnightly e-mail which allows schools to order the required numbers of documents at their discretion.

Pupils: Southend

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were on the roll (a) in each secondary school and (b) at special schools in Southend in each of the last five years for which information is available; and how many children in Southend with special educational needs attended special schools outside Southend in each year. [205079]

Jim Knight: The information on the number of pupils in (a) each secondary school and (b) special schools has been placed in the House Library.

The number of pupils with special educational needs who are resident in Southend on Sea local authority but attend special schools outside Southend on Sea local authority has been provided in this answer.

School Meals: Per Capita Costs

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of the impact of rising food prices on the cost of schools meals; and if he will make a statement. [202638]

Kevin Brennan: The Government have not made such an assessment.

However, the Government are taking forward a number of steps to help to keep down the price of school meals. We are investing over £650 million between 2005-11 to help raise nutritional standards and keep school lunch prices down. This funding is also being used to help build kitchens in areas with no kitchen facilities; to better support the development of training centres for the school food workforce; and to improve overall take-up.

The School Food Trust is working with manufacturers, caterers and schools to ensure the long term sustainability and efficiency of the country's school food service. They are working with food producers and manufacturers to ensure that the nutrient menus have a minimum effect on the price of school meals as well as working on kitchen efficiencies, including both skilling the workforce and looking at international business models. The Trust has produced guidance focusing on efficient and sustainable school food procurement. This guidance is being distributed to all schools in April 2008.

The Department is working in close alliance with the Trust and other Departments, to identify opportunities and develop initiatives to further improve efficiencies in procurement. These include price benchmark variance reporting, common food standards and terms and conditions to support local and national competitive tendering, as well as the use of shared contracts from other Departments, where they can be shown to meet the needs of schools.

In response to a survey carried out in January 2008 by the School Food Trust 2008, 68 per cent. of local authorities (LAs) reported that, in principle, their catering service was expected to break even, with 9 per cent. expected to operate at a deficit, and 10 per cent. expected to make a surplus. For the 2007/08 financial year, 44 per cent. of LAs expected their catering service to break even or make a surplus, compared to the 41 per cent. of LAs who achieved this in 2006/07. Similar numbers of LAs expected their financial outcome to improve (15 LAs) as expected it to worsen (14 LAs). The results of the Trust's survey can be found on its website at:

Schools: Procurement

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what advice his Department has issued to schools on procuring food from small, local producers. [205237]

Kevin Brennan: The Department has not issued any advice to schools on procuring food from small, local producers. However, it asked the School Food Trust to provide advice on food procurement issues to local authorities and schools and the trust has recently published "A fresh look at school food procurement: efficiency and sustainability"—guidance for schools and local authorities on how efficient and sustainable food procurement can be pursued in tandem. It can be viewed on the trust's website at:

http://www.schoolfoodtrust.org.uk/UploadDocs/Library/Documents/sft_fresh_look_procurement_print_friendly.pdf

The guidance actively promotes the Public Sector Food Procurement Initiative (PSFPI), which aims to increase tenders from small and local producers and improve their ability to do business. The guide encourages buyers to identify and reduce barriers to small and medium-sized local enterprises (which may prevent them from tendering) and recognises that smaller suppliers can compete with larger businesses. It also recognises that their participation in the public sector supply chain can benefit local and regional economies. The trust's website also contains a number of case studies where local authorities and schools demonstrate how they have successfully tendered for local produce for their meals' service.

In addition, the National Governors Association has recently published a supplement to "Food Policy in Schools—a strategic policy framework for school governing bodies". This advises governors on how to produce whole school policy statements to promote healthy food, and improve sustainability and efficiency in their procurement of food and catering services. Like the trust's guidance, it actively promotes the PSFPI.

Special Educational Needs

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children were (a) classified as having special educational needs, (b) given a statement of special educational needs and (c) classified as having emotional and behavioural difficulties in each year since 1990, broken down by (i) sex and (ii) local authority. [205077]

Kevin Brennan: Information on the number of pupils with special educational needs (SEN) by gender is only available from 2002 onwards.

Information was collected from schools on pupils who are supported at "School Action Plus" and those pupils with statements of SEN about their main or primary need and, if appropriate, their secondary need for the first time in 2004.

We publish national level information on the number of pupils identified with SEN, by gender, and with behavioural, emotional and social difficulties at School Action Plus and with statements of SEN annually. From 2004 the figures can be found in the Statistical First Release 'DCSF: Special Educational Needs in England', the latest of which can be accessed at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SFR/s000732/index.shtml

Figures for 2003 and earlier were published in the Statistical Bulletin: 'Special Educational Needs in England', which can be accessed at:

http://www.dfes.gov.uk/rsgateway/DB/SBU/b000429/index.shtml

Equivalent publications are available for earlier years.

We publish a local level analysis for a range of data on SEN, which can be found in the additional tables at the aforementioned websites. A local level analysis of the number of pupils with SEN and those with statements of SEN by gender in each year since 2002 as well as local level figures for the number of pupils with behaviour, emotional and social difficulties in each year since 2004 could only be produced as disproportionate costs.

Specialised Diplomas

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what provision will be made for young people in custody to new diploma courses; and if he will make a statement. [205010]

Jim Knight: Every young person aged 14 to 19 will have an entitlement to any of the first 14 Diploma lines from 2013. We have placed a duty on local authorities and the Learning and Skills Council from 2013 to ensure all young people are able to take up their entitlement.

At present young people in custody are required to continue their education in custody and will be covered by the entitlement. Proposals to improve education and training for young offenders will be included in the forthcoming Youth Crime Action Plan.

Sure Start Programme: Consultants

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of those in his Department working on the Sure Start programme are consultants. [205420]

Beverley Hughes: There are no consultants working on the Sure Start programme in the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

JUSTICE

Children: Protection

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many special Children Act applications were issued by (a) Cambridgeshire county council, (b) Cumbria county council, (c) Kent county council and (d) Medway council in (i) 2005-06, (ii) 2006-07 and (iii) 2007-08; [204719]

(2) how many special Children Act applications were issued by each local authority in Berkshire in (a) 2005-06, (b) 2006-07 and (c) 2007-08. [204721]

Bridget Prentice: The current information systems used in the family courts do not require the applicant type to be recorded specifically. Consequently to extract this information would require a manual trawl of case files and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The most reliable data on public law Children Act applications, particularly at local level, relate to orders made rather than applications issued. The numbers of care and supervision orders made in the family courts in Cambridgeshire, Cumbria, Kent (including Medway) and Berkshire in the requested years are therefore provided in the following table.

National figures for 2006 suggest that between 70 per cent. and 75 per cent. of applications for care or supervision result in either a care order or a supervision order being made. Many of the remaining applications are likely to result in an order of a different type (e.g. 'Section 8' orders for residence or contact).

The data are compiled based on the location of the order-making court, rather than the local authority making the application, as data on the applicant's identity are not held centrally for all cases. These figures may therefore count orders obtained by other applicants besides the local authorities specified in the question.

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people aged (a) under 25 years and (b) 25 years and over with a full UK driving licence in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the North East and (iv) the UK were convicted of driving without insurance in each year since 1997. [204911]

Maria Eagle: Information held centrally by my Department on convictions for motoring offences does not identify whether the offender held a UK or other driving licence (full or provisional). Possession of a licence can only be inferred through the nature of specific offences such as driving while disqualified from holding or obtaining a licence or failing to produce driving licence etc. Information is available at police force area level within England and Wales only.

Electoral Register: Information and Communications Technology

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the budget for the Co-ordinated Online Record of Electors database is for each of the next three years. [203136]

Bridget Prentice: The total budget allocated to the Co-ordinated Online Record of Electors (CORE) project during the current spending round is £11.7 million, which consists of £9.7 million capital and £2 million non-capital.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the Co-ordinated Online Record of Electors' database is intended to include electors in Northern Ireland. [203138]

Bridget Prentice: The legislation that sets out the scope of the Co-ordinated On-line Record of Electors (CORE) database allows for the inclusion of electors from Northern Ireland. A final decision on the inclusion of Northern Ireland in the CORE project will be made at the end of this year. In order to inform this decision a consultation with stakeholders will take place during the second part of this year.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what process his Department will use to determine who the keeper of the Co-ordinated Online Record of Electors will be; and if he will invite bids from the public and private sector for this role. [203140]

Bridget Prentice: The Electoral Administration Act 2006 Chapter 22, Part 1 states at Section 1 (10) 'The person designated as a CORE keeper must be a public authority'. The Electoral Commission is our preferred choice to fulfil this role, and discussions are ongoing with them on this matter.

Electronic Government: Finance

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 29 February 2008, Official Report, column 1985W, on electronic government: finance, when he plans to make detailed allocations of funding for e-democracy and e-participation projects in the next three years; and what criteria will be used to make those allocations. [204605]

Mr. Wills: The Ministry of Justice keeps the allocation of funding for projects that promote e-democracy under continuous review. Precise criteria are yet to be finalised, but funding decisions will take account of the degree to which projects encourage innovative approaches to online engagement and embed learning from the government's online engagement experiences.

We are also in the process of reviewing the lessons we have learnt from previous electronic voting pilots. This will help us to plan our future activities around electronic voting.

Legal Advice and Assistance: Travelling People

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how much funding was allocated to legal advice for Travellers in 2007-08 by (a) his Department and (b) the Legal Services Commission (i) directly and (ii) in the form of grants to external organisations in 2007-08. [203143]

Maria Eagle: The Ministry of Justice does not directly fund external organisations to provide legal advice to Travellers.

The Legal Services Commission (LSC) contracts with the Community Law Partnership to provide a helpline for Travellers offering advice on a range of matters. The Travellers' telephone helpline receives funding each year contingent upon the contract holder, the Community Law Partnership, delivering 1,100 hours of work per year. The service has been established since 2004 and forms part of the LSC's national telephone helpline, Community Legal Advice. In 2007-08 the contract for this helpline was worth £56,540 excluding VAT.

In addition, the Ministry of Justice authorised the LSC to fund a total sum of £31,400 for legal advice and representation for Travellers through the exceptional funding scheme in 2007-08. This was for legal representation at planning inquiries.

Travellers are also entitled to receive legal aid in other areas of law. However, the LSC does not have readily available information on the number of Travellers who receive such assistance.

National Probation Service for England and Wales: Contracts

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what assessment he has made of the performance of the Probation Service against its target to subcontract 10 per cent. of services to the voluntary sector in 2006-07; and if he will make a statement. [201826]

Mr. Straw: The target was for probation areas to sub-contract 5 per cent. in value of services to the private and voluntary sectors in 2006-07, rising to 10 per cent. in value of services in 2007-08. In 2006-07 we estimated, based on self-reporting from probation areas, that overall around 4 per cent. of probation budget was spent on sub-contracted services, although performance varied from area to area. Now that the second reporting period has come to an end we are beginning an assessment of performance against target for 2007-08.

As part of the transition from probation boards to probation trusts, we are currently consulting on whether to move towards a system of Best Value similar to that used by local government. Copies of the consultation document have been placed in the Libraries of both Houses. Copies are also available in the Vote Office and Printed Paper Office, and on the internet at:

www.justice.gov.uk/publications/consultations.htm

We are determined to ensure that the voluntary sector plays an increasing role in the delivery of probation services.

Non-Molestation Orders

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people have applied for non-molestation orders in each of the last 10 years. [205384]

Mr. Straw: The following table shows the number of applications for non-molestation orders in county courts in England and Wales by calendar year.

	Number of applications
1998	18,153
1999	16,908
2000	15,734

Personal Injury

Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice when he plans to publish the Government's response to the consultation on the reform of legal processes relating to personal injury law. [204718]

Bridget Prentice: The response to the consultation paper 'Case track limits and the claims process for personal injury claims' is nearing completion and will be published as soon as possible.

Peterborough Prison: Drugs

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice if he will assess the adequacy of the (a) number and (b) frequency of mandatory drug tests at HMP Peterborough; and if he will make a statement. [204515]

Maria Eagle: The number and frequency of mandatory drugs tests at HMP Peterborough in 2007-08 are detailed in the following table:

Number of mandatory drug tests

Prison Service: Manpower

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many (a) prison officers, (b) prisoners and (c) prisoners per prison officer there were at the end of each year since 1997. [204481]

Maria Eagle: Information on the number of officer grade staff, prisoners and the number of prisoners per officer across the Prison Service, including both public sector and contracted estates is contained in the following table:

Officers, prisoners and prisoner to officer ratio

31 March	Officers[1, 4]	Prisoners[2]	Prisoners per officer[3]
1997	23,058	56,671	2.4
1998	23,444	63,373	2.5
1999	24,113	65,346	2.5
2000	24,346	65,153	2.5
2001	24,023	64,680	2.5
2002	23,324	67,633	2.7
2003	23,842	71,498	2.7

2007	27,346	78,880	2.9
2008	28,062	80,676	2.9

[1] Includes prison officers, senior officers and principal officers within the public sector Prison Service and custody officers and senior custody officers within contracted establishments, where available.
[2] Average prisoner population across the year has been used, 2007-08 figure is provisional.
[3] Prisoners held at contracted establishments where officer numbers are not available have been excluded from the calculation.
[4] Data for Lowdham Grange prior to March 2005 and Rye Hill prior to 2006 are not available due to archiving and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost. Data prior to 2004 are available only for one establishment, Parc, and information prior to 1999 is not available and could be provided only at a disproportionate cost.

Prison Service: Recruitment

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps are being taken by his Department to improve the recruitment and retention of staff to HM Prison Service. [204285]

Maria Eagle: In general, retention within the public sector Prison Service is comparatively high. Excluding retirements, the average leaving rate across all grades of staff between April 2007 and March 2008 was 6.3 per cent. This is consistent with the rates for the past seven years.

In areas where recruitment and retention are more difficult, higher starting salaries may be offered. Local pay allowances also operate across much of the south-east of England.

Action has been taken recently to respond to the substantial increase in demand for prison officers, generated in particular by the National Offender Management Service's prison capacity building programme. A national prison officer recruitment campaign started on 7 January. It employed a major national advertising campaign, aimed at attracting a much wider range of applicants than had been achieved previously. It also created a new recruitment process, which reducing the time between application and appointment, introduced online application and sifting; and enabled more comprehensive information to be generated, on which to base selection decisions. Over 40,000 applications have been received to date.

Prisoners

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what his latest estimate is of the number of hours of purposeful activity undertaken by prisoners per week. [204280]

Maria Eagle: The average number of hours of purposeful activity undertaken by prisoners per week during 2007-08 was 25.3 hours. Data are provisional and subject to end year validation.

Prisoners: Ex-servicemen

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of prisoners are former members of the armed services. [205]14]

Mr. Hanson: Data from nationally representative surveys of some 2,000 sentenced prisoners near release in all prisons in England and Wales conducted in 2001, 2003 and 2004 show the proportion of prisoners who had previously served in the armed forces as 6 per cent., 4 per cent. and 5 per cent. respectively.

Information relating to prisoners in Scotland and in Northern Ireland is a matter for Scottish Executive and the Northern Ireland Prison Service respectively.

These figures have been drawn from administrative IT systems, which, as with any large scale recording system, are subject to possible errors with data entry and processing.

Prisoners: Mental Health

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps his Department has taken on implementing the recommendations of the HM Inspectorate of Prisons report entitled the Mental Health of Prisoners: Thematic, published in October 2007. [204306]

Maria Eagle: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave to the hon. and learned Member for Harborough (Mr. Garnier) on 7 May 2008, Official Report, column 987W.

The report 'The mental health of prisoners' thematic (HMIP, 2007) made a number of recommendations about improving mental health care in prisons. The Department of Health is preparing its response to all these recommendations.

Prisoners: Pay

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what factors he took into account when deciding to postpone the change to the rates of payment to prisoners. [204673]

Mr. Straw: In determining the timing of any increase in prisoners' pay, Ministers considered that it should be more closely tied to developing work on an offender compact. Postponement of an increase in minimum rates from the original planned date has allowed this to be done more effectively.

Prisons: Television

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the cost to the Prison Service was of providing satellite television services in prisons in 2007-08. [202947]

Maria Eagle: The Prison Service accounting system does not record expenditure to the level of detail required to answer this question. The Prison Service would incur a disproportionate cost to obtain this information.

Satellite television is not available to prisoners' in-cell but can be made available in association areas at the discretion of the Governor. A number of establishments have been upgraded for digital television in line with the Government's digital switchover programme. The cost of the digital switchover to date, and the costs of the TV sets used in cells, has been met from the revenue generated by the £1 per week TV rental charge paid by prisoners.

TREASURY

Credit Cards: Proof of Identity

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what consideration he has given to requiring credit cards to carry a photograph of the person they are issued to. [203859]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

No, we have not considered such a requirement but the industry did look at the viability of putting photographs on credit cards as an additional security method. However, it was deemed to only provide a costly short to medium-term solution. With the introduction of chip and PIN, technology-based methods are now used to verify that the card is not being used fraudulently.

Debts

Jo Swinson: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the (a) average level of household debt and (b) average level of household debt as a proportion of income was in each region in each of the last five years; and what forecast he has made of average levels of household debt in each region in each of the next five years. [204581]

Angela Eagle: The Bank of England collects and publishes statistics on household borrowing and household debt. They do not produce estimates for average household debt but latest aggregate figures show UK household debt rising at its lowest rate for eight years. The full Bank of England dataset can be found at:

http://www.bankofengland.co.uk/mfsd/iadb/FromShowColumns.asp?Travel=NIxAZxI1x&FromCategoryList=Yes&NewMeaningId=HS&CategId=5&HighlightCatValueDisplay=Household%20sector

HM Treasury does not produce regional economic forecasts.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much his Department spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204100]

Angela Eagle: In 2006-07, the Treasury paid £14,746.70 to the Government Carbon Offsetting Fund which was the cost of offsetting for flights for ministerial and official travel in 2006-07.

We are currently working to calculate emissions from flights for 2007-08 financial year, and will be making a payment to offset these through the GCOF in due course.

Departmental Orders and Regulations

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many statutory instruments have been (a) made and (b) revoked by Ministers in his Department since 1997. [204774]

Angela Eagle: 1,451 statutory instruments were made by the Treasury between 1 January 1997 and 12 May 2008.

Information relating to the number of instruments which were revoked wholly or in part is not available.

Gallaher

David Taylor: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) if, following the recent High Court judgement relating to Gallaher and TEL, he will review the evidence presented during the case to assess whether enforcement action for which his Department is responsible should be taken against Gallaher; [205110]

(2) if, following the recent High Court judgement relating to Gallaher and TEL, he will review the four declarations made by Gallaher between 2004 and 2007 under the provisions of the Proceeds of Crime Act 2002, relating to trading in Iraq, to assess whether enforcement action for which his Department is responsible should be taken. [205111]

Angela Eagle: All information held by HM Revenue and Customs, including information about the affairs of companies, and details of any potential future enforcement action, is subject to the Duty of Confidentiality in the Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act (CRCA). Disclosure of information concerning a particular taxpayer would breach this duty.

The Government are committed to tackling tobacco fraud. As a result of the Government's comprehensive Tackling Tobacco Smuggling strategy, the illicit market share for cigarettes, which was predicted to increase to around a third if action had not been taken, has been cut from 21 per cent. in 2000-01 to around 13 per cent. in 2005-06. During that period, seizures by HMRC of genuine cigarettes produced by UK manufacturers have fallen sharply and have made up a progressively smaller share of total seizures. The latest figures are contained in Section 4 Table 8 of the HMRC autumn performance report published in December last year. This decline is an indicator of the positive effect of the actions taken by HMRC under the Tackling Tobacco Smuggling strategy.

Taxation: Food

Bob Spink: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on using taxation policy to (a) encourage healthy eating and (b) influence diets; and if he will make a statement. [204726]

Jane Kennedy: Treasury Ministers and officials receive representations from a wide range of organisations and individuals in the public and private sectors as part of the process of policy development and delivery. As was the case with previous Administrations, it is not the Government's practice to provide details of all such representations.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many children were the subject of payments under the childcare element of the tax credit in each year since the provision was introduced; what the average payment per child was in each such year; what the total expenditure on the childcare element was in each year; and what estimate he has made of the proportion of those eligible who claimed the childcare element in each year. [204643]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available.

However, table 2.4 of the HMRC publications "Child and Working Tax Credits Statistics. Finalised Awards" for 2003-04 and 2004-05 and 2005-06, provides information on the number of families benefiting from the childcare element in each year. This includes average help with childcare costs for each family and the increase in annualised entitlement due to the childcare element. This information is provided in the following table.

	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06
Increase in annual entitlement through the childcare element (£ million)	613	706	858
Average help with childcare costs per family(per week) (£)	43.58	44.29	48.45

This information can also be found on the HMRC website at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/personal-tax-credits/cwtc-quarterly-stats.htm

The same information for 2006-07 is due to be published on May 20 2008.

Welfare Tax Credits: Correspondence

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the latest version of each tax credit (a) form, (b) standard award notice and (c) standard letter sent to claimants. [204483]

Jane Kennedy: Guidance notes for the tax credits claim form and renewals forms are available on the HM Revenue and Customs website at http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/taxcredits/forms-leaflets.htm together with checklists for the award notice.

Award notices are tailored to individual circumstances and individually printed as required rather than existing in a standard format.

HMRC do not have a definitive up to date list of standard letters but estimate that there are currently around 200 letters which are replaced or updated at intervals as HMRC learn more about what information they need to provide to their tax credits customers. It would not be practicable to keep up to date copies of all these items in the House Library.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces: Casualties

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when his Department received from the US Administration the CD recording of the attack which resulted in the death of Lance Corporal of Horse Matthew Hull; under what conditions the CD was given to the Department; which sections of the Department received copies of the recording; how many copies were received; whether any further copies were made; which individuals have had possession of a copy of the recording; what the security classification was of the recording; and what the consequences of this classification were for its handling and disclosure. [121239]

Des Browne: The handling of the CD recording in question is currently being investigated. I will write to the hon. Member when the investigation is complete and place a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

Substantive answer from Des Browne to Liam Fox:

You will recall that I wrote to you on 31 August 2007 about the investigation into the handling of the US cockpit recording of an attack on a UK light tank in Iraq on 28 March 2003. We have now received the Joint Army/RAF investigation report on the unauthorised disclosure of the cockpit recording and I am therefore able to give you a substantive reply to your Parliamentary Question of 20 February 2007 (Official Report, column 601W).

In preparation for the Board of Inquiry into the circumstances of the incident, material was requested from the US authorities including the CD recording. A CD of the cockpit recording was received by the Board of Inquiry from the US authorities on 23 April 2004 via the MOD's Permanent Joint Headquarters. The CD was classified "SECRET- US Government Property - Protect from unauthorized disclosure." This classification is equivalent to the UK Secret protective marking and should have ensured that unauthorised access and disclosure did not occur. As the classification level required the recording of the item in Protective Document Registers this should also have ensured that a proper audit trail was maintained. I regret that the appropriate procedures were not followed.

The investigation found that at least eight copies were made of the CD and used for various purposes including use by the Board of Inquiry, to help with briefing for deploying pilots and forward air controllers, and to assist studies into friendly fire incidents. The sections of the Department which received copies of the CD were HQ LAND, HQ Adjutant General, Air Command and the Defence Science and Technology Laboratory. Unfortunately, it has not been possible to identify how many individuals have had possession of a copy of the recording.

As a result of the failings identified, remedial action is being taken. A new security education programme is being introduced as part of a wider security awareness campaign to ensure that those involved in the handling of classified and sensitive material are aware of the rules and procedures to be followed. An instruction on the release of US (and other third country) material during legal proceedings has also been issued to all MOD personnel to remind them of their responsibilities in respect of the secure handling of protectively marked US material, and we are in the process of establishing new arrangements for the management of Boards of Inquiry and Inquests to ensure a more consistent approach across the Department. The US authorities have been informed of the investigation's findings and of the remedial action taken.

I can assure you that I take the protection of classified material, especially that entrusted to us by a close ally, very seriously, and the Permanent Secretary has asked the chain of command to consider whether administrative or disciplinary action against any individual is appropriate in light of the findings of the report.

Armed Forces: Finance

Andrew Rosindell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much and what proportion of the defence budget for 2007-08 has been allocated to (a) the Army, (b) the Royal Navy and (c) the Royal Air Force. [203672]

Des Browne: The budgetary allocations for 2007-08 to Top Level Budget holders which are broadly analogous to the Royal Navy, the Army and the Royal Air Force can be found in Central Government Supply Estimates 2007-08—Spring Supplementary Estimates (HC273) respectively under the following headings: Fleet; Commander-in-Chief Land Command and Adjutant General and Commander-in-Chief Air. The relevant extract is reproduced as follows:

	Spending in DEL central Government spending
TLB (as described in spring supplementaries)	Net total resources (£000)	Capital (£000)	Non budget net total resources (£000)	Total (£000)
Fleet	2,204,982	3,533	—	2,208,515
Commander in Chief Air Command	2,647,231	991	—	2,648,222
Commander in Chief Land Command	5,729,900	156,467	—	5,886,367
Adjutant General	791,405	-11,827	9,314	788,892
Army (C in C Land + AG)	6,521,305	144,640	9,314	6,675,259

The remainder of the defence budget is allocated to organisations that support the three services. It is not possible to break down their allocations by individual service.

Armed Forces: Medical Services

Ann Winterton: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what consideration is being given to the use of the SeQual Eclipse Oxygen System in British ambulance systems in theatre. [204606]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are no plans to replace the current oxygen system used by battlefield ambulances deployed on operations as this meets our present requirements. However, we do monitor developing technology for future applications.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many consultants in infectious disease and tropical medicine were retained by the British military establishment at the latest date for which figures are available. [200947]

Derek Twigg: Currently the Defence Medical Services have one consultant in infectious disease and one in microbiology/communicable disease control. In addition, there are four medical officers undergoing higher professional training (specialist registrars) in various aspects of infectious disease.

The Army ensures that all its young doctors attend a tropical medicine course which ensures a level of knowledge well above that within the NHS.

The MOD has also introduced funding for the Diploma in Tropical Medicine and Hygiene which is now taken by most trainees in all branches of internal medicine, giving greatly enhanced skills in this area.

Armed Forces: Publications

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of the joint service publications (a) JSP 383, (b) JSP 398, (c) JSP 400 and (d) JSP 448. [175419]

Derek Twigg: The information is as follows:

JSP 383: Joint Service Manual on Law of Armed Conflict

This is a commercial publication, published by the Oxford University Press, from whom copies may be obtained. The hardback edition (ISBN-13: 978-0-19-924454-6) was published on 1 July 2004 and is priced at £131.00. A paper back edition (ISBN-13: 978-0-19-928728-4) was published on 28 July 2005 and is priced at £39.95.

For copyright reasons there is no public electronic version. There have been two amendments since the original publication date, and I shall arrange for copies of these amendments to be placed in the Library of the House.

JSP 398: United Kingdom Compendium of national Rules of Engagement

I am withholding this publication as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of our armed forces.

JSP 400: Disclosure of Information

This publication is in the course of revision. I shall place a redacted copy in the Library of the House.

JSP 448: Guide to Official Service Residence (OSR) Management & Expenditure

A new version of this publication was issued in February 2008. I shall place a copy of it in the Library of the House.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of the joint service publications (a) JSP 523, (b) JSP 524, (c) JSP 532 and (d) JSP 538. [175454]

Derek Twigg: The information is as follows:

JSP 523: "A Reservist's Guide to Employment Issues"

This publication is now out of date and no longer in print. It provides reservists with a basic guide to their rights under employment legislation, and to act as a guide for them in getting the support of their employer for both their training and deployment in the event that they are mobilised. It was first published in March 2003, and has not been amended or changed since. It is currently being re-written to take account of changes and developments in employment law. The new version is expected to be published later in the year. I shall place a copy of the most recent edition in the Library of the House.

JSP 524: Catalogue of Joint Army/RAF, Joint Service, and NATO publications

I shall place a copy of this publication in the Library of the House.

JSP 532: "Guidance for Reservists Returning to Civilian Employment"

This booklet is a guide to explain to a reservist what their rights are when returning from a period of mobilised service, how to protect those rights, and how to exercise them should the need arise. It was published in 2003 and still in use. It is available via the MOD's SaBRE website:

http://www.sabre.mod.uk/files/pdf/SaBRE_JSP532_publications.pdf

I shall place a copy of this publication in the Library of the House.

JSP 538: Regulation of Nuclear Weapon Issue Programme

I shall place a redacted copy of this publication in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Schools

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many teachers (a) were recruited to and (b) left Service Children's Education in each year since 2001. [199491]

Derek Twigg: Due to changes introduced during 2003-04 in respect of the processing and recording of Service Children's Education teacher recruitment I am unable to provide accurate figures for the years 2001-03, without incurring disproportionate cost. I can however confirm that for the years 2004-07 the following teaching staff were recruited and left Service Children's Education:

2005	106	101
2006	72	89
2007	64	90

Armed Forces: Training

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Fighting in Built-Up Areas training facilities there are. [204575]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are eight Fighting in Built Up Areas training facilities at the following locations:

Army: Recruitment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many officer applications were received by the Army in each year since 2001. [204563]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Army has received the following officer applications since 2001:

Financial year	Number
2001-02	1,893
2002-03	1,984
2003-04	2,265
2004-05	1,795
2005-06	1,913
2006-07	1,845
2007-08	1,473

Bombs

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence in which UK military engagements in which theatres cluster munitions have been deployed in the last 20 years; and what estimate he has made of the amount of unexploded British ordnance left in each of those theatres. [194426]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: UK forces have employed munitions carrying more than 10 sub-munitions in three operations since 1988: Operation Granby in Kuwait/Iraq in 1991; Operation Agricola in Serbia/Kosovo in 1999; and Operation Telic in Iraq in 2003.

Since then, military and civilian organisations have been engaged in clearing unexploded ordnance used by all parties in these conflicts. It is impracticable to provide an accurate estimate of how much progress has now been made in disposing of unexploded British ordnance originally fired by UK forces that remains in each of these theatres.

Bosnia and Herzegovina: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment he has made of the effect on the UK's rapid reaction capability of deploying the Spearhead Land Element in support of the pan-Balkans Ready Battalion Operational Reserve Force to Kosovo. [204568]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: It is planned that 2 Rifles will deploy to Kosovo as the NATO Operational Reserve Force by 31 May 2008. They will not be deploying as the Spearhead Land Element; 3 Scots will replace them in that role before 31 May 2008. With a variety of force elements remaining assigned to the versatile Joint Rapid Reaction Force pool, the UK retains the ability to respond to both domestic and international contingent commitments.

Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the terms of reference and objectives issued to those responsible for achieving commodity cluster co-locations of the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency and other commodities at Ensleigh. [203179]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The collocation of the Defence Clothing Integrated Project Team (DC IPT) alongside other elements of the Commodities Cluster is part of the wider DE and S collocation project and supports the strategic intent to achieve business improvements by focusing acquisition related activities at Abbey Wood by 2012. The objectives for this overarching programme are well documented with all moves being conducted to align with this strategic intent. A guide to collocation for team leaders has been developed and outlines the key roles and responsibilities required and the actions to be completed to achieve successful team relocation. I shall place a copy of this document in the Library of the House.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) if he will place in the Library a copy of the analysis carried out relating to the setting up of a co-located commodity cluster at Ensleigh; [203180]

(2) if he will place in the Library the study reports commissioned to assess the economics and efficiencies arising from the relocation of the Defence Clothing and Textile Agency from Caversfield to Ensleigh. [203181]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I shall place a copy of the relevant extracts of the internally approved investment appraisal for bringing forward the move of Defence Clothing Integrated Project Team (DC IPT) in the Library of the House. This summarises the analysis undertaken including the assessment of savings associated with the move of the team to collocate with other elements of the commodities cluster in Ensleigh.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost of the co-located commodity cluster operating from the three sites at Ensleigh, Foxhill and West Moors. [203182]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The collocation of the Commodities Cluster will be in two phases; the first being the merger of medical and general stores at Foxhill in Bath with the collocation of food and clothing at Ensleigh, also in Bath. The second phase will see the Commodities Cluster as a whole (including any appropriate elements from West Moors) forming up at Abbey Wood in 2011. These plans have been assessed as part of the Business Case for relocating DC IPT to Ensleigh, which included a full economic assessment to compare the relocation with retaining posts in their existing locations. This showed a saving of over £50 million compared to retaining the Commodities Cluster in their existing locations.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what estimate he has made of the cost of relocating the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency from Ensleigh to Abbey Wood by 2012. [203183]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The personnel costs of moving the Defence Clothing Integrated Project Team (DC IPT) from Ensleigh to Abbey Wood will be minimal as the Travel to Work areas of the two sites significantly overlap. There will be some costs associated with moving technical equipment, estimated at about £600,000. The move of DC IPT is part of the wider D E and S Collocation Project which seeks to focus acquisition related activity at Abbey Wood by 2012 and is expected to save at least £200 million over 25 years. The Collocation Project has already successfully moved 1,000 posts directly supporting the Front Line from Andover to Abbey Wood.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what human resources assessment he has made of the (a) risk and (b) impact upon staff of the proposed sequence of relocation of the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency from (i) Caversfield to Ensleigh and (ii) Ensleigh to Abbey Wood. [203184]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The strategic intent of D E and S to focus acquisition related activities at Abbey Wood by 2012, of which the relocation from Caversfield of Defence Clothing IPT (DC IPT) forms a part, will require the relocation of significant numbers of posts to Bristol. The Project has already successfully moved over 1,000 posts from Andover to Abbey Wood. The risks and potential impacts on staff are therefore well understood and mitigation strategies, which have been proven to be effective, will be put in place for the DC IPT relocation. This includes the provision of direct support to staff and their families, comprehensive and flexible allowance packages and the redeployment and re-training of existing staff in the new location. The impact upon staff of the onward move from Ensleigh to Abbey Wood is expected to be minimal as the Travel to Work areas of the two sites significantly overlap. Staff are therefore expected to move home only once to cover both office moves.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what assessment his Department has made of the improvements in service anticipated as a result of the move of the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency to a co-located organisation at Ensleigh. [203185]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: For the Commodities Cluster, of which DC IPT forms part, the collocation to Abbey Wood by 2012 means that it will be possible to adopt a new business model with leaner, more effective processes and supply chain which will be supported by an improved, centralised pool of expertise across the Cluster. The ability to flex resources to meet peak workloads will be enhanced as will access to a wider range of support functions, all available within a single location. This would not be possible if DC IPT were to remain at Caversfield.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the analysis carried out into (a) deficiencies and (b) changing demands from front line commands relating to the proposed relocation of the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency. [203187]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The strategic intent of DE and S to focus acquisition-related activities at Abbey Wood by 2012, of which the relocation from Caversfield of Defence Clothing IPT (integrated project team) forms a part, will require the relocation of significant number of posts to Bristol The project has already successfully moved over 1,000 posts from Andover to Abbey Wood. Support to operations now and in the future remains paramount. Understanding the requirements of the armed forces and how these could vary is ongoing normal business and conducted using a range of means by any IPT directly supporting the front line and, as such, separate documentation is not available.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence for what reason the proposed date for the transfer of the Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency from Caversfield to Ensleigh has been moved from 2010 to 2009. [203188]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The move of Defence Clothing IPT (DC IPT) from Caversfield is part of a wider DE and S Collocation Project, which aims to focus acquisition-related activities at Abbey Wood by 2012. The project has already successfully moved over 1,000 posts which directly support the front line from Andover to Abbey Wood. The change to the DC IPT move timetable is intended to mitigate the risks to business continuity associated with the original time scale; namely that key skills from the team would potentially have been lost in the run up to the relocation date in 2010. Moving posts sooner will assist in retention of staff and will also facilitate earlier recruitment of staff in the south west.

Defence Estates: Sales

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what property in (a) Wales, (b) Northern Ireland, (c) Scotland and (d) England was sold by Defence Estates in each of the last five years; what the division of receipts in respect of each sale was to (i) the Welsh Assembly Government, (ii) the Northern Ireland Executive, (iii) the Scottish Executive and (iv) other budgets other than Defence Estates; and if he will make a statement. [204739]

Derek Twigg: Records of individual property sales broken down by country in each of the last five years are not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

In line with HM Treasury guidance, receipts retained by the Ministry of Defence (MOD) from the sale of property are reinvested by the Department in key priorities. They form part of the defence budget and are not directly allocated to either devolved administrations or other parts of the MOD.

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting have been made in each such year. [204099]

Derek Twigg: Since 2006, the MOD has offset non-operational official and ministerial flights, booked through the Head Office Travel Service, through the Government's Carbon Offsetting Fund (GCOF) managed by EEA Fund Management. For the year 2006-07, the MOD paid the total offsetting cost of £180,599.38 to the GCOF.

Departmental Translation Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent by his Department on translation and interpretation services in 2007-08, broken down by language. [205185]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The staff costs of the central MOD team that provides translation and interpreting services was £598,397 for financial year 2007-08. A breakdown of its work by language could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

In addition to this amount, the following was spent on centrally contracted-out translation services during FY 2007-08 (by language):

Russian to English	5,325.00
Farsi to English	1,058.00
English to Russian	959.00
English to French	693.00

French to English	116.50
English to Dari	113.50
Arabic to English	90.00
English to Spanish	75.50
Italian to English	57.50

And the following was spent on centrally contracted-out interpreting services during FY 2007-08 (by language)

French	35,000.31
Nepalese	32,993.98
German	14,175.81
Fijian	9,341.28
Russian	6,124.81
Spanish	5,827.66
Japanese	4,414.83
Chinese	3,458.84
Malaysian	2,896.79
Italian	2,739.19

Turkish	2,499.05
Arabic	1,934.87
Ukrainian	1,466.84
Bulgarian	683.50
Total	123,557.76

Details of services procured outside of these central arrangements, including most translation/interpreting work in theatres of deployed operations, could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft: Procurement

Mr. Jenkin: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what lessons have been learned from the procurement process for the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft (FSTA); and what steps will be taken to retain the expertise and experience gained by the FSTA acquisition team for use in future major procurement programmes. [203902]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Following the successful placement of the Future Strategic Tanker Aircraft (FSTA) PFI contract, we are conducting a Learning From Experience exercise to identify relevant lessons arising from this innovative project. The Department aims to employ the skills honed in this acquisition on other projects.

Kosovo: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many and what type of helicopters will support British forces operating in Kosovo. [204571]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: UK forces in Kosovo may draw from helicopter capability provided by other nations as part of the coalition effort should it be required. This is normal practice. The number and type of helicopters used would depend upon the requirements of the particular situation arising during this principally land-based deployment.

Lynx Helicopters

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the average age of the Lynx helicopter fleet will be in 2014. [204562]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Of the current Lynx helicopter fleet that are expected to be in service in 2014 the average age will be 31 years nine months (as at January 2014).

Married Quarters: Sales

Mr. Marshall: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Ministry of Defence houses were sold in each of the last 10 years. [160053]

Derek Twigg: Details of the number of service family accommodation (SFA) properties sold in Northern Ireland are not held centrally so will take a little more time to collate. I will write to the hon. Member and a copy of my letter will be placed in the Library of the House.

Records of other SFA sold in financial year 1997-98 to 1999-2000 no longer exist. However, SFA properties sold in each financial year since FY 2000-01 are set out as follows:

Financial year	SFA sold
2000-01	316
2001-02	250
2002-03	336
2003-04	208
2004-05	62
2005-06	281
2006-07	365

Substantive answer from Derek Twigg to David Marshall:

I undertook to write to you in answer to your Parliamentary Question on 19 October 2007, (Official Report, column 974W) about the number of Ministry of Defence houses sold in each of the last 10 years in Northern Ireland. I apologise that it has taken so long to reply to you.

I can confirm that the number of Service Family Accommodation (SFA) sold in Northern Ireland during the given period is:

Financial year	Number of SFA sold
1997-98	2
1998-99	1
1999-2000	0
2002-03	0
2003-04	17
2004-05	86
2005-06	92
2007-08	127

Please accept my apologies for the lateness of writing but this was due to an administrative error.

Medals: Warrington

Helen Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many (a) veterans' badges and (b) Bevin Boys badges have been awarded to people in Warrington North constituency. [203150]

Derek Twigg: Records based on postcodes show that a total of 926 HM Veterans lapel badges and five Bevin Boys Veterans badges have been issued to residents in the Warrington area. It is not possible to identify which applications are specifically from the Warrington North constituency.

Navy: EU Action

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what Royal Navy assets will participate in the EU review of naval forces in Toulon in October 2008; and if he will make a statement. [204564]

Des Browne: There are currently no plans for any Royal Navy assets to participate in any EU review of naval forces in Toulon in October.

RAF Innsworth: NATO Rapid Reaction Corps

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to (a) decide on and (b)

announce the timetable for the move of HQ Allied Rapid Reaction Corps to Innsworth in Gloucestershire. [205222]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 21 January 2008, Official Report, column 1604W.

Royal Ordnance Factories

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many Royal Ordnance factories closed in each year since 1997; [204570]

(2) how many Royal Ordnance factories there were in each year since 1997. [204591]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: In 1987 Royal Ordnance plc was sold to British Aerospace (now BAE Systems plc), with the exception of Royal Ordnance Factory Leeds which had been acquired by Vickers Defence systems in 1986.

Since 1987, MOD has had no responsibility for the former Royal Ordnance Factories and any decision by BAE Systems to rationalise its business by closure or sale of its ordnance factories has been a commercial one for the company.

Sandhurst Foundation: Finance

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department provided to the Sandhurst Foundation in each year since 1997. [204573]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The Sandhurst Foundation was established in 2004 as the Royal Military Academy's 'Alumni' Association for past and present Army officers who trained at Sandhurst. The Foundation is funded entirely through private sources. Foundation staff do, however, have the use of two surplus offices at the Royal Military Academy Sandhurst (RMAS), which are provided with telephones and a single MOD computer.

Service Personnel and Veterans Agency: Location

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what steps he will take to (a) minimise the potential for disruption and (b) retain (i) skills and (ii) service levels in relation to the proposed re-location of the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency; and if he will make a statement; [204670]

(2) if he will place in the Library a copy of the business case for the re-location of the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency; and if he will make a statement; [204676]

(3) what estimate he has made of the cost to his Department associated with relocating the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency; and if he will make a statement; [204677]

(4) when he plans to make a statement on the proposed relocation of the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency. [204678]

Derek Twigg: I will write shortly to the hon. Member regarding my decision about the proposed relocation of the Service Personnel and Veterans Agency functions undertaken currently at Innsworth Station.

Warships: Procurement

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what his policy is on competitive tendering for (a) warship and (b) Royal Fleet Auxiliary refits; and for what reason only one bidder is being allowed to enter the reverse auction for the refit of HMS Scott. [203199]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 1 May 2008]: Competition policy for refits and docking periods (upkeeps) for legacy complex warships was suspended in 2006. Since then, the Surface Ship Support Project has been exploring a wide range of support options to deliver sustainable, efficient and affordable support for these vessels.

For Royal Fleet Auxiliary ships, one-off competed contracts are currently placed for upkeep work. However, in order to achieve greater value for money, a Through Life Support Strategy has been developed that will result in contracts being placed based on a five-year maintenance cycle. These contracts are being competed and are due to be placed by late summer 2008.

For HMS Scott's next docking period, a competition was initiated with the expectation that the tendering process would culminate in a reverse auction. Four companies were invited to tender in late 2007, but two subsequently withdrew. Following a full evaluation of the two remaining tenders, only one was compliant. Since at least two compliant tenders are required to proceed with a reverse auction, it is intended to complete the competition process with the remaining tenderer alone.

World War II: Medals

Mr. Morley: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will consider issuing a campaign medal to those who served in Bomber Command in the Second World War; and if he will make a statement. [204584]

Derek Twigg: I refer my right hon. Friend to the answer I gave on 4 July 2007, Official Report, column 1042W, to my hon. Friend the Member for Hartlepool (Mr. Wright).

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Support Agency: ICT

David Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many cases are being processed manually by the Child Support Agency because of technical problems with the new computer system. [202659]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 29 April 2008]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Susan Park, dated 13 May 2008:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As the Chief Executive is currently on leave, I am responding, with his authority, on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many cases are currently being processed manually by the Child Support Agency because of technical problems with the new computer system (202659)

The Agency's clerical caseload is currently 36,900 cases which is less than 3% of the total caseload. The latest figures relating to clerical cases are routinely published in the Child Support Agency's Quarterly Summary Statistics in Table 20 and further information on clerical cases is set out in the accompanying notes to the table. The latest copy is available in the House of Commons library or via the internet at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_mar08.asp

Child Support Agency: Telephone Services

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the average length of telephone calls to the Child Support Agency offices in (a) Liverpool, (b) Birkenhead, (c) Dudley, (d) Belfast, (e) Falkirk, (f) Plymouth and (g) Hastings was in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [201563]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 25 April 2008]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Susan Park, dated 13 May 2008:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As the Chief Executive is currently on annual leave, I am responding, with his authority, on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the average length of telephone calls to the Child Support Agency offices in (a) Liverpool (b) Birkenhead (c) Dudley (d) Belfast (e) Falkirk (f) Plymouth and (g) Hastings was in each of the last five years; and if he will make a statement. [201563]

Such information as is available is included in the attached tables. The tables show the average length of call and the average speed to answer the call by Agency office. Information on telephone calls to Agency offices prior to April 2006 is not available.

Further information on the Agency's telephony performance is available in Table 16 of the Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons library or on the internet at the following link:

www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_mar08.asp

The Agency has shown significant and sustained improvement in telephony performance under the Operational Improvement Plan. In the year ending March 2008, the Agency received 5,369,000 calls from clients and answered 98% of calls available to be answered, with an average waiting time of twenty seconds.

Notes:

1. Information includes old system (CSCS) and new system (CS2) calls.
2. Average length of call by office is not available prior to April 2006.
3. Average length of call includes inbound talk time and time on hold.
4. Time to answer starts once the call enters a queue and is awaiting a response by a member of staff. New system (CS2) calls enter a queue once the Interactive Voice Response (IVR) process is complete. IVR refers to the automated touch tone part of the process where customers enter their details via the telephone key pad. Once callers have cleared this part of the process, they enter a queue to be answered by a member of staff. There is no IVR process on the old system.

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what his Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201743]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department has implemented a number of initiatives to reduce energy consumption. Our estate partner, Land Securities Trillium, is incentivised to reduce energy consumption by 2 per cent. per annum as part of a shared savings mechanism.

There has been a comprehensive campaign to encourage energy reductions, covering both technical and "housekeeping" measures across the estate. These include the implementation of automatic ('Smart') meters to provide half-hourly monitoring of consumption, to enable analysis of trends and resolution of any issues the day after they arise, and to improve reporting to staff. Initial estate-wide "spend to save" investments on energy saving devices are nearing completion and further site-specific measures are now under consideration. Figures for 2007-08 are still being gathered, but significant savings are estimated as a result of these initiatives.

Expenditure for the last couple of years is given in the following table:

2005-06	29,623,598
2006-07	32,675,800

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201730]

Mrs. McGuire: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statistics/AndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.Justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 87 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was 125, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Departmental ICT

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he has taken to ensure that counterfeit routers and counterfeit other hardware are not utilised in his Department's computer networks. [203245]

Mrs. McGuire: The Department for Work and Pensions has its IT services delivered via an infrastructure that is managed by leading IT suppliers. The Department has rigorous procurement policies and processes, to source IT equipment from recognised and trusted suppliers that meet defined supply and security criteria. All components are supplied direct to either BT or EDS from their original manufacturers or their nominated and approved resellers and are individually certified as authentic.

The Department and its suppliers also use rigorous change control procedures which are compliant with recognised industry standards to control installation and change to the IT infrastructure.

Departmental NDPBs

Mr. Curry: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people were serving on the boards of the non-departmental public bodies which his Department sponsors at the latest date for which figures are available. [203598]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 6 May 2008]: The Cabinet Office publication Public bodies 2007 lists the number of people serving on the boards of public bodies as at 31 March 2007. These figures are broken down by individual Departments. Public bodies 2007 can be downloaded from:

www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/public/bodies.asp

Copies are also available in the Library of the House.

Disabled

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on the impact of shared spaces on disabled people, with particular regard to visually impaired people. [201690]

James Purnell: I have had no discussions with the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on this specific issue. However, the Department for Communities and Local Government is represented on the cross-ministerial group on "Improving the Life Chances of Disabled People", which meets regularly under the chairmanship of the Minister for Disabled People.

The Department for Transport and the Department for Communities and Local Government have been working together on the issue of shared spaces, and shared surfaces, and have produced guidance: the Manual for Streets, which was published in 2007.

Later this year, the Department for Transport will start a two-year contract to address the issues faced by visually-impaired people in negotiating shared spaces and shared surfaces. The aim is to produce a comprehensive guidance document outlining various techniques which can be used to help visually-impaired people navigate their way around these environments.

Employment: Disabled

Joan Walley: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps he has taken to measure the effectiveness of specialist disability employment service providers from all sectors working with specific impairment groups, including deaf people, under the (a) Pathways to Work, (b) Flexible New Deal, (c) New Deal for Disabled People, (d) Remploy and (e) Workstep schemes. [203350]

Mrs. McGuire: All Department for Work and Pensions contracts with employment service providers, including specialist disability employment service providers, contain the performance standards required. Professional contract managers monitor the extent to which these performance standards are met, and address any performance issues through established processes.

Providers of specialist disability employment services are also subject to Ofsted inspection and independent audit.

Remploy's financial and operational performance is regularly reviewed as part of the Department for Work and Pensions' sponsorship role of the company which is a non-departmental public body.

Family Resources Survey

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions when the next Family Resources Survey will be published. [200063]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 21 April 2008]: This publication has been delayed because we have introduced additional validation and quality assurance checks of the data set. It will now be published on 2 May 2008. The date of publication has been announced on the National Statistics website, in line with the National Statistics code of practice.

Industrial Health and Safety: Construction

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many construction industry businesses were (a) prosecuted and (b) fined for breaches of health and safety regulations in (i) Jarrow constituency, (ii) South Tyneside, (iii) the North East and (iv) the UK in each year since 1997. [202457]

Mrs. McGuire: The following table shows the number of separate cases taken by HSE[1] against employers or individuals in the construction industry. These cases may include a number of separate charges. If an employer or individual was prosecuted on more than one occasion, these will be counted separately in the table.

Numbers for the Jarrow constituency cannot be separately identified. In the period shown, there were two prosecution cases in South Tyneside. Both were decided in 1996-97, and both resulted in a fine. These two cases related to the same set of circumstances, but separate cases were pursued against the company and a director. The figures for the North East are for the Government Office region. The HSE does not enforce in Northern Ireland, so the national total shown is for Great Britain.

[1] The Health and Safety (Enforcing Authority) Regulations 1998 allocate enforcement of health and safety in the construction industry to HSE.

[1] Provisional

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many construction industry site visits were carried out by Health and Safety Executive inspectors in (a) Jarrow constituency, (b) South Tyneside, (c) the North East and (d) the UK in each year since 1997. [202458]

Mrs. McGuire: This information is not available in the form requested without disproportionate cost.

Jobcentre Plus: Fishburn Hedges

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what payments (a) Jobcentre Plus and (b) the Pension Protection Fund made to Fishburn Hedges in each of the last five years; and on what date and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202271]

Mrs. McGuire: The information available with regard to spend with PR Agency Fishburn Hedges by (a) Jobcentre Plus and (b) the Pension Protection Fund is as follows:

(a) The following table sets out the total payments made to Fishburn Hedges by Jobcentre Plus over the last five years. The payments were in respect of various customer focused programmes targeting specific groups such as lone parents or driving customer outcomes, for example through the Local Employment Partnership scheme.

April to March each year	£

2004-05	[1]—

2006-07	188,000
2007-08	502,808

[1] No contract or spend.

No further spend has been identified and a more detailed breakdown of the programmes would incur a disproportionate cost.

(b) The following table sets out the total payments made to Fishburn Hedges by the Pension Protection Fund over the last five years. The payments were in respect of strategic public affairs and communications advice, including advice on schemes entering compensation and the implementation of the Pension Protection Levies.

No further spend has been identified and a more detailed breakdown of the programmes would incur a disproportionate cost.

Jobseekers Allowance

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many claimants of jobseekers allowance were recorded as having been on holiday in each year since 1997. [203261]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information requested is not available.

Occupational Health

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the incidence of self-reported work related ill-health in each year since 2004; and what progress is being made towards meeting this element of his Department's Public Service Agreement target 5. [200823]

Mrs. McGuire: The following table sets out the published statistics for the years 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07. The provisional figures for 2007-08 will be published in autumn 2008.

Estimated incidence rates of self-reported work-related ill health

	Central	Lower	Upper

[1] 95 per cent. confidence interval, the range within which we are 95 per cent. confident that the true value lies in the absence of bias.

The PSA target five is to

"By 2008, improve health and safety outcomes in Great Britain through progressive improvements in the control of risk in the workplace".

The PSA target is measured against six sub-targets, including one for ill health incidence—a 6 per cent. reduction in the 2004-05 baseline. The Health and Safety Executive publishes a statistics progress report annually. The latest report for the period 2006-07 indicates that for ill health and self reported HSE is not on track to meet the PSA target.

Pensioners: Overseas Residence

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the number of retired UK citizens living in countries in respect of which no uprating of pensions agreement has been made. [205354]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Our records do not differentiate UK citizens from other citizens in receipt of a UK state pension.

The latest estimate of the number of UK state pensions paid to pensioners living in frozen rate countries is approximately 530,000.

Source:

March 2007 Retirement Pension and Widows Benefit administrative data, 5 per cent. sample

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate he has made of the cost of uprating pensions for retired UK citizens living abroad. [205355]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The UK state pension is uprated for UK pensioners living overseas where there is a reciprocal social security agreement or a legal requirement to do so.

The latest estimate to bring all frozen rate UK state pensions up to the current rate is around £440 million and this would be an ongoing cost increasing year on year.

Poverty: Disabled

John Barrett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans his Department has to include the additional costs of living with disability in official calculations and indicators of poverty. [200403]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 23 April 2008]: We are committed to tackling all aspects of disability poverty and have already made considerable progress. The number of disabled individuals in households with an income below 60 per cent. of median on an After Housing Cost basis fell by 500,000 in Great Britain between 1998-99 and 2005-06. On a Before Housing Cost basis the number of disabled individuals in households with an income below 60 per cent. of median fell by around 100,000 over the same period.

In 2005 the Department's report 'Review of existing research on the extra costs of disability'[1] found that all studies conducted to date have concluded that there are extra costs incurred by disabled people. However, measuring these extra costs is conceptually and methodologically difficult and there is disagreement over what constitutes the extra costs disabled people face. As a result the existing evidence supporting estimates of the extra costs of disability varies widely.

In light of these findings the Department has no further work planned in this area at present, but we will continue to keep abreast of developments.

[1] Working Paper No. 21, September 2005:
http://www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd5/WP21.pdf

Notes:

1. Data are taken from the Households Below Average Income series 2005-06.

2. Figures are rounded to the nearest 100,000.

3. The definition of disability used by HBAI changed in 2002-03. It is not possible to separate out definitional and real effects. For 1998-99, available data exclude Northern Ireland, therefore changes across Great Britain between 1998-99 and 2005-06 have been presented.

Social Security Benefits: Foreigners

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many non-UK citizens claimed benefits in each year since 1997, broken down by benefit claimed; and how many of them were living in the UK in each case. [203265]

Mr. Plaskitt: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave him on 28 January 2008, Official Report, column 65W.

UN Convention on the Rights of People with Disabilities

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what assessment he has made of the compatibility of UK legislation with the UN Convention on the Rights of People with Disabilities; and if he will make a statement. [204031]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 8 May 2008:] I refer my hon. Friend to my written statement of 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 28WS—"UN Convention on Disability Rights".

HEALTH

Accident and Emergency Departments: Crimes of Violence

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many accident and emergency staff in England were victims of assault while on duty in each of the last three years; [204381]

(2) how many hospital staff in England were hospitalised as a result of assault while on duty in each of the last three years. [204382]

Ann Keen: Since 2004-05, the NHS Security Management Service has collected information on the number of physical assaults reported against national health service staff in England.

Information on the number of assaults against accident and emergency staff and on how many hospital staff have been hospitalised as a result of assault while on duty is not available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The numbers of reported physical assaults in acute and foundation trusts in the last three years for which information is available are shown in the following table:

	Number
2004-05	10,758
2005-06	11,100
2006-07	9,685

Accident and Emergency Departments: Diabetes

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many hospital emergency admissions were recorded in England for diabetic ketoacidosis and hypoglycaemic coma in each of the last five years, broken down by (a) age, (b) sex, (c) type of diabetes and (d) primary care trust. [202751]

Ann Keen: Tables showing emergency hospital admissions with a primary diagnosis of diabetic ketoacidosis or hypoglycaemic coma between 2002-03 and 2006-07, the latest year for which data is available, broken down by age, gender, type of diabetes and primary care trust, have been placed in the Library.

Arthritis

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to collect information on the number of newly diagnosed cases of rheumatoid arthritis; what recent representations he has received on the number of persons with rheumatoid arthritis; and if he will make a statement. [205057]

Ann Keen: We have no plans to collect national information on the number of people newly diagnosed with specific medical conditions, including rheumatoid arthritis. Primary care trust commissioners of national health service services should make commissioning decisions by identifying current needs and anticipating future trends. This includes the gathering of quantitative and quantative information that they require to do this.

We have received representations from individuals asking for information on the number of people with rheumatoid arthritis.

Cancer: Urinary System

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 26th February 2008, Official Report, column 1454W, on cancer: urinary system, (1) when he expects the information submitted by strategic health authorities confirming the position for 31st December 2007 to have been analysed; whether this information is being analysed by (a) his Department and (b) the NHS Cancer Action team; and whether the results of this analysis will be published; [201626]

(2) with which strategic health authorities where deadlines are unlikely to be met to ensure recovery plans are in place, his Department's Recovery and Support Unit is liaising; [201627]

(3) which networks in summer 2007 were (a) already reporting implementation of the Improving Outcomes Guidance and (b) reporting that they were on schedule to implement the Guidance by 31st December 2007. [201628]

Ann Keen: The information submitted by strategic health authorities (SHAs) confirming the position for 31 December 2007 has now been analysed by the cancer action team. There are no plans to publish this analysis.

The recovery and support unit is liaising with six SHAs to ensure recovery plans are in place where deadlines are unlikely to be met. The SHAs concerned are:

East of England;
Yorkshire and the Humber;
South Central;
East Midlands;
West Midlands; and
South east coast.

In summer 2007, the cancer networks reporting implementation of the urological Improving Outcomes Guidance were:

Arden;
Derby and Burton;
Greater Manchester and Cheshire;
Lancashire and South Cumbria;
Leicestershire, Northamptonshire and Rutland;
Merseyside and Cheshire;
Mount Vernon[1]
North of England;
North Trent;
Pan Birmingham;
Peninsula;
South East London;
South West London; and Thames Valley.

In summer 2007, the following cancer networks reported that they were on schedule to implement the urological Improving Outcomes Guidance by 31 December 2007 were: -

Anglia;
Avon Somerset and Wiltshire;
Dorset;
Essex;
North East London;
North London;
Sussex;
Three Counties; and West London.

[1] Mount Vernon's plans were interim and based on a proposed new build at Hatfield. The new build is not now going ahead and implementation of a revised urology Improving Outcome Guidance action plan for Mount Vernon is expected later this year.

Cardiovascular System: Screening

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what evidence he has assessed on the (a) health effects and (b) cost-effectiveness of screening the general population for cardiovascular disease. [203932]

Ann Keen: The Department has undertaken modelling work which has confirmed that a universal vascular checks programme for those aged between 40 and 74 years is both cost and clinically effective. It will publish a technical report on the modelling work in summer 2008 which will be the subject of a consultation.

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the merits of screening specific high risk populations for cardiovascular disease, with particular reference to people with rheumatoid arthritis; and if he will make a statement. [203933]

Ann Keen: The National Screening Committee recommended that a whole population approach be taken to vascular risk assessment. The Department's subsequent modelling has confirmed that a vascular checks programme, as described in 'Putting Prevention First', would be both clinically and cost effective for those aged between 40 and 74. However, assessment and management of cardiovascular risk of people with conditions that put them at higher risk of cardiovascular disease may be undertaken as part of their overall clinical management where indicated. Copies of this publication are available in the Library.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome: Health Services

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps his Department plans to take to assess what services are offered to children and adults who are bedbound or housebound due to the effects of myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome; [203960]

(2) what steps his Department plans to take to address the geographical gaps which exist in local specialist services for people with myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome; [203961]

(3) what steps his Department is taking to encourage primary care trusts to implement the recommendations of the new guidelines on myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome produced in August 2007 by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence. [203964]

Ann Keen: Health professionals are expected to use their clinical judgment taking into account best practice and existing clinical guidelines, including those produced by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence, to provide the most appropriate treatment for the individual living with chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis (CFS/ME).

We have made no assessment of the services provided for children and young people.

We have no plans to address any geographical gaps in the provision of local specialist services. Local health bodies have a duty to commission health and social care services to meet the needs of their local population, including those living with CFS/ME.

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to reduce the average time taken to diagnose myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome. [203963]

Ann Keen: Diagnosis for chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis can be prolonged as there is no specific test for this condition, and therefore other diseases with similar symptoms must be ruled out before a diagnosis can be made. The recent guidance produced by the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence provides a list of medical tests that should be used to rule out other conditions.

Chronic Fatigue Syndrome: Young People

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department plans to take to address the effect on paediatric services for children and young people with myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome of the closure of units in Leeds, Stevenage and London. [203971]

Ann Keen: We have no plans to address the effect on paediatric services for children and young people by the closure of these specialist units. Local health bodies have a duty to commission health and social care services to meet the needs of their local population, including those living with chronic fatigue syndrome/myalgic encephalomyelitis.

Departmental Surveys

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what surveys were conducted by (a) YouGov, (b) ICM, (c) Gallup, (d) GfK NOP, (f) ComRes and (g) Opinion Leader Research on behalf of his Department in the financial year 2007-08; and what the cost of each to the public purse was. [204124]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not collect, centrally, information on surveys it commissions in the format requested. To do so would attract disproportionate cost.

A new system will be introduced on 1 July 2008 called SHOWA, which will be able to gather such future but not retrospective information for the Department.

Doctors: Working Hours

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of NHS doctors of each specialty and grade which will be needed to meet the requirements of the European Working Time Directive in each of the next 10 years. [204224]

Ann Keen: There were 46,783 doctors in training and equivalent grades working in the national health service as of 30 September 2007. This is an increase of 16,470 (54 per cent.) since 1997.

NHS trusts have successfully delivered the current European Working Time Directive (EWTD) requirements. The Department commissioned NHS National Workforce Projects to support local implementation of the final phase of EWTD requirements, namely the 48-hour working week for doctors in training. The solutions developed to support the local NHS do not rely on lots more doctors.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many NHS doctors worked for 48 hours a week or fewer in the latest period for which figures are available. [204530]

Ann Keen: This information is not collected centrally. It is the responsibility of local employers to implement European Working Time Directive (EWTD) as part of their health and safety obligations. The new deal contract monitoring returns give an indication of national health service readiness for fully implementing the EWTD 48-hour week for doctors in training. Monitoring information for 2007 is published on the NHS employers website at:

www.nhsemployers.org/pay-conditions/pay-conditions-467.cfm.

In 2007, approximately half of doctors in training worked a 48-hour week.

General Practitioners

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health in which local authority wards he plans to establish new GP practices as part of his Department's programme to provide greater GP provision in those primary care trusts with the poorest provision. [203445]

Mr. Bradshaw: Those primary care trusts with poorest provision are currently engaging with their stakeholders, including local patients and clinicians, through their local consultations to determine the precise locations of these new services. Information on these PCTs is shown in the following table.

Health Professions: Occupational Health

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government have taken to promote well-being among healthcare professionals and support staff since 1997. [204551]

Ann Keen: The Government have done a good deal to promote well-being among health care professionals and support staff since 1997. This includes: Improving Working Lives (2000) and Practice Plus (2001); NHS Plus (2001), providing occupational health to NHS staff; the NHS Employers' reference guide to staff well-being, the Healthy Workplaces Handbook (October 2007); NHS Health and Well-being pilots and 'Health for Health professionals' pilots (2008). In addition, a number of primary care trusts (PCTs) took part in both the recent departmental sponsored investors in People Health and Well-being at Work and British Health Foundation Well@Work pilots.

For the future, the Government will be responding later in the year to the proposals in Professor Dame Carol Black's, the National Director for Health and Work's Review of the health of the working age, "Working for a healthier tomorrow" (March 2008) to make all work places healthier. Copies of this publication are available in the Library.

Health Professions: Working Hours

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he and his officials have had with European counterparts on the European Working Time Directive in each of the last 10 years. [204225]

Ann Keen: Over the last decade, there have been many discussions within Europe at both Ministerial and official level about impact of the SiMAP and Jaeger Judgments and retention of the opt-out.

The Government will continue to try to secure an acceptable agreement with member states and the European Commission on the European Working Time Directive.

Health Services

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps the Government have taken to ensure high standards of health care services during night-time hours since 1997. [204550]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Government have listened to the issues that are important to the public in relation to health care services at night-time and delivered real improvements to availability and standards of services. Improvements have included:

the introduction of NHS Direct giving people a means of accessing health advice at any time and where necessary being supported to access appropriate treatment; improved availability of out of hours pharmacy services. The Pharmacy White Paper, published in April, sets out ways in which urgent access to medicines can be further improved; allowing general practitioners to transfer responsibility for providing out of hours services to primary care trusts (PCTs). This has given PCTs the legal responsibility and opportunity to ensure that everyone has access to consistently high quality and responsive out of hours service; and a guide to risk-assessing hospitals at night to help ensure that hospital at night solutions are designed and implemented to provide safer patient care was jointly published by the National Patient Safety Agency and Modernisation Agency.

In addition to the service improvements that have taken place over the last 10 years, there has been a focus on assessing performance which has looked not only at service availability but also the quality of those services. In 2004 the Department published, "Standards for Better Health (National Standards Local Health and Social Care Standards and Planning Framework 2005-06—2007-08)" setting out the level of quality all organisations providing national health service care are expected to meet or aspire to across the NHS in England. Copies of this publication are available in the Library.

The current performance assessment model carried out by the independent regulator, the Healthcare Commission, includes the core standards i.e. the minimum level of quality that health care services are expected to meet. Each year, the Healthcare Commission produces the Annual Health Check detailing the outcome of this performance assessment. The Commission also regulates independent health care providers.

Health Services: Overseas Residence

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will assess the effect of the implementation of the Working Time Directive in other EU member states on the ability of UK citizens to access healthcare of equal quality in those states. [204514]

Ann Keen: No. This is not part of the United Kingdom Government's responsibility.

Hospital Wards

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the take-up rate by NHS trusts in England of the NHS Institute's Productive Ward implementation modules launched in January. [204269]

Ann Keen: No assessment has been carried out centrally. It is for local national health service trusts in partnership with strategic health authorities to implement the productive ward programme in accordance with local needs.

Hospitals: Housing

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health for what reason the requirement for a junior doctor to reside in accommodation supplied by the hospital approved for training was ended in April 2007; and what discussions he has had with the NHS Confederation and individual trusts on putting alternative arrangements in place. [205012]

Ann Keen: Changes to the Medical Act 1983 made in August 2007 remove the requirement for pre-registration doctors to be employed in a 'residential medical capacity'. This represents an improvement in their conditions of service and reflects the reduction in their working hours. As the statutory requirement to be resident no longer exists, these doctors will need to make the same arrangements as other national health service staff.

This issue was considered by the independent Doctors and Dentists Review Body (DDRB) in their 2008 report following evidence submitted by the British Medical Association, NHS Employers (part of the NHS Confederation) and the United Kingdom Health Departments. The DDRB concluded

"...we consider it entirely appropriate that junior doctors are treated in exactly the same way as other NHS staff."

Copies of the "Review Body on Doctors' and Dentists' Remuneration, 37th report, 2008" are available in the Library.

Kernicterus

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 7 November 2007, Official Report, column 1285W, on kernicterus, (1) when the Department plans to consider whether additional information should be added to the Pregnancy Book; [204231]

(2) how many (a) deaths and (b) morbidities from kernicterus there were in the last 10 years, broken down by (i) maternity unit and (ii) ethnicity; [204230]

(3) with reference to the answer of 25 January 2007, Official Report, column 2045W, on the Pregnancy Book, what options are under consideration for the future of the Pregnancy Book, contingent on the outcome of the review. [204513]

Ann Keen: We do not hold statistics centrally in the form requested. However, the number of admissions to hospital for which kernicterus was given as the main cause are shown in the following table. This is not, of course, likely to give a complete picture of morbidity since other causes of admission, such as jaundice, may be recorded instead.

We are currently considering changes to the content of future editions of the Pregnancy Book.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 271W, on the Pregnancy Book, (1) whether standardisation of total serum bilirubin measurements has been accomplished; whether the cases of kernicterus reported to the British Paediatric Surveillance Unit have been analysed with a root cause analysis; whether a system of mandatory reporting of elevated bilirubin levels has been established; and what arrangements have been made for ready access to transcutaneous bilirubin and total serum bilirubin measurements among in-patients and out-patients; [204232]

(2) with reference to the answer of 25 January 2007, Official Report, column 2045W, on the Pregnancy Book, if he will place in the Library the results of the work which was commissioned to complete the review. [204233]

Ann Keen: British Paediatric Surveillance Unit data formed the basis of a 'Prospective Surveillance Study of Severe Byperbilirubinaemia in the Newborn in the UK and Ireland' (Donal Manning, et al Arch Dis Child Fetal Neonatal Ed 2007; 992:342-346). Copies of this study have been placed in the Library.

The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) is currently developing guidance on the recognition and treatment of neonatal jaundice and recently carried out a consultation on the scope of the guideline. NICE expects to issue the guideline in early 2010.

The UK National Screening Committee will consider action on the report when the scope of the NICE guideline is finalised.

Magnetic Resonance Imagers

Mr. Cameron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what plans the Government has to increase the number of magnetic resonance imaging scanners in the NHS. [202932]

Ann Keen: The acquisition of imaging equipment such as magnetic resonance imaging scanners is a local matter and individual national health service trusts should base decisions on local needs and the existing capacity they have to meet those needs.

Medical Records

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the procedure is for patients to choose not to have a summary care record; and what steps general practitioners have to take to put that choice into effect. [204219]

Mr. Bradshaw: Currently, patients who do not want a summary care record (SCR) are advised to make their wishes known to their general practice. Guidance has been issued to all general practices entitled "Guidance On Managing Requests For No Summary Care Record During The Period Of The Early Adopter Programme" on how they should respond to patients' inquiries about their options in relation to SCR, including to those patients who have decided not to have a SCR. Copies of the guidance have been placed in the Library and are also available at:

www.connectingforhealth.nhs.uk/systemsandservices/nhscrs/publications/staff/gpguidance.pdf

The essence of the guidance is that practices should ensure patients fully understand the implications of their decision, and that a record is kept to that effect, signed both by the patient, and on behalf of the practice.

SCRs cannot be created without the agreement and co-operation of general practitioners, who are currently the data controllers for the records from which the relevant data will be uploaded. The Department can only recommend that practices follow its advice in line with the guidance.

These and other practical aspects of how patients are able to exercise the choices they have in relation to the SCR will be among the key issues to be reviewed by the summary care record advisory group in light of the recently published independent evaluation of the SCR Early Adopters Programme in order to inform the future roll-out of the SCR.

Medical Records: Databases

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2008, Official Report, column 206W, on medical records: databases, for what reasons Connecting for Health cannot comment on the specific monitoring processes; and what estimate he has made of the likely number of alerts (a) per day and (b) each Caldicott Guardian will be able to monitor. [204222]

Mr. Bradshaw: Systems delivered by NHS Connecting for Health will provide the alert data and tools for reviewing alerts, but detailed monitoring arrangements and assessment of follow up actions are the responsibility of local national health service organisations and individual Caldicott Guardians.

Staff who breach patient confidentiality are subject to disciplinary measures and the legal penalties provided under the Data Protection Act, and professional staff risk losing their licence to practice. There is no evidence that breaches currently happen other than very exceptionally. We expect this to continue to be the case when systems are deployed that have the ability to audit behaviour.

Only a small number of alerts are therefore expected, and we anticipate that Caldicott Guardians, or their delegated representatives, will be able to monitor all alerts raised to them.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 26 March 2008, Official Report, column 206W, on medical records: databases (1) under what terms and conditions suppliers will have access; [204223]

(2) which NHS suppliers will have access to the secondary users service; and what terms and conditions will govern such access. [204543]

Mr. Bradshaw [holding answer 9 May 2008]: The terms and conditions are being agreed but include, for example, limitations on the disclosure of data to third parties and the copying of data, and termination and liability clauses in the event of unauthorised disclosure of personally-identifiable information. There will also be a right of audit to verify adherence to the terms and conditions, which will be the key condition determining permission to access for those wishing to use the service.

When finalised, the terms and conditions will be published.

Medicine: Education

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what proportion of medical students studying in English medical schools in England gained entry from (a) British and (b) overseas schools in the latest period for which figures are available. [203919]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect this information. However, data on the normal place of residency of students are collected by the Higher Education Funding Council for England. The latest provisional figures for student intakes into English medical schools in the academic year 2007-08 show that of the total 6,292 student intakes, 89 per cent. are normally resident in Great Britain and the remaining 11 per cent. are normally resident overseas (including in Northern Ireland, the Channel Islands and Isle of Man). Confirmed figures from the previous three years show that the corresponding percentage of intakes normally resident in Great Britain was 90 per cent.

Mental Health Services: Prisons

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Justice on recommendations 1.39, 1.42 and 1.44 of the HM Inspectorate of Prisons report entitled The Mental Health of Prisoners Thematic, published in October 2007. [204267]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The report, The Mental Health of Prisoners Thematic (HMIP, 2007) made a number of recommendations about improving mental health care in prisons. The Department of Health is preparing its response to all these recommendations.

I meet regularly with ministerial colleagues at the Ministry of Justice to discuss matters relating to mental health in prisons. In December 2007, my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Justice invited my noble Friend Lord Bradley of Withington to carry out a review into diverting more offenders with severe mental health problems away from prison into more appropriate accommodation, (5 December 2007, Official Report, column 1703-6). Lord Bradley will report jointly to the Department of Health and the Ministry of Justice.

NHS: Complaints

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions he has held with the National Audit Office on progress on its examination of plans to develop a comprehensive single complaints system across health and social care by 2009. [204275]

Ann Keen: The National Audit Office (NAO) has recently undertaken an evaluation of existing performance, capability, capacity and costs of complaints handling in both health and adult social care.

In discussion between the NAO and the Department of Health about its remit for this evaluation, it was agreed that one of the objectives should be to highlight the strengths and weaknesses of the current complaints systems and identify the challenges and risks that will need to be managed in developing a comprehensive single complaints system across health and social care. The NAO is due to produce the report of its evaluation in summer 2008.

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many complaints were reviewed by the Healthcare Commission relating to health care services in Wirral during 2007. [204938]

Mr. Bradshaw: We understand from the Healthcare Commission that the information is not available in the form requested, the Commission records complaints by service provider rather than by geographical or local authority area. Information about the number of complaints involving the three main NHS organisations responsible for health care in Wirral reviewed in 2007 is set out as follows:

	Number
Cheshire and Wirral Partnership NHS Trust	8
Wirral Hospitals NHS Trust	35
Wirral PCT	9

Cheshire and Wirral Partnership NHS Trust provides services both in and outside Wirral and is now Cheshire and Wirral Partnership NHS Foundation Trust. Wirral Hospitals NHS Trust is now Wirral University Teaching Hospitals NHS Foundation Trust.

NHS: Hanover Communications

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what payments the (a) NHS Cancer Screening Programme and (b) NHS Sickle Cell and Thalassaemia Screening Programme made to Hanover Communications in each of the last five years; and on what dates and for what purpose the payment was made in each case. [202298]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held centrally—details of individual sub-contractual payments are held by the individual national health service body.

NHS: ICT

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 25 March 2008, Official Report, column 26W, on NHS: ICT, what the timetable is to which the answer refers. [204072]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given to the hon. Member for South Norfolk (Mr. Bacon) on 12 March 2008, Official Report, columns 475-77W.

NHS: Identity Cards

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the answer of 27 February 2006, Official Report, column 439W, on the European Health Insurance Card, if he will place in the Library minutes of discussions of the potential costs and benefits of the proposed national health service card with the NHS Connecting for Health National Programme for IT; and what his policy is on whether to introduce an NHS card. [202327]

Mr. Bradshaw: A number of discussions took place in the course of developing policy advice to Ministers on the possible costs and benefits of an national health service card. The Government do not disclose details of internal policy deliberations. There are no current plans to introduce an NHS card.

NHS: Negligence

Mr. Baron: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the policy of the NHS Litigation Authority is in respect of defending clinical negligence claims funded by (a) conditional fee agreements and (b) legal aid. [205368]

Ann Keen: The NHS Litigation Authority (NHSLA) is responsible for handling clinical negligence claims made against members of its schemes. It does not have a policy in respect of defending claims based upon the funding arrangements of the claim. Case managers at the NHSLA make decisions on the defence of each claim based upon the available facts and expert legal and medical opinion. Claimants are not required to report their funding arrangements unless the claim proceeds to court.

NHS: Public Participation

Mrs. Humble: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many local authorities have appointed host organisations to set up local involvement networks (LINks); and what steps the Government are taking to ensure that host organisations for LINks will be in place by the September 2008 deadline. [203621]

Ann Keen: The Government do not collect the requested data centrally. However, the Local Government Association, in partnership with the Department has compiled the following information. Local authorities (LAs), when asked when they expected to award a contract to a host organisation for the purpose of setting up a local involvement network (LINk) declared the following (as of 23 April 2008):

42 LAs had awarded a contract prior to 1 April;

22 LAs anticipated awarding a contract by the end of April;

17 LAs anticipated awarding a contract by the end of May;

21 LAs anticipated awarding a contract by the end of June;

17 LAs anticipated awarding a contract by the end of July;

five LAs anticipated awarding a contract by the end of August;

10 LAs anticipated awarding a contract by the end of September; and three LAs responded with an unspecified deadline but anticipated that they would award a contract by September.

While, these data do not represent a definitive picture as only 137 of the 150 LAs with social services responsibilities responded to the informal poll, we think the findings are encouraging.

The Department issued two guidance documents in August 2007, designed to help LAs get ready for LINks, one of these documents contained a 'model contract' for LAs to use as a reference. This guidance accompanied a one-off payment of £10,000 to each LA to assist them in the procurement process.

Since that time, LINk leads—who are based in LAs—have received monthly bulletins updating them on LINks policy developments and giving them the practical information they need to set up a successful LINk. Further, as part of the programme of support the Department is offering for LINks, expert advisers from the NHS National Centre for Involvement (NCI) have visited LAs to provide help and advice and good practice has been shared more widely at workshops and seminars. The NCI has also produced a compendium of guidance to help support LINks implementation.

NHS: Working Hours

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what information his Department requires NHS trusts to collect in order to monitor compliance with the Working Time Directive. [203441]

Ann Keen: The Department does not require national health service trusts to collect information to monitor compliance with the European Working Time Directive (EWTD). Local NHS trusts are responsible for implementing the EWTD as part of their health and safety obligations.

The Working Time Regulations (WTR) require employers to keep adequate records of working hours and the Department has helped to communicate these regulations through guidance. Guidance on the WTR can be found on the Department of Business Enterprise and Regulatory Reform's website at:

www.berr.gov.uk/employment/employment-legislation/employment-guidance/page28978.html

Orthopaedics: Waiting Lists

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the optimum NHS commissioning strategies needed to achieve the 18 week target for (a) orthopaedic and (b) rheumatology appointments; and if he will make a statement. [204747]

Ann Keen: The Department has published 40 18-week commissioning pathways covering the highest volume specialties, including orthopaedics and rheumatology. In addition, the Department has published the "Musculoskeletal Services Framework" (MSF) that demonstrates a new model of service to deliver better care, closer to home for the estimated 10 million people in the UK with bone and joint conditions.

The MSF and all commissioning pathways are available from www.18weeks.nhs.uk.

Prostate Cancer Advisory Group

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library copies of the (a) agendas and (b) minutes of each meeting of the Prostate Cancer Advisory Group since its inception. [201948]

Ann Keen: Agendas of the Prostate Cancer Advisory Group (PCAG) have been placed in the Library. The minutes of PCAG meetings record decisions taken by the Group, which constitute advice to Ministers and therefore cannot be published.

Prostate Cancer: Staff

Christopher Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to the Answer of 26 February 2008, Official Report, column 1476W, on prostate cancer: staff, if he will place in the Library a copy of each of the latest reports submitted by strategic health authorities to his Department detailing cancer networks' (a) progress in meeting any milestones contained in the Improving Outcomes Guidance on Urological Cancers in the last six months and (b) likelihood of meeting future milestones on schedule. [201667]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not collected. Strategic health authority (SHA) returns to the Department do not detail progress on individual Improving Outcomes Guidance milestones.

However, SHA returns do detail whether cancer networks have met or are on target to meet all IOG milestones. Information from the latest returns along with relevant comments from the returns about cancer networks' progress in implementing the urology IOG are in the following table:

Thrombosis

Mr. Benyon: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many successful clinical negligence claims in relation to venous thromboembolism were made against NHS bodies in each year between 1996 and 2006; [205080]

(2) how much compensation was awarded for venous thromboembolism clinical negligence claims against NHS bodies between 1996 and 2006; and what the average amount of compensation awarded was; [205081]

(3) what the legal costs for NHS bodies were related to venous thromboembolism clinical negligence claims in each year between 1996 and 2006. [205082]

Ann Keen: The information requested is shown in the following tables and was provided by the NHS Litigation Authority. The data only cover claims made against national health service trusts, NHS foundation trusts and primary care trusts. Claims may include other injuries that have been compensated, not just those relating to venous thromboembolism. Table 1 shows data relating to successful claims, including the number of claims, total compensation paid, average compensation paid and legal costs paid by defence.

Table 2 shows the data relating to unsuccessful claims, including number of claims and legal costs paid by defence.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Alcoholic Drinks: Crime

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) males and (b) females in the London Borough of Bexley were arrested for alcohol-related offences in each of the last 10 years for which figures are available. [204915]

Mr. Coaker: The arrests collection undertaken by the Ministry of Justice provides data on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences), by age group, gender, ethnicity, and main offence group, i.e. violence against the person, sexual offences, robbery, burglary, etc. More detailed data about specific offences do not form part of this collection.

Alcoholic Drinks: Young People

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps the Government have taken to combat drinking in public places by those under age. [204166]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 12 May 2008]: The Government take underage drinking very seriously. The National Alcohol Strategy 'Safe.Sensible.Social' published in June 2007, focuses action on three groups most at risk which are 18 to 24 year-old binge drinkers, young people under 18 who drink alcohol, and harmful drinkers whose drinking is damaging their health, often without them realising it.

In the Home Secretary's speech on 6 February 2008, she said that a number of new measures and possible steps would be taken to crack down on crime and antisocial behaviour which is fuelled by alcohol. This includes highlighting the message that it is not acceptable for young people to drink in public places. The Home Secretary also said that she is considering a number of options including making the possession of alcohol by a young person an offence, or possibly involving the parents if alcohol is confiscated from a child. We are currently considering the effectiveness of the current powers and what can be done to help the police use them more effectively.

The Department for Children, Schools and Families will shortly be publishing a Youth Alcohol Action Plan which will build on the toughened enforcement of the underage drinking laws. It will set out the responsibilities of parents and the alcohol industry as well as sending a clear message that young people drinking in public is not acceptable.

Additionally, two confiscation campaigns have taken place recently; one in October 2007 and one in February 2008. The results of the October campaign where 23 out of the 227 Basic Command Units (BCUs) took part, showed that nearly 3,700 litres of alcohol were confiscated from young people during the four week period. The February 2008 campaign involved 165 BCUs where 21,000 litres of alcohol was confiscated during a two week period. Activity in both campaigns focussed on school holidays and weekends when young people were most likely to be engaged in this activity.

Other campaigns include the tackling underage sales of alcohol campaign (TUSAC) which focused on shop keepers who sold alcohol to children. The TUSAC took place between May and July 2007 and demonstrated a new approach to test purchase campaigns by focusing on perceived problem premises identified locally. The results of the latest Tackling Underage Sales of Alcohol Campaign (TUSAC) show that it is increasingly difficult for under-18s to purchase alcohol. This is in large part thanks to tougher enforcement by police and trading standards in conjunction with the positive efforts of industry to clamp down on underage sales.

The Government also support schemes that make it easier for retailers to verify, and young people to prove their age. That is why we are working with the British Retail Consortium's Proof of Age Standards Scheme (PASS) which validates the variety of proof of age card schemes available. This allows card schemes to apply for accreditation under PASS and entitles them to issue cards displaying the PASS holographic logo. This is easily recognisable both to retailers and young people and helps them know that they have a proof of age document which should be accepted. The Government have recently given the Proof of Age Standards Scheme 50,000 in order to assist the PASS Board in raising awareness of the scheme amongst young people and retailers.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Enfield

Joan Ryan: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders were issued in the London Borough of Enfield in each of the last 10 years. [202860]

Mr. Coaker: Antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) became available in April 1999. The latest available information on the number of ASBOs issued goes up to 31 December 2006. The available information is shown in the following tables.

ASBO data were available broken down by local authority areas up to December 2005. Data for 2006 are available at criminal justice system (CJS) area level only so data for Greater London have been provided for that period. CJS areas are coterminous with police force areas.

n/a = Not available.

[1] Between 1 April 1999 to 31 May 2000, data were collected on aggregate numbers only by police force area (PFA).

Notes:

1. This local authority area table differs from criminal justice system area (CJSA) tables in that an issuing court can be outside the area in which the restrictions have been imposed. For example, an issuing court may be in Hertfordshire (CJSA) but restrictions apply solely to a local authority area within Greater London.
2. Previously issued data have been revised following joint Home Office/Court Service data reconciliation exercises.
3. Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Antisocial Behaviour Orders: Young Offenders

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many young offenders have been prosecuted for breach of antisocial behaviour orders in each of the last five years. [201965]

Mr. Coaker: Information collected centrally by the Ministry of Justice and held on their court proceedings database relates only to those found guilty of breaching an antisocial behaviour order. Hence, data on the number of prosecutions for the offence are not available.

Antisocial Behaviour: Crime Prevention

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how much has been spent on the Respect Squad since its launch; how many people are employed in the Respect Squad; on how many occasions members of the Respect Squad have made practitioner interventions to provide advice on combating anti-social behaviour; and what recent assessment she has made of the effectiveness of the Respect Squad. [203259]

Mr. Coaker: The Respect Squad was launched in the summer of 2006 and established by the then Respect Task Force. Between the summer of 2006 and the end of 2007 the expenditure on the squad, which comprised existing expert practitioners, was £10,000 to cover their expenses. The Respect squad comprised 10 people made up of national recognised practitioners who provided advice and assistance for local partners in relation to complex cases of antisocial behaviour. The squad dealt with 53 cases in total since its launch in summer 2006.

We considered the role of the squad to be very effective which is why the Home Office announced on 8 May a new ASB Action Squad who will help local partners make full use of the existing antisocial behaviour tools and powers.

Crimes of Violence: Schools

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many teachers in England were the victims of (a) assault and (b) sexual assault in schools in each of the last three years, broken down by region. [204379]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. The Home Office is responsible for the recorded crime statistics which includes data on offences of assault and sexual assaults. However, it is not possible to identify the employment status of the victim.

Driving Offences

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many times drivers failed to stop for the police in each of the last five years; and how many of these incidents resulted in (a) accidents involving other vehicles, (b) accidents involving police vehicles and (c) fatal accidents in each of those years. [204905]

Mr. Coaker: This information is not collected centrally.

Driving Under Influence: Bexley

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences of (a) drug and (b) drink driving were recorded in the London borough of Bexley in each year since 1997. [204914]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. The Home Office recorded crime statistics only has figures for the offence of 'causing death by careless driving (including when under the influence of drink or drugs)'. Deaths caused by careless driving when under the influence cannot currently be separately identified from other causing death by careless driving offences. The recorded crime statistics do not count lesser offences of driving under the influence of drink or drugs.

The Ministry of Justice collect statistics on motoring offences and breath tests in relation to prosecutions and other interventions but they can only provide them at police force area level, and not for local areas such as Bexley.

Eurojust

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what recent discussions she has had with the European Commission on the future of Eurojust; and if she will make a statement; [204782]

(2) what recent discussions she has had with other EU member states on the future of Eurojust; and if she will make a statement; [204783]

(3) what representations she has made to (a) other EU member state governments and (b) EU institutions on the future of Eurojust; and if she will make a statement. [204784]

Meg Hillier: UK officials attended an expert level seminar in Lisbon in October 2007 to debate with officials from other member states and the European Commission the future development of Eurojust. In December 2007, the Justice and Home Affairs (JHA) Council, which I attended, adopted conclusions on the same subject. Subsequently, negotiations have begun on amendments to Eurojust's legal base with a view to improving its operation. This proposal was considered at the April JHA Council, attended by my right hon. Friend the Minister for Security, Counter-Terrorism, Crime and Policing, and is on the agenda for the June JHA Council.

The Government are a firm believer in the important role Eurojust plays in the increasingly complex, cross-border nature of serious and organised crime, which can only be fought effectively through improved judicial co-operation and co-ordination of cases across the EU. Eurojust is helping to break down the barriers to effective judicial co-operation by promoting greater understanding and trust between the different legal systems in member states.

The Government have supported the general aim of the draft Council decision to improve the functioning of Eurojust. The Government have, however, argued against attempts to grant autonomous powers to Eurojust to oblige action at a national level in relation to investigations and prosecutions, which could be seen as paving the way towards the establishment of a European Public Prosecutor (EPP).

Firearms: Lancashire

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many of those convicted of offences involving the use of firearms in Lancashire in 2007 were aged between 18 and 25 years; [204848]

(2) how many people under the age of 18 years were (a) arrested and (b) convicted for (i) offences involving the use of firearms and (ii) violent offences involving the use of firearms in Lancashire in each of the last five years; [204849]

(3) how many people under the age of 18 years convicted of offences involving the use of firearms in Lancashire (a) received custodial sentences and (b) reoffended in each of the last five years. [204850]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 12 March 2008]: The requested data are not available centrally.

Firearms are taken to be involved in a crime if they are fired, used as a blunt instrument against a person or used as a threat.

The arrests collection undertaken by the Ministry of Justice provides data on persons arrested for recorded crime (notifiable offences) by age group, gender, ethnicity and main offence group, i.e. violence against the person, sexual offences, robbery, burglary etc. From data reported centrally we are not able to identify specific offences from within the main offence groups.

The data held centrally by the Ministry of Justice on the court proceedings database do not contain information about the circumstances behind each case beyond the description provided in the statute under which prosecutions are brought. For example, it is not possible to identify how many (i) offences and (ii) violent offences involved the use of a firearm. As a result the information requested on court proceedings is not available.

Firearms: Licensing

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans she has to involve representatives of shooting interests in the setting of the cost of firearm and shotgun certificates and related authorisations; and if she will make it her policy to consult such representatives before any fee increase. [204604]

Mr. Coaker: It is for the police service to identify in the first instance the costs associated with firearms administration. Representatives of shooting interests will be consulted at an early stage before any changes are made to the fees for issuing certificates.

Firearms: Young People

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with Lancashire Constabulary on trends in the number of offences committed by persons under the age of 18 years involving the use of firearms. [204851]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 12 May 2008]: Members of the Violent Crime Unit are having on-going discussions with Lancashire Constabulary in relation to their gun and gangs problem, particularly in Preston. This includes work with Lancashire Constabulary to review their gangs threat assessment, part of which assesses the threat posed by persons under the age of 18 involved in the use of firearms.

Motorcycles: Training

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 431W, on motorcycles: training, how many offences have been recorded of a rider of a motorcycle with a capacity of under 50cc failing to demonstrate that they have undertaken a compulsory basic training course in each of the last five years. [205265]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. While the Home Office is responsible for the police recorded crime statistics these offences are summary and, as such, they are not included in the data series.

Offensive Weapons

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what assessment she has made of the use by police forces of the portable metal-detecting knife arches and search wands announced by her Department in February 2008. [204349]

Mr. Coaker: The decision to provide additional search arches and wands was informed by the work of Operation Shield, the British Transport Police's enforcement operation, in which arches and wands are deployed to detect those carrying weapons on the transport network. This on-going operation has shown significant results both in detecting and deterring people from carrying weapons and in enhancing community confidence. Police and other partners consider that the use of such equipment is a valuable tool in law enforcement.

We are committed to supplementing further the provision of search equipment, as set out in the Tackling Violence Action Plan, published on 18 February 2008.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when she expects the additional detection arches and scanners announced by her Department in February 2008 to be made available to police forces. [204350]

Mr. Coaker: We are in the process of providing additional search equipment to police forces.

Offensive Weapons: Young People

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what progress has been made on developing initiatives to tackle the possession of illegal knives by young people. [204348]

Mr. Coaker: There is considerable work already in place to address the issue of young people carrying knives, including:

- educational initiatives such as Be Safe and other projects which provide workshops on weapons awareness;
- the provision of additional search equipment to the police and other partners;
- tougher legislation, such as the increase in the maximum sentence for possession of a knife from two to four years and the increase in the minimum age at which someone can be sold a knife from 16 to 18.

We are also working closely with ACPO and the CPS to increase the presumption to prosecute people who carry knives and are developing plans to ensure that all young people convicted of carrying a knife receive focused interventions to change their behaviour and prevent re-offending.

We will also, at the end of this month, launch a £1 million campaign, developed with the participation of young people, aimed at reducing the carrying of knives by young people.

Olympic Games: China

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what discussions her Department had with the government of China prior to the Olympic torch relay about the role to be played by the Chinese flame security team; what powers the Chinese flame security team were given; what review her Department plans to undertake into the Olympic torch relay and the role played by the Chinese flame security team; and if she will make a statement; [203557]

(2) how many (a) males and (b) females were arrested during the Olympic torch relay, broken down by age group; how many have been prosecuted for offences committed during the relay; how many have been (i) convicted and (ii) acquitted; and if she will make a statement; [203558]

(3) how many (a) males and (b) females were injured whilst taking part in a public demonstration during the Olympic torch relay, broken down by age group. [203559]

Mr. Coaker: The Torch Relay was co-ordinated by a Community Task Force (CTF), led by the Greater London Authority (GLA) and the British Olympic Association (BOA) in partnership with the Beijing Olympic Organising Committee (BOCOG).

Each torch relay has torch attendants from the Olympic organising committee responsible for the flame after it has been handed over to the host city. The Chinese torch attendants' roles and responsibilities were as described in the Beijing Olympic Torch Relay Community Planning Guide and the contract between BOCOG and the Greater London Authority and the British Olympic Authority in the document "Agreement—Olympic Torch Relay Services" of 12 October 2007.

The basis of the agreement was that they were to protect the torch, with activity limited to putting themselves between the torch and anyone who was trying either to take it or to do it damage. They had no policing role or executive power in London. The Metropolitan Police Service was responsible for policing the event and ensuring the safety and security of all those involved. As with any major public event, the Metropolitan Police are liaising with the organisers of the relay to review the procedures which were adopted during the event.

The Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police tells me that 37 arrests were made during the Olympic torch relay. These are broken down as follows:

29 for breach of the peace;

one for handling stolen goods; and seven for offences under the Public Order Act.

Of these, three were bailed pending further inquires and the remainder were either cautioned, received a fixed penalty notice, or released with no further action.

The Home Office does not have information on how many males or females were injured while taking part in a demonstration during the Olympic torch relay.

Organised Crime: Databases

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department whether DNA data may be shared between EU states through the European database of dangerous offenders in relation to organised crime. [194663]

Meg Hillier: The project to develop a European database of dangerous offenders is in the very early stages and no timetable for its becoming operational has yet been set out. No decisions have yet been taken as to whether any biometric information, including DNA should be on this database.

Passports: Interviews

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many people have been refused a passport following a face-to-face passport interview. [202853]

Jacqui Smith: Passport application interviews form part of our programme to introduce enhanced security arrangements designed to combat passport fraud and forgery and to counter increasing levels of identity fraud. All first time adult passport applicants are now required to come for interview, but extensive checks are carried out prior to interview and in a number of cases this will uncover issues which will mean that the passport application is withdrawn or refused.

IPS records are not held in such a way as to be able to ascertain how many applications have been refused as a direct result of an interview. However, the number of interviews that have failed between 9 July 2007 and 27 April 2008 and been referred to the IPS Fraud and Investigation Units for further investigation is 525. Many of these cases will subsequently have been cleared following further checks and passports will have been issued.

Security: Licensing

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many licence applications were rejected by the Security Industry Authority on the grounds of criminality, broken down by (a) offence and (b) licence category in each year since its inception. [196528]

Mr. Coaker: The total numbers of licence applications refused by the Security Industry Authority (SIA) from 2004-05 to 2007-08 are as follows.

	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08
Door supervision	1,067	1,586	1,423	1,642
Security guarding	—	662	1,833	1,028
Cash and valuables in transit	—	42	7	24
Public space surveillance	—	2	64	101
Close protection	—	1	53	31
Vehicle immobilisation	—	85	39	34
Key holding	—	0	3	-1
Total	1,067	2,378	3,422	2,859

Applications may be refused on a number of grounds, including criminality, mental health, the lack of the right to work or other information which the SIA may receive. Information on the grounds of refusal is recorded in individual cases but not centrally collated and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Young Offenders

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent assessment she has made of the effects of financial hardship amongst children and young people on their propensity to offend. [204347]

Mr. Coaker: Growing up with poverty and deprivation can have serious impacts on children's experiences and life chances. Poor childhood development and experiences can lead to negative outcomes including lower educational attainment and employability, poor health and poor non-cognitive skills. Such outcomes increase the likelihood that children will face poverty and deprivation later in life leading to intergenerational cycles of deprivation.

Chapter 5 of Ending Child Poverty—Everybody's Business (published alongside the Budget on 12 March this year) sets out the new approach to developing the child poverty strategy to meet the Government's target for halving child poverty by 2010 and eradicating it by 2020.

Child poverty is multi-faceted and requires a joined-up approach especially at the local level which is why our new approach sets out the role for Government, communities, local authorities, service providers, employers and families as partners in a contract out of poverty.

The Government are committed to tackling crime, and in particular intervening early with young people to prevent crime and antisocial behaviour and reduce the impact of youth crime on our communities.

That is why the Home Office is working closely with the Ministry of Justice and Department for Children, Schools and Families, to develop the Youth Crime Action Plan. The Action Plan will be published in summer 2008. It will set out an overall strategy for youth crime reduction. The Action Plan will deliver results across youth crime prevention and youth justice as well as a cross cutting theme on victimisation. The overall aim is to reduce offending and re-offending by young people.

JUSTICE

Departmental Equality

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether his Department met the civil service diversity targets set out on page 51 of Cabinet Office Annual Report 2007 by April 2008. [204713]

Mr. Straw: As a result of the establishment of the Ministry of Justice on 9 May 2007, we are currently in the process of revising our diversity targets for all under-represented groups. The MoJ is currently working with the Cabinet Office to agree new civil service-wide diversity targets.

The timetable for setting the MoJ's targets will be determined by guidance from the Cabinet Office, which is due late summer 2008.

Information Commissioner

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many cases are awaiting investigation by the Information Commissioner. [204897]

Mr. Wills: The Information Commissioner is an independent body created by statute with responsibility for handling complaints made to him under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and the Data Protection Act 1998. The Information Commissioner has provided the answer to this parliamentary question.

At 31 March 2008, the number of cases awaiting investigation by the Information Commissioner was 1,363 for freedom of information casework and 1,237 for data protection casework.

Additionally, due to the volume of cases referred to the Information Commissioner under data protection, there were 2,250 cases awaiting classification as at 31 March 2008. Of these cases, it is estimated that approximately 60 per cent. would be resolved within 30 calendar days and 85 per cent. within 90 calendar days.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what the average length of time between acceptance of a case for investigation by the Information Commissioner and the commencement of the investigation was in the last period for which figures are available. [204898]

Mr. Wills: The Information Commissioner is an independent body created by statute with responsibility for handling complaints made to him under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 and the Data Protection Act 1998. The Information Commissioner has provided the answer to this parliamentary question.

The Information Commissioner deals with two types of cases: those that come under that Freedom of Information Act and those that come under the Data Protection Act. Between April 2007 and March 2008 the average length of time from receipt to commencement of investigation was 69 days for the Freedom of Information Act cases and 30 days for Data Protection Act cases. The average length of time to close an investigation once commenced, was 182 days from for Freedom of Information Act cases and 45 days for Data Protection Act cases.

Juries: Mental Health

Mr. Walker: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what estimate the Government have made of the number of people who are not eligible for jury service for reasons related to their mental health. [205026]

Maria Eagle: In March and April 2008, the Jury Central Summoning Bureau summoned 62,559 people for jury service and disqualified 14,647 (23.4 per cent.). Of these, 1,524 were disqualified on grounds of mental health (2 per cent. of the total). These data are subject to the information supplied by the individual summoned.

Prison Service: Languages

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many prison officers are proficient in speaking (a) Urdu, (b) Farsi, (c) Arabic, (d) Gujarati, (e) Punjabi, (f) Bangla, (g) Tamil, (h) Hindi, (i) Russian, (j) Turkish, (k) Cantonese, (l) Mandarin, (m) Somali, (n) Vietnamese, (o) Polish, (p) Albanian and (q) other languages spoken by non-English speakers serving custodial sentences in England and Wales. [205120]

Maria Eagle: It is not a requirement for prison officers to disclose the information requested and therefore it is not held centrally. To obtain the information would require contacting each prisoner officer at a disproportionate cost.

Prisoners Release

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many and what proportion of prisoners serving determinate sentences were released early in each of the last five years. [205121]

Mr. Straw: Table 10.3 shows the numbers of prisoners released on home detention curfew and the proportion this represents of all prisoners potentially eligible for early release under this scheme, based on the latest published data. Table 10.4 shows the number of determinate sentenced prisoners recommended for parole by the Parole Board and the proportion this represents of all those considered, based on the latest published data.

Table 10.3: Releases on home detention curfew 2002-06

	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006
Number released on HDC	20,456	21,188	19,29	17,296	13,666

Additionally, the end of custody licence scheme was introduced on 29 June 2007 and between then and 31 December 2007 there were 16,197 releases under the scheme.

Information about end of custody licence releases and recalls is published on a monthly basis on the Ministry of Justice website. The latest report was published on 30 April and refers to March as the reporting month:

HOME DEPARTMENT

Antisocial Behaviour Orders

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many anti-social behaviour orders were issued against (a) persons aged under 16, (b) persons aged 17 to 18, (c) persons aged 19 to 25 and (d) persons aged over 25 years in (i) 2005, (ii) 2006 and (iii) 2007, broken down by police force area; and how many such orders have been breached; [203255]

(2) what recent estimate she has made of the rate of breach of anti-social behaviour orders; [203256]

(3) what recent estimate she has made of the extent to which anti-social behaviour orders are issued to persons with a diagnosed mental illness. [203257]

Mr. Coaker: The latest available information on the number of antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) is up to 31 December 2006 and was published on 8 May.

ASBO data are available broken down by age group 10-17 and adults aged 18 and over, year of issue and Criminal Justice System (CJS) area level. CJS areas are coterminous with police force areas and the information is shown in table 1 placed in the House Library. The number of ASBOs breached for the first time in each year is shown in table 3 placed in the House Library.

The Home Affairs Select Committee Report on Anti-Social Behaviour (2004-05) found that inappropriate issuing of ASBOs, for example to people with mental health problems, is not a major problem in practice. Legislation allows the terms of an ASBO to be varied or for the order itself to be discharged if circumstances warrant it.

Home Office published material and training events stress the need for a staged and incremental approach to tackling antisocial behaviour and for specialist professionals to be involved in an assessment of people who have special needs. This advice is available to all antisocial behaviour practitioners, including those practitioners working in social services, in the form of a website, an extensive range of leaflets and the Respect Actionline, which provides professional advice by telephone.

We monitor the overall use of ASBOs on an ongoing basis and adjust policy in response. For example we recently made changes to the ASBO legislation in the Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008 that juveniles' ASBOs should be reviewed after one year. We will continue to build on and extend existing ASBO legislation as appropriate.

Crimes of Violence: Hertfordshire

Grant Shapps: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many crimes involving violence against a person were recorded in Stevenage constituency in each of the last five years; [200354]

(2) how many crimes involving violence against a person were recorded in Welwyn Hatfield constituency in each of the last five years. [200355]

Mr. Coaker: Statistics are not collected specifically on a constituency basis. The Home Office does publish statistics at Crime and Disorder Reduction Partnership (CDRP) area level. The number of offences of violence against the person for each of the last five years by CDRP is available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrpog.xls

Also available is a look-up table that identifies which constituencies are associated with CDRPs. In many instances, a CDRP may comprise more than one constituency. Conversely, some constituencies will come within two or more CDRPs, either wholly or partially. The look-up table is available at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrp-constituency-table.xls

Copies of both the statistics table and the look-up table are available in the Library.

Forensic Science: Genetics

Dr. Gibson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what percentage of forensic reports arising from low template DNA (LTDNA) analyses have included caveats on the reliability of the results; whether she plans to establish national (a) standards and (b) guidelines on the (i) collection, (ii) handling and (iii) storage of evidence that might yield DNA material by (A) police and (B) forensic services; and if she will make a statement; [201980]

(2) if she will take steps to establish national (a) agreement, (b) standards and (c) guidelines on how low template DNA profiles should be interpreted; and if she will make a statement. [201984]

Meg Hillier: The Home Office does not hold data on the contents of forensic reports; therefore it is not possible to supply the information on the percentage of reports with caveats.

The independent Forensic Science Regulator is responsible for developing standards in this area; the Home Office does not plan to establish separate guidelines or standards.

The Regulator has recently issued his response to the recommendations in 'A Review of the Science of Low Template DNA Analysis' which considers collection, storage and interpretation.

Homicide: Cheshire

David Davis: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many homicides there have been in Cheshire since 1998-99, broken down by method of killing. [204414]

Jacqui Smith [holding answer 8 May 2008]: Available information relates to the number of homicides recorded by Cheshire police between 1998-99 and 2006-07 and is shown in the following table.

Offences currently recorded as homicide[1] by apparent method of killing: Cheshire police force area, combined data 1998-99 to 2006-07[2, 3]

Apparent method	Number of homicides
Sharp instrument[4]	26
Blunt instrument	7
Hitting, kicking, etc	19
Strangulation[5]	9
Shooting[6]	—
Explosion	—
Burning	2
Drowning	—
Poison or drugs	6
Motor vehicle[7]	1
Other	3

Total	77

[1] As at 12 November 2007; figures are subject to revision as cases are dealt with by the police and by the courts or as further information becomes available.
[2] Data for 2007-08 are not yet published.
[3] Offences recorded during financial years 1998-99 to 2006-07 are included. This is not necessarily the same period in which the incident took place or any court decision was made.
[4] Includes knives and other sharp instruments.
[5] Includes asphyxiation.
[6] Includes shooting by crossbow.
[7] Excludes death by careless/dangerous driving and aggravated vehicle taking.

Human Trafficking

Mr. Steen: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when Operation Pentameter 2 started and finished; how many police forces were involved; how many traffickers were (a) arrested and (b) charged with trafficking offences; how many trafficked persons were discovered; how many of these were (i) under 10 years old, (ii) children between 10 and 18 years and (iii) adults; and of the persons discovered, how many had been subjected to (A) sexual exploitation, (B) domestic servitude and (C) forced labour. [204742]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 12 May 2008]: Operation Pentameter 2 began on 3 October 2007.

The fourth stage of the operation is ongoing. Operational outcomes will be published once the evaluation of the intelligence obtained and conduct of the operation is complete.

Human Trafficking: Social Security Benefits

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what estimate her Department has made of the extent of the practice of smuggling babies into the UK for the purpose of benefit fraud; and what steps her Department is taking to prevent it. [205455]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office has not carried out an estimate of the extent of baby smuggling into the UK for the purpose of benefit fraud. However, the scoping report published by the Child Exploitation On Line Protection Centre (CEOP) in 2007 identified six children who had been trafficked specifically for benefit fraud.

The Government are aware of isolated cases where children have been brought into the country by adults for the purpose of claiming benefits. Since October 2007 the Paladin Team, a police-led multi-agency child protection unit based at London ports, has investigated two individuals suspected of trafficking children for benefit fraud. These are being progressed through the Criminal Justice System.

The Government deplore all forms of human trafficking and are determined to fight these through its UK Action Plan on Tackling Human Trafficking. The action plan is currently being updated.

Passports

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what her most recent estimate is of the number of British citizens who do not have a valid UK passport. [204900]

Meg Hillier: The total number of passports issued by IPS and currently valid is estimated at 48,080,000 (an exact figure cannot be given because lost and stolen passports may not be immediately replaced).

When this figure is compared with the current population of the United Kingdom (61,412,000) it is estimated that 21.7 per cent. of the UK population do not hold a valid UK passport.

Theft: Architecture

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) how many (a) incidents of and (b) convictions in relation to theft of architectural features there were in England in each year since 1997; [205084]

(2) what steps she is taking to tackle the theft of architectural features from historic buildings in England. [205085]

Mr. Coaker: The Home Office is not specifically tackling the theft of architectural features from historic buildings in England.

Local police and other partners in crime prevention and reduction have a wide range of measures and powers available for their use in tackling whichever crime and disorder issues are a priority for them. We would expect them to respond appropriately to prevent and investigate offences of such theft, as they would to other crimes, taking into account available resources and other demands and priorities.

Data on the numbers of such thefts, and prosecutions or convictions for such thefts, are not identifiable from information held centrally.

DEFENCE

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 7 May 2008, Official Report, column 831W, on Afghanistan: peacekeeping operations, what mechanisms are in place to ensure that unauthorised items are not posted by service personnel from the theatre of operations to the United Kingdom. [205123]

Des Browne: All mail is scanned before dispatch from Theatre. All prohibited items are removed and returned to the Theatre Distribution Office for investigation.

Armed Forces: Commonwealth

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will introduce a cap on the number of personnel recruited to the armed forces from Commonwealth countries. [204756]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The armed forces are proud to recruit high quality recruits from countries with close historical and political ties. While no decision has been taken to introduce a cap on Commonwealth and Republic of Ireland citizens, we are looking at the rising levels within the armed forces.

Commonwealth and Irish citizens make a huge contribution to the armed forces and bring a range of skills and talents, which enrich the service as a whole, and we would wish to continue to recruit them.

Armed Forces: Compensation

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many compensation claims were rejected where the time limit was part of the consideration in making the decision in each year since 2005. [205135]

Derek Twigg: As the armed forces compensation scheme only started from 6 April 2005 the five year time limit for any claims under the scheme has not yet expired and therefore no claims have been rejected under this criterion.

Armed Forces: Disability Living Allowance

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many claims for disability allowance have been refused under (a) the Armed Forces Compensation Scheme and (b) the War Pension Scheme in each of the last 10 years. [203987]

Derek Twigg: A total of 5,475 disablement pension claims have been rejected under the War Pensions Scheme between 1 April 2001 and 31 December 2007. Figures are presented by financial year in table 1. Data are available in the format required only as far back as the financial year 2001-02.

A total of 1,650 compensation claims have been rejected under the Armed Forces and Reserves Compensation Scheme between its introduction on 6 April 2005 and 31 December 2007. Figures are presented by financial year in table 2.

Armed Forces: Housing

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discount is offered to (a) service personnel and (b) service leavers living in properties owned by Annington Homes who wish to buy their accommodation. [203980]

Derek Twigg: The majority of service families accommodation (SFA) properties in England and Wales were sold to Annington Homes Ltd. (AHL) in 1996 under a sale and leaseback arrangement. When the Department no longer has a requirement for AHL properties, they are returned to AHL for disposal on the open market. Properties are unoccupied when they are returned to AHL.

While there is no obligation on AHL to offer discounts to current or former service personnel when selling its properties, it has in the past offered certain incentives, concessions or priority to personnel voluntarily. While there is no requirement on the Department to maintain a record of such sales, we understand that between 25 to 30 per cent. of properties have been sold in this way. We are exploring with Annington Homes what more can be done to help service leavers obtain accommodation.

Armed Forces: Pay

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what specific savings are being made in order to implement the armed forces pay review body recommendations for 2008. [205130]

Des Browne: No specific savings have been made to implement the armed forces pay review body recommendations for 2008.

Armed Forces: Procurement

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to increase the proportion of material supplied by British companies procured by or on behalf of the armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [204987]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 12 May 2008]: The Defence Industrial Strategy sets out the UK's requirement for a sustainable industrial base and makes clear which industrial capabilities we need to retain in the UK to ensure we can continue to operate the equipment the way we chose to maintain appropriate sovereignty and protect national security. The Ministry of Defence procurement of non-warlike requirements is subject to the EC Public Procurement Regulations that requires such opportunities to be advertised in the Official Journal of the European Union.

Armed Forces: Publications

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library copies of the joint service publications (a) JSP 498, (b) JSP 501, (c) JSP 510 and (d) JSP 512. [175456]

Derek Twigg: I shall arrange for copies of the four publications concerned to be placed in the Library of the House.

Armed Forces: Uniforms

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 834W, on armed forces: uniforms, what steps his Department takes to ensure no child labour is involved in the manufacturing of the Combat Soldier 95 uniform. [205126]

Des Browne: Defence clothing contract conditions stipulate that no person under the prevailing legal minimum age limit, and in any case never under the age of 14, is employed by any contractor or subcontractor. Combat Soldier 95 clothing is largely manufactured in China where the legal minimum age is 16. MOD staff have visited subcontractors and audited them to try to ensure compliance with Chinese legislation.

Ballistic Missile Defence

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with (a) his United States counterpart and (b) the NATO Secretary-General on the prospective third site for a European-based missile defence system following the Secretary-General's speech on missile defence delivered on 5 May in Geneva. [205229]

Des Browne: The issue of ballistic missile defence is discussed routinely, both bilaterally with the United States Administration, and in NATO forums. It is not the practice of the Government to make public details of all discussions with foreign governments as this would, or would be likely to, prejudice international relations.

Bosnia and Herzegovina: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what pan-Balkans (a) Ready Battalion and (b) Standby Battalion Operational Reserve Force is available to support European Force Althea in Bosnia-Herzegovina. [204567]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The NATO/EU pan-Balkans Operational Reserve Force (ORF), currently made up of a battalion from the UK, Germany and Italy, continues to provide the necessary capability to reinforce both the NATO operation in Kosovo and EU operation in Bosnia-Herzegovina (BiH). The security situation in BiH is stable and current troop levels are considered sufficient. Should military commanders judge that reinforcements are required, the 'Ready' and 'Standby' ORF battalions are available to provide the additional support.

Defence Clothing and Textiles Agency

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will place in the Library a copy of the risk analysis carried out to identify the organisation needed to maintain the service level to front line commands during the transitions from (a) Caversfield to Ensleigh and (b) Ensleigh to Abbeywood. [203186]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Risk analysis and management is an ongoing activity within the DE&S Collocation Project and across all areas of DE&S business. The effective management of risk has already led to the successful move from Andover to Abbey Wood of over 1,000 posts directly supporting the front line. I shall place the original risk analysis in the Library of the House as part of the relevant extracts of the internally approved investment appraisal for bringing forward the move of Defence Clothing Integrated Project Team (DC IPT).

Defence Equipment

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he last reassessed wear rates of UK military equipment; and whether he has made a comparison of wear rates between UK and US military equipment. [203331]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Each equipment type has its own maintenance requirement and 'wear rates' are not recorded centrally. We expect to repair and overhaul military equipment used on operations more often than is normally planned in through life costing. No comparisons have been made between UK and US military equipment.

Defence Estates: Cost Effectiveness

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what savings targets were set for Defence Estates for regional prime contracts in (a) 2007-08 and (b) 2008-09. [205131]

Derek Twigg: No in year savings targets were set for Defence Estates in 2007-08 or have been set for 2008-09 against the funding allocated to regional prime contracting.

Departmental ICT

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent assessment he has made of the performance of the Defence Information Infrastructure programme. [204351]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I remain content that the performance of the Defence Information Infrastructure (DII) programme is continually assessed via its comprehensive governance structure. The fixed element of the DII programme is currently running behind its original implementation schedule; however, the deployable element, which will directly support our front line troops, is progressing on schedule to meet its declared delivery dates. The programme overall remains within 3 per cent. of its approved programme cost and is on track to deliver the benefits supporting its original approval.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Answer of 23 April 2008, Official Report, column 1924W, on departmental internet, whether it is possible to determine which creations and amendments to Wikipedia made before January 2008 were made by (a) military and (b) Civil Service personnel. [202382]

Derek Twigg: This information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 28 February 2008, Official Report, columns 1807-08W on departmental manpower, how many of the employees under 18 years of age are receiving at least one day's training per week. [204933]

Derek Twigg: The information requested is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what value of (a) RfR1 and (b) RfR2 (i) operating income and (ii) non-operating income was (A) appropriated in aid and (B) surrendered to the Consolidated Fund in each year from 2001-02 to 2006-07. [205469]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information has been published in the MOD's annual report and accounts for the years in question, copies of which have been placed in the Library of the House. In summary:

Departmental Stationery

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much his Department has spent on official ministerial (a) business cards and (b) headed paper in each year since 1997. [201629]

Derek Twigg: This information is not held.

Iraq Conflict

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what date (a) Ministers and (b) officials in his Department were first informed that a video tape existed of the United States aerial attack which killed Lance-Corporal Hull. [122369]

Mr. Ingram [holding answer 26 February 2007]: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the answer given on 20 February 2007, Official Report, column 370W. The handling of the audio/video recording in question is being investigated. I will write to the hon. Gentleman when the investigation is complete and place a copy of the letter in the Library of the House.

Substantive answer from Bob Ainsworth to Julian Lewis:

You will recall that I wrote to you on 11 September 2007 about the investigation into the handling of the US cockpit recording of an attack on a UK light tank in Iraq on 28 March 2003. We have now received the Joint Army/RAF investigation report on the unauthorised disclosure of the cockpit recording and I am therefore able to give you a substantive response to the specific questions you asked in your parliamentary question (Reference 122369, Official Report, 5 March 2007 columns 1642/3W).

I can now confirm that officials were informed of the existence of the CD recording when preparing for the Board of Inquiry into the incident. The recording, among other material, was requested by the Board of Inquiry from the US authorities and received on 23 April 2004 via the MOD's Permanent Joint Headquarters. Ministers received written advice about the existence of the CD recording and its unauthorised disclosure on 2 February 2007 in relation to the issue being raised at the Coroner's inquest.

As a result of the failings identified, remedial action is being taken. A new security education programme is being introduced as part of a wider security awareness campaign to ensure that those involved in the handling of classified and sensitive material are aware of the rules and procedures to be followed. An instruction on the release of US (and other third country) material during legal proceedings has also been issued to all MOD personnel to remind them of their responsibilities in respect of the secure handling of protectively marked US material, and we are in the process of establishing new arrangements for the management of Boards of Inquiry and Inquests to ensure a more consistent approach across the Department. The US authorities have been informed of the investigation's findings and of the remedial action taken.

I can assure you that I take the protection of classified material, especially that entrusted to us by a close ally, very seriously, and the Permanent Secretary has asked the chain of command to consider whether administrative or disciplinary action against any individual is appropriate in light of the finding of the report.

Personnel Carriers

Annette Brooke: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many fully armed personnel carriers are deployed in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan. [202170]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth [holding answer 28 April 2008]: I am withholding the information requested as its disclosure would, or would be likely to prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Kosovo: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the rules of engagement will be of the UK operational reserve battalion for its deployment to Kosovo. [204145]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The UK Operational Reserve Force battalion will operate under a UK rules of engagement profile. I am withholding further information as its release would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the mission for the deployment of the UK Operational Reserve Force to Kosovo is. [204565]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The UK Operational Reserve Force battalion will provide NATO with extra flexibility in maintaining peace and stability for all communities in Kosovo.

Massereene Barracks

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether the proceeds of the sale of Massereene Barracks in Northern Ireland will be retained within his Department's budget or returned to the Exchequer. [205393]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence (MOD) retains the full benefit of disposal receipts, which form part of the Defence budget agreed with HM Treasury during the periodic spending reviews. In line with Treasury guidance, the proceeds of receipts are reinvested by the MOD in key priorities.

Military Aircraft: Helicopters

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 484W, on military aircraft: helicopters, what the average number of flying hours flown by helicopter pilots was in (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in the last 12 months. [204765]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Between 1 May 2007 and 30 April 2008, the average number of flying hours per helicopter pilot per two-month tour was 106 for those serving in Iraq, and 111 for those serving in Afghanistan.

Written Questions: Government Responses

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects to answer 203199, on defence procurement, tabled by the hon. Member for New Forest East on 28 April 2008. [205549]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: I replied to the hon. Member on 13 May 2008, Official Report, column 1528W.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Admiralty House

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster who owns the freehold to (a) the Government flats in Admiralty House and (b) Admiralty Arch. [205436]

Phil Hope: The Cabinet Office is responsible for the freeholds of both Admiralty House and Admiralty Arch.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1692W, on Admiralty House: official residences, how many bathrooms the official residence occupied by Lord Malloch-Brown has. [205511]

Phil Hope: The flat occupied by Lord Malloch-Brown has two bathrooms.

Births

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many births there were in each primary care trust area in 2006-07. [205199]

Phil Hope: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 14 May 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your question about how many births there were in each Primary Care Trust area in 2006-2007. (205199)

Birth statistics from the birth registration system are published on a calendar year basis. The latest year for which figures are available is 2006. The published number of live births in 2006 by Primary Care Trust area was provided to you by the Office for National Statistics in March 2008 in response to a previous question (ref 195752).

The first release of 2007 birth statistics for England and Wales is planned for summer 2008. The number of live births in 2007 by Primary Care Trust area is a subsequent product of the first release and will be sent to you by the Office for National Statistics once it is available, towards the end of the summer.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the cost was of food and drink procured for working lunches attended by officials at which no external invitees were present in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [205520]

Phil Hope: The information is not held centrally and can be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

All Cabinet Office expenditure on official hospitality including working lunches is made in accordance with published departmental guidance on financial procedures and propriety, based on principles set out in "Government Accounting" and the Treasury handbook on "Regularity and Propriety".

Integrated Household Survey

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many households will be surveyed by the Integrated Household Survey in each year once the survey is fully implemented. [204887]

Phil Hope: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 14 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your Parliamentary Question about how many households will be surveyed by the Integrated Household Survey in each year once the survey is fully implemented. (204887)

The Integrated Household Survey (IHS) is being implemented in a phased way, with four of the initial five component surveys already within the IHS. These are the General Household Survey, Expenditure and Food Survey, Omnibus and the English Housing Survey. The fifth survey, the Labour Force Survey, will join the IHS in 2009. At that point, approximately 200,000 individual households will be interviewed in the IHS annually, split across the five IHS survey modules.

From 2009, other new social surveys that start up may also become part of the IHS.

Ministers: Pay

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) what the percentage increases in (a) pension contributions, (b) salaries and (c) expense allowances of (i) Cabinet Ministers, (ii) Ministers of State and (iii) Parliamentary Under-Secretaries were in each of the last five years; [205020]

(2) what the percentage increases in pension payments to former (a) Cabinet Ministers, (b) Ministers of State and (c) Parliamentary Under-Secretaries were in each of the last 10 years. [205021]

Helen Goodman: I have been asked to reply.

The pension contribution of Members increased from 9 per cent. to 10 per cent. of salary in April 2004 for those opting for one fortieth pension accrual. It remained at 6 per cent. of salary for one fiftieth accrual. These pension contribution rates also apply to ministerial salaries.

Further information on current and historical rates of ministerial salaries and allowances payable to Members is available in the House Library.

The increases in ministerial salaries are given in the following table.

Date of increase	Size of increase (percentage)
1 April 2003	2.25
1 April 2004	2.00
1 April 2005	2.80

Date of increase	Size of increase (percentage)
1 April 2006	1.00
1 November 2006	0.99
1 April 2007	0.66

There was no difference in the percentage salary increases between Secretaries of State, Ministers of State or Parliamentary Under-Secretaries.

Increases in Allowances

All Secretaries of State, Ministers of State and Parliamentary Under-Secretaries in this House are generally entitled to claim the same allowances as any other Member. The exception is that Ministers who are not provided with an official residence in London in respect of their office are entitled to claim the London supplement. They may claim this alongside the additional costs allowance if they also qualify for that allowance.

	As at 1 April each year—Size of increase (percentage)
Allowance	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008
Additional costs allowance	2.80	3.50	2.40	4.20	4.00
Bicycle	2.78	170.27	0.00	0.00	0.00
Communications allowance	—	—	—	—	4.00
Incidental expenses provision	2.80	3.49	2.20	4.40	4.00
London supplement	2.80	59.95	2.40	6.11	3.70
Motorcycle allowance	—	0.00	0.00	0.00	0.00
Staffing allowance	3.40	8.44	3.80	3.70	3.70

The motor mileage allowance increased by 2.6 per cent. on 1 April 2004. From 1 April 2005 the motor mileage rate was reduced by 30.68 per cent. for the first 10,000 miles, by 56.67 per cent. between 10,001 and 20,000 miles and by 6.02 per cent. for over 20,000 miles. There has been no change to the level of the motor mileage allowance since 1 April 2005.

As for many public pensions, the increases applied each April to pensions in payment under the parliamentary contributory pension fund, in excess of the guaranteed minimum pension, were linked to the increase in the retail prices index as at the previous September. These increases applied to pensions paid to former Cabinet Ministers, Ministers of State and Parliamentary Under-Secretaries. The percentage increases for the last ten years were as follows.

April each year	Increase (percentage)
1999	3.2
2000	1.1
2001	3.3
2002	1.7
2003	1.7
2004	2.8
2005	3.1
2006	2.7
2007	3.6
2008	3.9

Mothers

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what the average age of a first-time mother was in (a) the North West and (b) England in the most recent period for which figures are available. [204978]

Phil Hope: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated May 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your request for information on the average age of a first-time mother in (a) the North West and (b) England in the most recent period for which figures are available. (204978)

It is not possible to provide the information requested because the number of previous children born to a woman is not collected from all mothers at birth registration.

Estimates of the mean age at first birth are published for England and Wales as a whole. ONS supplements the information on previous children collected from married mothers at birth registration with survey data to produce estimates of first births for England and Wales. However, it is not possible to produce these estimates for England or for sub-national areas.

Security: Greater London

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster pursuant to the Cabinet Office's Annual Resource Accounts for 2006-07, in what ways the Government Secure Zone project has been delivered more slowly than expected; and what the (a) forecast and (b) outturn expenditure on the project was in 2006-07. [191175]

Mr. Watson: During 2006-07, the Government Secure Zone (GSZ) programme was delivered with (a) forecast expenditure of £13,351,000 and (b) outturn expenditure of £12,767,000 (grant and non-grant) within a total income of £13,386,000 (resource and capital). The main project within the GSZ programme (the "Whitehall Streetscape Improvement" project) was delayed by three months in obtaining planning permission, resulting in a slower delivery and consequential underspend of £619,000 for the 2006-07 financial year.

HOUSE OF COMMONS COMMISSION

Members: Video Conferencing

Norman Baker: To ask the hon. Member for North Devon, representing the House of Commons Commission (1) what the reasons were for the decision not to extend the video conferencing trials on the parliamentary estate; and if the Commission will reconsider this decision; [205102]

(2) what assessment the Commission has made of the merits of video conferencing on the parliamentary estate as a means of reducing the need of staff and hon. Members to travel to meetings. [205103]

Nick Harvey: There has been no specific assessment of whether video conferencing would be an effective means of reducing the need of staff and Members to travel to meetings. Parliamentary ICT (PICT) has been running a very limited informal trial of two 'table top' video conferencing products to establish their technical viability and to gain some insight into their potential benefit. This is now complete.

PICT's work relating to Members ICT has been defined by the Administration Committee in its second report of 2006-07 "Information and Communication Technology Services for Members" (HC 498), as approved by the Commission. The report's recommendations and the programme of work that has been agreed with the Commission do not include extending the provision of video conferencing in the immediate future.

For Members who do wish to use this type of service a portable video conference facility can be booked via the room booking service for use in some of the meeting rooms in Portcullis House and PICT can offer some advice to Members on the products that they could consider and their cost if they wish to use this service in their own offices.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Construction: Prices

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he has made a recent assessment of whether construction companies have engaged in price-fixing in the supply of services to the public sector. [205210]

Mr. Thomas: This is a matter for the Office of Fair Trading (OFT) which is currently investigating allegations of bid-rigging in the construction sector. Information about this investigation may be found in the OFT's press release of 17 April 2008 which is published on their website at:

http://www.oft.gov.uk/news/press/2008/52-08

Departmental Carbon Emissions

Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much his Department and its predecessor spent on carbon offsetting in each of the last three years; and to which companies payments for carbon offsetting were made in each such year. [204108]

Mr. Thomas: BERR and its predecessor the DTI is part of the cross-government offsetting scheme called Government Carbon Offsetting Fund. All ministerial and official travel is being offset from 1 April 2006. Details are only available from this date.

For the period 2006-07 the total offsetting cost for air travel was £44,294.33 to offset 4469tCO2e. Data are currently being collected for the 2007-08 reporting year and will be available later in the year.

The GCOF is being managed by EEA Fund Management Ltd., who won the contract to source and deliver 255,000 Certified Emission Reduction Credits, with a provision for a further 50,000 credits, over three years from a range of Clean Development Mechanism (CDM) projects. Credits will be supplied from the project portfolio of Trading Emissions plc, to whom EEA is the investment adviser.

Grayling Political Strategy

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what payments (a) the UK Atomic Energy Authority and (b) Postcomm made to Grayling Political Strategy in each of the last five years; on what dates; and for what purpose in each case. [202252]

Malcolm Wicks: Since the hon. Member has asked for information specifically related to UKAEA and Postcomm's direct involvement with Grayling, I have asked the companies to write to him directly with the information.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Smoking

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Leader of the House how many smoking shelters were built at each of her Department's London buildings in each of the last five years. [205038]

Helen Goodman: Due to a machinery of government change in May 2007, the Leader of the House of Commons Office now forms part of the Cabinet Office. The Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster will be answering this question shortly on behalf of the Cabinet Office.

TRANSPORT

Aviation

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what assessment she has made of the environmental implications of airlines running empty or near-empty flights to retain slot allocation. [203388]

Jim Fitzpatrick [holding answer 6 May 2008]: The EU airport slot allocation regulations require airlines to use their slots for 80 per cent. of the time or return them to be re-allocated to other airlines by the independent slot co-ordinator. The UK independent slot co-ordinator is not aware of any cases at present where an airline is flying empty aircraft to retain an airport slot. Such cases are very rare, the cost of fuel being a disincentive. Hence we have not made an assessment of the environmental impact.

Aviation: Northern Ireland

Mr. Hands: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what recent discussions she has had with the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland on the future of aviation between Northern Ireland and the rest of the UK. [204423]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Under the devolution arrangements for Northern Ireland civil aviation is a reserved matter, for which the Secretary of State for Transport has policy responsibility. Under these arrangements, the Secretary of State and Department for Transport officials correspond with Northern Ireland Ministers and officials about a range of civil aviation policy issues.

M20

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the proposed starting date is for work on Junction 10A of the M20. [205413]

Mr. Tom Harris: Subject to the satisfactory completion of the necessary statutory procedures and availability of funding, work is due to start in January 2012.

Speed Limits

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what encouragement the Government is giving to those local authorities that wish to introduce 20 mile per hour limits. [205758]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Local traffic authorities are responsible for setting local speed limits and have powers to introduce 20 mph speed limits and 20 mph zones if they believe it appropriate to do so. The Department encourages and supports any local authority wishing to introduce 20 mph speed limits.

This view is reflected in the Department's guidance to local authorities on setting local speed limits, published in August 2006. In addition Traffic Advisory Leaflet 9/99 provides best practice guidelines on setting 20 mph speed limits and 20 mph zones.

WALES

Statutory Instruments

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales how many statutory instruments have been (a) made and (b) revoked by Ministers in his Department since 1997. [204760]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Wales Office was only created in 1999. Since then it has made 57 statutory instruments and revoked none.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Admiralty House

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2564W, on Admiralty House, what the cost of the repainting of Admiralty House for Lord Malloch-Brown's residence was after the former Deputy Prime Minister vacated the residence. [203033]

Meg Munn: The cost of repainting two bedrooms, an adjacent corridor and one bathroom in the flat at Admiralty House totalled £7,137.42 (including value added tax). Admiralty House is a Grade 1 listed building and is maintained in line with that status.

Afghanistan: Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps are being taken by his Department to improve the education system in Afghanistan. [204363]

Meg Munn: Improving access for all to quality education across Afghanistan is a critical element to our comprehensive approach to bring security, stability and reconstruction to Afghanistan.

The Department for International Development (DfID) has the UK lead in supporting education in Afghanistan. The hon. Gentleman will be aware that DfID provides funding (£55 million in 2007-08) to the Afghanistan Reconstruction Trust Fund. This fund pays the salaries of over 100,000 teachers and 90 per cent. of the Ministry of Education's wage bill. In this way DfID funding has contributed to an increase from one million pupils in 2001 to six million today, and an increase from approximately 21,000 teachers in 2001 to more than 128,000 today. In addition, since 2002, over 2,000 schools have been built or reconstructed. Officials at our embassy in Kabul work closely with the Afghan Minister for Education, parliamentarians, officials, non-governmental organisations and teachers as they work to improve education in Afghanistan.

Afghanistan: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Ancram: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what critical military gaps in NATO's deployment in Afghanistan remain to be filled. [203775]

Meg Munn: Military requirements in Afghanistan are decided by the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation (NATO) and laid out in the Combined Joint Statement of Requirement. Despite the recent increases in commitment made by many of our allies there remain shortfalls in some areas such as training and mentoring teams, combat troops, in the south and east, and support helicopters. The UK continues to work with partners to address these shortfalls.

Information on national contributions can be found on the Foreign and Commonwealth Office, the Ministry of Defence and NATO websites:

Ballistic Missile Defence

Linda Gilroy: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with his EU counterparts on the implications of missile defence policy for EU foreign policy. [204806]

Mr. Jim Murphy [holding answer 13 May 2008]: I have had no discussion with my EU counterparts on the issue of missile defence in the context of EU foreign policy. The European security and defence policy gives the EU the capability to undertake civilian and military crisis management operations. It has no competence to consider ballistic missile defence.

Burma: Politics and Government

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Burmese government on (a) human rights violations and (b) the introduction of democratic institutions in that country. [205094]

Meg Munn [holding answer 13 May 2008]: The lack of respect for democracy and human rights in Burma is of grave concern to the Government. We take every opportunity to raise concerns with the Burmese authorities, at the relevant multilateral organisations, and with countries in the region that have an influence over the regime. Before the devastating cyclone hit Burma, we called for urgent action ahead of the 10 May referendum because, as currently conceived, the process designed by the Burmese regime will not deliver the reconciliation, stability and prosperity that Burma needs. Nor will it address the long-standing violations of human rights. Since the cyclone hit Burma, our efforts have focused on seeking to provide humanitarian support.

China: Tibet

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make representations to the government of China to encourage it to (a) reach agreement with representatives of the Dalai Lama on Tibet and (b) publish a record of the discussions which it holds with those representatives. [203472]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister spoke to Premier Wen about the situation in Tibet on 19 March, urging restraint and dialogue with the Dalai Lama. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary further emphasised the need for dialogue when he spoke to Foreign Minister Yang Jiechi on 21 and 28 March, and 7 April. We have been raising the situation with the Chinese, both in Beijing and in London, on a regular basis. We are aware that Chinese officials met with representatives of the Dalai Lama on 4 May. We welcome this as the first step towards resumption of dialogue between the Chinese government and the Dalai Lama and his representatives. We hope that dialogue will now continue, with substantive matters being discussed, in order to resolve the underlying issues.

We continue to urge greater transparency from the Chinese authorities on the issue of Tibet. However, it is for the Government of China and representatives of the Dalai Lama to decide whether or not to publicise the detail of their discussions.

Departmental Buildings

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has made for the future use of 1 Carlton Gardens following the decision not to use the property as a Ministerial residence; and if he will make a statement. [202840]

Meg Munn: We are currently in negotiation with The Crown Estate about the future of the lease on 1 Carlton Gardens.

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201726]

Meg Munn: The Ministry of Justice (MOJ) has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies including Central Government Departments in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following web address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOIA) requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied; and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 FCO annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information on requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Department answered "in time" (that is, meeting the deadline or within a permitted extension) in 2007 was 98 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOIA exemption or Environmental Information Regulations exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was 254, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Diego Garcia: Rendition

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1713W, on Diego Garcia: rendition, whether any UK official met each of the two individuals during their detention. [203522]

Meg Munn [holding answer 6 May 2008]: We have no information to suggest that the two individuals concerned met UK officials during their detention.

Gaza: Fuels

Mr. Dismore: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on attacks against fuel convoys entering Gaza; and if he will make a statement. [204752]

Meg Munn [holding answer 12 May 2008]: We are aware that Palestinian militants have attacked crossing points at Nahal Oz on 9 April, Kerem Shalom and Nahal Oz on 17 April and Erez on 21 April. We condemn such actions which serve only to increase the suffering of the people of Gaza. We urge all parties to ensure that basic humanitarian supplies, including fuel, are maintained.

India: Family Planning

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of India on population control policies. [204370]

Mr. Malik: I have been asked to reply.

The Department for International Development (DFID) has had discussions with officials of the Ministry of Health and Family Welfare of the Government of India on population issues in the context of the Reproductive and Child Health Programme (RCH-2), to which DFID contributes. DFID has committed £252 million to the programme from 2005 to 2011.

RCH-2, launched in April 2005, is the Government of India's key programme to achieve the Millennium Development Goals for reducing maternal and child mortality. The programme seeks to expand the range of information and services available on contraception, particularly to the poorest populations. The programme will increase access to reversible methods of contraception, which will allow young women to delay childbearing and all women to have a longer interval between births. This will improve the health of children as well as mothers.

The most recent joint government and donor review of this programme took place in February 2008. The review found that there has been an increase in the provision of family planning, and particularly of reversible methods of contraception.

Iraq: Administration of Justice

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs which prosecuting authority has responsibility to prosecute alleged criminal offences committed by contractors working for HM Government in Iraq. [205426]

Meg Munn: Jurisdiction over contractors working for the government in Iraq is covered by Coalition Provisional Authority Order Number 17 (Revised) (CPA17).

Under CPA17, contractors are not subject to Iraqi laws and regulations in matters relating to the terms and conditions of their contracts. But the provisions of CPA17 are without prejudice to the exercise of jurisdiction by the sending state and the state of nationality of a contractor in accordance with applicable laws. The sending state may, however, waive immunity for contractors if requested.

If any personnel, employed by organisations contracted by the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO), were suspected of committing a crime in Iraq, but appeared to be immune from Iraqi legal process, the FCO would refer them to the disciplinary authority of their employing organisation with a view to having them removed from our contract in Iraq. The FCO would also bring the matter to the attention of the UK police and/or the authorities of the individual's nationality. The decision whether to pursue a UK criminal investigation, and ultimately whether a prosecution should be undertaken in an individual case, would be a matter for the UK police and prosecuting authorities, acting independently from the Government.

In the case of suspected non-criminal misconduct, we would take up the matter with the employing organisation, and either investigate the matter or have the employing organisation do so and report to us, depending on the circumstances and the nature of the allegations.

Iraq: Embassies

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will initiate an independent inquiry into allegations of sexual abuse on the part of staff contracted to work at HM embassy, Baghdad. [205261]

Mr. Jim Murphy: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) was made aware of these allegations in June 2007. The complainants were interviewed promptly and in detail by senior members of our embassy staff. However, as the allegations were made both by and against employees of a company contracted by the FCO, we asked the company concerned to send staff from its UK office to take forward the investigation. They did so thoroughly and professionally in June 2007 and we accepted their conclusions and recommendations. We have since reviewed this decision and have concluded that there are no grounds for reopening the case.

KBR

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contracts have been fulfilled for his Department by KBR in the last five years; what the (a) value, (b) purpose and (c) duration was of each such contract; and where the work to fulfill the contract was performed in each case. [205260]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) currently have one contract with KBR, for the provision of life support services to our Embassy in Baghdad and the Contingency Operating Base in Basra, Iraq:

at award this contract was valued at £3.5 million approximately per annum. This does, however, not take account of the varying requirements for supplies of fuel and water which are in part subject to demand; the contract provides catering, commissary, laundry, cleaning, site waste removal/vector control services, site management and related resource in addition to providing bottled and tankered water and fuel supplies; and the contract commenced in February 2006 and ends on 26 February 2009, and is due for re-tender shortly.

All FCO contracts are subject to a rigorous selection process so that we obtain best value for money. Any company engaged by the FCO needs to pass through a stringent and transparent procurement process, in line with public procurement guidelines and best practice. The same rigorous process is followed in the contract management and performance monitoring of these contracts.

Maldives: Elections

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what contribution the UK is making to international efforts to ensure a fair election in the Maldives; and if he will make a statement. [204593]

Meg Munn: The UK is providing financial support for Commonwealth efforts to improve the Maldivian legislative electoral framework. Free, fair and credible elections are a crucial element of democratic reform in the Maldives. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, emphasised this point to Dr. Mohamad Asim, the Maldivian high commissioner in March. He also pointed out that the freedom of politicians and political parties to be able to campaign and debate freely was a cornerstone of democracy.

Nepal: Human Rights

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of Nepal on the observance of human rights. [204366]

Meg Munn: Throughout the recent pre-election period, the UK maintained its strong support for the work of the Office of the UN High Commissioner for Human Rights and other local, and international, human rights organisations in Nepal. In a joint public statement, issued on the eve of elections, we noted our deep concern at the election- related killings, abductions, disturbances and intimidation which were taking place in parts of the country. We also condemned those who had sought to disrupt the elections and stressed that the people of Nepal should be able to choose their new representatives, free from fear and threat. Following elections, we will continue to urge the Government of Nepal to investigate all cases of past human rights violations and abuses, and bring an end to the culture of impunity.

On 22 April, the UK joined an EU demarche to the Government of Nepal to protest about the violation of rights of Tibetan demonstrators in Kathmandu and elsewhere in Nepal, as well as the excessive use offered against them. The actions by Nepalese police violated individuals' rights to freedom of expression and freedom of assembly and we have urged a thorough investigation of these incidents.

Nepal: Politics and Government

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the political situation in Nepal following the constituent assembly elections on 10 April 2008. [204365]

Meg Munn: Along with the international community, the UK welcomed the largely peaceful elections to a Constituent Assembly which were held on 10 April. The election results clearly demonstrated the people of Nepal's desire for peace and change and we are urging all parties to respect this mandate and work together to deliver lasting peace and development in Nepal. As a long-standing friend of Nepal, the UK stands ready to help support the new government at this critical juncture in the country's transition.

Syria: Human Rights

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with the government of Syria on human rights in relation to the universal periodic review conducted by the UN Human Rights Council. [204342]

Meg Munn: Our ambassador in Damascus raised the periodic review of the UK by the UN Human Rights Council (HRC) with officials at the Syrian Ministry of Foreign Affairs on 28 April. He welcomed the review, underlined our support for these mechanisms and looked forward to other states working with the HRC in the same constructive way.

Syria will be one of the last countries to be reviewed under the UN's new universal periodic review process in 2011. The UK has not yet engaged in dialogue with Syria on its review. However, we are prepared to do so when they start to prepare for this important process.

In the meantime, the UK continues to have serious concerns about the human rights situation in Syria, which has deteriorated worryingly in recent months. We continue to call on Syria to abide by its international obligations on human rights. Our embassy in Damascus, working with other EU missions, continues to press the Syrians to improve conditions in general as well as raising individual cases of concern.

Zimbabwe: Arms Trade

Mr. Mullin: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Chinese authorities on the delivery of arms to Zimbabwe; and if he will make a statement. [203892]

Meg Munn: We have lobbied the Chinese Government in Beijing not to supply arms to Zimbabwe on four occasions since a Chinese ship attempted to unload in Durban. The EU already has in place a ban on the sales of arms to Zimbabwe. We support a moratorium on arms sales until there is a return to democracy and good governance. We raised this with the support of other states in the UN Security Council.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Wastes

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of the abolition of the agricultural buildings allowance for slurry storage facilities on (a) the average net income of farmers, (b) implementation of nitrate vulnerable zones and (c) trends in nitrate levels. [204211]

Jane Kennedy: I have been asked to reply.

The withdrawal of the Agricultural Buildings Allowance (ABA) is part of a package of measures introduced at Budget 2007 which also saw the reduction of the main rate of corporation tax and the introduction of a £50,000 Annual Investment Allowance (AIA), allowing 95 per cent. of businesses to write off all their expenditure on plant and machinery (excluding cars) in the year in which it is made. The effect of this package will vary according to the particular circumstances of a business.

Slurry storage facilities may be considered plant and machinery and therefore be eligible for plant and machinery capital allowances (both the AIA and writing-down allowances) at 20 per cent. a year on any balance of expenditure not covered by the AIA where the storage of the slurry is incidental to its final use.

Departmental Aviation

Mr. Maude: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the cost to his Department of air travel excluding carbon offsetting was in 2006-07. [198223]

Jonathan Shaw: For the period April 2006 to December 2007 inclusive, and from information held centrally, for core-DEFRA, the Animal Health Agency, the Centre for Environmental, Fisheries and Aquacultural Science, the Government Decontamination Service, and the Rural Payments Agency, expenditure on air travel by Ministers and officials was £3,447,090. Expenditure on travel is undertaken in accordance with departmental travel policy. For the financial year 2006-07, DEFRA will procure credits through the Government's Carbon Offsetting Fund to offset 2,864 tonnes of carbon dioxide equivalent (CO_2e) for its flights.

Details of overseas travel by Cabinet Ministers are published annually by Government and is accessible at:

http://www.cabinetoffice.gov.uk/propriety and ethics/ministers.aspx

The list includes details about the number of officials accompanying a Minister when non-scheduled travel is used for the trip. Copies of lists covering information going back to the 1997-98 financial year are available in the Libraries of the House.

Expenditure on travel is undertaken in accordance with departmental travel policy.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent on the most recent redesign and implementation of his Departmental website. [200167]

Jonathan Shaw: The most recent redesign and implementation of the DEFRA website took place between January and April 2007. Redesign work was undertaken by a third party at a cost of £27,342; implementation was achieved using existing in-house resources.

Specifically, the cost of this work related to the development of new design options and usage guidelines, page templates and stylesheets, and improvements to the general accessibility of the site.

Departmental Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his most recent estimate is of the unfunded liability in present value terms of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible; and on what assumptions for (a) discount and (b) longevity the estimate is based. [200716]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA is not responsible for the administration of any public sector pension scheme but most of its staff are members of the Principal Civil Service Pension scheme (PCSPS). The information requested and other useful information is contained in the scheme's annual resource accounts which can be accessed via its website:

www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk

and is also available from the House of Commons Library.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the unfunded liability in present value terms was of each public sector pension scheme for which his Department is responsible in each year since 1990-91. [200717]

Jonathan Shaw: Information on liabilities in present value terms is in the scheme's annual Resource Accounts (since 2000-01) although these are produced under differing sets of assumptions (e.g. on longevity), so are not directly comparable across years. The vast majority of DEFRA staff are members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS) and the Resource Accounts can be accessed via the scheme's website at:

www.civilservice-pensions.gov.uk

and are also available from the House of Commons Library.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the (a) rate and (b) cost was of employer contributions for each public sector pension scheme for which his Department has responsibility in each year since 1990-91; and if he will make a statement. [200718]

Jonathan Shaw: The vast majority of DEFRA staff are members of the Principal Civil Service Pension Scheme (PCSPS). The information requested is contained in the scheme's annual Resource Accounts since 2000-01.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the effect on his Department's expenditure would be of increasing the employee contribution to each pension scheme for which his Department is responsible by one per cent.; and if he will make a statement. [200719]

Jonathan Shaw: An increase to the employee contribution would have a nil effect on the Department's expenditure.

Facilities Management

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the reasons why an in-house bid has not been made with regard to his Department's plans to outsource the facilities management functions in his Department and its agencies. [194170]

Jonathan Shaw [holding answer 14 March 2008]: Discussions have been held with departmental trade union side on the issue of an in-house bid. In those discussions, it was made clear that all bids would be treated equally. However, no such bid has been made. It is not for us to say why, but it should be noted that the proposed contract is far-reaching and requires far more than a replication of services currently delivered by the in-house team.

Fisheries: Quotas

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what his policy is on placing a limit on catches for all EU vessels fishing within the UK 12 mile limit. [204856]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA has no plans to place a limit on catches for all EU vessels fishing within the UK 12 mile limit.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what mechanisms other than EU quotas there are to limit the activities of non-UK fishing vessels within the UK 12 mile limit in respect of (a) fish and (b) shellfish catches; and what mechanisms there are to enable EU member states to manage their own inshore shellfisheries without derogating from the Common Fisheries Policy. [204859]

Jonathan Shaw: The activities of non-UK vessels in our waters would be subject to the full range of controls under the Common Fisheries Policy (CFP), including limitations on effort for those capable of catching any of the relevant recovery or management plan stocks. Otherwise, individual member states may extend any more stringent national rules applying to their own vessels to those of other member states, providing the Commission, relevant Regional Advisory Councils and the member states concerned are content.

We have no EU measures on shellfish but certain member states have limits at national level.

Fisheries: Shellfish

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) what estimate he has made of changes in the (a) capacity of and (b) catch taken by non-UK fishing vessels with historical practice access to UK waters within the 12 mile limit and which target crabs and lobster since 1997; and whether the same minimum landing sizes of crabs apply to vessels from other EU member states and UK vessels when fishing in those waters; [204855]

(2) what data his Department receives on catches by fishing vessels from other EU member states within the six to 12 mile band of UK waters. [204858]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA does not hold data on changes in capacity and catches by foreign vessels within the 12 mile limit. Minimum landing sizes, as set out in EU legislation, must by complied with by all EU-flagged vessels.

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what shellfish stock assessment measures there are in respect of the six to 12 mile band of UK waters for the purpose of enabling accreditation schemes to demonstrate sustainability. [204857]

Jonathan Shaw: There is a range of stock assessment measures in place for shellfish at regional, national and EU levels, but there are no national or EU measures which explicitly relate only to the six to 12 mile zone. Sea Fisheries Committees (SFC) have introduced, or are in the process of introducing, a number of measures for the explicit purpose of gaining Marine Stewardship Council (MSC) accreditation, for instance South Wales SFC's management of the Burry Inlet cockle fishery, and North East Sea Fisheries Committee's (NESFC) attempt to gain accreditation for the local lobster fishery. These SFC measures, however, apply out to six miles only.

While none of the aforementioned measures has been introduced specifically for the purpose of enabling accreditation schemes to demonstrate sustainability, such measures are seen as an integral part of any shellfish management plan which would be a pre-requisite for gaining accreditation.

Flood Control

Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research he has (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated on the contribution of land management to reducing flooding. [204966]

Mr. Woolas: DEFRA published the findings of a major review of the impacts of rural land use and management on flood generation in November 2004. Subsequently, further work was commissioned on the analysis of historical data sets to look for the impacts of land use and management change on flood generation. The final report will be published later this year.

As part of the Government's making space for water delivery plan, the Environment Agency led a project to assess both the implications of land management change to flood risk at individual farm and catchment scale. This work included an update of the 2004 review.

Work was commissioned as part of the DEFRA-funded ripon project to model the effects of catchment scale land management in that area.

A research project to monitor and analyse the long-term impacts of land use change associated with the united utilities sustainable catchment management plan in North West has been commissioned under the joint DEFRA/Environment Agency flood risk management Research and Development programme.

Horses: Exports

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many horse and pony export licences were issued in each of the last three years. [205139]

Jonathan Shaw: The number of licences issued in each of the last three years, in connection with horses and ponies exported from English ports or airports, is as follows:

	2007	2006	2005
Horses	4,630	3,967	4,034
Ponies	527	457	541
Total	5,157	4,424	4,575

Nitrate Vulnerable Zones

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what analysis he has commissioned of the costs and benefits of the implementation of nitrate vulnerable zones. [204212]

Mr. Woolas: We intend to announce and publish our response to the nitrate vulnerable zones consultation before Parliament breaks for summer recess. This will include a summary of what the Department plans to do as a result of the consultation responses.

The draft proposals which were subject to consultation earlier this year were costed.

Rural Areas: Visits

Mr. Paice: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what estimate he has made of the number of visits made to the countryside in (a) the 12 months prior to and (b) each year since the Countryside Rights of Way Act 2000 gained Royal Assent; and what assessment he has made of the effect of the provisions of the Act on the numbers of people visiting the countryside. [204895]

Jonathan Shaw: No national monitoring of the number of visits made to the countryside was undertaken in the 12 months prior to the Countryside and Rights of Way Act 2000 (CROW) receiving Royal Assent on 30 November 2000. However, the UK Day Visit survey 1998 estimated that there were 1253 million visits to the countryside that year.

The Leisure Day Visits survey 2002-03 for England estimated that there were 1126 million visits to the countryside and a further 200 million to the 'seaside coast'.

The England Day Visits survey 2005 reported that in the twelve months surveyed there were approximately 692 million leisure visits made to the countryside and a further 72 million leisure visits made to the 'seaside coast'. Of these, 21.2 million trips were made to open access land which was introduced by the CROW Act and fully rolled out by October 2005.

Natural England is currently designing a new methodology for a day leisure visits survey and there is no further breakdown of figures available until the survey is published.

Due to differences in the methodologies, the figures in these surveys are not directly comparable.

NORTHERN IRELAND

Northern Ireland Prison Service

7. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent representations he has received on the pay scales of prison officers in the Northern Ireland prison service. [204422]

Paul Goggins: The pay scales for prison officers in the Northern Ireland Prison Service are recommended by the Prison Service Pay Review Body. The current scales were set as part of an agreed three year pay and efficiency agreement.

Security

8. Mr. McGrady: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent assessment he has made of the security situation in Northern Ireland. [204424]

Mr. Woodward: I welcome the publication of the 18th IMC report on 1 May indicating the continued significant improvement of the security situation in Northern Ireland.

I took that report into account in my recent review of specified organisations. I will lay today a draft order under the Northern Ireland (Sentences) Act 1998 which will result in the de-specification of the Ulster Volunteer Force/Red Hand Commandos and the specification of Oglaigh na hEireann.

Economy

9. Christopher Fraser: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what recent discussions he has had with the Chancellor of the Exchequer on the prospects for the Northern Ireland economy. [204425]

Mr. Woodward: I have regular discussions with the Chancellor of the Exchequer and we believe that the prospects for the Northern Ireland economy are very encouraging. Last week's successful US Investment Conference is an excellent illustration of Northern Ireland's potential for growth.

Criminal Justice and Policing: Devolution

10. Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland if he will make a statement on the devolution of criminal justice and policing to Northern Ireland. [204428]

Mr. Woodward: The Government are ready to transfer responsibility for policing and justice as soon as the Assembly requests this. The people of Northern Ireland want to see policing and justice devolve. Significant progress has been made on this since last May, not least with the publication of the Assembly's report which I laid before Parliament on 25 March 2008. I hope the parties will reach agreement on the timing without delay and complete the process of devolution.

PSNI

11. Rosie Cooper: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many Catholics were recruited as police officers by the Police Service of Northern Ireland in the last 12 months. [204429]

Paul Goggins: Between 29 April 2007 and 20 April 2008, 225 Catholic officers were recruited to the Police Service of Northern Ireland.

Energy Performance Certificates: Housing

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland what role his Department had in the (a) introduction of energy performance certificates for the sale of existing residential dwellings in Northern Ireland and (b) decision not to introduce home information packs in respect of sales of residential properties in Northern Ireland. [202821]

Mr. Woodward: This is a devolved matter and the responsibility of the Northern Ireland Departments for Social Development and Finance and Personnel.

Prisoners: Self-Mutilation

Mr. Gregory Campbell: To ask the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland how many instances of self-harm there were in each of Northern Ireland's prison and detention centres in each of the last three years. [204753]

Incidents of self-harm

Financial year	HMP Maghaberry	HMP Magilligan	HMP Hydebank Wood	Total
2005-06	94	14	93	201

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Adult Education: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department has spent to support adult learners completing their first full level three course in further education in each of the last five years. [205528]

Bill Rammell: Our ambition for higher intermediate skills (level 3) is critical to our future competitiveness and economic success. The Government's response to Leitch 'World Class Skills: implementing the Leitch review of skills in England' (July, 2007) committed to the Leitch level 3 ambition, which equates to 1.9 million more adults achieving level 3 by 2020.

In terms of milestones, this will mean moving from 49.2 per cent. of the adult population (19+) with level 3 or higher qualifications in 2006 to 56 per cent. by 2011 and up to 68 per cent. by 2020.

Using actual and planned learner numbers on full level 3 qualifications it is possible to estimate the level of public funding invested in these qualifications. This estimate covers expenditure on all full level 3 qualifications as data are not collected on the number of learners undertaking a first full level 3 qualification. The following table sets out information from 2005-06 to 2010-11 based on the structure of the 2008-09 Grant Letter to the Learning and Skills Council. It covers the years that we are able to estimate on the overall level of investment in full level 3 qualifications.

Estimated public investment in adult (aged 19+) full level 3 qualifications

£000 (rounded to the nearest £ million)

	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09	2009-10	2010-11
Adult learner responsive model	248,000	254,000	268,000	313,000	373,000	412,000
Employer responsive model	36,000	42,000	88,000	143,000	168,000	362,000
Total	284,000	296,000	356,000	456,000	541,000	774,000

Apprentices

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what data he holds on the geographical distribution of apprenticeships; and if he will make a statement. [205319]

Mr. Lammy: Data on the geographical distribution of apprentices are derived from the home postcode of each individual apprentice. This enables geographical analysis at any level of aggregation for which a postcode definition is available. We routinely make data available at regional and local authority level. Postcode information for those on apprenticeships in the Army is recorded against a single central address for security reasons.

The 16 to 18 participation statistical first release, published in June each year by the Department for Children, Schools and Families, provides a regional breakdown of those on apprenticeships and further information by region is available on the Learning and Skills Council's website. The individualised learner record also holds postcode data about apprenticeship providers and the location the apprenticeship is delivered.

Apprentices: Employment

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many people who have completed apprenticeships since 1997 are presently unemployed; and how many of these are long-term unemployed. [205321]

Mr. Lammy: The Annual Population Survey (APS) can be used to provide estimates about the labour market status of people who have completed an apprenticeship. It does not collect information about when the apprenticeship was completed and does not distinguish between publicly funded and other types of apprenticeship. Estimates from the APS show that of those people in England aged 16-35 in 2006 who had completed an apprenticeship 22,000 were unemployed according to the International Labour Organisation (ILO) definition. This represents an ILO unemployment rate of 3.3 per cent. Around 8,000 of the 22,000 had been ILO unemployed for at least six months

Astronomy: Research

Mr. Heathcoat-Amory: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much expenditure from the public purse was spent on research in (a) astronomy and (b) space science for 2007-08; and how much is planned to be spent for 2008-09; and what records he holds on comparative expenditure in other OECD states. [205313]

Ian Pearson: The Government provide funding to the Science and Technology Facilities Council (STFC) to support research and related postgraduate training in particle physics, astronomy, space science, nuclear physics, synchrotron radiation, neutron sources and high power lasers. STFC's expenditure on research in astronomy and space science is set out below. The Government do not hold records of comparative expenditure in other OECD states.

Expenditure

	(i) 2007-08[1]	(ii) 2008-09[2]
(a) Astronomy	57,812	71,042
(b) Space Science	95,592	108,385

[1] Figures for 2007/08 are based on current end of year figures.
[2] Figures for 2008/09 are based on the provisional budget.

Further Education: Finance

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the average cost of a further education level 3 course is. [205529]

Bill Rammell: The Learning and Skills Council (LSC) have a national funding rate for each level 3 qualification. The funding rate is based on the number of hours required to complete the course and includes a national fee assumption so that learners (not eligible for full fee remission) will contribute to the cost of the course. For the 2007/08 academic year the national fee assumption is 37.5 per cent. of the national funding rate.

The following table sets out the national funding rate for the most popular level 3 qualifications and the national fee assumption related to that type of qualification.

National funding rate and fee assumption for level 3 courses

Course type	National base rate[1]	Fee assumption (37.5 per cent.)
Key Skills	237	89
AS or A2 level (daytime study)	843	317
Applied AS or A2 level (daytime study)	2,641	990
GNVQ	2,641	990

National funding rate and fee assumption for level 3 courses

Course type	National base rates[1]	Fee assumption (37.5 per cent.)
Edexcel/OCR National Diploma	6,333	2,375
Edexcel/OCR National Certificate	5,103	1,913
Access to HE	3,051	1,144

[1] Figures relate to duration of course rather than providing a per year rate as course lengths vary

While the national fee assumption is taken into account in the calculation of funding rates, it is for colleges and providers to determine the actual level of fee charged. It is therefore not possible to provide an average cost of a further education course to the learner.

In relation to the cost to the Department the average cost of a full level 3 course per year has been estimated at around £1,500 per year for the financial year 2007-08.

Higher Education: Northamptonshire

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will bring forward proposals to establish a multi-campus university in North Northamptonshire. [205709]

Bill Rammell: We want to give everyone who has the talent the chance to go to university whether they are about to leave school or already in work. Students should have access to local provision offering flexible courses to suit their needs. We are therefore delighted by the interest that our new university challenge has generated. This policy also offers places the opportunity to unlock the potential in their area by working with those involved in regeneration and economic planning to provide locally-based HE provision. We have already agreed to meet delegations from towns in North Northamptonshire to discuss these issues. Any proposals for new university campuses or centres of HE will be assessed by the Higher Education Funding Council for England.

Job Creation: EU Economic Policy

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate his Department has made of the number of jobs created as a direct consequence of the Lisbon Agenda; at what cost per job; and if he will make a statement. [205326]

Mr. Lammy: The Lisbon Strategy for Jobs and Growth was re-launched in 2005 and in that period employment has increased by almost 6.5 million in the EU. Exchange of best practice between member states, on policies owned nationally, is at the heart of the strategy but focused on outcomes not costs.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 6 March 2008, Official Report, column 2807W, on departmental manpower, how many of his Department's staff under 18 years old were receiving at least one day's training per week in the most recent period for which figures are available. [204840]

Mrs. McGuire: Information on how many of the Department's under 18-years-old were receiving at least one day's training per week is not held centrally; this information could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Pensions

Jim Cousins: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many employees in his Department (a) contracted out of and (b) contributed to SERPS/S2P in each year since 2001-02, broken down by (i) sex and (ii) age cohort. [195456]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Such information as is readily obtainable is given as follows.

The Principal Civil Service Pensions Scheme (PCSPS) is a 'contracted out' scheme. However, women aged over 60 and men aged over 65 cannot contract out of S2P. All other employees would be automatically contracted out of S2P unless they decided not to join the scheme.

We are unable to extract data for a number of staff during 2006-07 as this information is held on a legacy system, which could be accessed only at disproportionate cost. The available data is contained in the tables and is for the tax year 2006-07 relating to 91,504 staff and 2007-08 relating to 125,476 staff, broken down by (i) sex and (ii) age cohort.

Departmental Sick Leave

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the level of (a) sickness and (b) unauthorised absence was in (i) his Department and (ii) each of its agencies in each year since 1996-97; what targets are in place for a reduction in sickness and unauthorised absence; and if he will make a statement. [200815]

Mrs. McGuire: The information available is provided in the following tables:

Sickness Absence

The Department for Work and Pensions was created in July 2001. The overall figures prior to this date relate to absence levels in the Department of Social Security (DSS) Group (the main predecessor to the DWP) and the Employment Service. A comprehensive breakdown of DSS' agencies' figures prior to 2001 is not available.

The figures relate to working days lost per staff year and are taken from the report titled Analysis of Sickness Absence in the Civil Service, which was published annually by the Cabinet Office.

The DWP has a sickness absence target of 7.7 days per staff year to be achieved by April 2010. Each of the DWP businesses contributes to achieving the overall DWP target.

Unauthorised Absence

Prior to April 2007, we are only able to provide figures for unauthorised absences specifically due to industrial action. From April 2007, a new personnel computer system was introduced that records all types of unauthorised absence, including industrial action. Therefore, the 2007-08 figures include all types of unauthorised absence.

The Department does not have a specific target related to unauthorised absence.

Departmental Voluntary Work

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to encourage volunteering among its employees in the last three years. [204929]

Mrs. McGuire: The DWP has actively encouraged volunteering by introducing an employer-supported volunteering scheme—Community 5000—and by our policies on public and community leave.

Community 5000 enables individuals and teams to give their working time and skills to voluntary and community organisations of relevance to our customers. Our aspiration is to give 5,000 days of the Department's time each year to the Third Sector through our DWP volunteers, improving our people's understanding of customers' needs and encouraging wider involvement in the community.

In addition to Community 5000, the Department has also long encouraged participation in the local community with a provision to apply for paid public and community leave for serving in a voluntary organisation that provides a service to the local community, such as the Lifeboat Service and Special Constabulary.

Disability Living Allowance: Appeals

Mr. Andrew Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what advice has been given to staff handling disability living allowance appeals about the use of standard letter CAP22a. [204995]

Mrs. McGuire: The Pension, Disability and Carers Service recently established that instructions to staff in connection with appeals and the use of the standard letter CAP22a was incorrect. That guidance was withdrawn and instructions about the correct procedure were issued to all decision makers on 21 April 2008.

The new instructions direct that, where the customer has completed form GL24 to authorise another person to act for them in an appeal and the customer has also signed the form overleaf as the appellant, the appeal is valid and the representative's signature does not also need to be obtained.

Housing Benefit

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how much in housing benefit has been paid to tenants of (a) housing associations and (b) local authorities and local authority arms length management organisations since 1997; and what estimate he has made of the effect on the level of payments in each of those years of tenants transferring from council management to registered social landlords as part of stock transfers. [203535]

Mr. Plaskitt: The available information for local authorities and registered social landlords is in the table.

Information is not available separately for arms length management organisations.

We have not made an estimate of the cost to public funds of paying the housing benefit of tenants transferred from council tenancies to registered social landlords since 1997. To determine such a figure would require detailed assumptions about the rents each authority might theoretically have charged had it retained the stock. However, the potential impact on housing benefit where stock is transferred to registered social landlords is considered as part of the overall value-for-money assessment of transfers.

RSL expenditure	4,199	4,291	4,603	4,950	5,328

Notes:

1. The figures are nominal costs for the whole of Great Britain.
2. The figures are total amounts paid to beneficiaries, irrespective of the source of funding, and include benefit spending reimbursed by DWP, spending on rent rebates financed within local authorities' housing revenue accounts, and benefit spending financed from local authorities' general funds.
3 The figures reflect the latest benefit-by-benefit estimate of out-turn, and not the amounts voted by Parliament.
4. Figures for 1999-2000 onwards are on a resource accounting and budgeting basis. There may be differences between figures quoted in these tables and those quoted in Department for Work and Pensions accounts.
5. Figures for past years may have changed since previous publication due to changes in methodology and the incorporation of more up-to-date information.
6. Figures exclude asylum seekers from April 1999, since when the National Asylum Support Service has reimbursed DWP for benefits paid to asylum seekers.
7. Separation of rent allowance into private rental sector and registered social landlord elements is an estimate derived from the quarterly administrative data on caseloads and average awards, and the figures should therefore be treated as indicative.

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what estimate his Department has made of the cost to the public purse in additional housing benefit payments which would arise from each £1 increase in council and registered social landlord rents. [203664]

Mr. Plaskitt: The increased yearly cost in additional housing benefit payments for each £1 increase in council and registered social landlord rents is estimated to be around £165 million.

Notes:

1. The estimated cost is rounded to the nearest £5 million.
2. The estimated cost is based on a £1 increase in weekly rent.
3. The estimated cost does not include floaters-on as a result of a £1 increase in rent.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people claiming (a) housing benefit and (b) council tax benefit have had their benefit backdated by between three and 12 months. [203685]

Mr. Plaskitt: The information is not available.

Our ability to provide this breakdown is restricted by the breadth and reliability of the data available to us.

As part of the Equality Impact Assessment, we have provided an estimate of the proportion of housing benefit and council tax benefit case loads affected by the proposals to reduce the backdating facilities to three months. There are, however, important caveats to these estimates which must be noted.

A copy of the Equality Impact Assessment has been placed in the Library. It is also available on the Department for Work and Pensions website at:

http://www.dwp.gov.uk/resourcecentre/PC-HB-CTB-EIA-Apr08.pdf

Figures on the number of successful backdating claims are derived from the Single Housing Benefit Extract (HBSD-IAD scan). The backdating variable in the Single Housing Benefit Extract was introduced relatively recently in April 2007 and accordingly we have no means of corroborating the data's robustness against historical data. Furthermore, given that the data only goes back six months, we currently have an insufficient pool of evidence to derive reliable figures from the data. These concerns should be allayed with time as the scan data improves.

Based on the first six months of data available, it is estimated that approximately 0.2 per cent. of new housing benefit and council tax benefit claims would be affected. These figures may be subject to revision as more data becomes available.

Industrial Health and Safety: Construction

Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what percentage of workplace deaths in the construction industry resulted in (a) prosecution and (b) conviction in each year since 1997. [198837]

Mrs. McGuire: The information is as follows:

(a) The most up-to-date figures on the percentage of construction industry workplace deaths in Great Britain, for each of the years between 1999-2000 to 2006-07, that have resulted in a prosecution, are shown in the following table.

	Number of deaths	Number of deaths resulting in a prosecution	Percentage
1999-2000	87	33	37
2000-01	113	42	37
2001-02	85	27	32
2002-03	75	30	40
2003-04	75	33	44
2004-05	77	33	43
2005-06	64	12	19
2006-07	84	8	10

The numbers of prosecutions for later years, particularly 2005-06 and 2006-07, will increase as it can be a number of years after the fatality before the resulting prosecution comes to court.

The fatality figures are based on deaths reported under the Reporting of Injuries, Diseases and Dangerous Occurrences Regulations 1995.

	Number of prosecution cases raised	Number of guilty convictions	Percentage
1999-2000	44	39	89
2000-01	68	59	87
2001-02	42	32	76
2002-03	45	33	73
2003-04	59	45	76
2004-05	59	45	76
2005-06	17	14	82
2006-07	9	All cases ongoing	—

These figures show the numbers of prosecution cases which have been raised and convictions for those cases completed. For a number of deaths, more than one prosecution case has been raised.

The numbers of cases raised and number of convictions for later years, particularly 2005-06 and 2006-07, will increase as it can be a number of years after the fatality before the related prosecution cases are heard by the courts.

All current prosecution cases relating to fatalities in 2006/07 are still progressing through the courts and have not yet reached a verdict.

Detailed information is only available in the form requested from 1999-2000 onwards and published figures for fatalities in 2007-08 are not yet available.

International Labour Organisation: Anniversaries

Mr. MacShane: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what progress he has made on the development of plans to commemorate the 90th anniversary of the International Labour Organisation in 2009. [203771]

Mr. Plaskitt: We have held initial discussions with the International Labour Organisation on how we might commemorate its 90th anniversary, and are currently considering how best to develop our ideas.

Jobseekers Allowance

Chris Grayling: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) what estimate he has made of the (a) mean and (b) median length of a claim for jobseekers allowance; [203268]

(2) what estimate he has made of the (a) mean and (b) median length of a claim for jobseekers allowance for a claimant who has (i) a drink or drug addiction and (ii) a mental health condition. [203269]

Mr. Plaskitt: Information on average durations of jobseeker's allowance claims is not available broken down by medical condition. The available information is in the table.

Average claim durations of jobseeker's allowance leavers —March 2008

	Weeks
Median duration	9.2
Estimated mean duration	18.5

Notes:
1. Median and mean durations are rounded to one decimal place.
2. Mean durations are not recommended to be used when dealing with skewed distribution such as duration of claim. In these cases, the median is a better measure of 'average' than the arithmetic mean.

Members: Correspondence

Mr. Winnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will arrange for the Child Support Agency to send a reply to the hon. Member for Walsall North's letter of 31 March 2008 concerning a constituent, ref: JC962664A. [202908]

Mr. Plaskitt [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the Chief Executive. He will write to my hon. Friend with the information requested.

Letter from Susan Park, dated 14 May 2008:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As the Chief Executive is currently on annual leave, I am responding, with his authority on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, if he will arrange for the Child Support Agency to send a reply to the hon. Member for Walsall North's letter of 31st March 2008 concerning a constituent ref: JC962664A. [202908]

As details about individual cases are confidential, I have written to you separately about this case.

Pension Disability and Carers Service: Public Appointments

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the answer of 1 May 2008, Official Report, columns 589-90W, on Pension Disability and Carers Service: public appointments, if he will break down the £2,350 spent on recruiting the chief executive. [204471]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 9 May 2008]: The expenditure of £2,350 comprised a professional fee of £2,000 plus £350 VAT for the psychometric assessment of shortlisted candidates.

Remploy

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department has taken to ensure that Remploy's procurement targets are being met. [202900]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 1 May 2008]: It is Remploy's responsibility to ensure its procurement targets are met.

However, the Department is leading work with Remploy, Trade Unions, Office of Government Commerce and British Association for Supported Employment using Article 19 of the new public sector procurement Directive as a means of securing more public sector contracts for Supported Businesses including Remploy through the Public Procurement Regulations.

The Department has established an Implementation Monitoring Group which includes representatives from Remploy, Trade Unions and the Department. The group tracks progress against the modernisation plan, including procurement.

Officials also chair a quarterly review meeting with the Remploy executive team to discuss performance against targets.

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what cost savings were made by Remploy management in each of the last five years. [202901]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The changes in the total costs of Remploy businesses and central costs (outturn prices) since April 2003 are in the table.

£ million

	Total costs	Cumulative change since 2003 +/-	Yearly changes in costs +/-
2002-03	158.8	—	—

Jon Trickett: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many staff have successfully (a) transferred from one Remploy factory to another and (b) unsuccessfully applied for transfer following closure of a Remploy factory. [202903]

Mrs. McGuire [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The number of disabled people who have transferred from one Remploy factory to another is 185.

All disabled people eligible to apply for transfer (that is in the 11 Remploy merging sites) were given the opportunity to do so.

Social Security Benefits: Chronic Fatigue Syndrome

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will review the procedures by which decisions are made on whether those suffering from myalgic encephalopathy/chronic fatigue syndrome should be allowed benefits with a view to reducing the number of such decisions which subsequently go to appeal. [203916]

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions if he will review the procedures by which judgement is made on whether those suffering from myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome should be allowed benefits in order to reduce the number of appeals and successful appeals. [203973]

Mrs. McGuire: I refer my hon. Friends to the written answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Norwich, North (Dr. Gibson) on 1 May 2008, Official Report, column 588W.

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how (a) the provisions of the Welfare Reform Act 2007 and (b) the guidance on disability living allowance published in July 2007 will improve access to benefits for people with myalgic encephalopathy/chronic fatigue syndrome. [203917]

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how (a) the provisions of the Welfare Reform Act 2007 and (b) the guidance on disability living allowance published in July 2007 will improve access to benefits for people with myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome who go to appeal to get benefits. [203972]

Mrs. McGuire: The Welfare Reform Act 2007 provides for the new employment and support allowance, which will be supported by the new work capability assessment.

The new work capability assessment will be a fair, robust and accurate assessment of a person's capability for work, reflecting the activities needed in today's workplace and concentrating on what people can do rather than what they cannot do. The current personal capability assessment needed a thorough review to ensure that the new assessment is up-to-date and accurate, and that it will identify those people who should be entitled to employment and support allowance, including those with long term-and fluctuating conditions such as myalgic encephalopathy.

The work capability assessment is not a snapshot of a person's condition on the day of the assessment. In assessing whether a person can carry out any given activity, healthcare professionals must take into account the person's condition over a reasonable period of time. If there is a change in a person's disabling condition, there will be a provision to refer the person to an approved healthcare professional so that we can determine afresh whether or not the person has limited capability for work, or limited capability for work-related activity.

The disability living allowance guidance on myalgic encephalopathy and chronic fatigue syndrome was developed in conjunction with a group of experts in this area of medicine. It gives benefit decision-makers a greater understanding of this illness and the consequent care needs and mobility difficulties, and will enable them to make better-informed decisions on a person's entitlement to disability living allowance.

Janet Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to ensure that assessments for the new employment and support allowance take account of the fluctuating state of health which is characteristic of people who have myalgic encephalopathy/chronic fatigue syndrome. [203918]

Dr. Desmond Turner: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what steps his Department is taking to ensure that assessments for the new employment and support allowance take account of the fluctuating health cycle characteristic of people who have myalgic encephalomyelitis/chronic fatigue syndrome. [203975]

Mr. Timms: I refer my hon. Friends to the written answer I gave my hon. Friend the Member for Norwich, North (Dr. Gibson) on 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 44W.

Social Security Benefits: Personal Records

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions pursuant to the Answer of 9th January 2008, Official Report, column 574W, on social security benefits: personal records, how many employees have access to the database for benefits administered by his Department. [200829]

Mrs. McGuire: Social Security administration is carried out using many different databases, and the information requested is not recorded centrally and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

State Retirement Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions (1) how many people had their pension credit payments ended for remaining abroad for more that four weeks at a time in each year since 2003; and what the average amount of time was for payments to be restarted once such a claimant had returned to the UK in each of those years; [197480]

(2) what estimate he has made of the cost of extending from four to 13 weeks the amount of time that a claimant can be abroad before their pension credit payments are ended. [197481]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: Information on the number of pension credit claims that end because the recipient has gone abroad for more than four weeks is not collected.

For planning purposes we estimate that around 50,000 pension credit recipients go abroad for between four and 13 weeks each year, based on data from the International Passenger Survey on the number of visits abroad by length of stay for the general population of people aged 65 and over.

Customers would have to make a new claim for pension credit on their return, processed in the usual way. This is burdensome for both the customer and the Pensions Disability and Carers Service staff.

Extending the period to 13 weeks will be of sufficient duration to allow nearly 90 per cent. of those customers who would otherwise have had their pension credit stopped after four weeks of a temporary absence, to retain entitlement.

We estimated that the net cost of extending the absence abroad period from four to 13 weeks over this comprehensive spending review period could be around £2 million in each full year from introduction.

The proposal to extend the period of time people can go abroad and still keep their pension credit from four to 13 weeks forms part of a package of pension measures that will make claiming benefit entitlements simpler and less intrusive and deliver extra support to pensioners. Taken together the wider package of measures represents more than £500 million of additional spending on pensioners over the next three years.

Notes:

1. Estimates represent combined administrative and benefit costs/savings.

2. Estimated costs and savings are consistent with the 2008 Budget settlement but it should be noted that they are based on a set of assumptions and are subject to change as new data becomes available.

TREASURY

Capital Allowances: Enterprise Zones

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1668W, on capital allowances: enterprise zones, what the estimated cost is of the enterprise zone allowances to the Exchequer in 2008-09; and what estimate his Department has made of the increase in tax receipts in the first full year that the allowances are withdrawn. [204884]

Jane Kennedy: The estimated annual cost of the special industrial buildings allowances for enterprise zones is published in the tax ready reckoner produced by HMRC each year. This is available at:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/table1-5.pdf

The revenue yield in the first year after abolition (2011-12) is expected to be £15 million, followed by £50 million in 2012-13.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1669W, on council tax: valuation, what (a) property attributes and (b) data sets the banding support tool uses to identify comparable properties. [204883]

Jane Kennedy: The banding support tool has the capability to use (a) all available dwelling house coding attributes and (b) all current bandings in order to provide the closest matches to inform decision-making.

Council Tax: Wales

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 17 March 2008, Official Report, column 899W, on the Valuation Office: Wales, when the automated valuation model capabilities will come into operation in Wales; what the budgeted cost is; and what work is being undertaken by Cole Layer Trumble/Tyler Technologies on the project. [204869]

Jane Kennedy: AVM capabilities to support work in connection with the maintenance of the current (2005) council tax lists in Wales is under development. It is not subject to any timetabling and is being taken forward as resources allow with costs being contained within existing operational budgets.

No work is being undertaken by Cole Layer Trumble/Tyler Technologies on this project although they provide technical support as the third party supplier of OASIS software.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many consequential amendments have been made to council tax banding, in terms of number of households, since the 2005 council tax revaluation in Wales in each local authority area in Wales according to Valuation Office Agency records. [204886]

Jane Kennedy: The VOA is currently in the process of updating its website statistics to show all cases where the listing officer has made a change to the 2005 council tax lists in Wales since 1 April 2005, as a result of an inquiry or an appeal.

EU Emissions Trading Scheme

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what plans the Government have for the use of revenues received by the UK from the auctioning of emission allowances in future phases of the European emissions trading scheme. [204967]

Angela Eagle: The framework for future phases of EU ETS are currently under discussion and as such no structure for auctioning in future phases has been decided. The revised EU ETS directive is due to be finalised later this year.

Any revenue raised through the use of auctioning would be considered part of general revenue streams, and the spending review process ensures that resources are allocated efficiently to deliver Government objectives.

Excise Duties: Motor Vehicles

Mr. Drew: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what factors were taken into account in making the decision to remove the exemption from higher rates of vehicle excise duty from vehicles first registered after March 2001; what consultation he undertook before removing the exemption; and if he will make a statement. [205019]

Angela Eagle: Budget 2008 announced reform of the Vehicle Excise Duty structure with new rate bands from 2009 and a new higher first-year rate from 2010 to influence purchasing choices. The Government's policy on exemptions from Vehicle Excise Duty has remained unchanged and existing nil rates will remain in force.

The Government take rates decisions as part of the routine Budget process. Budget 2008 decisions will therefore introduce rates from 2009-10 which are appropriate and apply consistently to all cars across the emissions spectrum—the more polluting the vehicle, the more vehicle excise duty it will pay. In taking such rates decisions the Government considers a range of factors, including relevant environmental, social and economic factors.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) which (a) cars and (b) vans will be subject to an increase in vehicle excise duty in the 2009-10 financial year, broken down by (i) make and model of vehicle and (ii) size of engine; and if he will make a statement; [205303]

(2) what recent discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Transport on the proposed increase in excise duty on certain vehicles in the next financial year; and if he will make a statement. [205304]

Angela Eagle: The information requested on each individual variant of each model of car or van could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Individual vehicle owners may determine the rate applicable to their vehicle in 2009-10 by reference to the vehicle's registration document and table A8a of the Budget report. In addition, cars that emit more than 225 g CO_2 per km but were first registered before 23 March 2006 will be placed in Band K in 2009-10—and will continue to benefit from a reduced rate, and only in 2010-11 will these cars be placed into the band (L or M) that corresponds to the car's actual CO_2 emissions.

Treasury Ministers engage with their ministerial colleagues in shared policy areas as a matter of routine as part of the process of policy development and delivery.

Fuels: Aviation

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue which would accrue in 2008-09 if value added tax were levied on aviation fuel at 17.5 per cent. [205195]

Jane Kennedy: VAT is already charged on aviation fuel supplied for flights within the UK at either the standard rate of 17.5 per cent or reduced rate of 5 per cent. depending on the type and quantity of fuel being supplied. However, under the normal rules of VAT, the tax charged can be reclaimed by a VAT registered airline or other business to the extent that it relates to their taxable business activities.

Aviation fuel supplied for use on intra-community or international flights is VAT zero-rated. However, even if our international agreements allowed the UK to impose VAT it could also be reclaimed subject to the normal rules.

HM Revenue and Customs does not hold sufficient information with which to make an estimate of the revenue that would otherwise accrue.

Income Tax: Low Incomes

Mark Hunter: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the number of households in (a) the United Kingdom, (b) England, (c) Greater Manchester, (d) Stockport Borough and (e) Cheadle constituency which will be (i) better off, (ii) worse off and (iii) unaffected as a result of the abolition of the 10 pence starting rate of income tax. [200418]

Jane Kennedy [holding answer 23 April 2008]: The removal of the 10p rate is part of a package of reforms announced in Budget 2007.

It is not possible to estimate the impact of the reform package below Government office region level.

National Insurance Contributions

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the revenue that would be raised in 2008-09 if the upper limit on national insurance contributions were abolished. [205248]

Jane Kennedy: The yield from removing the upper earnings limit for employees Class 1 National Insurance contributions is around £8.5 billion for 2008-09. This estimate includes the yield from the consequent increase in the upper profit limit for Class 4 contributions paid by the self employed, and the cost of the increase in employee and employer rebates for contracting out of state second pension.

This excludes any estimate of behavioural effects which could be significant given the scale of the change.

The estimate is consistent with Budget 2008 assumptions and assumes that the NHS allocation contribution rates are unchanged.

Non-domestic Rates: Licensed Premises

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2008, Official Report, columns 509-10W, on valuation: licensed premises, if he will place in the Library the latest edition of the full Rating Manual. [204870]

Jane Kennedy: The Rating Manual is available on the Valuation Office Agency's website (www.voa.gov.uk).

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, pursuant to the answer of 8 January 2008, Official Report, columns 509-10W, on valuation: licensed premises, whether the section of the Rating Manual has been rewritten. [204871]

Jane Kennedy: The Rating Manual section on public houses, licensed restaurants and wine bars is being rewritten in conjunction with preparations for the 2010 Revaluation. It is intended to have this complete by the end of October this year. At that time it will be published on the Valuation Office Agency's website to replace the existing section.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will place in the Library a copy of the Valuation Office Agency's document Valuation of Public Houses: Approved Guide in use for the 2010 non-domestic rates revaluation. [204891]

Jane Kennedy: No such document currently exists.

Part-time Employment: Students

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate (a) his Department and (b) HM Revenue and Customs has made of the number of full-time students who receive an income from working part-time. [204889]

Jane Kennedy: Based on figures published by the Department for Innovation, Universities and Skills, HM Revenue and Customs estimates that 1.7 million students in full-time education were in employment for part of the year during 2004-05 and 2005-06.

Revenue and Customs: Correspondence

Joan Walley: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the average time taken was for letters to be sent out by HM Revenue and Customs arising from enquiries to their 0845 enquiry numbers in the latest period for which figures are available. [203309]

Jane Kennedy: The requested information is not available. However HM Revenue and Customs aim to deal with 80 per cent. of general correspondence within 15 working days of receipt and 95 per cent. within 40 working days.

Stamp Duties

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1684-85W, on stamp duties, whether an impact assessment was produced in relation to introducing charging by an energy assessor to assess whether a dwelling meets the standard. [204881]

Kitty Ussher: There is not a separate impact assessment on charges to assess whether a dwelling meets the zero-carbon standard for the purposes of the stamp duty land tax relief. However, an impact assessment was published at Budget 2007 when details of the stamp duty land tax relief for new zero-carbon homes was announced. This can be found on HMRC's website at:

www.hmrc.gov.uk/ria/9-zero-carbon-homes.pdf

Stamp Duty Land Tax: Shared Ownership Schemes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1685-86W, on stamp duty land tax: shared ownership schemes (1) whether (a) Social Homebuy and (b) New Build Homebuy are shared ownership or shared equity schemes for the purposes of the stamp duty land tax rule; [204880]

(2) whether the homebuyer, when purchasing the final 20 per cent. of the equity, having previously purchased up to 80 per cent., will be required to pay stamp duty on 100 per cent. of the property's total capital value or only the final 20 per cent. [204882]

Kitty Ussher: Both social homebuy and new build homebuy are shared ownership schemes.

When the homebuyer in a shared ownership arrangement purchases the final 20 per cent. of a property, having previously purchased 80 per cent. free of SDLT, they will only pay stamp duty land tax on the final 20 per cent. of the property.

State Retirement Pensions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what estimate he has made of the cost of restoring the link between the basic state pension and earnings in each year between 2009 and 2015. [200259]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: I have been asked to reply.

Current baseline projections of expenditure on pensioner benefits assume that the basic state pension is increased by earnings from 2012. The net additional cost of increasing the basic state pension by earnings from 2009 in each year between 2009-10 and 2015-16 is given in the table as follows:

Net additional annual cost of increasing the basic state pension by earnings from 2009-10

	£ billion, 2008-09 prices
2009-10	0.3
2010-11	1.2
2011-12	1.9
2012-13	1.9
2013-14	2.0

Net additional annual cost of increasing the basic state pension by earnings from 2009-10

	£ billion, 2008-09 prices
2014-15	2.1
2015-16	2.1

Notes:
1. Estimates are additional to the baseline assumption of increasing the basic state pension by earnings from 2012. During the next Parliament, we will re-link the uprating of the basic state pension to average earnings. Our objective, subject to affordability and the fiscal position, is to do this in 2012, but in any event by the end of the Parliament at the latest. We will make a statement on the precise date at the beginning of the next Parliament.
2. Estimates are presented in net terms reflecting that the estimated savings from reduced income related benefit payments (pension credit, housing benefit and council tax benefit) have been deducted. The proportions of additional expenditure saved through reduced income related benefit payments have been estimated using the Department's Policy Simulation Model and are assumed to remain constant over time.
3. In the financial years up to and including 2013-14 Treasury Economic assumptions consistent with Budget 2008 have been used to model earnings uprating. After this point a long term earnings growth assumption of 4.93 per cent. has been applied.
4. Estimates are in 2008-09 prices and have been rounded to the nearest £100 million.

Taxation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his Department's technical definition of a revenue-neutral tax change is. [204873]

Jane Kennedy: A tax policy change is revenue-neutral if the net total of the change does not result in a change in forecast Exchequer receipts over the forecast period. All tax policy changes with revenue implications of more than £5 million a year over the forecast period are set out in table A1 of the Financial Statement and Budget Report.

Taxation: Aviation

Mr. Holloway: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent discussions he has had with Ministerial colleagues on levels of aviation duty on flights between Northern Ireland and the rest of the UK. [204417]

Angela Eagle: At pre-Budget report 2007, the Government announced that they intended to replace air passenger duty with a duty payable per plane, rather than per passenger. This reform will take place on 1 November 2009 and has the objective of sending better environmental signals, and also ensuring that aviation makes a greater contribution to covering its environmental costs, while ensuring that a fair level of revenue is raised from the sector in order to support public services.

The public consultation on the design of the new duty opened on 31 January 2008 and closed on 24 April. The Government have received a number of responses to date, including one from the Northern Ireland Executive. All of these responses—including that from the Northern Ireland—will be carefully analysed by HM Treasury before final announcements on the design of the duty are made.

Taxation: Interest Charges

Mr. Hoban: To askther Chancellor of the Exchequer how many complaints HM Revenue and Customs received in respect of late payment interest charges on tax payments which were not late in the latest 12 month period for which figures are available. [204924]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

HMRC processes payments and updates customers' accounts within 24 hours of receiving them in the vast majority of cases.

In a small number of cases, we are unable to credit customers' accounts immediately, usually because the payment is received with insufficient information, for example, if the payment reference number has been omitted or is not shown correctly.

In such cases the payments are allocated to a suspense account while enquiries are made to establish the account or record that is to be credited. Where such a payment is made on the due date for the tax, it is therefore possible that interest will be charged while the payment is in the suspense account. However, once the payment is allocated correctly the interest charge will be cancelled.

Every payment application or Notice to Pay issued by HMRC carries full 'How to pay' guidance. This clearly sets out the information needed to allocate payments correctly. An expanded version of this guidance is available on the HMRC website and is accessible on www.hmrc.co.uk. Any customer with queries on interest charges raised can phone the Payment Helpline for advice.

Taxation: Land

Mr. Pickles: To ask Mr Chancellor of the Exchequer what research (a) his Department and (b) its agencies have conducted into land value taxation. [204890]

Jane Kennedy: The Treasury has responsibility for tax policy. The Treasury keeps a range of tax options under consideration in the course of its policy making process.

Valuation Office

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 17 March 2008, Official Report, column 899W, on the Valuation Office, what the value impact, in numerical terms, of each value significant code is, as identified during the calibration of the Valuation Office Agency's automated valuation model. [203121]

Jane Kennedy: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 17 October 2007, Official Report, column 1144W, on the Valuation Office, on what dates other than 22 November 2005 the Valuation Office Agency's Council Tax Revaluation Programme Board (England) has met. [204872]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency's Programme Board for the now postponed council tax revaluation generally met monthly between March 2003 and November 2005.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1688W, on the Valuation Office, how many households in England received a visit from a Valuation Office Agency official in each year since 2003 for which figures are available. [204878]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Valuation Office: Cole Layer Trumble

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency uses Cole Layer Trumble's (a) OASIS, (b) ORION and (c) iAnalyze products. [204888]

Jane Kennedy: (a) Yes (b) No (c) No.

Valuation Office: ICT

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1688W, on Valuation Office: ICT, how many localities there are in each individual billing authority area in England. [204866]

Jane Kennedy: This information could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1688W, on Valuation Office: ICT, what correspondence there is between the boundaries of localities and other (a) local government or (b) statistical geographical divisions. [204867]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given by the then Minister for Local Government on 19 June 2006, Official Report, column 1600W.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the Valuation Office Agency's Automated Valuation Model is used for the valuation of houses for (a) right-to-buy sales and (b) inheritance tax. [204892]

Jane Kennedy: It is not used for the purposes specified.

Valuation Office: Measuring Instruments

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1689-90W, on the Valuation Office: measuring instruments, what the reasons were for the differences in expenditure in 2007-08 and 2006-07. [204874]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency (VOA) undertakes various types of valuation and surveying work on behalf of a number of public sector clients for a wide range of purposes and requires the appropriate professional equipment to perform these roles effectively.

At the end of 2007-08, the VOA placed an order for 1,100 laser measures across the network, to include both additional and replacement units, where the current units were beyond their economic life. This bulk order has contributed to the increase in expenditure on surveying equipment from 2006-07.

Laser measures are used in all work areas, including non domestic rating, council tax and district valuer services.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1689-90W, on the Valuation Office: measuring instruments, if he will place in the Library the invoices for the purchases in 2007-08. [204875]

Jane Kennedy: The tendered contract price for individual items is commercial in confidence. I am therefore unable to place copies of the invoices in the Library, as they contain information regarding the cost of specific items.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, columns 1689-90W, on the Valuation Office: measuring instruments, who the designated supplier is. [204876]

Jane Kennedy: The Valuation Office Agency's (VOA) contracted supplier of surveying equipment is Survey Express Services Ltd (SFS), based in Catford, London.

Valuation Office: Publications

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer, with reference to the answer of 25 June 2007, Official Report, column 399W, on the Valuation Office Agency, if he will place in the Library copies of the Agency's staff magazine produced since June 2007. [204868]

Jane Kennedy: The Agency has produced no staff magazines since June 2007.

Valuation Office: Video Recordings

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1690W, on the Valuation Office: video recordings, what the (a) title and (b) purpose was of the video produced since January. [204877]

Jane Kennedy: The title of the video was the "start of year message". Its purpose was for the VOA chief executive to set out the year ahead for staff at the Agency.

Welfare Tax Credits

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer to the right hon. Member for Birkenhead (Mr. Field) of 25 March 2008, Official Report, column 42W, on tax credits, what the highest possible income is which a family which (a) claims and (b) does not claim the disability element for any children or adults with (i) one, (ii) two, (iii) three, (iv) four and (v) more than four children while being eligible for the child care element of the working tax credit. [204920]

Jane Kennedy: The highest level of income at which a family with maximum child care costs could benefit from the child care element depends on the number of adults and children in the household who claim the disability element, and whether they also claim the severe disability element.

The following table shows some examples based on different numbers of children in the family, and different members of the family claiming the disability element. They are based on the maximum eligible child care costs of £175 per week for one child, and £300 per week for two or more children. All incomes are rounded down to the nearest £1,000.

Highest level of income at which a family could benefit from the child care element

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Blasphemy

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent progress has been made towards bringing forward proposals to abolish the offences of blasphemy and blasphemous libel. [205302]

Mr. Dhanda: Section 79 of the Criminal Justice and Immigration Act 2008, which received Royal Assent on 8 May, contains provisions which abolish the common-law offences of blasphemy and blasphemous libel. Section 153(2)(d) of the Act provides for these provisions to come into force two months after Royal Assent.

Caravan Sites: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the technical presentation on valuing caravan pitches referred to on page 10 of the Valuation Office Agency's Council Tax Referencing Manual. [202594]

John Healey: A copy of the technical presentation requested, which was created for training purposes, has been deposited in the Library of the House.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library copies of the People Panels report produced as part of the council tax revaluation in England exercise to test the banding notifications. [204494]

John Healey: The People Panels report relates to internal discussion and advice to Ministers on the formulation and development of government policy. It is not therefore appropriate to place the report in the Library.

Departmental Orders and Regulations

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many statutory instruments have been (a) made and (b) revoked by Ministers in her Department and its predecessors since 1997. [204776]

Mr. Dhanda: The total number of statutory instruments made by the Department for Communities and Local Government and its predecessor the Office of the Deputy Prime Minister from 29 May 2002 to 30 April 2008 is 587. It would involve a disproportionate cost to provide details in respect of the predecessor Department for the period before the ODPM was created on 29 May 2002 and to provide details of the statutory instruments revoked since 29 May 2002 as no central record is maintained of this information.

Fire Services

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she plans to publish the next version of the full business case for the FiReControl project; and if she will make a statement. [205340]

Mr. Dhanda: The next version of the business case (Version 1.1) will be published in June 2008. This will set out the full costs, savings and benefits of the FiReControl project. A key benefit of the project is increased resilience. The business case will set out the details. A copy of the business case will be placed in the House Library.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the outcome of the consultation on regional cost allocation with respect to the FiReControl project was; and if she will make a statement. [205349]

Mr. Dhanda: There has been no formal consultation on regional cost allocations for the FiReControl project. However, formal consultation will take place when the business case is published at the end of June 2008.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what recent representations she has received on the incorporation of fireground technology in the implementation of the FiReControl project; and if she will make a statement. [205351]

Mr. Dhanda: There have been no representations received on the incorporation of fireground technology in the implementation of the FiReControl project.

Mr. Stewart Jackson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will include consideration of resilience issues in the next version of the full business case for the FiReControl project; and if she will make a statement. [205702]

Mr. Dhanda: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today (PQ 205340).

Fire Services: Manpower

John McDonnell: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many whole-time firefighters there were in each fire and rescue authority in each of the last five years. [202904]

Mr. Dhanda [holding answer 1 May 2008]: The number of whole-time firefighters employed in each fire and rescue authority in England, for the years 2003 to 2007 is shown in the following table.

Housing: Demolition

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many dwellings were demolished in each Housing Market Renewal pathfinder area in each year since its inception; and how much was allocated from the public purse towards such demolitions in each year. [204509]

Mr. Iain Wright: Data on the number of demolitions in each Housing Market Renewal (HMR) pathfinder, and total spend, is set out in the following table. The HMR programme adopts a range of measures, with refurbishments continuing to account for a significantly larger share of activity. Since the start of the programme, a total of just over 12,000 properties have been demolished with over 40,000 properties refurbished and 1,078 new properties constructed.

Housing: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the Dwellinghouse Coding Guide has been updated since 27 January 2005 in whole or part by the Valuation Office Agency. [204577]

John Healey: The guide was produced to help with training and as a reference for VOA staff. It is updated as appropriate, has been since 27 January 2005, and is available on the VOA website:

www.voa.gov.uk/publications/DwellingHouseCodingGuide/files/contents.htm

Interreg Programme

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what matched funding the Government has provided to programmes under the INTERREG III programme; [204508]

(2) what central funding is being provided to support the INTERREG IV programme. [204512]

John Healey: Under INTERREG III the UK provided match funding to the programmes' technical assistance budgets. €3,727,142 was paid to the North West Europe Programme; €1,149,584 to the IIIC West Programme; €1,594,950 to the North Sea Programme and €870,085 to the Atlantic Area Programme.

The ODPM also provided £5.9 million of match funding to UK partners for pre-application INTERREG IIIB project and partnership activities. From 2003 to 2006, more than 48 UK-organisations benefited from an ODPM award, representing 43 projects across the three INTERREG IIIB Programmes. The majority of organisations receiving OPDM awards were in a project-lead position.

The Government will not be providing match funding for individual projects in the new programmes. But we will be contributing towards programme technical assistance budgets. The amounts for the 2007 to 2013 programme period are:

Project	Funding (€)
INTERREG IVA	3,720,000
INTERREG IVB (including INTERACT)	5,045,476
INTERREG IVC	1,011,155
Total	9,776,631

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the INTERACT Handbook on the European Grouping of Territorial Co-operation. [204579]

John Healey: I have deposited a copy of the INTERACT Handbook on the European Grouping of Territorial Co-operation in the Library of the House.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 19 March 2008, Official Report, columns 1206-7W, on INTERACT programme, which INTERACT working groups representatives from her Department have attended in the last 12 months. [204580]

John Healey: Since May 2007 representatives from CLG have attended two INTERACT programme meetings. Two CLG officials attended a Monitoring Committee meeting on 19 to 20 October in Vienna. One CLG official attended a Monitoring Committee meeting on 4 March 2008, also in Vienna.

Local Government Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what steps her Department is taking to help billing authorities improve the collection rates of (a) council tax and (b) business rates; and if she will ask the Audit Commission to initiate an investigation following the recent Office of Fair Trading report. [204505]

John Healey: The collection of council tax and business rates is a matter for local authorities. In 2006-07 billing authorities across England collected 96.9 per cent. of all council tax and 98.7 per cent. of national non-domestic rates. It is not clear which OFT report the hon. Member is referring.

National Interest Mapping Services Agreement

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what plans she has to replace the National Interest Mapping Services Agreement. [202646]

Mr. Iain Wright: There are no plans to replace the National Interest Mapping Services Agreement.

Planning

Mrs. Laing: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government which national policy statements will be designated within the next two years; and when she expects to publish drafts of each statement for consultation. [204699]

John Healey: The Secretary of State explained in her written statement of 27 November 2007, Official Report, columns 11-17WS, that the Government's aim is to establish a suite of national policy statements that will comprise:

an overarching energy NPS covering key elements of energy policy related to infrastructure provision; statements encompassing different forms of energy generation such as fossil fuels, renewable energy, electricity networks and gas infrastructure;

a statement for aviation;

a statement for ports;

a statement for the strategic highway and rail networks;

a statement on water supply and waste water treatment;

a statement on waste.

In addition, the White Paper on Nuclear Power published in January explained that we also envisage a National Policy Statement on nuclear power.

We are still considering the precise timescale for consulting on and designating individual national policy statements. We will announce more details on this in due course.

Planning Permission: Economic Situation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effect of the unrest in the financial markets and housing market on the number of planning applications made. [204518]

Mr. Iain Wright: No specific assessment on planning applications has been made, however the Department does publish a quarterly National Statistics release on planning applications, decisions, enforcement activity, minerals and waste planning decisions at England, regional and local authority levels. The latest release published on 28 March 2008 can be found on the Departments website at:

http://www.communities.gov.uk/documents/planningandbuilding/pdf/732.pdf

Planning: Approved Premises

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will bring forward proposals to amend planning legislation to provide that bail hostels with fewer than five units are deemed to constitute a separate planning use and that their establishment is subject to planning permission. [205343]

Mr. Iain Wright: Bail hostels are likely to fall into "Class C2: Residential Institutions" or be considered "sui generis" under the Town and Country Planning (Use Classes Order) 1987, as amended.

Local planning authorities are best placed to determine, taking into account individual characteristics, as to which class or otherwise a particular premises belongs, and also whether a material change of use is involved.

In general, if a local planning authority considers a bail hostel to fall within Class C2, then planning permission may be required for a change of use to a bail hostel, unless the premises was already in C2 use (e.g. as a hospital or nursing home). If a local planning authority considers a bail hostel to be a sui generis use, then planning permission would usually be required for a change of use to a bail hostel. The key test in whether planning permission is required is whether a material change of use has occurred or would occur.

Amendments to the Use Classes Order were made in 2005 after extensive consultation. The use class status of bail hostels was not changed as a result of that review.

Planning: Wind Power

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will issue planning guidance requiring 2km separation zones around wind turbines. [204945]

Mr. Iain Wright: Our preferred approach is to expect proposals to be evaluated on their likely impacts taking into account the characteristics of particular locations. The considerations to be taken into account are set out in our Planning Policy Statement (PPS) on Planning and Climate Change and in PPS22 on Renewable Energy. The Companion Guide supporting PPS22 provides detailed advice for practitioners on the siting of wind turbines.

Mr. Heald: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effects of Planning Advice Note 45 on the siting of wind turbines. [204946]

Mr. Iain Wright: Guidance for Scotland on this matter is for the Scottish Executive.

Regional Planning and Development: Finance

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the funding arrangements are for (a) regional empowerment consortiums, (b) regional improvement and efficiency partnerships, (c) e-Government regional partnerships and (d) regional equality and diversity partnerships. [204498]

John Healey: With respect to regional empowerment consortiums, the Secretary of State approved funding in March 2008 to the Community Development Foundation, to support the activities of the National Empowerment Partnership, and in particular Regional Empowerment Consortia in each of the nine English regions, for the period 2008-11. Funding for 2009-10 and 2010-11 is subject to parliamentary approval and satisfactory performance. Grants to individual regional empowerment consortia will be made on receipt of a satisfactory regional action plan.

Regional improvement and efficiency partnerships (RIEPs) are funded using powers in section 31 of the Local Government Act 2003. Grant is paid to a lead authority within each region. The lead authority acts as the accountable body for the grant on behalf of the other authorities which together comprise the REIP. The receiving authorities are as follows:

Gateshead council (North East)
Wigan metropolitan borough council (North West)
Worcestershire county council (West Midlands)
Nottinghamshire county council (East Midlands)
Kent county council (South East)
Dorset county council (South West)
London borough of Hammersmith and Fulham (London)
Norfolk county council (East of England)
Calderdale metropolitan borough council (Yorkshire and Humber).

Communities and Local Government does not provide funding to the e-government regional partnerships or to the regional equality and diversity partnerships.

[200903]

Beverley Hughes: These are matters for Ofsted. The Chief Inspector, Christine Gilbert, has written to the hon. Member and copies of her replies have been placed in the Library.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 24 April 2008:

Parliamentary question number 200786: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, how often Ofsted requires (a) nurseries, (b) childminders and (c) nannies to repeat Criminal Record Bureau checks to maintain registration on the voluntary part of the Childcare Register

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

The voluntary part of the Childcare Register has only been in operation since April 2007, Ofsted has yet to decide upon a policy of repeat Criminal Record Bureau (CRB) checks for any of the types of provision eligible to apply to join the voluntary part of the Childcare Register. However, it might help to mention that as part of the application suitability check process Ofsted carries out an identity check and an enhanced CRB (unless Ofsted has already obtained a CRB check in respect of that person and that person has a continued history with Ofsted in the previous three years) of all applicants.

The law sets out the categories of people Ofsted must check in relation to the voluntary part of the Childcare Register. For childminders and nannies, Ofsted will check the childminder. In relation to other childcare such as nurseries, Ofsted will usually check the applicant where the applicant is an individual and the nominated person where the applicant is an organisation. Ofsted will also check the manager. Ofsted may also check others who make up an organisation that provides childcare if it has concerns about an individual. Providers are expected to ensure that others who work or are in regular contact with children are suitable, or that those who are unchecked are not left in unsupervised contact with children.

We will repeat CRB checks if we judge it necessary, on the basis of information we have received either through inspection or from another source such as a complaint, to determine that a person continues to be suitable. We will recheck those on the register as part of their application to join the Independent Safeguarding Authority scheme which starts in 2009.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Beverley Hughes MP, Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 30 April 2008:

Parliamentary question number 200791: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families, how Ofsted assesses whether applicant (a) nurseries, (b) childminders and (c) nannies seeking registration on the voluntary part of the Childcare Register have completed training in core skills as set out in Common Core of Skills and Knowledge for the Children's Workforce.

Your recent parliamentary question has been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

The Common Core of Skills and Knowledge (the Common Core), reflects a set of common values for people who work with children and young people. They promote equality, respect diversity and challenge stereotypes, helping to improve the life chances of all children and young people and to provide more effective integrated services.

The regulations for the voluntary part of the Childcare Register state that, as part of the ongoing requirements of registration, providers must ensure that: "At least one person who is caring for children on the premises has successfully completed training in the core skills as set out in the document 'Common Core of Skills and Knowledge for the Children's Workforce'." This is soon to change in revised regulations to be either "the common core" or a level 2 qualification.

If the childcare provider has received training in all of the common core areas, or will have done so before they start caring for children, they can apply for registration on the voluntary part of the Childcare Register. As part of the application process, the applicant is asked to confirm (by signing a set of declarations) that they have received, or will receive before caring for children, relevant training in the core areas. There is no registration visit for the voluntary part of the Childcare Register.

If we have any concerns about any details of an application, we check with the applicant and seek confirmation of the declaration. To do this the applicant must produce relevant course certificates or demonstrate how they are able to meet the common core through an existing qualification. They may also need to provide further details of the course, such as the course content. There is no definitive list of qualifications that satisfy the requirements, and in lieu of such a list we currently accept all qualifications on the Early Years and Playwork Qualifications Database as meeting the qualifications requirement, as well as other training or qualifications that the applicant can demonstrate are common core compliant.

At any inspection, registered providers must demonstrate that at least one person has had training in the common core. During inspections, we check compliance with the requirements governing continued registration. At the inspection visit we also look for evidence within the organisation that the skills and knowledge from common core training are put into practice. If we find a provider to be non-compliant then we set an action telling the provider what they must do to remain registered. We currently inspect 10% of those on the voluntary part of the Childcare Register, as agreed with the Department for Children, Schools and Families.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Beverley Hughes MP, Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 30 April 2008:

To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families

how many (a) nurseries, (b) childminders and (c) nannies were registered on the voluntary part of the Ofsted Childcare Register in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05, (iii) 2005-06, (iv) 2006-07 and (v) 2007-08 [200900]

how many (a) nurseries, (b) childminders and (c) nannies registered on the voluntary part of the Ofsted Childcare Register were inspected in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05, (iii) 2005-06, (iv) 2006-07 and (v) 2007-08 [200901];

how many (a) nurseries, (b) childminders and (c) nannies registered on the voluntary part of the Ofsted Childcare Register who were inspected in (i) 2003-04, (ii) 2004-05, (iii) 2005-06, (iv) 2006-07 and (v) 2007-08 and found to be not meeting the requirements for the voluntary part of the Childcare Register were removed from the voluntary part of the Childcare Register [200903].

Your recent parliamentary questions have been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

The voluntary part of the Childcare Register has only been in operation since April 2007. During the period April 2007 to March 2008, Ofsted had registered 1,421 settings. The method of categorisation Ofsted uses does not fit precisely with the types that you have indicated, but I can confirm that of the 1,421 registered settings, 70 are other childcare (for example, activity-based settings such as sports coaching or tuition; short-term care, such as crèches); 33 are childminders; and 1,318 home childcare (nannies). Nurseries usually require compulsory registration as they cater for children aged under five.

Ofsted do not have a duty to inspect provision on the voluntary part of the Childcare Register, and only inspect a proportion of those who are registered. Between April 2007 and March 2008 Ofsted has completed six inspections with a further eight scheduled for inspection up until the end of April 2008. Of these, five were home childcare inspections and one was a childcare inspection.

Of those inspections carried out between the periods April 2007 to March 2008, two providers were found not to be meeting the requirements for the voluntary part of the Childcare Register.

Ofsted has not removed any providers from the voluntary part of the Childcare Register. The two providers did not meet requirements at inspection have since done so.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Beverley Hughes MP, Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Letter from Christine Gilbert, dated 30 April 2008:

To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families

how many (a) nurseries, (b) childminders and (c) nannies removed from the voluntary part of the Childcare Register appealed against the decision to the Care Standards Tribunal in the last three years [200787];

how many (a) nurseries, (b) childminders and (c) nannies, unsuccessful in achieving registration on the voluntary part of the Childcare Register, appealed against the decision to the Care Standards Tribunal in the last three years [200788];

how many of those who were removed from the voluntary part of the Childcare Register and appealed against the decision to the Care Standards Tribunal had their appeal (a) upheld and (b) not upheld in the last three years [200789];

how many of those who were unsuccessful in achieving registration on the voluntary part of the Childcare Register and appealed against the decision to the Care Standards Tribunal had their appeal (a) upheld and (b) not upheld in the last three years [200790];

Your recent parliamentary questions have been passed to me, as Her Majesty's Chief Inspector, for reply.

The voluntary part of the Childcare Register has only been in operation since April 2007. From April 2007 and up until the date of this letter, Ofsted has not removed any registered provision from the voluntary part of the Childcare Register and the Care Standards Tribunal has received no appeals. Therefore, no applicant who was unsuccessful in achieving registration has made an appeal.

A copy of this reply has been sent to Rt Hon Beverley Hughes MP, Minister of State for Children, Young People and Families, and will be placed in the library of both Houses.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of childcare staff in (a) maintained nurseries and (b) children's centres had been in post for less than six months at the latest date for which figures are available. [205030]

Beverley Hughes: The 2006 Childcare And Early Years Providers Survey collected information on the length of time that paid staff members had been employed by the provider. Table 1 shows the percentage of paid staff who had been employed for less than six months for each provider type covered by the survey. Table 2 shows these figures, by the ownership of the provision.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of childcare staff in (a) maintained nurseries and (b) children's centres were recruited through a temporary recruitment agency in the latest period for which figures are available. [205031]

Beverley Hughes: The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey does not collect information on the numbers of staff that were recruited through a temporary recruitment agency, however information on whether a provider had used agency, freelance or supply staff is collected. The 2006 figures are shown in Table 1. Table 2 shows the percentage of providers who had used agency, freelance or supply staff, by the ownership of the provision.

Pupils: Databases

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether data associated with the unique learner number will be transferred from or stored on the (a) National Identity Register and (b) Information Sharing Index/ ContactPoint. [205437]

Bill Rammell: As Minister responsible for the unique learner number, I have been asked to reply.

There are no plans for data associated with the unique learner number to be transferred to or stored on the National Identity Register or ContactPoint.

Secondary Education

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families in which secondary schools in (a) Birmingham, (b) Buckinghamshire, (c) Kent and (d) Lincolnshire fewer than 30 per cent. of pupils obtained fewer than five GCSE A* to C passes including English and mathematics; and what percentage of the relevant intake in each case (i) was in receipt of free school meals and (ii) had special educational needs, giving the contextual value-added score in each case. [203944]

Jim Knight: The information requested has been placed in the House Library.

Truancy

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families (1) what recent steps the Government have taken to reduce levels of truancy; [204991]

(2) what recent steps the Government have taken to assist children rejoining education after a long period of absence; [204992]

(3) what recent steps the Government have taken to work with parents to reduce truancy. [204993]

Kevin Brennan: I refer the hon. Member to the reply on 26 November 2007, Official Report, column 671W, to his previous question on this matter. Data for the 2006-07 school year show reductions in overall absence from all state-funded schools (6.49 per cent. compared to 6.96 per cent.), which is the lowest on record, and in persistent absence from state-funded secondary schools (6.7 per cent. compared to 7.1 per cent.). We are continuing our focus on reducing persistent absence across all local authorities and their schools, and on minimising avoidable absence through early identification of pupils developing patterns of absence and tackling the underlying causes of these patterns. We expect schools and local authorities to work with the pupils and their families on an individual basis to resolve the problems that cause the absence, with the support of other agencies and partners such as the local community, social care workers and the police, reintegrate into the school community and catch up with their peers.

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Misuse

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate was made of the contribution of the alcohol industry to (a) alcohol awareness programmes and (b) alcohol rehabilitation services for the purposes of determining his Department's spending share in each year since 1997. [203801]

Dawn Primarolo: The alcohol industry plans to contribute £12 million over the three years 2007 to 2010 to the Drinkaware Trust to fund activities to reduce alcohol-related harm, including alcohol awareness programmes. We are aware that individual companies fund other awareness programmes, although funding plans are not routinely shared with the Department. The Department holds no information on industry funding of alcohol rehabilitation services.

The Department does not adjust its spending plans to take account of industry funding of awareness programmes.

Arthritis

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) males and (b) females aged (i) 10 to 16, (ii) 17 to 24, (iii) 25 to 30, (iv) 31 to 35, (v) 36 to 40 and (vi) over 40 years died from rheumatoid arthritis in each year since 1997, broken down by local authority. [205058]

Phil Hope: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the Authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking how many (a) males and (b) females aged (i) 10 to 16, (ii) 17 to 24, (iii) 25 to 30, (iv) 31 to 35, (v) 36 to 40 and (vi) over 40 years died from rheumatoid arthritis in each year since 1997, broken down by local authority. (205058)

There are too few deaths from rheumatoid arthritis in persons aged under 40 to show in a table with all the breakdowns requested. Also, the definition of juvenile rheumatoid arthritis applies strictly to children aged under 16. Therefore, the tables attached provide the number of deaths in England and Wales by sex from the juvenile form of arthritis in children aged under 16, and from rheumatoid arthritis in persons aged 16 and over by age group (Table 1), and the total number of deaths from rheumatoid arthritis by local authority (Table 2), from 1997 to 2006 (the latest year available). A copy of the tables has been placed in the Library of the House of Commons.

Asthma

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment has been made by his Department and its agencies of the causes of asthma. [202889]

Ann Keen: The Department and its agencies have not made a recent assessment of the causes of asthma, however I understand the Medical Research Council (MRC), which works closely with the national health service and the United Kingdom health departments to improve health through world-class medical research, is of the view that asthma may be partly due to allergy and partly due to genetics. MRC research programmes are continuing into both the causes of, and treatments for asthma.

Community Nurses: Manpower

Anne Milton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 30 January 2008, Official Report, column 1003W, on community nurses: manpower, how many community matrons are employed in the NHS; and if he will place in the Library information on the local intelligence which suggests that the number of community matrons may be higher than the official figure. [202565]

Ann Keen: Community matrons were identified separately for the first time in the 2006 national health service workforce census. The 2007 work force census shows that 619 community matrons are employed in the NHS, which is an increase of 253 (69 per cent.) since 2006.

Community matrons

	Headcount	Full-time equivalent
2006	366	351
2007	619	571

Source:
NHS workforce census

Based on recent discussions with a number of strategic health authorities (SHAs) we believe that the census is an undercount, with community matrons most likely being recorded in the census within other occupational groups. Community matrons are a relatively new category and there may be some problems with how they are recorded in the census. Although not as robustly validated as the census, local information from local development plans is shown in the following table:

SHA numbers for community matrons and case managers sourced from local development plans—2007

	Number
Case managers	1,725
Community matrons	1,890
Total	3,615

Note:
Case managers are required to demonstrate the same competencies as community matrons. In some cases a case manager may be best placed to provide the service to the patient.

Departmental Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Weir: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at how many events held by his Department (a) wine and (b) Fairtrade wine were served in the last three years; and what assessment his Department has made of the merits of serving Fairtrade wine at future events. [196944]

Mr. Bradshaw: In the last three years the Department has not held any events on the departmental estate where wine and Fairtrade wine were served.

The Department has not assessed the merits of serving Fairtrade wine at future events.

Departmental Databases

Mrs. Villiers: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what audits his Department and its agencies have carried out in relation to personal data and IT equipment in each of the last 10 years. [176479]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information on audits is held for the Department and its agencies, NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency (NHS PASA) and Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency (MHRA), as follows:

Department

Data Protection Act—2001;

BS7799 (now ISO 27001)—every six months from the end of 2002 to November 2007;

System Security In Departmental Information Technology (IT) Applications—2004; Freedom of Information—2006

Information Security—2007

NHS PASA

The Agency was created in 2000 and since inception has been audited annually on all matters of governance including information security and data protection.

Since 2001 it has been audited twice yearly by British Standards Institute to ensure compliance with IS027001.

The most recent audit was in January 2008.

In addition the security of personal data is particularly emphasised in all audits.

MHRA

2002-03 (pre-MHRA)—Data Protection Act and Systems Security;

2003-04—Assets and Inventories (including IT equipment);

2004-05—Information Management;

2005-06—Freedom of Information and IT Security;

2007-08—Assets and Inventories (including IT equipment) and IT Core Controls.

NHS Connecting for Health

The personal data of staff employed by NHS Connection for Health are managed under direction of the Secretary of State for Health by the NHS Business Services Authority. Data Protection is managed by them in accordance with the Data Protection Act.

Mobile devices are audited on an annual basis—based on financial year. Audits begin in January and conclude in March.

The ongoing audit of servers and network equipment, including both hardware and software is undertaken every three months as a consolidation exercise is in progress. Once the consolidation is complete, the audit will take place every six months and take approximately two weeks to complete.

Clear desk audits are carried out quarterly in every building to ensure compliance to physical security of IT equipment.

PC hardware is audited on an annual basis—based on financial year. Audits begin in January and conclude in March.

First Information Security Audit—completed October 2007.

Departmental Transport

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many staff (a) cars and (b) bicycles are (i) funded or (ii) subsidised by his Department. [197854]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department does not fund or subsidise the purchase of cars for members of staff. Interest-free loans are available to staff for the purchase of season tickets or bicycles to encourage green commuting. These loans are provided within HM Treasury guidance for tax-free benefits. The same tax rules apply to benefits in kind provided to employees of Government Departments as to any other employee.

In the 2007-08 financial year, the Department approved four interest-free loans for staff purchase of bicycles.

The Department is currently putting in place a 'cycle to work' scheme for its employees. The scheme will support employees in taking greener journeys, by enabling the Department to loan a cycle to an employee for 12-18 months. The same tax rules apply to benefits in kind provided to employees of Government departments as to any other employee.

Drugs: EU Law

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps his Department is taking to ensure that local authorities are aware of their obligations on the disposal of unwanted medicines under EU Directive 2004/27/EC. [203953]

Dawn Primarolo [holding answer 7 May 2008]: Local authorities (LAs) are obliged to collect clinical waste, including unwanted medicines, from householders on request, although they may make a charge. The Department's guidance Safe Management of Healthcare Waste, aimed at all those involved in the management of healthcare waste including LAs, was published in November 2006 and includes advice on the management of waste pharmaceuticals.

Hospitals: Clostridium

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the incidence of clostridium difficile was in hospitals before the deep clean; and what it has been since the completion of the deep clean. [203161]

Ann Keen: The national deep clean programme was announced in September 2007 and the deadline for completion was 31 March 2008. The benefits of deep cleaning will only be measurable after completion. The most recent published data on Clostridium difficile (C. difficile) infection covers the period October to December 2007, which was while the national deep clean programme was under way.

We introduced the deep clean programme to improve patient care and experience. As set out in the written ministerial statement given by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State on 17 January 2008, Official Report, columns 38-39WS, strategic health authorities will take the lead on evaluation locally as the impact of each trust's programme will be different. No single measurement method will pick up all the benefits, particularly as trusts may be implementing a range of measures to improve cleanliness and tackle healthcare associated infections.

Improvements to patient experience and environment may be measurable through:

Patient Environment Action Team scores;

scores on National Specifications for Cleanliness;

compliance with the Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Healthcare Associated Infections;

compliance with the Department's national core standards;

Healthcare Commission inpatient survey scores; and infection rates.

The mandatory surveillance system operated for the Department of Health by the Health Protection Agency (HPA) provides data at trust level on the number of reports of C. difficile infection. Mandatory surveillance of C. difficile was introduced in 2004 for patients aged 65 and over and has been extended to all patients aged two and over from April 2007.

The HPA publishes these data on their website so information on the number of C. difficile infections for national health service acute trusts is available at:

www.hpa.org.uk/infections/topics_az/hai/Mandatory_Results.htm

Tables of the HPA data have also been placed in the Library. The latest data was published on 24 April 2008.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what guidance his Department issues on the hygiene of new patients before they are allocated a bed in a hospital in order to reduce rates of clostridium difficile. [203162]

Ann Keen: The Department does not issue any guidance on cleaning patients before they enter into hospital in order to reduce rates of Clostridium difficile (C. difficile). As explained in our "Clean, safe care" strategy, colonisation with C. difficile without symptoms is not considered to increase risk of transmission. Copies of the strategy are available in the Library.

C. difficile is a bacterium that lives in the gut of about 3 per cent. of healthy adults in England (ie about 3 per cent. of healthy adults are colonised). It is kept at bay by normal gut bacteria; but if those bacteria are killed by antibiotics, C. difficile can take over. Patients with C. difficile excrete large numbers of spores in their faeces which contaminate the environment. C. difficile is spread by a person swallowing the bacteria or the spores it produces. Spores transferred to other people can subsequently develop into bacteria that grow in the colon. People are normally only susceptible to C. difficile infections if they are on broad spectrum antibiotics, which kill normal gut bacteria. This is why good antibiotic prescribing practice is particularly important and effective for reducing C. difficile infection.

Hospitals: Food

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the quality of hospital food; and if he will assess the potential of local sourcing in improving its quality. [202430]

Ann Keen: Good quality food is important for all patients, and standards have risen. The Healthcare Commission reported that over 96 per cent. of trusts were meeting the core standards on hospital food.

The National Patient Safety Agency Patient Environment Action Team Assessments show that 99.5 per cent. of hospitals were rated as acceptable or above, with over 46 per cent. of hospitals rated as 'Excellent'.

In the Healthcare Commission's 2006 in-patient survey, 54 per cent. of patients rated the food as 'very good' or 'good', and 79 per cent. said they were given a choice of food while in hospital.

Human Embryo Experiments

Mark Simmonds: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding the Government provided for (a) human embryonic stem cell research and (b) adult stem cell research in each year since funding was first provided. [200451]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department of Health does not routinely hold information on the type of stem cell used in research. The Medical Research Council (MRC) has provided my Department with the following information on the funding of stem cell research and the types of stem cells used. The information is based on a detailed analysis, conducted in 2006, of MRC spend on stem cell research, although it did not differentiate between animal and human stem cells.

Influenza: Vaccinations

John Cummings: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many influenza vaccinations were given in Easington constituency in each year since 2004. [203784]

Dawn Primarolo: Influenza vaccination uptake figures are collected by primary care trusts and strategic health authorities, rather than by constituency, and are published annually in 'NHS immunisation Statistics England'. This is available in the Library and also at www.immunisation.nhs.uk/Vaccines/Flu/Vaccine.

Maternity Services: Official Visits

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which maternity units Ministers in his Department have visited in the last 12 months; on what date each visit was made; and which Minister made each visit. [195754]

Ann Keen: My right hon. Friend, the Member for Kingston upon Hull, West and Hessle (Alan Johnson), visited the maternity unit at the Royal Victoria hospital, Newcastle to launch the Maternity Campaign on 25 February 2008.

I visited the neonatal unit at St. Peters' hospital in Chertsey, Surrey on 31 July 2007. I also visited the antenatal clinic at the Luton and Dunstable hospital on 15 November 2007.

My hon. Friend, the Member for Bury, South (Mr. Lewis), visited the maternity unit at the Whittington hospital, Highgate, London on 5 February 2007.

My noble Friend the Parliamentary Under Secretary of State Lord Darzi, made a brief visit to the maternity unit at Tiverton hospital on 9 October 2007 while visiting other services at the hospital.

My hon. Friend, the Member for Exeter (Mr. Bradshaw), visited the antenatal and postnatal clinic at the Royal Devon and Exeter hospital on 6 July 2007.

Meat Hygiene Service

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the advantages and disadvantages of privatising the Meat Hygiene Service; and what discussions he has had with the Food Standards Agency on its proposals to be discussed at the board meeting on 7 May. [201389]

Dawn Primarolo: The MHS is an Executive Agency of the Food Standards Agency. The FSA Board considered the arguments for and against the delegation of official controls in approved meat establishments to an independent third party or Control Body at its open meeting on 7 May. The Board agreed that a proposed pilot of a Control Body should not be further pursued and the option of outsourcing the work of the MHS should be revisited only if there are significant changes in the official controls environment.

Medical Equipment: Hygiene

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what guidance his Department has issued to the NHS on the use of private sector decontamination services for surgical equipment; [203407]

(2) how much his Department spent on improving decontamination services for surgical equipment in the NHS in each financial year since 2000-01. [203408]

Ann Keen: The Department can confirm that it has not issued formal guidance on the use of independent sector decontamination services. However, a statement has been made on overall policy in the area of surgical equipment decontamination. This is contained in the "2007 Clarification and Policy Summary—Decontamination of Re-Usable Medical Devices in the Primary, Secondary and Tertiary Care Sectors (NHS and Independent providers)". This document sets out guidelines to ensure universally high standards of decontamination practice and outcome, whether the provider of the decontamination service is an independent sector supplier or within the national health service. Copies of the document have been placed in the Library and are also available from the Department's website at:

www.dh.gov.uk/en/Publicationsandstatistics/Publications/PublicationsPolicyAndGuidance/DH_074722

Capital allocations made by the Department to the NHS for improving decontamination services, during the period referred to, are shown in the following table.

Capital allocations 2000-01 to 2007-08

	£ million
2000-01	0.00
2001-02	25.26
2002-03	59.76
2003-04	29.00
2004-05	70.00
2005-06	29.85
2006-07	21.59
2007-08	8.72
Total	244.18

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with what standards his Department requires providers of decontamination services within the NHS to comply. [203409]

Ann Keen: Where decontamination services are provided only for internal use by the same NHS Trust or another national health service body, then policy requires compliance with the 'essential requirements' of the Medical Devices Directive (93/42 EC) and associated Regulations. These are referred to in 2007 "Clarification and Policy Summary—Decontamination of Re-Usable Medical Devices in the Primary, Secondary and Tertiary Care Sectors (NHS and Independent providers)". Copies are available in the Library.

Where NHS units provide services to other NHS bodies or to independent sector providers then they are subject to the full requirements of the Medical Devices Regulations 2002 (SI 618) and 2003 Amendments (SI 1697). In these instances the unit will be subject to a third party audit programme by a recognised Notified Body. The Competent Authority, The Medicine and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency will carry out one or more conformity assessments as described in annexes to the Regulations.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment his Department has made of the (a) effectiveness and (b) efficiency of decontamination services within the NHS. [203411]

Ann Keen: National surveys of the quality systems related to effectiveness and efficiency of both national health service and independent sector suppliers of decontamination have been undertaken since 1999. The most recent published report is 'The Decontamination of Surgical Instruments in the NHS in England - Update report - A step change', published in June 2005. This demonstrates improvements in virtually all areas of quality systems and control over the 1999 to 2004 period. Copies of this publication have been placed in the Library.

The Chief Medical Officer has requested a further survey during the present year. This is referred to as the National Decontamination Survey 2008 and is currently in progress. The survey will visit some 35 NHS trusts including several which use commercial suppliers of decontamination services. The trusts have voluntarily agreed to take part and the focus is on those institutions that pursue high-risk tissue surgery in respect of the theoretical risk of human prion disease transmission. It is expected that the full survey will be complete by August 2008.

MRSA

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what estimate his Department has made of the percentage changes in incidence of (a) MRSA and (b) clostridium difficile as a result of the deep cleaning programme; and over what timescale his Department expects such changes to be reflected in hospital infection statistics; [203400]

(2) by what means his Department will assess the effectiveness of its deep cleaning programme for hospitals in England in reducing cases of healthcare associated infections. [203403]

Ann Keen: As set out by my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State in his written ministerial statement on 17 January 2008, Official Report, columns 38-39WS, following completion of the deep clean of the national health service on 31 March 2008, the Department will work with strategic health authorities (SHAs) to draw up examples of where a deep clean has had a demonstrable effect in improving patient care and experience and will share these across the NHS.

SHAs will take the lead on evaluation locally as the impact of each trust's programme will be different and no single measurement method will pick up all the benefits, particularly as trusts may be implementing a range of measures to improve cleanliness and tackle healthcare associated infections.

Improvements to patient experience and environment may be measurable through:

Patient Environment Action Team scores;

scores on national specifications for cleanliness;

compliance with the Code of Practice for the Prevention and Control of Healthcare Associated Infections;

compliance with the Department is national core standards;

Healthcare Commission inpatient survey scores; and infection rates.

Deep cleaning is just part of a comprehensive range of measures to improve cleanliness and tackle infections set out in the Strategy "Clean, Safe Care: Reducing Infections and Saving Lives". Copies of the Strategy are available in the Library.

NHS: Crimes of Violence

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many (a) violent incidents against NHS staff, (b) physical assaults against NHS staff and (c) criminal sanctions against individuals who had assaulted NHS staff there were in each of the last five financial years in (i) each NHS hospital trust, (ii) each strategic health authority area and (iii) England. [203450]

Ann Keen: Since 2004-05 the NHS Security Management Service (NHS SMS) has collected information on the number of physical assaults reported against National Health Service staff in England and on the numbers of criminal sanctions following assaults.

Information is not available by the category of violent incidents or on reported physical assaults by strategic health authority area. The numbers of reported physical assaults in England are shown in the following table

	Number
2004-05	60,385
2005-06	58,695
2006-07	55,709

Tables showing the number physical assaults reported by each health body have been placed in the Library.

Information on criminal sanctions following assaults is not available for each NHS hospital trust or strategic health authority area. The numbers of criminal sanctions following assaults against NHS staff in England are shown in the following table.

	Number
2004-05	759
2005-06	850
2006-07	869

Criminal sanctions include:

cautions and conditional cautions;

community rehabilitation or punishment orders;

imprisonment (including suspended sentences);

conditional discharges; and fines.

NHS: Working Hours

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he discussed the implementation of the Working Time Directive in the health sector at his recent meeting with the French Minister of Health; and if he will make a statement. [202825]

Dawn Primarolo: At the meeting between my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State and Roselyne Bachelot, French Minister for Health and Social Affairs on 14 April, the issue of European working time directive was not discussed. However, at the Informal Meeting of European Union Health Ministers in Slovenia on 17 and 18 April, concerns were raised about the challenges facing health services from the European working time directive.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which team in his Department leads on the implementation of the Working Time Directive in the NHS in England. [203446]

Ann Keen: Local national health service trusts are responsible for implementing the European Working Time Directive (EWTD) as part of their health and safety obligations. The Department has commissioned NHS National Workforce Projects to support local NHS implementation of the EWTD for doctors in training through a range of innovative pilot projects and supporting tools.

Nurses: Students

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much funding was allocated to returning to (a) nursing and (b) midwifery courses in each of the last five years. [202847]

Ann Keen: In 2004-05 £4.3 million was set aside and £2 million in 2005-06 to fund return to practice initiatives for all healthcare professionals, some of which would have been used for nursing and midwifery courses. From 2006-07 onwards, money for such schemes has been baselined into the multi professional education and training budget and cannot be disaggregated. The earliest year for which information is available is 2004-05.

Psychiatry

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations he has received from the Health Professions Council Professional Liaison Group on the status of the humanistic tradition in the field of psychotherapy. [202937]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Secretary of State has received no representations from the Health Professions Council Professional Liaison Group on the status of the humanistic tradition in the field of psychotherapy, as the group is yet to be established.

Departmental Travel

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much was spent by his Department on first class train tickets in the last 12 months. [171260]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department's total spend on first class train tickets in the last 12 months has been as follows:

	Amount (£)
June 2006	431,475.40
May 2006	442,054.15
April 2006	383,889.08
July 2006 to March 2007	545,688.00
Total	1,803,106.63

These figures consist of rail travel booked via the Department's contracted agent. There are some exceptional cases where travel is booked outside of the contract but these cannot be identified separately without incurring disproportionate costs.

All travel within the Department is undertaken in accordance with the Civil Service Management Code and the Ministerial Code.

Sexually Transmitted Diseases

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people between the ages of 16 and 25 were treated for a sexually transmitted disease in the last year for which figures are available. [201623]

Dawn Primarolo: The number of selected sexually transmitted infections diagnosed in 16 to 24-year-olds in genitourinary medicine (GUM) clinics in England, by age group in 2006 are shown in the following table:

	Age group
Sexually Transmitted Infection	16-19	20-24
Uncomplicated chlamydial infection	25,658	38,792
Uncomplicated gonorrhoea infection	3,348	4,934
Primary and Secondary infectious syphilis	100	329
Anogenital herpes simplex—first attack	3,017	5,369
Anogenital warts—first attack	13,973	24,632

Notes:
1. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are for diagnoses made in GUM clinics only. Diagnoses made in other clinical settings, such as General Practice, are not recorded in the KC60 dataset.
2. The data available from the KC60 statutory returns are the number of diagnoses made, not the number of patients diagnosed. Individual patients may have more than one diagnosis in a year.
3. The information provided has been adjusted for missing clinic data.
4. Data are not yet available for 2007.
5. Aggregated data are collected in a predefined format and age group can be presented in the above categories.

Health Protection Agency, KC60 returns

In addition to diagnoses made in GUM clinics, the National Chlamydia Screening Programme (NCSP) provides screening to asymptomatic people aged under 25 years in England. The following table shows the number of positive chlamydia screens among those aged 16-24 years who were screened for chlamydia as part of the NCSP during the period 1 April 2006 to 31 March 2007.

	Age group (years)
	16-19	20-24
Numbers positive	8,467	6,599

Note:
The data from the NCSP Core Dataset are for positive chlamydia screens made outside of GUM clinics only and include positive screens made by the Boots pathfinder project.

Tuberculosis: Drug Resistance

Nick Herbert: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many cases of (a) multi-drug resistant tuberculosis and (b) extensively drug-resistant tuberculosis were diagnosed in each health authority in each of the last 10 years; what the treatment outcome in each case was; and what proportion of those cases were attributed to previously unsuccessful tuberculosis treatment. [203469]

Dawn Primarolo: The following table shows the number of cases of multi-drug resistant tuberculosis (TB) in patients reported to the national surveillance system (enhanced tuberculosis surveillance (ETS)) from 1998 to 2006 in England. Numbers smaller than five are not provided because of the risk of deductive disclosure.

Number of cases of multi-drug resistant[1] TB by region, England, 1998 to 2006[2]

	1998	1999	2000	2001	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006

[1] Resistant to isoniazid and rifampicin, with or without resistance to other drugs.
[2] Region is equivalent to strategic health authority (SHA) in all places except the South East, which includes South Central and South East Coast SHAs.

Data provided by the Health Protection Agency (HPA) are provided by HPA region, comprising nine regional offices covering the whole of England which correspond to the Government offices of the regions (this equates to SHA in all regions apart from the South East, which includes South Central and South East Coast SHAs).

Information on the proportion of multi-drug resistant TB cases in England from 1998 to 2006 reported to have had previous tuberculosis treatment is provided in the following table. Due to the small numbers and the potential for deductive disclosure, this information has been provided for England as a whole in each year. Among those cases reported to have previously been treated, it is not possible to definitively attribute drug resistance to previously unsuccessful TB treatment as some of these cases may have subsequently acquired a new infection.

Proportion of cases of multi-drug resistant[1] TB with a previous history of tuberculosis, England, 1998 to 2006[2]

	Previous history of TB		Total number of multi-drug resistant cases
	Number	Percentage
1998	11	48	23
1999	5	36	14
2000	8	36	22
2001	—	22	23
2002	8	31	26
2003	6	18	34
2004	6	22	27
2005	8	27	30
2006	12	30	40

[1] Resistant to isoniazid and rifampicin, with or without resistance to other drugs.
[2] Of cases with known previous history of tuberculosis.

Following the publication by the World Health Organisation of the definition for extensively drug-resistant (XDR) TB in 2006, the HPA reviewed all cases reported from 2003 to 2006. A single case of XDR TB was identified in a patient reported in England in 2003. A further XDR case has been reported from Scotland in 2008.

A subsequent retrospective review was carried out by the HPA of drug susceptibility testing results, where these were available, on all tuberculosis isolates reported in the United Kingdom from 1993 to 2002. A further six isolates were identified as conforming to the definition of XDR TB from this period.

Treatment outcomes are currently reported 12 months after the start of treatment. Multi-drug resistant and extensively drug-resistant TB cases require treatment for considerably longer than 12 months and outcome of treatment is not, therefore, routinely available in these cases.

Burma: Storms

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what discussions he has had with the Chinese government on securing access for international humanitarian aid to Burma. [204759]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: I have spoken to the Chinese Ambassador and the Foreign Secretary has written to his Chinese counterpart. Our Ambassador in Beijing has also lobbied the Chinese Government. As the most important friends of the Burmese regime we want them to exert pressure to ensure that aid flows in the quantities required and the experts are allowed unfettered access.

The Prime Minister intends to speak to the Chinese Prime Minister as soon as possible to underline the need for urgent and strong messages to be conveyed to the Burmese Government pressing them to accept international assistance.

Disaster Relief: Livestock

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what his policy is towards support for working animals and livestock in areas of the world hit by natural disasters; and if he will make a statement. [205263]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) recognises that many populations in the world rely heavily on working animals and livestock for their household income. Natural disasters can have a devastating impact on livestock numbers and health, cause severe damage to animal shelters and deplete fodder resources. This can result in increased vulnerability and suffering of livestock dependent, populations. DFID's humanitarian policy underlines the need to reduce risk, protect against extreme vulnerability and strengthen social protection for populations.

People who depend on livestock or the sale of livestock products for most of their income and consumption continue to fall victim to disasters, for a complex variety of reasons that include pre-existing vulnerability and also climate change. DFID has recently carried out a review of its work with such 'pastoralists' and developed a specific pastoralist policy paper.

DFID has provided funding to humanitarian actors for livestock projects in natural disasters, and will continue to do so where and when necessary and appropriate. DFID is also funding Tufts University's Feinstein Centre to produce Livestock Emergency Guidelines and Standards (LEGS) for the design, implementation and assessment of livestock interventions to assist people affected by humanitarian crises.

Indian Ocean Tsunami

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what percentage of the relief aid pledged by the Government at the time of the Asian tsunami has to date been disbursed in (a) Indonesia, (b) Thailand and (c) Sri Lanka; and how much of that pledged funding remains unallocated. [205262]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) disbursed £64.1 million in humanitarian aid following the tsunami. This amount includes aid-in-kind and contributions to regional projects. In its report of February 2007, The National Audit Office (NAO) declared that it was content that this money was properly and fully spent.

(a) Indonesia

£55 million was committed by DFID for emergency and relief activity. All of this was successfully spent in the months following the disaster. An additional £59.2 million was approved for post tsunami reconstruction. All these funds have now been allocated to projects, and £42,283,677 (71 per cent.) has been disbursed. The remainder is being disbursed when the funds are required for actual project expenditure, and all remaining funds should be disbursed by 31 March 2009.

(b) Thailand

The Department for International Development did not allocate funds for tsunami relief or reconstruction in Thailand.

(c) Sri Lanka

£4.4 million was committed for emergency and relief activities. All funds were disbursed in the immediate aftermath of the disaster. In addition, £2 million committed for longer-term tsunami reconstruction has been disbursed in full.

Mr. Gale: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what (a) representations he has received and (b) discussions he has had on the percentage of the funding given by public subscription following the Asian tsunami that has to date been spent by members of the Disasters Emergency Committee on Assistance to (i) Indonesia, (ii) Thailand and (iii) Sri Lanka; and what percentage of that money has to date been spent on (A) administration, including executive travel, (B) human aid to Indonesia, Thailand and Sri Lanka and (C) working animal and livestock welfare in those countries. [205264]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development (DFID) has neither (a) received representations nor (b) held discussions on the percentage of funding spent in (i) Indonesia, (ii) Thailand and (iii) Sri Lanka by the Disasters Emergency Committee (DEC) resulting from its tsunami appeal. The DEC and its associated non-governmental organisations provide information on the uses to which the funds raised by its appeals are put (see www.dec.org.uk). This information is not collected by DFID.

Written Answers to Questions

Thursday 15 May 2008

[The following answers were received for publication on 14 May 2008.]

HEALTH

Alcoholic Drinks: Health Education

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when his Department plans to update the Know Your Limits leaflets. [204274]

Dawn Primarolo: The leaflets "Drinking and You" and "Drinking, You and Your Mates" were updated and reprinted in April 2008.

On 19 May, the Department will launch a public information campaign on alcohol units and health, which will include several new leaflets replacing current Know Your Limits leaflets.

Asthma: Health Services

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent steps the Government have taken to improve NHS healthcare services for asthma sufferers. [204994]

Ann Keen: In 2004, the Department introduced a National Service Framework (NSF) for Children, Young People and Maternity Services to set standards. Copies of the NSF are available in the Library. Asthma has a specific care pathway within the NSF, which serves as a benchmark in guiding national health service commissioners in procuring efficient, effective and child/family orientated services, and also serves as a reference for appraisal by families, service commissioners and the Healthcare Commission.

The NHS Choices website, launched June 2007, contains a wide and expanding range of information about asthma to help sufferers manage their condition. This includes information on causation, preventive measures, treatments, and comparative data on primary and secondary care providers. Later this year, an asthma pathway will bring together in one place a range of information about the five stages of the condition.

Published Quality and Outcome Framework scores indicate how each general practitioner practice in England performs in the delivery of recognised best practice in asthma care against the national standard, and that of the local primary care trust.

World-class commissioning is an ambitious initiative that is being rolled out across the entire national health service, with the purpose of strengthening the commissioning of health and wellbeing services across the board. The World-Class Commissioning Programme will improve health outcomes for people with asthma just as it will improve outcomes for people with any health need or condition, through transforming the way that health and care services are commissioned.

In addition, the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) has appraised the following asthma treatments: inhaler systems (devices) in children under the age of five years with chronic asthma; corticosteroids for the treatment of in adults and children aged 12 years and over; corticosteroids for the treatment of chronic asthma chronic asthma in older children (5-15 years) and omalizumab for severe persistent allergic asthma.

Where NICE has given a positive recommendation that the NHS should provide this treatment, primary care trusts are statutorily obliged to provide funding.

Bereavement Counselling: Children

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent representations he has received on initiatives aimed at assisting bereaved children. [204265]

Ann Keen: The Department has not received any such representations. Over the last three financial years, we have financially supported the Child Bereavement Charity with £109,000 towards the cost of their Communicating with Children - Every Bereaved Child Matters project.

Cystic Fibrosis: Screening

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will review his Department's policy on testing for cystic fibrosis carrier status when screening newborn babies for cystic fibrosis. [204082]

Ann Keen: On the recommendation of the United Kingdom National Screening Committee (UK NSC), a newborn cystic fibrosis screening programme was introduced in England in 2001 to identify babies with cystic fibrosis. The screening programme is not designed to test for cystic fibrosis carrier status. A small proportion of babies (about one in 100) are unavoidably identified during the testing as cystic fibrosis carriers. This can happen if a mutation analysis of a blood sample is required after the biochemical test. In such cases, in line with other newborn screening programmes, parents will be advised that their child is a carrier. The UK NSC keeps all its policy advice under review.

Statutory Instruments

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many statutory instruments have been (a) made and (b) revoked by Ministers in his Department since 1997. [204766]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for South-East Cambridgeshire (Mr. Paice) on 25 March 2008, Official Report, column 14-15W.

Doctors: Manpower

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of doctors of each specialty and grade there will be in the NHS in each of the next 10 years. [204226]

Ann Keen: The numbers of doctors that the national health service requires each year is a matter for determination by local NHS organisations, as they are best placed to assess the health needs of their local health community.

Doubt Kills Campaign

Mr. Greg Knight: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much his Department has given in grants to the Doubt Kills campaign by the British Heart Foundation. [204941]

Ann Keen: The Department has given no direct funding for the Doubt Kills campaign to the British Heart Foundation (BHF), although the Department does regularly support the BHF through Section 64 grant funding for other purposes.

EU Action

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which consultations undertaken at EU level affecting his Department there were in each of the last 10 years; to which of these his Department (a) responded within the deadline, (b) responded after the deadline and (c) made no response; and in which consultations the Department secured all the aims of its consultation response in the ensuing action taken by the European Commission. [205556]

Dawn Primarolo: In response to any consultation at European Union (EU) level, the Department always aims to meet the stated deadline. If this is not possible, we negotiate an extension when required. We are committed to keeping scrutiny committees fully engaged in accordance with Government guidance and always aim to influence the consultation process as constructively as possible and robustly where necessary. However, comprehensive information on all EU-level consultations affecting the Department in the last 10 years is not readily available and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

Food: Safety

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which local authorities were participating in the Food Standard Agency's Scores on Doors scheme at the latest date for which information is available. [204533]

Dawn Primarolo: The Food Standards Agency (FSA) has sponsored pilot schemes of a variety of designs and involving a total of 47 local authorities[1]. A number of other local authorities have implemented schemes independently of the FSA in response to local needs.

There has been widespread support for a nationwide scheme to ensure clarity for consumers and consistency for businesses. In view of this, the FSA will shortly be launching a public consultation on proposals for introducing a United Kingdom-wide scheme.

[1] Aberdeen, Ashford, Banbridge, Barking and Dagenham, Barnet, Belfast, Brent, Brighton and Hove, Bromley, Camden, Canterbury, Coventry, Croydon, Derby, Ealing, Edinburgh, Enfield, Fife, Hackney, Hammersmith and Fulham, Haringey, Harrow, Hillingdon, Hounslow, Hull, Islington, Kensington and Chelsea, Kingston, Lambeth, Leicester, Lewisham, Maidstone, Merton, Newham, North Devon, Nottingham, Perth and Kinross, Redbridge, Renfrewshire, Richmond, Sevenoaks, Stoke on Trent, Swansea, Tonbridge and Malling, Waltham Forest, Wandsworth, Westminster.

Health Centres

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what his Department's definition of a health centre is. [205200]

Mr. Bradshaw: "Health centre" is a term used to describe a range of health services characterised by the co-location and integration of different services, including those traditionally provided in a hospital setting. The scope and scale of these services will be determined by local commissioners in collaboration with clinicians and patients to reflect local needs and circumstances.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health which team within his Department leads on plans for a new GP-led health centre in each primary care trust area. [205218]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Commissioning and System Management Directorate supported by the Commercial Directorate are jointly assisting the national health service to deliver the new general practitioner (GP) led health centres and new GP practices in poorly served areas.

Health Services: Rural Areas

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to ensure that people with mobility problems or other disabilities secondary to chronic health conditions such as rheumatoid arthritis will be able to access polyclinics and other primary care services in rural areas. [204746]

Mr. Bradshaw: The premises from where such services are to be delivered must comply with the Disability Discrimination Act. It is for primary care trusts to develop, in consultation with local people, general practitioners and others, the services within the health centre that best reflect local needs.

Health: Children

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the (a) levels of obesity and (b) general health of school children in England in the last three years. [204375]

Dawn Primarolo: The information is not available in the exact format requested.

Data on the prevalence of obesity and self-reported general health among children aged two to 10, 11 to 15, and two to 15 between 1995 and 2006 can be found in the "Health Survey for England 2006 latest trends", published 31 January 2008. The data are presented in table 4 (obesity) and table 8 (general health) of the "Children trend tables 2006". This publication is available in the Library.

Human Fertilisation and Embryology Bill

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether Ministers from his Department have (a) authorised parliamentary counsel to assist in preparing amendments to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Bill on behalf of private Members and (b) authorised officials to instruct parliamentary counsel to prepare amendments to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Bill which were subsequently passed to private Members in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [205072]

Dawn Primarolo: Ministers from the Department have on no occasions either authorised parliamentary counsel to assist in preparing amendments to the Human Fertilisation and Embryology Bill on behalf of private Members, or authorised officials to do so.

Meat Hygiene Service

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1801W, on the Meat Hygiene Service, what assessment he has made of the effect of the changes referred to in the answer on the functioning of Red Lion Abattoir, Nantwich. [205550]

Dawn Primarolo: We have been advised by the Food Standards Agency (FSA) that the new approach to charging for the costs of the delivery of official controls in approved meat plants, referred to in the earlier answer, continues to be developed with stakeholders, including representatives of abattoir operators. The FSA Board will discuss proposals for this and an impact assessment at its meeting on 17 July 2008. The intention will be for a full public consultation to start in late summer to enable the new approach to charging to be introduced from late March 2009, subject to consideration of the consultation responses and of the associated impact assessment. It is too early to assess the impact of the proposals on individual abattoirs.

Mesothelioma: Health Services

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate his Department has made of the funds and resources required to implement the mesothelioma framework. [204680]

Ann Keen: The Department has estimated that implementing the mesothelioma framework will be largely cost neutral as it builds on service structures already in place for the treatment of lung cancer.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what representations his Department has received on the implementation of the mesothelioma framework. [204681]

Ann Keen: The Department received 10 representations on the implementation of mesothelioma in response to a campaign letter seeking support for the 'Action Mesothelioma Day' parliamentary reception held on 27 February 2008.

NHS: Armed Forces

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of NHS employees who were also serving members of the British armed forces in each of the last 10 years. [204474]

Ann Keen: The Department does not collect data about the number of national health service employees who are serving members of the armed forces. Last year the Ministry of Defence carried out an exercise to assess the number of United Kingdom health care professionals serving in the Volunteer Reserves and estimated this to be around 1,600.

NHS: DHL

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what mechanisms he has put in place to monitor the effectiveness of the NHS's contract with DHL for the delivery of medical supplies; what estimate he has made of the effect on costs of the contract over its lifetime; and if he will make a statement. [204127]

Mr. Bradshaw: DHL is contracted to run the business operation now known as NHS Supply Chain and has committed to key performance indicators (KPIs), including service delivery and financial targets. A business plan has been submitted to deliver savings of £1 billion over 10 years.

While the contractual high level KPIs are used for performance and penalty reporting, lower level KPIs are used predicatively and diagnostically to forecast and understand performance.

KPI information is produced for the lifetime of the contract in the form of standard reports, which are monitored and evaluated by the Supply Chain Management Division (SCMD) of the NHS Business Services Authority (NHSBSA) which has been set up to manage DHL performance. Along with KPI measurement, rigorous process evaluation and gateway reviews, the SCMD are audited to ensure processes and procedures for managing the contract are robust.

The SCMD will liaise with key stakeholders via appropriate forums and feedback routes to ensure that service delivery reflects customers' needs and that the outsourcing delivers value for money. The master service agreement gives the NHSBSA full audit rights of NHS Supply Chain.

NHS: Working Hours

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library the results of the NHS national workforce projects pilots on the European Working Time Directive. [204221]

Ann Keen: Full details of all the national health service national workforce projects pilots including locations and where available their objectives, results and lessons learned have been placed in the Library. All this information can also be viewed at the national workforce project website at:

www.healthcareworkforce.nhs.uk/pilotprojects.html.

Nurses

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health when his Department expects to publish guidance on the commissioning of specialist nursing services for patients with (a) diabetes, (b) Parkinson's disease, (c) multiple sclerosis, (d) epilepsy, (e) breast cancer and (f) stroke. [204268]

Ann Keen: We have published Long Term Neurological Conditions: A good practice guide to the development of the multidisciplinary team and the value of the specialist nurse. This guide has been prepared for commissioners and managers to highlight the role and contribution of specialist nurses. These principles are transferable to other specialities.

Copies of the guidance have been placed in the Library and can be found on the Department's website at:

www.healthcareworkforce.nhs.uk/resources/latest_resources/long_term_neurological_conditions.html

Nutrition: Logos

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many applications his Department has received for a licence to use the 5-a-day logo from (a) voluntary groups, (b) Government departments, (c) NHS bodies and (d) local authorities. [204271]

Dawn Primarolo: Government Departments do not require a licence. We have received 48 applications from voluntary groups, 118 applications from national health service bodies and 32 applications from local authorities.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many applications his Department has received to use the 5-a-day logo on fruit or vegetable packaging. [204272]

Dawn Primarolo: The Department has received 117 applications to use the 5-a-day logo on fruit and vegetable packaging. Applications can be for a number of items in a product range produced or supplied by the applicant.

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many applications to become an official partner of the 5-a-day campaign have been approved by his Department. [204273]

Dawn Primarolo: All organisations using the 5-a-day logo are considered to be 5-a-day partners. There are currently 407 licences in place to use the 5-a-day a logo. A further 268 licences have been approved since the launch of the 5-a-day logo but have since been delisted or not renewed.

Organs: Donors

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what discussions he has held on the proposed Europe-wide organ donor card. [204266]

Ann Keen: In May 2007, a European Commission (EC) Communication on organ donation suggested that the introduction of a European donor card might help increase organ donation rates across the European Union. The European Parliament has also inter alia called for an EU donor card that would complement existing national systems. However, the potential benefits and risks of a European donor card continue to be discussed by member states as part of a wider consideration of the EC's Communication.

Pharmacy

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will make it his policy to collect information on numbers of independent pharmacies. [204598]

Dawn Primarolo: Information on the ownership of community pharmacies is collected by the Information Centre for health and social care and published in the 'General Pharmaceutical Services in England and Wales 1997-98 to 2006-07 (Annual Bulletin)'. Copies of the latest bulletin have been placed in the Library and are also available at:

www.ic.nhs.uk/statistics-and-data-collections/primary-care/pharmacies/general-pharmaceutical-services-annual-bulletin-2006-07.

Pharmacy: Disadvantaged

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made of the effect of the centralisation of primary healthcare services on pharmacy services to vulnerable groups; and if he will make a statement. [204599]

Dawn Primarolo: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave him on 8 May 2008, Official Report, column 1176W.

In continuing to ensure that there are adequate arrangements for patients to access pharmaceutical services, primary care trusts will consider the needs of vulnerable groups.

Queen's Hospital Romford: Admissions

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the bed occupancy rate was at the Queen's Hospital Romford in each month since January 2007. [205372]

Mr. Bradshaw: Information is not available in the format requested. Information is collected annually at national health service trust level, and the latest data available are for 2006-07.

Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals NHS Trust manages the services at Queen's Hospital, Romford, King George Hospital, Ilford, and Barking Hospital. The 2006-07 data provided by the trust show an occupancy rate of 89.5 per cent. for beds in wards that are open overnight.

WiFi: Health Hazards

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent discussions he has had with the Health Protection Agency on progress on its investigation into the potential health implications of WiFi and WLAN technology. [204270]

Dawn Primarolo: In September 2007, the Health Protection Agency (HPA) announced its intention to systematically investigate the types of WiFi equipment in use and produce information on exposures to radio signals from wireless computer networks. The work started in November and should last for two years. The HPA provided a brief report to its Radiation Chemical and Environmental Hazards Sub-Committee meeting in April 2008 attended by a Departmental official. The work is making satisfactory progress. HPA Board Sub-Committee minutes and a summary of background information on WiFi can be found on the HPA web site at:

[The following answers were received for publication on 15 May 2008.]

Barking Havering and Redbridge Hospitals NHS Trust: Finance

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what recent assessment he has made of the financial performance of the Barking, Havering and Redbridge NHS Hospitals Trust. [205370]

Mr. Bradshaw: We recognise the challenging financial position of Barking, Havering and Redbridge Hospitals NHS Trust, which at quarter three was forecasting a deficit of £39.9 million for the 2007-08 financial year. We are continuing to work with the London Strategic Health Authority as they and the trust's management develop plans for the trust's financial recovery.

Care Homes

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people have received NHS Continuing Care in (a) 2004-05, (b) 2005-06, (c) 2006-07 and (d) 2007-08 to date in each primary care trust [185601]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The information requested has been placed in the Library.

Chronically Sick: Health Services

Mrs. Dean: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what assessment he has made in relation to the World Class Commissioning Initiative of best practice in the commissioning of services for long-term conditions, such as arthritis, which do not currently feature as clinical indicators in the quality and outcomes framework of the General Medical Services contract. [204748]

Mr. Bradshaw: The World Class Commissioning Programme endeavours to drive commissioners to improve health outcomes across all health needs and conditions.

The World Class Commissioning Programme requires commissioners to routinely seek and report on research and best practice evidence, including clinical evidence, which will assist in commissioning and decision-making. Commissioners will need to show that they are prioritising investment, identifying and commissioning against key priority outcomes, taking into account patient experiences, local needs and preferences, risk assessments and national priorities.

Commissioners will be held to account on their commissioning performance through an assurance that is intended to lead them towards world class.

Compulsorily Detained Mental Patients: Young People

Norman Lamb: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many persons (a) under 16 and (b) from 16 to 18 years of age (i) are detained under the Mental Health Act 1983 and (ii) were detained under the Mental Health Act 1983 in each of the last five years. [197964]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The Department does not collect the information requested.

Departmental Managers

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health if he will place in the Library copies of the (a) agenda and (b) minutes of the last six meetings of his Department's departmental board. [205241]

Mr. Bradshaw: A summary of proceedings from each scheduled meeting of the departmental board is published on the Department's website within three months of the meeting. The summary of proceedings from the departmental board meetings on 14 June 2007, 12 July 2007, 11 October 2007, 8 November 2007, 17 January 2008, and 14 February 2008 will be placed in the Library. The summary of proceedings from the departmental board meeting on 3 April 2008 will be placed in the Library once the minutes have been agreed at the next meeting.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the percentage of his Department's (a) capital budget and (b) revenue budget that has not yet been allocated for (i) 2008-09, (ii) 2009-10 and (iii) 2010-11. [205198]

Mr. Bradshaw: Over 80 per cent. of national health service revenue funding for 2008-09 was allocated to the NHS in primary care trust (PCT) allocations on 13 December 2007. The remaining funding is centrally controlled either by:

strategic health authorities (funding allocated on 5 February 2008); and the Department (funding allocated to budget holders at the beginning of this financial year).

Revenue allocations for 2009-10 and 2010-11 have not yet been announced.

The Department has changed the system of NHS capital allocations so that most of the capital funding that is destined for spend by NHS trusts and PCTs is allocated in response to capital plans that are submitted by NHS trusts and PCTs at the start of the year. Plans for 2008-09 will be finalised in May. The 2008-09 plans include indicative figures for 2009-10 and 2010-11 expenditure, which will not be agreed until the start of those years.

Capital resources have also been set aside to cover foundation trusts, which fund their capital expenditure through cash retained from their operating cash-flows and through prudential borrowing.

Over 55 per cent. of 2008-09 capital resources have been set aside to be drawn under the aforementioned arrangements to fund the local capital investment plans of NHS trusts, foundation trusts and PCTs.

The remainder is centrally managed. It comprises central budget funding (e.g. Connecting for Health) and 'programme capital'. Central budget holders were allocated their budgets on 17 March 2008. 'Programme capital' is funding for capital costs incurred locally of delivering centrally determined investment priorities. This funding will be allocated in the first half of the financial year.

Food Supplements: EU Law

David Tredinnick: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what steps he is taking to ensure that the food supplements directive and the nutrition and health claims directive are implemented in the Crown Dependencies of the United Kingdom in accordance with Protocol 3 of the UK's Treaty of Accession; [205920]

(2) with reference to the answer of 25 October 2007, Official Report, columns 551-54W, on dietary supplements: EU law, whether the Food Standards Agency has received responses from the Governments of Jersey and Guernsey to the letters it sent on 10 September 2007; and when a collective meeting with the representatives of these Governments is planned to take place. [205921]

Dawn Primarolo: Responses have been received from the Governments of Jersey and Guernsey, and the Food Standards Agency (FSA) hosted a meeting of representatives from the Crown Dependencies on 11 April 2008.

The FSA continues to work with the Ministry of Justice, the Department responsible for the Crown Dependencies, and the Administrations in the Crown Dependencies regarding implementation of the food supplements directive and nutrition and health claims Regulation to prevent trade in food supplements that would be illegal in the United Kingdom.

General Practitioners

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what weighting was given to (a) the number of primary care clinicians, (b) health outcomes and (c) patient satisfaction with GP services as indicators in determining in which primary care trust areas with poorest provision to establish new GP practices; [203443]

(2) what score was given to each primary care trust in determining in which to establish new GP practices in areas with the poorest provision for (a) number of primary care clinicians, (b) health outcomes and (c) patient satisfaction with GP services; and what the data source was for each indicator. [203444]

Mr. Bradshaw: The range of indicators used to determine the primary care trusts (PCTs) with poorest provision, their data source and associated weightings are shown in the following table. For each PCT, the standardised distance from the England average was calculated for each indicator. These distances were assigned a weight based on the three themes and each PCT was then ranked based on the sum of the weighted differences. The following table shows PCTs and their distances.

Indicator	Weight (percentage)
Primary Care Clinicians [1]	60
Whole-time equivalent general practitioners (GPs) per 100,000 weighted population
Whole-time equivalent practice nurses per 100,000 weighted population

Health Services: Greater London

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how much capital allocation to the London NHS was returned to the Exchequer in each of the last 10 years; and what the main reasons were for each instance of underspend. [205332]

Mr. Bradshaw: Underspends against capital allocations generated by the national health service are not returned to the Exchequer. They are carried forward and made available to spend in future years. Explanations for the underspends are not collected centrally.

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what funding was provided for health services in the London boroughs of (a) Greenwich, (b) Bromley, (c) Lewisham and (d) Bexley in each of the last five financial years; what such funding is planned for each of those boroughs in (i) 2008-09, (ii) 2009-10 and (iii) 2010-11; and if he will make a statement; [205337]

(2) what the change in funding for health services in the London boroughs of (a) Greenwich, (b) Bromley, (c) Lewisham and (d) Bexley was over the period 2003-04 to 2007-08. [205338]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Department makes revenue allocations to primary care trusts (PCTs) rather than to boroughs.

The revenue allocations made to Greenwich Teaching PCT, Bromley PCT, Lewisham PCT, and Bexley care trust for the years 2003-04 to 2008-09 and the cash increases from 2003-04 to 2008-09 for each PCT are set out in the following tables.

The aim is to announce the 2009-10 and 2010-11 PCT revenue allocations by the summer.

£000

	Allocation
	2003-04	2004-05	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	2008-09

Greenwich Teaching PCT	143,797
Lewisham PCT	167,366

Notes:
1. Comparisons between allocations rounds cannot be made because of changes to funding included in revenue allocations.
2. In 2008-09, all PCTs received an above-inflation cash increase of 5.5 per cent.

Incontinence: Medical Equipment

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what timetable he has set for publication of the outcomes of the review of Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances and related services to primary care; and if he will make a statement; [205631]

(2) what consideration has been given to section 1.2.5.3 of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's clinical guideline 40, on urinary incontinence, in the review into Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances and related services to primary care; and if he will make a statement. [205632]

Dawn Primarolo: The review is ongoing. A further consultation will be published shortly—together with an Impact Assessment and Equality Impact Assessment—and will be open for 12 weeks.

Section 1.2.5.3 of the National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence's clinical guideline number 40 on urinary incontinence states that intermittent urinary (IU) catheterisation should be used for women with urinary retention who can be taught to self-catheterise or who have a carer to perform the technique.

The review of arrangements under Part IX of the Drug Tariff for the provision of stoma and incontinence appliances and related services in primary care is looking at the reimbursement for IU catheters. However, decisions relating to what item shall be prescribed will continue to be a matter for the prescriber to decide in consultation with the patient, having taken the guidelines fully into account.

Medical Records: Databases

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many people to date have elected not to have their medical records put on the NHS spine. [203777]

Mr. Bradshaw: The only clinical information on the national health service care record spine is in summary care records. Up to 30 April 2008, 614,052 registered patients over the age of 16 in the summary care record early-adopter primary care trust (PCT) areas had been sent a personalised information pack to inform them of the changes that are taking place, the choices that they have and how those choices can be exercised. Of these, 4,986 (0.81 per cent.) have indicated to their general practitioner or to the PCT their wish not to have a summary care record.

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether patients may elect not to have their records included on the NHS Secondary Uses Service database; and if he will make a statement. [203787]

Mr. Bradshaw: The Secondary Uses Service (SUS) database is the repository of person and care event data relating to the treatment of patients in the national health service. It is used for management and clinical quality and safety purposes other than direct patient care. These secondary uses include healthcare planning, commissioning, public health, clinical audit, benchmarking, performance improvement, research and clinical governance.

Information provided through SUS will be anonymised or pseudonymised to remove information that could be used to identify individuals but still allow cases to be tracked and linked, for example for research. Patients do not have an automatic right not to have information about them held within SUS. We safeguard the confidentiality of information about patients, while also supporting and facilitating the use of information for the purposes for which SUS exists, subject to safeguards.

Although patients have no automatic right, the Data Protection Act 1998 provides a right to have requests to stop information being held within SUS considered, subject to being able to demonstrate that processing is causing the patient significant damage or distress.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the Answer of 26th March 2008, Official Report, column 206W, on medical records: databases, what estimate he has made of (a) the number of alerts a single Caldicott Guardian will be able to monitor and (b) the likely number of alerts per day. [205574]

Mr. Bradshaw: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to him on 13 May 2008, Official Report, columns 1547-48W.

Mentally Ill: Suicide

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of people who have committed suicide in each of the last five years who had been treated for mental health problems. [189867]

Mr. Ivan Lewis: The number of mental health service users in England who committed suicide and the proportion of total suicides which this represents, in the five most recent years for which data are available, is shown in the following table.

The data collection methodology for total suicides also records deaths caused by undetermined intent and the total includes these deaths. At the time of responding, the data for 2005 were 93 per cent. completed and final figures, when available, are expected to be higher than those shown in the following table.

Number of mental health service users in England who committed suicide and the proportion of total suicides which this represents, 2001-05

	Number of service users in year who committed suicide	Total number of suicides and deaths by undetermined intent in year	Percentage of people who had previously been in touch with mental health services
2001	1,258	4,560	27.6
2002	1,246	4,449	28.0
2003	1,235	4,452	27.7
2004	1,280	4,518	28.3
2005	1,199	4,421	27.1

The National Confidential Inquiry into Suicide and Homicide by People with Mental Illness.

Information on suicides by people in contact with mental health services is collected by the National Confidential Inquiry into Suicide and Homicide by People with Mental Illness (NCISH). NCISH is funded by the National Patient Safety Agency to ensure that everyone involved in mental health learns and implements lessons from the factors associated with serious mental illness. The Department has been, and remains, committed to taking appropriate action in response to the Inquiry's findings.

NHS: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health with reference to page 131 of his Department's 2007 Annual Report, what the (a) £1 billion NHS central capital budget and (b) £2.3 billion for other NHS central revenue budgets was spent on in 2007-08. [205196]

Mr. Bradshaw: Actual spend figures for 2007-08 are not available at this date.

The following are planned central capital and revenue budget programmes exceeding £100 million that make up the vast majority of the total reported on page 131 of the 2007 "Departmental Report", in descending order.

	£ billion
NHS Capital Budget 2007-08
Connecting for Health	0.85
Arms Length Bodies	0.14
NHS Revenue Budget 2007-08
Arms Length Bodies	0.75
Substance Misuse	0.40
Vaccines and Pandemic Flu	0.28
Departmental administration	0.28
Strategic health authority administration	0.15
Social Care education	0.13

Note:
The residual £0.3 billion is made up of a large number of small budgets.

Suboxone

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Health whether he plans to extend the availability of Suboxone in the treatment of drug addicts. [205809]

Dawn Primarolo: Suboxone is the brand name for a preparation of buprenorphine and naloxone, which is used as a substitution therapy for patients dependent on opioids.

Suboxone is available for use on the national health service. The decision to use Suboxone is a clinical one and is taken following consultation with the patient about their clinical needs and priorities. Advice on prescribing of Suboxone is included within the joint Department of Health and National Treatment Agency for Substance Misuse publication, "Drug Misuse and Dependence: UK Guidelines on Clinical Management", published in September 2007.

Due to the additional ingredient of naloxone in Suboxone the Department received a number of inquiries about whether the instalment dispensing regulations in place for buprenorphine and certain other medicines applied to Suboxone. In August 2007 the Department issued advice confirming that the prescribing of Suboxone for instalment dispensing by pharmacists is provided for under General Medical Services regulations.

SCOTLAND

Statutory Instruments

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Scotland how many statutory instruments have been (a) made and (b) revoked by Ministers in his Department since 1997. [204761]

David Cairns: The Scotland Office has responsibility for overseeing a programme of secondary legislation to manage the devolution settlement and elections in Scotland. Since 1 July 1999, when the Office was created, 128 statutory instruments relating to the devolution settlement and elections in Scotland have been taken forward. Of the 128 statutory instruments:

109 of these were made under the Scotland Act 1998

one under the Public Expenditure and Receipts Act 1968

18 Orders under various enactments in relation to the management of elections in Scotland

Information relating to the revocation of statutory instruments is obtainable only at disproportionate cost.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Polling Stations: Disabled

Helen Jones: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps are being taken to ensure that returning officers take effective steps to provide people with disabilities with access to polling stations; and if he will make a statement. [205707]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that its guidance for returning officers covers access to polling stations for those with disabilities. This includes a checklist of issues to consider when choosing buildings for use as polling stations. The polling station handbook for use by presiding officers and poll clerks on election day also contains advice on accessibility.

The Representation of the People Act 1983 places an obligation on councils, so far as it is reasonable and practicable, to designate as polling places only places that are accessible to disabled people and to give all electors within their area reasonable facilities for voting.

Following Electoral Commission recommendations, section 16 of the Electoral Administration Act 2006 required that councils consult the returning officer as part of their review of polling places. Councils must seek the views of people who have particular expertise in relation to access to premises or facilities for people with disabilities when carrying out reviews, and were required to carry out such a review during 2007.

LEADER OF THE HOUSE

Departmental Official Hospitality

Mrs. May: To ask the Leader of the House how many receptions she has hosted and funded in her capacity as Leader of the House in the last 12 months; which individuals and organisations (a) were invited to and (b) attended each reception; and what the cost was of each reception. [203850]

Helen Goodman: In due course, Government Departments will publish annual lists providing information relating to official receptions hosted by Ministers in the previous financial year. The data published by the Cabinet Office will include information for the Office of the Leader of the House of Commons.

WALES

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what assessment the Valuation Office Agency has made of evidence of (a) errors and (b) incorrect banding in relation to the 2005 council tax revaluation in Wales. [205444]

Mr. Paul Murphy: The Valuation Office Agency is satisfied that the bandings undertaken when council tax revaluation in Wales was introduced in 2005 were made competently. During the period 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2007 (the first two years of the 2005 council tax lists coming into force) one third fewer challenges were received than in the same period of the 1993 lists, and just 1.55 per cent. of bandings were changed as a result of these challenges.

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Wales what consultants have been contracted by his Department to conduct public participation activities in the last three years; and how much expenditure his Department has incurred on each such contract to date. [206207]

Mr. Paul Murphy: None.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Tax: Unpaid Taxes

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much council tax was uncollected in cash terms (a) in England and (b) in each Government office region in each year since 1996-97. [202644]

John Healey: Details of the amount of council tax uncollected in cash terms in England and in each Government office region in each year since 1996-97 are shown in thousands in the following tables. The data relate to the non-collection of council tax within the year to which it relates. The table also shows the amount of uncollected council tax as a proportion of the total amount of council tax local authorities expected to collect if every taxpayer paid the full amount for which they are liable after discounts and benefit.

Collection of council tax continues once the financial year to which the tax relates has ended. This means that the final amount uncollected is somewhere between the figures shown here and zero.

The data are derived from data reported on QRC4 forms submitted annually by all billing authorities to Communities and Local Government and its predecessor Departments.

Departmental Pay

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what the cost of (a) salaries for permanent civil service posts, (b) salaries for permanent non-civil service posts and (c) payments to temporary or agency workers in her Department was in each month since May 2005. [199626]

Notes:
1. The costs only cover expenditure for CLG central (not Government offices, who perform tasks for 10 Government Departments or executive agencies).
2. Salary costs for permanent civil servants and non-civil servants include costs for salary including arrears, ERNIC, superannuation, overtime, travel time, temporary responsibility allowances, bonuses, and other pay allowances.
3. There are some monthly negative totals in the agency and interim staff figures. These are explained by accruals/journals at year end or following a period of larger than normal expenditure from the previous month.

Departmental Procurement

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether her Department's departmental purchase orders are recorded in an electronic database. [202595]

Mr. Dhanda: All departmental purchase orders are recorded on a database within the enterprise resource planning software (SAP) that forms the Department's finance system.

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how much her Department spent on (a) written consultation, (b) consultation roadshows and (c) stakeholder focus groups in each of the last three years. [205848]

Mr. Dhanda: Over each of the past three calendar years to December 2007, Communities and Local Government and my predecessor Department undertook respectively:

57 public consultations (ODPM 2005)

34 public consultations (Communities and Local Government 2006)

48 public consultations (Communities and Local Government 2007)

These consultations were launched in order to inform the Department's policy development. Information on how much the Department has spent on written consultation, consultation roadshows and stakeholder focus groups in each of the last three years could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Consultation exercises form an integral part of policymaking and as such are funded from policy teams' budgets rather than a consultation budget and so a total cannot be provided.

Floods: EU Grants and Loans

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effects of the difference between the amount expected and the amount received from the European Solidarity Fund for flood recovery; what consequential adjustments she plans to make to spending priorities; and if she will make a statement. [204751]

John Healey: I refer the hon. Member to the written statement I made on 6 May 2008, Official Report, columns 18-19WS.

Housing: Databases

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 5 March 2008, Official Report, column 2501W, on housing: databases, (1) what the Unique Property Reference Number is of (a) the official ministerial residence of 10 Downing street, (b) the official ministerial residence of 11 Downing street and (c) each of the three ministerial residences in Admiralty House, Whitehall, according to the records held by the Valuation Office Agency; [202473]

(2) how many domestic dwellings in England have now been allocated a Unique Property Reference Number. [202474]

John Healey: Unique Property Reference Numbers (UPRNs) are allocated to individual properties by the National Land and Property Gazetteer (NLPG), which is the responsibility of the Improvement and Development Agency (IDeA). Any questions about UPRNs should therefore be directed to the IDeA.

Unitary Councils: Council Tax

John Mann: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment she has made of the effects of unitary local government arrangements on the local level of council tax. [197331]

John Healey: The level of council tax is a matter for individual local authorities. We have assessed, on the basis of councils' own estimates, that the new unitary local government arrangements that we are establishing, including the creation of nine new unitary councils, will allow in total savings of over £100 million annually to be realised. With such savings, the average equivalent annual reduction in band D council tax could be of the order of £90, although of course it is for each council to decide whether to use these savings on improving services or on reducing council tax.

Keeping council tax under control remains a priority for the Government and we will not hesitate to use our capping powers as necessary to protect council tax payers from excessive increases.

CULTURE, MEDIA AND SPORT

Cricket: Broadcasting

Mr. Grogan: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what discussions with representatives of the English Cricket Board he has had on the broadcasting of Test match cricket for the period from 2010. [204510]

Andy Burnham: I have had no discussions with representatives of the English Cricket Board over broadcasting of Test match cricket.

Departmental Cost Effectiveness

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport (1) what efficiency savings (a) his Department and (b) the non-departmental public bodies it sponsors have made in each of the last five years; [204142]

(2) what progress his Department has made in implementing the recommendations of the Gershon efficiency review; and if he will make a statement. [204143]

Andy Burnham: DCMS has three targets for implementing the Gershon efficiency review: deliver £262 million efficiency savings by 2007-08, reduce headcount by 27 posts by 2008 and relocate 600 posts in its NDPBs outside London and the South East by 2010.

Latest efficiency savings figures

				£ million
	2005-06 gains	2006-07 gains	2007-08 provisional gains	2007-08 target
DCMS Internal	0.0	1.0	2.0	2.0
NDPBs	73.0	126.1	145.0	114.0
Local Authorities	44.7	112.9	112.9	146.0
Total gains	117.7	240.0	259.9	262.0

2007-08 DCMS internal figures are final, NDPB figures are provisional and local authority figures will not become available until June 2008. We forecast that 2007-08 local authority gains will be £154.5 million and that we will therefore exceed our target. Final efficiency savings figures will be reported in the 2008 DCMS autumn performance report. Latest headcount figures show a reduction of 76 posts at 31 March 2008. The Department was carrying 35 vacancies at 31 March 2008 and even excluding these posts we have still exceeded our target. Latest relocation figures show the relocation of 586 posts at 31 March 2008. We have identified over 900 posts in total to relocate over the period and are therefore on course to exceed our target.

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport on how many occasions he has visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [204399]

Andy Burnham: In the last 12 months, Ministers in this Department have visited Scotland six times and Northern Ireland once. There have been no visits to Wales.

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the ministerial code.

Digital Switchover Help Scheme

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport if he will place in the Library a copy of the minutes of the March 2008 Emerging Technologies Group. [204917]

Andy Burnham: I am arranging for copies of the minutes from the Emerging Technologies Group's meeting of 10 April to be placed in the House Libraries, with the commercially sensitive information removed.

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he was first informed of the research into return path usage among the elderly commissioned by the Department for Communities and Local Government, referred to in the minutes of the Emerging Technologies Group meeting on 27 February in relation to the digital switchover assistance scheme. [204918]

Andy Burnham: The Department was first told of the research at the Emerging Technologies Group meeting of 27 February.

Olympic Games: China

Hugh Robertson: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport how many people will attend all or part of the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games from (a) UK Sport and (b) Sport England; and at what cost. [205747]

Andy Burnham: UK Sport inform me that a total of eight people from UK Sport are attending all or part of the Beijing Olympic Games. The cost of this at current exchange rates is around £27,000, excluding living expenses. UK Sport state that these representatives are going to ensure the UK's lead agency for performance sport is properly represented, but also to deliver key objectives and attend formal meetings around their designated anti-doping, major events and international influence roles.

Sport England inform me that Sport England will be represented by their chief executive and the director of property, and state that both have significant roles to play in terms of Sport England's increasingly strong role around talent and Olympic venues ahead of London 2012. The chief executive and director of property are attending the Beijing Olympic Games as part of the British Olympic Association's guest programme for one week in August, at a cost of £9,550 per person. Sport England state this is the price set by the BOA.

OLYMPICS

Olympic Games 2012: Construction

Miss McIntosh: To ask the Minister for the Olympics what landscaping contracts for the 2012 London Olympics have been let; and what plans she has to consult landscaping contractors in connection with the Games site. [205356]

Tessa Jowell: In March this year the Olympic Delivery Authority (ODA) selected world leading landscape architects IDA Design Hargreaves Associates to design the Olympic Park for the London 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games.

The ODA also short-listed four world-class contractors bidding to undertake the management of landscaping the northern area of the Olympic Park and all return bids are due next month. The ODA is on course to appoint a contractor this autumn.

The ODA hosted a very successful Industry Day last year and hold regular meetings with the British Association of Landscape Industry and the Horticultural Trade Association and continue to engage the market as they move closer to letting distinct pieces of work.

In addition, to help businesses access 2012 related contracts, the London 2012 Business Network was launched in January of this year. A key part of this is CompeteFor, an online brokerage service that matches the profiles of suppliers and buyers, enabling businesses to directly compete for contracts, including landscaping contracts. I would encourage companies in the constituency of the hon. Member to take advantage of this.

Olympic Games 2012: Employment

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Minister for the Olympics how many people working on 2012 Olympic Games construction projects are on apprenticeships; and what proportion of the workforce this represents. [205323]

Tessa Jowell: The latest figures show that there are currently over 2,700 people working on the Olympic sites. 74 of these are trainees or apprentices; this represents 2 per cent. of the work force. However, as part of a wider programme to improve the skills and employment levels in East London and beyond, the Olympic Delivery Authority and partners are aiming for a target of at least 2,000 people into apprenticeships and work placements up to 2012.

TRANSPORT

Departmental Equality

Mrs. May: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport whether her Department met the civil service diversity targets set out on page 51 of Cabinet Office Annual Report 2007 by April 2008. [204710]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The latest published statistics against overall civil service targets were at October 2007, and are available on the civil service website at:

http://www.civilservice.gov.uk/about/diversity/monitoring.asp

The final measurement against the targets will be published in autumn 2008. The most recent figures for the Department for Transport are for 31 March 2008:

	DfT	Percentage Civil service target
Women in Senior Civil Service (SCS)	25.6	37
Ethnic Minority staff in SCS	1.5	4
Disabled people in SCS	1.5	3.2
Women in Top Management posts	27.9	30

Departmental Translation Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how much was spent by her Department on translation and interpretation services in 2007-08, broken down by language. [205176]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport and its agencies do not hold the data in an appropriate format to provide the breakdown requested and it could be provided only at disproportionate cost. The information that is available is in the following table.

2007-08

DfT(C)	Translations and interpretations, including DfT share of EU Council Secretariat translations	70.6
DVLA	Translations, mostly into Welsh	111.7
VOSA	Translations and interpretations	72.0

Driving: Diabetes

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will review the criteria by which those with type 1 diabetes have had retention of their driving licences, including for heavy goods vehicles, reviewed. [205770]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Drivers with type 1 diabetes (insulin treated) who meet the published medical licensing standards can hold a Group 1 (car/motorcycles) licence subject to regular review.

Persons with insulin treated diabetes are also able to drive goods vehicles between 3.5 and 7.5 tonnes, subject to individual assessment of their ability to meet the higher medical standards required.

Medical standards are subject to regular review by the Secretary of State's Honorary Medical Advisory Panels and may be amended in the light of relevant new evidence.

Driving: Licensing

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will make it her policy to introduce conditional driving licences prohibiting (a) nighttime driving, (b) driving with passengers and (c) motorway driving until a suite of driving tests and examinations have been passed over a period of years; and if she will make a statement. [204491]

Jim Fitzpatrick: On 7 May, the Secretary of State launched the 'Learning to Drive' consultation, which sets out our proposals for the reform of driver training and testing. Copies have been placed in the Libraries of the House. Our proposed approach is one based on education and incentivisation, rather than restriction. We believe the evidence supports this approach. However, we are keen to hear everybody's views, and our consultation seeks opinions about our general approach as well as specific measures.

Luton Airport

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport what the projected change in numbers of flights (a) to and (b) from Luton airport by 2020 is; what percentage of flights using Luton airport were domestic in the latest period for which figures are available; and what percentage she expects to be domestic in 2020. [203293]

Jim Fitzpatrick: The Department for Transport's forecasts for Luton airport are set out in table G8 of the UK Air Passenger Demand and CO_2 Forecasts report (November 2007). Luton airport is projected to have 130,000 air transport movements in 2020. The split between domestic and international flights is not readily available. However, we estimate that of the 17 million passengers forecast to use Luton in 2015, 12 per cent. would be domestic passengers.

According to the latest statistics from the Civil Aviation Authority, there were 69,491 international flights and 13,828 domestic flights at Luton in 2007.

Roads: Accidents

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many drivers aged (a) 17 to 20, (b) 21 to 29, (c) 30 to 39, (d) 40 to 49, (e) 50 to 59, (f) 60 to 69 and (g) over 70 years of age had (i) at least one accident and (ii) a driving licence in each year since 1997. [205107]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Information is not available on drivers involved in accidents at an individual level. The following table therefore may include double counting, where a driver may be involved in more than one accident in a year.

The numbers of car drivers aged (a) 17 to 20, (b) 21 to 29, (c) 30 to 39, (d) 40 to 49, (e) 50 to 59, (f) 60 to 69 and (g) 70 and over years of age involved in reported personal injury road accidents in Great Britain from 1997 to 2006 are shown in the table.

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many accidents involving a driver in his or her first year of driving following the acquisition of a full licence there were in the most recent year for which figures are available, broken down by the age of the driver. [205108]

Jim Fitzpatrick: I refer the hon. Member to my answer of 21 April 2008, Official Report, column 1450W.

In a study of new drivers, available at http://www.dft.gov.uk/pgr/roadsafety/research/rsrr/theme2/cohort2/

it was found that the highest accident rates occurred in the first six months after passing the practical test.

WORK AND PENSIONS

Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission: Curfews

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what plans there are for administering curfews by the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission. [205922]

Mr. Plaskitt: Subject to passage of the Child Maintenance and Other Payments Bill, the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission will not be able to apply to the court for a curfew order until it has made a liability order, and (where appropriate) attempted to recover payment of the monies owed by use of bailiffs, third party debt order or an interim charging order. This will ensure that this type of compliance measure remains very much a last resort.

The length and constraints of the curfew order will be at the discretion of the court within the bounds of current legislation; they must not exceed six months and must be between two and 12 hours a day.

Once it is established it will be for the Commission to consider how curfew orders will be administered.

Child Support Agency: Telephone Services

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many telephone calls to the Child Support Agency (a) were received and (b) received the engaged tone in each month since July 2005. [200817]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is the matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. member with the information requested.

Letter from Susan Park:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As the Chief Executive is currently on annual leave, I am responding, with his authority, on his behalf. You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, how many telephone calls to the Child Support Agency (a) were received and (b) received the engaged tone in each month since July 2005. [200817]

The number of telephone calls made to the Child Support Agency which received an engaged tone from July 2005 to March 2008 is included in the attached table.

Further information on the Agency's telephony performance is available in Table 16 of the Child Support Agency Quarterly Summary of Statistics, a copy of which can be found in the House of Commons library or on the internet at the following link:

www.dwp.gov.uk/asd/asd1/child_support/csa_quarterly_mar08.asp

The Agency has shown significant and sustained improvement in telephony performance under the Operational Improvement Plan. In the year ending March 2008 the Agency received 5,369,000 calls from clients and answered 98% of calls available to be answered, with an average waiting time of twenty seconds, and with less than 1% of calls receiving an engaged tone.

Notes:
1. Information includes old system (CSCS) and new system (CS2) telephone calls.
2. The agency does not limit its system capacity to take calls and service providers have assured the agency of sufficient trunk capacity. Clients will only hear an engaged tone as the result of a technical fault usually at network level. Clients hearing an engaged tone will often redial immediately and unwittingly add to the problem. Certain months have seen a disproportionately high number of such incidents.

Children: Maintenance

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the value of child maintenance arrears owed by non-resident parents to children in Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency was in each year since 1997. [200088]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Susan Park, dated 15 May 2008:

In reply to your recent parliamentary question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the Chief Executive. As the Chief Executive is currently on annual leave, I am responding, with his authority, on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what the value of child maintenance arrears owed by non-resident parents to children in Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency was in each year since 1997. [200088]

Information on the value of child maintenance debt is only available for cases managed by the new computer system (CS2) at constituency level from February 2007.

The amount of debt on the new computer (CS2) owed by non-resident parents where the parent with care lives in Inverness, Nairn, Badenoch and Strathspey constituency was £2,194,000 at March 2007 and £2,535,000 at March 2008. The latest figures for March 2008 are un-audited and subject to change. Final national figures will be published with the Agency's Annual Report and Accounts later this year.

This debt has accrued over the 15 years of the Child Support Agency's operation and is owed by non-resident parents as a result of their failure to meet their responsibilities to their children. Some non-resident parents do their utmost to avoid their responsibilities, for example by moving house or changing jobs whenever the Agency tries to collect maintenance.

The Agency has collected and arranged a record breaking £1.01 billion in child maintenance in the year to March 2008, of which £126m was arrears. This improving performance will provide a stable foundation on which the new Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission can build.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what proportion of parents with care claiming income support received child maintenance in each month since 2003. [200810]

Mr. Plaskitt: The administration of the Child Support Agency is a matter for the chief executive. He will write to the hon. Member with the information requested.

Letter from Susan Park, dated 15 May 2008:

In reply to your recent Parliamentary Question about the Child Support Agency, the Secretary of State promised a substantive reply from the chief executive. As the chief executive is currently on annual leave, I am responding, with his authority, on his behalf.

You asked the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions, what proportion of parents with care claiming income support received child maintenance in each month since 2003. [200810]

The proportion of child maintenance cases with a positive maintenance outcome, where the parent with care is claiming income support is provided in the attached table. It should be noted that the information the Agency holds relates to cases only. A parent with care can have more than one child maintenance case. Benefits data is only available on a quarterly basis and the latest available data covers the period to May 2007.

Maintenance outcomes—cases in receipt of income support.

This table shows the number of cases where the parent with care is in receipt of income support and where a payment was received or which had a Maintenance Direct arrangement in place over a three month period. This is presented as a proportion of the total number of cases which have a positive maintenance liability or on which a payment was made. This relates to the Secretary of State target for 2007-08 on Maintenance Outcomes.

Notes to table:
1. Table shows proportion of cases from which a payment was received including Maintenance Direct, as a proportion of the total number of cases with a positive maintenance liability, where the parent with care is claiming income support.
2. A parent with care is deemed to be in receipt of income support if they or their partner is claiming income support.
3. Benefits data is only available on a quarterly basis.
4. Latest available benefits data is at May 2007.

Kate Hoey: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what safeguards for children will be in place if the Child Maintenance and Enforcement Commission uses bailiffs to seize non-payers' property. [205923]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Commission will be required, as the Child Support Agency is now, to have regard to the welfare of any child likely to affected by any discretionary decision such as the decision to enforce the collection of maintenance arrears through the use of bailiffs. All bailiff firms, including those contracted to the Agency, must comply with the National Standards for Enforcement Agents, a set of common standards produced by the Government as a code of practice.

Departmental Pay

Dan Rogerson: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what the total cost was of (a) salaries for permanent civil service posts, (b) salaries for permanent non-civil service posts and (c) payments to temporary or agency workers in his Department in each month since May 2005. [199966]

Mrs. McGuire: The information requested is as follows:

(a) Permanent civil service posts

The total payments made to civil service permanent personnel in each year since May 2005 is as follows:

2005-06 April to March is £2,302.33 million;

2006-07 April to March is £2,265.63 million;

2007-08 April to March is £2,221.01 million.

These figures have been estimated for 2007-08 as the actuals are not yet available.

The monthly breakdown year is as follows:

(b) Permanent non-civil service posts

The Department employs 17 non-executive directors to provide an oversight to a number of business units including the Departmental Board. The total salaries paid for 2007-08 were £334,606.16.

(c) Payments to temporary or agency workers

The total payments made to agencies to provide interim personnel in each year since May 2005 is as follows:

2005-06 April to March is £52.99 million;

2006-07 April to March is £61.98 million;

2007-08 April to March is £37.02 million.

The Department employs temporary staff "casuals" for short periods; they are recruited direct not by an agency.

These figures have been estimated for 2007-08 as the actuals are not yet available.

The monthly breakdown for temporary workers—non-agency staff—is as follows:

Total	42,615,765	42,991,441	39,829,836

A monthly breakdown of information is not available for the period prior to April 2007 and could be obtained only at disproportionate cost.

The following special points should be noted.

The total spend figures are the total paid to agencies for the supply of interim personnel (agency workers). This includes the fees paid directly to the interim personnel and also the fees paid to the agencies for their supply. The agency payments are normally based on a percentage mark-up and are variable depending on the agency and the category of personnel supplied. The average margin for all supply categories utilising the Department's primary supply vehicle, the CIPHER framework agreement, is 15 per cent.

The total spend figures have been obtained from a number of sources including the Department's Financial and Resource Management systems and it should be noted that the figures are based on current account codes and category descriptors and may include some miscellaneous non-interim personnel expenditure because of the difficulty in categorising. The figures for 2007-08 have only recently been extracted and are subject to further validation.

Housing Benefit

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions what discussions his Department has had with the Department for Communities and Local Government on the effect of the proposed reduction in backdating facilities for housing benefit on (a) eviction levels and (b) homelessness. [200093]

Mr. Plaskitt: The Department for Work and Pensions works closely with the Department for Communities and Local Government on a wide range of issues, including the impact of housing benefit policy on people who are homeless or at risk of homelessness.

The Department for Communities and Local Government is aware of the proposed reduction in backdating timescales for housing benefit and council tax benefit claims and has seen a copy of the impact assessment. Officials from both Departments are working together to mitigate any impacts by undertaking an awareness-raising campaign among landlords, local authorities, customers and welfare rights agencies. Work on this is well under way and it is clear that a high proportion of stakeholders are already aware of the planned changes.

Rented Housing: Cambridge

David Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions whether (a) addresses and (b) rental values were used by the Rent Service to determine the median rent for the Broad Market Rental Area in which Cambridge lies. [205721]

Mr. Plaskitt: It is the responsibility of the rent officer to collect information on lettings achieved in the private rented sector for the Broad Rental Market Area.

The information is gathered from a variety of sources and is as representative of the market as possible, and to ensure that the lettings information is current the database is limited to the past 12 month period. The information held is sufficient both to confirm its validity and identify the size of the premises.

Social Security Benefits

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Work and Pensions how many people made a successful claim to receive (a) housing benefit, (b) council tax benefit and (c) pension credit backdated for (i) three months, (ii) six months, (iii) nine months and (iv) 12 months in each the last five years. [200092]

Mr. Mike O'Brien: The information requested is as follows:

Housing benefit and council tax benefit

The information is not available in the format requested because of the restrictions of the breadth and reliability of the data available.

As part of the Equality Impact Assessment covering changes to the time for claiming housing benefit and council tax benefit for pensioners and a change to the backdating period allowed within housing benefit and council tax benefit for working age customers, which is available on the DWP website, an estimate of the proportion of housing benefit and council tax benefit caseloads affected by the proposals is provided. There are, however, important caveats to these estimates which must be noted.

Figures on the number of claims that are successfully backdated are derived from the single housing benefit extract (HBSD-IAD scan). The backdating variable in the single housing benefit extract was introduced relatively recently (April 2007) and accordingly we have no means of corroborating how robust the data are against historical data. Furthermore, given that the data only go back six months, there is an insufficient pool of evidence to derive reliable figures from the data. These concerns should be allayed with time as the scan data improves.

Based on the first six months of data available, it is estimated that approximately 0.2 per cent. of new housing benefit and council tax benefit claims would be affected. In absolute terms, this is approximately 3,000 housing benefit and 3,000 council tax benefit claims per year (in Great Britain). These figures may be subject to revision as more data become available and raw figures should be treated with caution given the nature of the data.

Pension Credit

The information is not available in the format requested. Precise information on the time customers take to claim pension credit (known as backdating) is not routinely collected. The information in the following table estimates the possible maximum extent of backdating by examining the difference between the date of first payment and date at which entitlement begins. In some cases where payment starts after entitlement the delay will be due to processing times, evidence gathering and verification work which routinely accompanies claims for pension credit.

Estimates of the number of claims for pension credit by backdating period between 2003 and 2006

Thousand

Months of backdating	October 2003 to March 2004	April 2004 to March 2005	April 2005 to March 2006	April 2006 to March 2007
0-3 months	2,220	190	170	170
3-6 months	160	130	20	30
6-9 months		160	10	10
9-12 months		140	120	70
Total on flows	2,380	610	310	280

Notes:
1. Estimates of the number of claims by length of backdating period have been rounded to the nearest 10,000 cases
2. Care should be taken when interpreting the table. The Department does not routinely collect information on backdating periods and these have been estimated by comparing information on the date entitlement starts and the date pension credit is put into payment. Estimated backdating periods therefore include unknown periods of time that are due to processing, evidence gathering and verification work which routinely accompany every claim for pension credit.
3. Due to rounding the numbers of successful claims by period of backdating may not sum to the total number of successful claims.
4. There will be people flowing on to pension credit that will have zero backdating. These cases will be captured in the 0-3 month group.

DEFENCE

Armed Forces

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what recent representations he has received in relation to the capacity, funding and equipment of the armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [204623]

Des Browne [holding answer 9 May 2008]: I regularly receive representations concerning the capacity, funding and equipment of the armed forces. Ensuring that our armed forces have the capabilities they need to achieve the tasks we ask of them as safely and successfully as possible is my highest priority.

Armed Forces: Deployment

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of the (a) armed forces, (b) Army, (c) Royal Navy and (d) Royal Air Force (i) are preparing to deploy on operations and (ii) have recently returned from operations. [193102]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Given the rotational nature of operational deployments, the proportion of RAF and Army personnel preparing to deploy on operations is broadly the same as the proportion that has recently returned from operations. For the RAF this is approximately 7 per cent. For the Army this is approximately 9 per cent. These figures include both Regular and Reserve personnel. Equivalent data for the Royal Navy could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what percentage of the (a) Army, (b) Royal Air Force, (c) Royal Navy and (d) Royal Marines were in breach of the guidelines on individual separated service at the end of the 2007-08 financial year. [199474]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The current levels of Individual Harmony (Separated Service) including operations and all other military tasks, as at 22 April 2008 (Q4 2007-08), show that:

Less than 1 per cent. of RN/RM personnel were in breach of the single service guidelines.

10.3 per cent. of the Army were in breach of separated service guidelines. (This is a year on year improvement from 14.5 per cent. in 2005-06 and 13.4 per cent. in 2006-07.) The Army continues to monitor separated service with due diligence utilising directed recruitment and retention initiatives targeted at pinch point trades in particular.

9.2 per cent. of RAF personnel breached the single service guideline. This is a decrease of 0.8 per cent. on the previous quarter. There has been an increase over the past year due to changes in the reporting procedures that have brought the RAF into line with the RN and Army rather than an increase in commitments.

Armed Forces: Health Services

Alan Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) how many military personnel had rehabilitation treatment at the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre, Headley Court in each of the last five years; [184705]

(2) how many service personnel had rehabilitation treatment at the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre, Headley Court after their return from (a) Iraq and (b) Afghanistan in each of the last five years. [184706]

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many personnel were treated at Headley Court Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre in each year since 2004. [199495]

Derek Twigg: Headley Court records the total number of 'patient episodes', i.e. the number of reviews (of which there may be many) of individual patients, as well as new patient referrals. The total numbers of such episodes over the last five financial years are shown in the following table:

	In-patients	Out-patients	Total
2003-04	1,963	2,607	4,570
2004-05	1,544	2,913	4,457
2005-06	1,408	3,093	4,501
2006-07	1,685	4,219	5,904
2007-08	1,885	4,825	6,710

These statistics require further explanation. Patient referrals cover a wide range of injuries. Furthermore, as well as serving as the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre (its core task), Headley Court is also the Regional Rehabilitation Unit for London and Overseas.

Over the period covered by these statistics, there has been an increase in military operational tempo. This has led to an increase in patient activity overall and a more complex patient group requiring repeat admission to Headley Court. There have been changes in the balance between the numbers of patients requiring a ward bed and those who do not, including an increase in specialist clinics such as consultant-led visiting clinics and prosthetic clinics.

The increase in ward beds to the current total of 66 (through the addition of a 30-bed temporary ward annexe in May 2007) and improved ways of working have helped to enable the increased throughput of patients. However, it continues to be the case that most injuries treated at Headley Court have not been sustained on current operations in Afghanistan or Iraq. As an example, on 2 May, 46 ward beds were occupied, of which 23 were occupied by service personnel earlier evacuated from Afghanistan and Iraq. Most of the non-ward bed spaces (around 110 in total) are occupied by in-patients on a regular basis, but mainly by patients who have sustained injuries elsewhere.

However, information requested by operated theatre could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many armed forces personnel have been referred to (a) a regional rehabilitation unit and (b) Headley Court in each year since 2003. [200941]

Derek Twigg: The following table shows the total number of new patient referrals, for a course of treatment, of armed forces personnel to all 15 of MOD's regional rehabilitation units (RRUs). Full figures are not available for 2003-04.

1 April to 31 March	Number of new patient referrals
2004-05	4,320
2005-06	6,122
2006-07	7,168
2007-08	7,312

It should be noted that patient referrals cover a wide range of injuries, only a minority of which have been sustained on current operations in Afghanistan and Iraq.

For total patient referrals to Headley Court, I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave him and my hon. Friend the Member for Nottingham, South (Alan Simpson) today.

As well as having the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre as its core task, Headley Court has also hosted the regional rehabilitation unit for London and overseas patients (if they are not treated by the one of the two RRUs located in Germany). Figures for referrals to the Headley Court RRU are included in the answer referred to previously, as well as in the table. These figures could be separated out only at disproportionate cost.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence with reference to his announcement of 6 May 2008, what the source of funding for the £24 million to be provided to the Defence Medical Rehabilitation Centre Headley Court is. [204572]

Derek Twigg: The Defence budget.

Armed Forces: Housing

Bob Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much Annington Homes paid to the Government for land it sold to the east of Layer Road, Colchester, previously occupied by Ministry of Defence housing; and what percentage this represented of the value of the proceeds received by Annington Homes. [199229]

Derek Twigg: The 1996 sale agreement between Annington Homes Ltd. (AHL) and the Ministry of Defence related to the sale and value of properties rather than parcels of land. It has not proved possible to identify the specific site referred to or the number of properties it might have represented, and therefore we do not know what percentage the land represented.

Armed Forces: Manpower

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) target and (b) actual (i) inflow, (ii) outflow and (iii) voluntary outflow rate of each pinch point trade was in the last 12 months. [200952]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The following tables provide information on current pinch point trades. As can be seen, not all of the information on current pinch point trades is available. This is largely evident in the Army figures as there is insufficient data held on the Joint Personnel Administration (JPA) system. During the transition to JPA, which was introduced to the Army in April 2007, some data were lost. These data are currently being rebuilt although it may be some time before reliable information is available. Target figures are not available as they do not exist. Not all pinch point trades can be rectified by inflow as the pinch point may appear at more senior levels; this loss of experience cannot necessarily be grown through inflow. Some gaps can be filled by promotion pull but the challenge is to stem voluntary outflow.

Data for previous years are not held centrally and can be provided only at disproportionate cost. All three Services employ retention measures targeted at specific trade groups. For example, in the RN financial retention incentives (FRIs) are used to retain GR7 Instructors (£100,000 for pilot), MERLIN Aircrew and Lieutenant X Sub-Mariner Advanced Warfare Qualified (£25,000 with a Return of Service of four years). Other incentives include more flexible use of Full Term Commissions and the introduction of a Professional Aviator Pay Spine for air crewmen.

Similarly, in the Army, FRIs are used as incentives for Infantry at identified key decision points and there is considerable focus on improving wastage during training. To retain Royal Engineer Explosive Ordnance Disposal personnel the Army has introduced specialist pay and extended the course to increase first-time pass rate. REME Recovery Mechanic is another trade where the removal of Class 1 time bars, development of an apprenticeship scheme and the instigation of early eligibility for promotion to LCpl have helped to aid retention.

The RAF have FRIs for a number of trades (fire fighter, nurse and gunner); introduced more flexible manning policies (such as re-engagement to 22 years for selected Base Rank personnel) and opened up Continuance as a way of retaining experience.

Armed Forces: Separation

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the separation rate was for married personnel in each service in each year since 1997, broken down by (a) officers, (b) other ranks and (c) all ranks. [205128]

Derek Twigg: The information is not held in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

The following table shows annual divorce rates[1] for Army and RAF UK Regular Forces[2] personnel for each calendar year since 1997 up until the most recent data available, by officers and ranks. Naval service data are not available as the naval service groups 'separated', 'divorced' and 'widowed' together.

[1] Rates are calculated as a percentage of the average married strength during the calendar years. The term 'divorce' includes 'decree absolute' and 'marriage annulled'. It excludes 'decree nisi' and individuals who are separated.

[2] UK regular forces includes nursing services and excludes full-time reserve service personnel, Ghurkhas, the Home Service battalions of the Royal Irish Regiment and mobilised reservists. It includes trained and untrained personnel.

[2] Following the phased introduction of a new personnel administration system, marital status data are no longer available. This table shows the most recently available data.
[3] For the years 1999, 2000 and 2001, annulments are excluded from the calculations for divorce rates, as the information was not available, however the remaining years do include annulments in their calculation.

Percentages are calculated from unrounded figures and are shown to one decimal place.

Armed Forces: Staff Turnover

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what the (a) inflow and (b) outflow was of staff in each regional rehabilitation unit in each year since 2005. [203208]

Armed Forces: Training

Mr. Jenkins: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many service personnel have obtained civilian qualifications issued by his Department in each of the last five years. [205308]

Derek Twigg: No civilian qualifications were issued by the Ministry of Defence to armed forces personnel during the last five years. For the purposes of issuing civilian recognised qualifications, Defence only became a national awarding body in February 2008 and intends to start certification from July 2008.

Armed Forces: Uniforms

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 7 May 2008, Official Report, column 834W, on armed forces: uniforms, how much one complete set of Combat Soldier 95 uniform cost in each year since 2004. [205124]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are nearly 200 NATO stock numbers that are classified as Combat Soldier 95, and what is issued varies according to the role of an individual, and therefore, there is no single figure available. However, the approximate basic uniform cost, comprising jacket, smock, trousers, cold weather shirt, vest, thermal liners, waterproof jacket, overtrousers, gloves and gaiters (and excluding items such as helmets, boots and socks) is as follows:

Year	£ (excl. VAT) Price
2004[1]	152
2005[1]	136
2006[1]	130
2007	132
2008	130

[1] Please note that some individual costs are not available for these years due to the transfer of contract. The price has therefore been assumed to be as per the next available year for the same item.

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 7 May 2008, Official Report, column 834W, on armed forces: uniforms, how much has been paid to Cooneen Watts and Stone Ltd for the production of the Combat Soldier 95 uniform since 2004. [205125]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: This information is not held centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost. Cooneen Watts and Stone Ltd supply a large number of items to the MOD. Details of those items which form part of Combat Soldier 95 uniform are not recorded separately.

Armoured Fighting Vehicles: Procurement

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will re-evaluate the future rapid effect system project with particular reference to (a) the delivery schedule, (b) cost projections, (c) vehicle reliability, (d) the successful completion of all tests, (e) excessive weight, (f) excessive noise, (g) limited visibility and (h) reliability of the weapons system; and if he will make a statement. [204780]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: Piranha V was announced as the provisional preferred design for the future rapid effect system (FRES) utility vehicle on 8 May 2008, Official Report, columns 39-40WS. This announcement followed completion of the MOD's assessment of the evidence gathered during the utility vehicle trials and the further work to fully understand the commercial implications of the three competing designs. It is because of our early recognition and understanding of many of the issues raised that we have decided to embark on a focused phase of risk reduction early in the FRES UV development to give the programme the very best chance of success.

The selection decision was made by following the guiding principles of a competitive assessment to select a design that best met the Army's requirement for a combination of value for money through life, timely delivery, high performance and growth potential. In common with all defence procurement programmes, we will re-evaluate the performance, time and cost parameters of the FRES programme right up to the point at which we take the main investment decision.

AWE Burghfield

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on what occasions his Department has asked AWE Burghfield to cease live nuclear work in the last 12 months; and for what reasons each such request was made. [205233]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are no occasions when the Ministry of Defence has asked AWE Burghfield to cease live nuclear work.

On 20 July 2007, AWE was affected by flooding resulting in temporary disruption. At that time, AWE plc., the nuclear site licensee, took a decision not to undertake live nuclear work until remedial work had been undertaken. This decision was made in consultation with the Nuclear Installations Inspectorate and with Ministry of Defence officials, and was consistent with our planned operational programmes. Live working has now resumed.

Bombs

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how often CRV-7 weapons have been used in each year since 2000; and in which theatre they have been used. [193320]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: CRV-7 rockets of various types have only been used operationally in Afghanistan since 2000. As of 21 April 2008, some 2,506 rockets have been fired by Apache helicopters since that capability was deployed to Afghanistan in August 2006 and, as of 29 April 2008, some 3,731 rockets have been fired by Harrier aircraft since that capability was deployed to Afghanistan in September 2004. In none of these operational engagements was the CRV-7 MPSM variant, which can deploy a small number of sub-munitions, employed.

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence on how many occasions he has visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [204398]

Derek Twigg: Official visits in the last 12 months by MOD Ministers to Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland are set out in the following table. Visits may last more than one day, and may contain several engagements. The Secretary of State has conducted visits to Scotland in his capacities both as Secretary of State for Scotland and Secretary of State for Defence.

	Scotland	Wales	Northern Ireland
Secretary of State	29	0	1
Minister (AF)	5	1	1
Minister (DBS)	2	0	1
USofS	3	2	0

All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the ministerial code.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how much was spent on the most recent redesign and implementation of his departmental website. [200166]

Derek Twigg: The Ministry of Defence and armed forces collectively maintain four corporate websites. Redesign and implementation costs on these were as follows:

Website	URL	Cost (£)	Year	Note
Ministry of Defence	http://www.mod.uk/	400,000	2005-06	Further enhancements to the site were made between June 2007 and April 2008 at a cost of £150,000
Royal Navy	http://www.royal-navy.mod.uk/	270,000	2006	The Royal Navy corporate website was re-launched on 6 February 2006. An additional refresh was carried out in 2007 of the front page, RN live & Global operation at a cost of £110,000.
British Army	http://www.army.mod.uk	266,500	2006-07	This is the first major redesign of the Army website since 1998. Launch is expected within the next few weeks.
Royal Air Force	http ://www.raf.mod.uk/	119,579	2006-07	The redesign project was conducted through the Central Office of Information

Departmental Manpower

Martin Horwood: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many people were employed by the Ministry of Defence in the most recent year for which records are available. [201006]

Derek Twigg: The number of civilian personnel employed by the Ministry of Defence is published in Civilian Personnel Statistics 1 (CPS 1), "Civilian workforce by grade equivalence and budgetary employing area". A copy of the latest publication, as at 1 January 2008 can be found at:

http://centre.defence.mod.uk/dasa/natstats/cps1/cps1tab1.html

The next edition of CPS 1 is due to be released on 30 April 2008 containing figures as at 1 April 2008.

The number of service personnel employed by the Ministry of Defence is published in Tri-Service Publication 1 (TSP 1), "Strength, intake and outflow of UK Regular Forces". A copy of the latest publication, as at 1 March 2008 can be found at:

http://www.dasa.mod.uk/natstats/tspl/gender.html

The next edition of TSP 1 is due to be released on 22 May 2008 containing figures as at 1 April 2008.

Departmental Public Expenditure

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what his Department's expenditure outturn, excluding the cost of operations, was in each year from 1992-93 to 2000-01; [205467]

(2) what his Department's expenditure outturn, excluding the cost of operations and the security and intelligence services, was in each year from 1979-80 to 1991-92; [205468]

(3) what in near cash terms the (a) resource and (b) capital outturn was for operating in (i) Afghanistan, (ii) Iraq and (iii) the Balkans in each year from 2001-02 to 2004-05. [205471]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: MOD identifies the costs of operations in terms of the net additional costs it has incurred. The costs that the Department would have incurred regardless of the operation taking place, such as wages and salaries, are not included. Savings on activities that have not occurred because of the operation—training exercises for example—are taken into account in arriving at the net figures.

The annual audited near cash figures (excluding indirect resource costs) for the costs of operations in Iraq, Afghanistan and the Balkans for the years 2002-03 to 2004-05 were as follows:

£ million

Operational costs for Iraq, Afghanistan and the Balkans	Direct resource outturn	Capital outturn	Total near cash outturn
Peacekeeping costs: 2004-05	817	174	991
Of which:
Balkans (Bosnia/Kosovo)	75	2	77
Afghanistan	58	9	67
Iraq	684	163	847
Peacekeeping costs: 2003-04	1046	269	1315
Of which:
Balkans (Bosnia/Kosovo)	94	-1	93
Afghanistan	34	10	44
Iraq	918	260	1178
Peacekeeping costs: 2002-03
Of which:
Balkans (Bosnia/Kosovo)	133	20	153
Afghanistan	224	75	299
Iraq	556	218	774

Although resource accounts were published for 2001-02, MOD does not have a full breakdown of operational costs for that year. However, the total operational costs were as follows:

	£ million
Balkans (Bosnia/Kosovo)	235
Afghanistan	221
Total	456

The Department did not produce full accounts until the introduction of resource accounting and budgeting (RAB) for the financial year 2001-02. Prior to this financial year, the Department's outturn was reported in the end of year Appropriations Accounts and Estimates reports, copies of which can be found in the Library of the House. Appropriations Accounts do not, however, separately identify the cost of operations or the costs of the security and intelligence services and this information is not held centrally and would be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Gibraltar: Armed Forces

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Royal Navy vessels have visited Gibraltar in the last 12 months. [205633]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: During the 12 month period (1 May 2007 to 30 April 2008), Royal Navy vessels have visited Gibraltar on 59 occasions. In addition (and for completeness), seven Royal Fleet Auxiliary Vessels have visited Gibraltar over the same period.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence how many Tornado aircraft have been operating out of Gibraltar airport in the last 12 months. [205634]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: No Tornado aircraft have operated out of Gibraltar in the last 12 months.

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether Tornado aircraft are planned to continue operating out of Gibraltar over the next three years. [205635]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: There are presently no plans for Tornado aircraft to operate out of RAF Gibraltar. However, RAF Gibraltar is capable and prepared to operate Tornado aircraft of all types and the MOD reserves the right to operate aircraft of all types from the station in accordance with Defence requirements.

Iraq: Peacekeeping Operations

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the Answer of 31 March 2008, Official Report, column 518W, on Iraq: peacekeeping operations, whether the members of the former Serious Crimes Unit of the Basra Police were ever in the custody of UK forces; and what information he has regarding their current location. [201957]

Des Browne: Some members of the Serious Crimes Unit (SCU) have been held in the custody of UK forces in Iraq, although we have no reason to believe that these included any of the individuals against whom arrest warrants have been issued. Those SCU members previously held by UK forces have now been released, as our in-theatre review process concluded that their internment was no longer deemed necessary for imperative reasons of security.

I am withholding information relating to the current location of former members of the SCU as disclosure would, or would be likely to, prejudice the capability, effectiveness or security of the armed forces.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what plans he has for the withdrawal of British troops from Iraq. [205288]

Des Browne: As I explained in my statement of 24 April 2008, Official Report, column 107WS, UK force levels in southern Iraq will stay at around 4,000 following Iraqi-led operations to enforce the rule of law in Basra, and while military commanders continue to assess the changing situation on the ground. It remains our clear intention to reduce troop numbers in Iraq as and when conditions allow.

Military Decorations

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) what progress has been made in the implementation of the conclusions of the Joint Service Review of Honours and Awards; [203502]

(2) what consideration the Joint Service Review of Honours and Awards gave to (a) gallant, (b) meritorious and (c) long-standing service for (i) regular and (ii) reserve forces; if he will place in the Library a copy of the Joint Service Review's report; and if he will make a statement; [203503]

(3) when he plans to implement the conclusions of the Joint Service Review of Honours and Awards in respect of regular service personnel; and if he will make a statement. [203504]

Derek Twigg: The MOD's Joint Service Review of Honours and Awards in 2000 made a number of recommendations. Details of these and their subsequent implementation are included in the final report. I am placing a copy of this report in the Library of the House.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to introduce a regular forces service medal to recognise long service in the armed forces; and if he will make a statement. [204909]

Derek Twigg: There are no plans to introduce a regular forces service medal to recognise long service in the armed forces, though such matters are kept under review. This subject was reviewed in the 1990s as part of the Joint Service Review of Honours and Awards, which concluded that

> "The proposal that the existing Long Service and Good Conduct (LS&GC) medals should be replaced by an award open to all ranks of all three services was rejected [by the military Chiefs of Staff] in favour of 'no change'."

Long service and good conduct is already recognised for non-commissioned members of the Royal Navy, Army and Royal Air Force. Each of the three services of the armed forces has its own version of the LS&GC with differing regulations, though the standard of conduct is common to each service.

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence whether he plans to invite the Committee on Honours, Decorations and Medals to consider the introduction of a medal for international service for United Kingdom armed forces to replace those issued by international organisations; and if he will make a statement. [204910]

Derek Twigg: At the present time, there are no plans to introduce a new medal that would replace medals awarded for campaign service operations under the command of international organisations such as NATO, the United Nations (UN) and the European Union (EU). As with all medal policy issues, this matter is kept under review.

Navy: Medals

Mr. Hoyle: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence if he will change the qualification criteria for a General Service Medal with Suez 'canal zone' clasp so that Navy personnel qualify for a medal after 30 days aggregated service. [205710]

Derek Twigg: There are no plans to seek to change the qualifying criteria for the 'canal zone' clasp to the Naval General Service Medal 1915-62.

Reserve Forces: NHS

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what discussions he has had with the Secretary of State for Health on encouraging more NHS staff to become reservists. [204352]

Derek Twigg: Defence Ministers have met their counterparts on a number of occasions where the subject of NHS reservists was discussed. Officials within the MOD and the UK Health Departments have further advanced this issue under the auspices of the MOD/UK Health Departments Partnership Board. The Partnership Board is currently exploring a number of ways in which NHS staff can be encouraged to become reservists. These include targeted MOD recruitment campaigns and the education of NHS employers on the benefits to the NHS, in terms of clinical and leadership skills, of their staff being members of the volunteer reserve.

The MOD and the Department of Health are also developing the concept of sponsored medical reservists. The aim is to encourage specialist civilian clinicians to mobilise for a limited period within a deployed medical facility. My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State for Health announced our intentions in a speech in April at a dinner hosted by the Supporting Britain's Reservists and Employers (SaBRE) organisation. The invited guests at the dinner consisted of NHS executives from NHS Trusts in the North-West. As part of his speech he also spoke of his support for NHS staff being members of the volunteer reserves and his hope that NHS employers would actively support staff who became reservists.

I am appreciative of the support of the UK Health Departments and the NHS in taking this work forward.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Census

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what arrangements have been made for release of output area census data from the forthcoming census to businesses; and if he will make a statement. [200843]

Mr. Watson: The information falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 15 May 2008:

As National Statistician I am replying to your recent question asking what arrangements have been made for release of output area census data from the forthcoming census to businesses. (200843)

A consultation on Small Area Geographies in England and Wales ran for three months up to the end of February 2007. Its aim was to inform thinking on the future policy for small area geographies for National Statistics, and specifically the way forward on the use of Output Areas (OAs) and Super Output Areas (SOAs). Informed by this consultation it has been decided that OAs in England and Wales will remain largely unchanged from the 2001 Census.

Arrangements for the release of outputs from the 2011 Census are not yet finalised. No specific arrangements have yet been made with businesses, but consideration is being given to the requirements of commercial users of the data through ongoing consultation with user and advisory groups. Currently, an on-line consultation is being carried out to identify views and priorities from a variety of Census users, including business users, on high level output issues regarding data dissemination and media.

Civil Servants: Internet

Mr. Maude: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what guidance (a) his Department and (b) the Cabinet Secretary provides to civil servants on the use of social networking sites and blogs. [198180]

Edward Miliband: The values and principles set out in the Civil Service Code apply to civil servants' use of online channels (such as blogs and social networking sites) as well as offline activity. Propriety guidance for Government communication also applies. Copies of both documents are in the Library of the House.

In addition the Cabinet Office is also developing guidance for civil servants specifically on the use of social media (including blogs and social networking sites).

Departmental Written Questions

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many days it took on average to answer written parliamentary questions tabled by each hon. Member for answer by him in the last six months. [201770]

Edward Miliband: Information on the average number of days taken to answer parliamentary questions is not readily available in the format requested and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Ipsos MORI

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what payments (a) the Cabinet Office and (b) its agencies have made to Ipsos MORI in the last 24 months; and for what purposes. [193820]

Phil Hope: The total paid to Ipsos MORI in the period 1 April 2005 to 31 March 2007 is £376,197. It is not possible to give details as to the purposes of the spend with Ipsos MORI without incurring disproportionate costs. It is for relevant Departments to account for work commissioned through the Central Office of Information (COI).

Northern Rock

Mr. Hands: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what statistics the UK Statistics Authority will be required to collate relating to Northern Rock. [204940]

Phil Hope: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 15 May 2008:

As National Statistician I have been asked to reply to your recent question what statistics the UK Statistics Authority will be required to collate relating to Northern Rock. (204940).

The Office for National Statistics, as the executive agency of the UK Statistics Authority, will not compile any statistics specifically about Northern Rock plc. It would be disclosive to present statistics on any entity that is competing in a market economy. As Northern Rock plc is active in the economy its relevant information is used in the National Accounts and in Labour Market statistics. While Northern Rock plc is classified as part of the public sector, its relevant information will be collated for inclusion in Public Sector Finances and Public Sector Employment statistics.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Developing Countries: Food

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development whether his Department is monitoring changes in dietary habits in regard to staple foods in (a) developing and (b) least developed countries; and if he will make a statement. [202768]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development (DFID) is monitoring changes in diet in developing and least developed countries. The Department does this in a number of different ways. We support global research by the Consultative Group on International Agricultural Research (CGIAR) and in particular the International Food Policy Research Institute. We support data gathering and analysis by the United Nation's Food and Agriculture Organisation (FAO). We liaise with our own in-country and regional offices and carry out our own analysis of CGIAR and FAO information.

European Union Global Climate Change Alliance

Mark Lazarowicz: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what support the Government plan to give to the European Union Global Climate Change Alliance. [204968]

Mr. Thomas: We welcome the European Commission's Global Climate Change Alliance, which aims to help poor developing countries most vulnerable to climate change to increase their capabilities to adapt to the effects of climate change and to have their voice better heard in the international climate change negotiations. We believe that the GCCA's proposal to pilot a programmatic approach to integrating climate resilience into development planning will help to provide valuable lessons for future adaptation responses. It is essential that this is well co-ordinated with other adaptation financing initiatives and is delivered in line with the Paris Declaration on Aid Effectiveness. We look forward to reviewing the EC's working paper on the GCCA and will consider support once this has been presented to member states.

Iraq: Education

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government have taken on the development of education in Iraq since 2003. [205286]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Since 2003, the Department for International Development (DFID) has not provided any direct financial assistance to develop the education sector in Iraq. However, we have contributed £70 million to the International Reconstruction Fund Facility for Iraq (IRFFI), which encompasses two trust funds administered by the United Nations and World Bank. 25 donors have committed over $1.8 billion to IRFFI since 2003. This money has been used to provide assistance to a range of sectors and development projects across Iraq, including projects to rehabilitate schools, provide essential text books and train Iraqi teachers.

DFID's wider priority is to support the Iraqi Government to spend their considerable oil wealth more effectively—to provide sustained improvements to the lives of the Iraqi people. We are therefore working with both central and local government institutions to help them to manage and disburse their finances—which will give the Iraqi Government the ability to provide better public services and to take a lead in developing their own education system.

Iraq: Health Services

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what steps the Government have taken to assist the Iraqi government in developing health care services since 2003. [205287]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Since 2003, the UK has contributed a total of £70 million to the United Nations and World Bank Trust Funds for Iraq, which together are spending over $180 million to repair hospitals, train health care staff and improve nutrition. The UK has also contributed £5 million to the World Health Organisation, which has helped fund emergency medical supplies, supported clinics and hospitals in Baghdad and Basra, and supports the Government of Iraq's Health Sector Working Group.

The UK has contributed £49 million to international agencies to support protection and emergency assistance activities in Iraq. This has included the provision of urgently needed medical supplies and improving health facilities, including physical rehabilitation and training for staff.

Since 2003, the UK's financial assistance has helped contribute to the rehabilitation or equipping of over 1,000 health care facilities and the training of over 6,000 staff.

In addition to DFID's financial assistance, the UK Department of Health is providing £5 million to fund the Iraqi Clinical Training Project—designed to update the skills of around 400 clinicians and managers in the Iraqi health service by providing eight-week training attachments in the UK. Initial feedback from the Iraqi Ministry of Health Inspectorate General is strongly positive in terms of the actions and impact that the returning clinicians have begun to make.

DFID's wider priority is to support the Iraqi Government to spend their considerable oil wealth more effectively—to provide sustained improvements to the lives of the Iraqi people. We are therefore assisting both central and local government institutions to manage and disburse their finances—which will then allow the Iraqi Government to take a lead in improving their own health care services.

Iraq: Reconstruction

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how much the Government have allocated to Iraq for reconstruction purposes since 2003. [205290]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: Since 2003, the UK Government have pledged £744 million for reconstruction and development for Iraq. So far, over £720 million of this has been disbursed, of which £532 million has been spent by the Department for International Development (DFID) (including EC contributions).

Smoking

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many smoking shelters were built at each of his Department's London buildings in each of the last five years. [205039]

Mr. Thomas: The Department for International Development has built no smoking shelters over the last five years.

JUSTICE

Bail Accommodation and Support Service

Mr. Pope: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many bail accommodation centres there are in each parliamentary constituency in England. [205291]

Mr. Hanson: The Bail Accommodation and Support Service provided by ClearSprings provides rented housing for users, with a maximum of five sharing. At 2 May there were 157 houses available in England and Wales. The requirement is kept under review. The following table shows in which constituencies these were located:

[205448]

Bridget Prentice: Pursuant to the answer of 7 May 2008, Official Report, columns 982-83W, a list which contains details of the action taken or planned in each case has been placed in the Library.

Electoral Register: Freedom of Information

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether the marked electoral register is excluded from the disclosure provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000; and if he will make a statement. [205649]

Bridget Prentice: The Freedom of Information Act provides a general right to access information held by public authorities, subject to certain exemptions. The right of access under the Freedom of Information Act 2000 is supplementary to the very many ways in which public authorities already provide information to members of the public. Under regulations made under the Electoral Administration Act 2006, the marked electoral register is available for people to inspect for one year after polling day, under the supervision of the Electoral Registration Officer, for research or electoral purposes. Copies of the marked electoral register may be supplied to certain authorised persons and bodies for research or electoral purposes.

Life Imprisonment: Prisoners Release

Mr. Garnier: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 30 January 2008, Official Report, column 485W, on life imprisonment: prisoners release, and with reference to the answer of 12 June 2006, Official Report, column 1035W, on life sentences, for what reasons it was not possible to provide the information requested. [205100]

Mr. Hanson: To provide the information requested would require data matching between different sources of information, and manual checking of individual records which could be carried out only at disproportionate cost. Data migration for the Department's new database is currently under way and will be subject to data quality assurance. I will write to the hon. and learned Member within the next few weeks, to provide the information that will be available from it, where relevant.

Prisoners: Uniforms

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance is in place on the wearing of uniforms by prisoners; and if he will make a statement. [205812]

Mr. Hanson: Prison rules allow unconvicted prisoners and civil prisoners to wear their own clothes. Other prisoners are required to wear clothing provided for them; however PSO 4000 provides guidance on the wearing of own clothes which is one of the key earnable privileges in the incentives and earned privilege scheme.

Prisons: Audio Equipment

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what guidance is in force on the use of personal music systems by prisoners, with particular reference to permissible volume levels. [205810]

Mr. Hanson: Guidance on prisoners' in-possession property is contained in PSO 1250 (a copy of which is in the Library) dependent on the local incentives and earned privileges scheme. Prisoners may be allowed to have in their possession a personal music system. This is at the discretion of the Governor dependant on good behaviour under the local incentives and earned privileges scheme. There is no central guidance with regard to permissible volume levels. It is a matter for local management and the discretion of staff to ensure that music does not disturb other prisoners, especially at night.

Prisons: Islam

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what institutional arrangements are in place for the aftercare of Muslim prisoners. [205894]

Mr. Straw: All prisoners who serve 12 months or more are subject to a period of statutory supervision on release. Those sentenced to any period in custody who are under 21 years at the point of release will also be supervised by the National Offender Management Service (NOMS) on a standard three-month licence.

Prisoners on licence are seen by NOMS who assess and manage their risk and needs, such as accommodation, relationships, lifestyle, etc. The religious needs of prisoners are considered and treated with respect. Supervision is conducted in a way that is consistent with and responsive to the religious affiliation of the offender, and appointments are arranged at times that do not prevent attendance at religious events.

Prisons: Television

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many television sets are available for use by prisoners in prisons in England and Wales; and at what cost. [205811]

Mr. Straw: The provision of televisions to prisoners has been devolved to Governors and Directors of contracted prisons, and therefore the total number of televisions available for use by prisoners is not held centrally. Public funds are not used to support the purchase of television sets used in cells. These costs are covered by the weekly rental paid by prisoners for the use of the sets. A cell television is only available through the incentives and earned privileges scheme.

Probation

Mr. David Anderson: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice whether he has received a copy of the Centre for Crime and Justice's report on probation resources, staffing and workloads from 2001 to 2008; and if he will make a statement. [204585]

Mr. Hanson: I have received a copy of the Centre for Crime and Justice Studies' Report (Probation Resources Staffing and Workloads 2001-2008) from Judy McKnight (General Secretary of NAPO).

Earlier in the year, I announced an extra £40 million funding for the NFS. This was in addition to an extra average of 2.7 per cent. budget for each probation area and an average increase of 5.4 per cent. in respect of approved premises. Officials are working closely with NAPO and the other NFS trade unions on the broad issue of capacity and workloads.

HOME DEPARTMENT

Acceptable Behaviour Contracts

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent estimate she has made of the breach rate of acceptable behaviour contracts issued to persons under 18 years of age in the latest period for which figures are available. [195646]

Mr. Coaker: Acceptable Behaviour Contracts (ABCs) are voluntary agreements and therefore not suitable for central data collection. A National Audit Office (NAO) report published in December 2006 found ABCs to be highly effective, particularly when agencies provided support to improve the recipient's chances of meeting the conditions.

Anti-Social Behaviour Orders: North West

Mark Hunter: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many antisocial behaviour orders were breached in each parliamentary constituency in the north-west in each year since 1997. [205630]

Mr. Coaker: Antisocial behaviour orders (ASBOs) became available in April 1999. Information on the number of ASBOs breached is not collected centrally at parliamentary constituency level and not compiled below Criminal Justice System (CJS) area level.

Currently, ASBO breach data are available for ASBOs breached between 1 June 2000 and 31 December 2006.

The number of ASBOs breached in each year in each CJS area within the north-west region is shown in the following table. Please note that the table takes the data from those shown in Table 7 as published on the Crime Reduction website.

ASBOs issued in the north-west region proven in court to have been breached for the first time within the periods shown[1] by CJS area[2] from 1 June 2000 to 31 December 2006

Region	2000-2002[3]	2003	2004	2005	2006	Total
North-west	57	184	367	514	391	1,513
of which:
Cumbria	2	15	23	24	30	94
Greater Manchester	28	117	219	308	203	875
Lancashire	15	28	52	80	78	253
Merseyside	6	16	39	65	51	177
Cheshire	6	8	34	37	29	114

[1] ASBOs may be breached more than once and in more than one year. In this table ASBOs are counted once only within the period when they were first breached.
[2] ASBOs may be issued in one area and breached in another. Breaches are counted in this table by area of ISSUE.
[3] From 1 June 2000.
Note:
Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.

Assets Recovery Agency

Mr. Chaytor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department if she will make it her policy to ensure that staff due to be transferred from the Assets Recovery Agency to the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA) are assimilated on the same basis as staff previously transferred to SOCA from HM Revenue and Customs and the UK Immigration Service; and if she will make a statement. [190663]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 10 March 2008]: The employment terms of SOCA officers are a matter in law for the director general of SOCA.

I understand that the assimilation of ARA staff into SOCA was handled so as to be fair to both the ARA staff and existing SOCA staff, with staff fulfilling equivalent roles placed in the same grade. ARA staff were assimilated on terms which resulted in no one losing money and in pay increases with effect from 1 April 2008 for around 45 per cent. of ARA staff.

Further, SOCA plans in the autumn of 2008 a job evaluation exercise for all its staff. This will ensure that initial gradings of former ARA staff were correct as well as addressing any remaining anomalies in the grading of existing SOCA staff.

Automatic Number Plate Recognition

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what funding her Department has given to (a) police authorities and (b) local authorities for the installation and operation of automatic number plate recognition systems in the last 12 months. [199582]

Mr. Coaker: During the 2007-08 financial year, the Home Office gave £186,983.25 in funding for the installation and operation of automatic number plate recognition (ANPR) systems.

This total is made up of the following amounts:

Durham Police Authority	81,373.25
Kent Police Authority	100,000.00
Merseyside Police Authority	5,610.00

In addition to this, from the funding devolved to them by the Home Office, the Government office for the south-west gave Cheltenham city council £35,000.

Crime: Schools

Ms Dari Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what recent steps she has taken to reduce crime in and around schools in (a) England and (b) Stockton. [189339]

Mr. Coaker: Nationally, the Government are committed to improving the life chances of children and young people, by having fewer young people affected by crime and reduce youth victimisation.

The main initiative to tackle crime on and around school premises has been the Safer School Partnerships (SSPs) originally launched in 2002.

SSPs are a successful mechanism for ensuring structured joint working between schools and police, to identify and support children and young people regarding as being at high risk of victimisation, offending and social exclusion. There are now about 500 SSPs of one form or another across the country. Evaluations have shown that they are proving effective in improving behaviour and attendance, developing strong and positive relationships between the police and young people, and to help young people develop a sense of being part of the local community.

Because of the proven success of SSPs, the Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) has been working closely with the Home Office, the Association of Chief Police Officers (ACPO) and the Youth Justice Board (YJB) to encourage more schools and police to engage in this type of early intervention and preventative work which is so vital to achieving the outcomes we are all committed to.

There is already a great deal of work going on across Government to tackle offenders and help vulnerable young people achieve the Every Child Matters outcome to 'Stay Safe'. Initiatives include Youth Inclusion Support Panels and the Youth Inclusion Programme. And since 2004, we have invested over £45 million in Youth Offending Teams which have pioneered antisocial behaviour prevention activities for young people at most risk. Their work includes:

Youth Inclusion Support Panels and;

Youth Inclusion Programmes.

The Home Office has invested in other prevention programmes such as Positive Futures. Around 22,000 young people are currently involved in Positive Futures projects nationwide.

The Youth Taskforce has also been established at the Department for Children, Schools and Families to focus on delivering positive outcomes for young people. The Taskforce is focusing more on preventing teenagers from experiencing serious problems—such as being drawn into youth crime and antisocial behaviour.

In Stockton, the AntiSocial Behaviour (ASB) team in Stockton borough council is working closely with schools to reduce crime in and around school premises. The ASB team consists of seconded police officers, a fire officer and council officers.

The emphasis is very much on preventing crime in the first place and building relationships with young people before crimes are committed. Each ASB officer covers specific wards in Stockton and works closely with schools in their area. They visit schools in uniform to encourage young people not to accept crime and to report it when they do encounter it.

Where there is a case of crime or antisocial behaviour in or around schools, the ASB officer will go and speak to the young person at school.

Where appropriate, a form will be completed detailing what they have done and their parents will be informed.

Crimes of Violence: Sulphuric Acid

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many offences of assaults were recorded in each year since 1997 where the assailant used sulphuric acid as a weapon; how many prosecutions were brought; and how many convictions resulted. [205524]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. It is not possible to identify assaults using sulphuric acid from either the recorded crime statistics collected by the Home Office or from the court proceedings data held by the Ministry of Justice.

Crimes of Violence: Uxbridge

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) crimes of violence against the person and (b) burglaries were recorded in Uxbridge constituency in each of the last five years. [200196]

Mr. Coaker [holding answer 21 April 2008]: Statistics are not collected specifically on a constituency basis. The Home Office does publish statistics at crime and disorder reduction partnership (CDRP) area level. The number of offences of violence against the person and burglaries for each of the last five years by CDRP is available on the Home Office website at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrpog.xls.

Also available is a look-up table that identifies which constituencies are associated with CDRPs. In many instances, a CDRP may comprise of more than one constituency. Conversely, some constituencies will come within two or more CDRPs, either wholly or partially. The look-up table is available at:

http://www.homeoffice.gov.uk/rds/pdfs08/cdrp-constituency-table.xls.

Copies of both the statistics table and the look-up table are available in the Library.

Departmental Translation Services

Mr. Paul Goodman: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department with reference to the answer of 15 January 2007, Official Report, column 785W, on translation costs, how much was spent on translating her Department's publications into languages other than English in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06, (d) 2006-07 and (e) 2007-08. [203948]

Mr. Coaker: I refer the hon. Member to the reply given on 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 108W.

Domestic Violence

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many cases of domestic violence were reported to the police in (a) England and (b) Wales in each of the last three years, broken down by region. [204376]

Mr. Coaker: Data on the number of domestic violence incidents reported to the police in England and Wales are collected as part of a Statutory Performance Indicator, over the past three years under the Police Performance Assessment Framework.

The number of domestic violence incidents for 2004-05, 2005-06 and 2006-07 broken down by police force area in England and Wales is given in the following table.

Human Trafficking

Damian Green: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many (a) convictions were secured and (b) how many sentences were passed, broken down by category, as a result of Operation Pentameter 2. [205457]

Mr. Coaker: From an interrogation of the police national computer as of 12 May there have been a total of 86 convictions for human trafficking since the introduction of the Sexual Offences Act 2003. The number of convictions and range of sentences arising from Pentameter 2 is not yet known given that the operation is still ongoing and that cases are at various stages of the criminal justice system.

Internet: Crime

Margaret Moran: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what guidance she has issued to police forces on the establishment of courts to deal with e-crime. [188917]

Mr. Coaker: The UK prosecutes on the basis of the offence committed, rather than the medium used. These is no offence of 'e-crime' but there are serious crimes committed by means of computers.

The Crown Prosecution Service (CPS) Organised Crime Division (OCD) prosecutes cases which are investigated by the Serious Organised Crime Agency (SOCA). The CPS is finalising a protocol with Her Majesty's Courts Service (HMCS) which will be issued by the Senior Presiding Judge. This protocol will provide for Designated Court Centres (DCC) for SOCA cases which are prosecuted by OCD. This will be an effective way to manage the prosecution of these cases which are typically multi handed, voluminous and raise complex and specialist issues of law. The process of designating court centres will take into account geographical factors and the size, security and facilities at court centres. The DCC, coupled with consistent judicial oversight of the management of these cases will help to ensure that justice is delivered swiftly and effectively without undue delay.

The protocol will apply to all SOCA cases that are prosecuted by OCD including cases involving e-crime.

Mugging

Dr. Kumar: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many persons over 65 years old were subject to street robbery in (a) England and Wales, (b) the North East, (c) Tees Valley district and (d) Middlesbrough South and East Cleveland constituency in each year since 1997. [205763]

Mr. Coaker: The information requested is not collected centrally. While the Home Office collects statistics on recorded offences of robbery it is not possible to determine the age of the victim or the location of the offence from this data.

Offenders: Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department how many sex offenders were subject to multi-agency public protection arrangements in each of the last three years. [193857]

Mr. Coaker: All sex offenders who become subject to the notification requirements of the Sexual Offences Act 2003 are subject to the multi-agency public protection arrangements. The figures for the number of sex offenders subject to the notification requirements are provided in the following table.

	Total number of registered sex offenders
2004-05	28,994
2005-06	29,983
2006-07	30,416

Pornography: Internet

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions she has had with credit card companies to prevent the purchase of child abuse pictures over the internet. [188873]

Mr. Coaker: APACS, the UK payments association, on behalf of their members contribute funds to support the operation of the Internet Watch Foundation (IWF) Hotline as does another credit card entity who is not a member of APACS. The IWF works in partnership with law enforcement agencies and individual credit card companies by sharing information with them to assist their operations designed to tackle the commercialisation of indecent images of children. APACS played a key role in supporting a change in data protection legislation in 2006 which ensures that where paedophiles have used credit or debit cards to access child abuse images online, law enforcement can share that information with card providers so that they can terminate the contract and take away the card used.

Proceeds of Crime

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 29 January 2008, Official Report, columns 212-6W, on proceeds of crime, how many confiscation orders were not successfully enforced, broken down by police force area in each month of the last year. [188863]

Mr. Coaker: The information is not available. Confiscation orders are made with time to pay and are often paid over several months. Enforcement in some cases does not relate to police force areas. Enforcement is primarily the responsibility of Her Majesty's Courts Service.

Tranquillisers: Rehabilitation

Jim Dobbin: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department for what reasons involuntary tranquilliser addicts are not included in the drug strategy. [196559]

Mr. Coaker: The Drug Strategy is focused on illegal drugs and the most dangerous drugs, including class A drugs such as heroin and crack cocaine. The reason for this is that illegal drugs cause significant and wide ranging problems to individuals, families and communities, including drug-related crime and health harms. class A drug use generates an estimated £15.4 billion in crime and health costs each year and between a third and a half of acquisitive crime is estimated to be drug related. Due to this, the new strategy focuses on achieving a long-term and sustainable reduction in the harms associated with illegal drugs.

The mechanisms by which individuals may develop dependency and, therefore, the means by which such dependency may be tackled, differ in the cases of illegal drugs and legally prescribed drugs. For example, interventions to limit the supply of illegal drugs would be inappropriate to deal with prescription drugs. Similarly, the harms caused by prescription drugs differ from those generated by illegal drug use. The latter give rise to predominantly crime and social harms, whereas prescription drugs give rise to health harms and, indeed, health harms requiring interventions other than those employed in the treatment of dependency on illegal drugs such as crack cocaine and heroin. For these reasons, it would be inappropriate for prescribed tranquillisers to be subject to the measures set out in the strategy to tackle the harms caused by illegal drug use.

TREASURY

Bank Services: Disadvantaged

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to encourage banks to offer banking facilities in deprived areas. [205206]

Kitty Ussher: The Government continue to work in partnership with banks and other financial services providers to ensure a full range of mainstream financial services are available to people living in deprived areas.

Since 2004 the Government and the banking industry have had a shared goal of halving the number of people without access to any kind of bank account. The Family Resource Survey data for 2005-06 showed encouraging progress against this goal—800,000 adults brought into banking since 2002-03—60 per cent. of progress towards the shared goal.

In December 2007 the Government also announced that 337 new, free to access cash machines are now operating in low income areas as defined by the ATM Working Group (since December 2006), with a further 206 due to be installed in the first half of 2008. These 543 new free cash machines will benefit around 1.2 million residents, who will no longer need to pay charges or travel outside their community to withdraw cash.

To increase the availability of affordable credit the Government also announced a commitment from the banking industry to support new third sector lending provision in 25 high priority areas identified by the Financial Inclusion Taskforce.

Bankruptcy

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many enforcement cases brought by HM Revenue and Customs involved taxpayers being declared bankrupt in the last period for which figures are available, broken down by level of claims made. [205744]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is not available centrally and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Manpower

Danny Alexander: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff worked in the (a) escalating cases team and (b) intermediaries team of group 33 on tax credits in each year since it was established; and if he will make a statement. [205814]

Jane Kennedy: Group 33 in Tax Credit Office (TCO) was formed towards the end of 2004-05 to handle referrals from HM Revenue and Customs Contact and Enquiry Centres and to manage the dedicated helpline for intermediaries in the voluntary sector. This is now known as the Escalated Cases and Intermediaries Team. It is not possible to isolate the number of staff allocated to each task as TCO deploys its resources according to demand. The average number of full-time equivalent (FTE) staff allocated to these two tasks in each full year was:

	Average FTE
2005-06	65
2006-07	53
2007-08	45

The reduction in the number of FTE staff reflects the general reduction in the number of cases being escalated by the Tax Credits Helpline.

Financial Services: Pay

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the Answer of 28 April 2008, Official Report, column 142-3W, on financial services: pay, what guidance his Department has issued to the remuneration committees of those banks and financial institutions in receipt of financial support from the public purse. [205305]

Kitty Ussher: Further to my earlier answer, it is sensible to ensure that remunerations are based on merit and support the delivery of agreed objectives.

The Northern Rock Shareholder Relationship Framework Document published on 31 March 2008, a copy of which is available in the Library, set out how those principles will apply in relation to Northern Rock during the present period of temporary public ownership (see paragraphs 9 to 12).

Gaming Machines: Licensing

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how much was received in amusement machine licence duty in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06 and (d) 2006-07, broken down by category of machine; [205739]

(2) how much was received in amusement machine licence duty in each month from April 2007 to March 2008, broken down by category of machine; [205740]

(3) what estimate he has made of likely revenue from amusement machine licence duty in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11, broken down by category of machine. [205741]

Angela Eagle: The total annual and monthly receipts from amusement machine licence duty can be found in the HM Revenue and Customs Betting and Gaming Statistical Bulletin, which is available from the HMRC website address at:

http://www.uktradeinfo.co.uk/index.cfm?task=bullbett

Information on amusement machine licence duty broken down by category of machine is not available.

Disaggregated estimates for individual duties within the overall revenue forecast for betting and gaming duties are not available. The most recent published forecast for betting and gaming duties can be found in Table C6 of the latest Financial Statement and Budget Report, at the following link:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/7/3/bud08_chapterc.pdf

Justine Greening: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) how many applications for amusement machine licences were received in (a) 2003-04, (b) 2004-05, (c) 2005-06 and (d) 2006-07, broken down by category of machine; [205742]

(2) how many applications for amusement machine licences were received in each month between April 2007 and March 2008, broken down by category of machine; [205743]

(3) what estimate he has made of the number of applications for amusement machine licences in (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11, broken down by category of machine. [205733]

Angela Eagle: Premises licences can authorise machines in more than one category. It is not possible to break down the number of licences by category of machine.

HMRC do not maintain historical records or produce forecasts of numbers of applications received. The numbers of licences issued for the historic periods in question are shown in the following tables.

	Number
2003-04	136,462
2004-05	127,938
2005-06	123,702
2006-07	140,278

	Number
April 2007	8,165
May 2007	8,508
June 2007	8,911
July 2007	10,000
August 2007	29,370
September 2007	9,901
October 2007	9,648
November 2007	16,757
December 2007	7,144
January 2008	8,002
February 2008	11,405
March 2008	10,198

Interest Rates

Chris Ruane: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent representations he has received on decisions of banks and building societies on whether to pass on interest rate changes to customers. [205212]

Kitty Ussher: The Chancellor receives representations from a wide range of stakeholders on issues relating to the bank and building society sector.

Decisions concerning products and pricing are commercial decisions for banks and building societies.

In order to strengthen support for home owners facing difficulties with their mortgage payments, the Government—working with the mortgage industry—announced on 9 May, a range of measures including improved access to debt advice.

National Savings and Investments: Telephone Services

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what recent assessment he has made of the performance of National Savings and Investment's telephone service; and if he will make a statement. [205235]

Kitty Ussher: NS&I have two service delivery measures (SDMs), set by HM Treasury, relating to overall customer service. For 2006-07, the last year for which there are currently audited results, these were:

To achieve consistent accuracy in meeting increasingly challenging targets; and

To achieve consistent timeliness in meeting increasingly challenging targets.

Performance against these measures is assessed through measurement of average performance against key performance indicator targets. This includes assessment of the standard of the NS&I telephone service, which is monitored regularly against monthly key performance indicators.

The target for the NS&I inquiry line is that 90 per cent. of delivered, answerable calls should be answered and for the sales line that 90 per cent. of delivered calls should be answered within 20 seconds of becoming answerable. Latest data available demonstrates that these targets were comfortably exceeded.

Pre-School Education: Finance

Susan Kramer: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how much he plans his Department will spend on extending the universal early years education entitlement to 15 hours per week in each of the next five years; and if he will make a statement. [205621]

Beverley Hughes: I have been asked to reply.

The extension of the free entitlement will enhance the opportunities available to every three and four year old, giving them the best possible start in life. Providing 15 more flexible hours will also ensure that families are able to use the entitlement in a way which best helps them to balance work and family life.

The Government invest more than £3 billion per year in the existing entitlement. In addition, the extension to the free entitlement is being funded through a new investment of £590 million over 2008-11 (£80 million in 2008-09, £170 million in 2009-10 and £340 million in 2010-11.

Funding beyond 2011 will, of course, be a matter for future spending reviews.

Public Expenditure

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether the figures in tables 1.7 and 1.10 of Public Expenditure Statistical Analysis 2008, HC489, 2007-08, are presented gross or net of operating and non-operating appropriations in aid. [205310]

Yvette Cooper: The figures in tables 1.7 and 1.10 are presented net of income treated as negative DEL. Operating and non-operating appropriations in aid is an Estimates term. Budgeting treatment does not follow from the Estimates treatment; this is explained in the Consolidated Budgeting Guidance, which can be viewed at the following link:

http://www.hm-treasury.gov.uk/media/4/1/consolidated_budguid010208.pdf

Mr. Letwin: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to tables 1.7 and 1.10 of Public Expenditure Statistical Analysis 2008, HC 489, if he will provide a breakdown of the equivalent figures for 2001-02 on the same basis. [205360]

Yvette Cooper: Public Expenditure Statistical Analysis (PESA) 2007, CM7091, provides data for 2001-02. However data for 2001-02 have since been archived, and due to Machinery of Government and Classification changes, data for 2001-02 are not available on the same basis as the data provided in PESA 2008.

Revenue and Customs: Correspondence

Damian Green: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what target he has set HM Revenue and Customs on the time taken to reply to correspondence from hon. Members; and if he will make a statement. [205414]

Jane Kennedy: HMRC aim to reply to 80 per cent. of all correspondence within 15 working days, and 95 per cent. within 40 days. Hon. Members can use the dedicated hotlines that HMRC have in place for specific issues, such as the 'MP hotline' for telephone queries regarding hon. Members' constituents' tax credits claims.

Transfer Pricing

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer how many staff in his Department deal with transfer pricing matters as their main responsibility. [205249]

Jane Kennedy: At the present time, the number of staff in HMRC who deal with transfer pricing as their main responsibility is 67.

Valuation Office: Wales

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the cost of extending the Automated Valuation Model of the Valuation Office Agency to Wales is. [205445]

Jane Kennedy: No separate cost has been determined.

VAT: Sports

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what his policy is on the VAT treatment of sports and leisure trusts; and if he will make a statement. [205745]

Jane Kennedy: As provided for by our European VAT agreements, the supply of sporting services is exempt from VAT when supplied by non-profit making organisations such as sports and leisure trusts.

However this VAT exemption applies only to sporting services and cannot extend to the use of saunas, steam rooms, or to season tickets which entitle customers to use both sports and other, non-sporting, facilities. Such supplies have been subject to VAT since 1973 when the tax was introduced.

HM Revenue and Customs is aware that a number of organisations have been applying the VAT rules in this area incorrectly, and published Revenue and Customs Brief 50/07 in July 2007 to clarify the matter. However, this brief did not change any of the VAT rules, nor did it impose VAT on supplies that were properly exempt from VAT.

I refer the hon. Member to the answer I gave on 14 March 2008, Official Report, column 722W, to my hon. Friend the Member for Eltham (Clive Efford).

Welfare Tax Credits: Fraud

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 25 April 2008, Official Report, column 2313W, on welfare tax credits, when David Wilshaw and Nancy Stevenson first made a fraudulent tax credit claim; and when fraud was first detected in any of their claims. [205331]

Jane Kennedy: I refer the hon. Gentleman to the Press Notice issued by HM Revenue and Customs on 10 April and available at:

http://nds.coi.gov.uk/content/detail.asp?ReleaseID=365227&NewsAreaID=139&NavigatedFromSearch=True

Information not included in the Press Notice or disclosed in Court remains confidential.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Agriculture: Subsidies

Nick Harvey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many appeals have been lodged under the single payment scheme appeal procedure since its inception; and how many appeals have been upheld. [205617]

Jonathan Shaw: The Single Payment Scheme Appeal Procedure has two stages. Stage 1 is an internal review of the case by the Rural Payments Agency. If customers are dissatisfied with the outcome they can take the case to Stage 2 where an Independent Appeal Panel reviews the case and makes a recommendation to Ministers. Ministers take the final decision to uphold or reject the appeal.

At 13 May 2008 901 Stage 1 appeals had been considered of which 318 were successful or partially successful. At Stage 2 the Minister had made his decision on 156 appeals of which 12 were successful.

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what percentage of Single Farm Payments due in 2007 has been paid. [205892]

Jonathan Shaw: Payments made under the 2007 Single Payment Scheme (SPS) total £1.255 billion, which is 86.5 per cent. of the estimated total fund of £1.45 billion. 97,809 customers have received a full SPS payment for the 2007 scheme, representing 91.7 per cent. of the estimated total claimant population of 106,700.

Animal Welfare

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the effectiveness of the introduction of cost and responsibility sharing for animal health; and what annual savings he expects this to generate for his Department. [205140]

Jonathan Shaw: A consultation on responsibility and cost sharing for animal health and welfare closed on 15 April. A further public consultation on fully costed proposals is planned for this autumn.

Animals: Exports

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many live (a) cattle, (b) horses, (c) sheep and (d) ponies were exported from the UK in each of the last three years. [205138]

Jonathan Shaw: The number of cattle, horses, ponies, sheep and goats exported from the UK in each of the last three years can be found in the following table:

	2005	2006	2007
Cattle	0	152,754	193,309
Horses and ponies (a)	6,519	5,931	8,090
Sheep and goats (b)	314,136	293,233	208,464
Total	320,655	451,918	409,863

(a) These figures are based on animal health certification and the animal health conditions for horses and ponies are the same. Therefore, the Trade Control and Expert System (TRACES) makes no distinction between the species so they are combined. In addition, the Tripartite agreement between the UK, France and the Republic of Ireland means that horses that move between these countries do not need a health certificate and as such we do not have records of these movements.

(b) It is not possible to separate sheep from goats for all years so they are combined.

These figures are based on the number of animals which, following official veterinary inspection, were shown to have met the rules for intra-community trade. Actual numbers traded may be less (as some animals may not be loaded on vehicle). They represent trade from the UK to other EU member states (excluding Switzerland, Norway, UK-UK trade, Channel Islands, transit to third countries, and including/excluding Romania/Bulgaria depending on year).

Beekeeping: Research

Mr. Todd: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research projects on beekeeping have been funded by his Department in the last five years; what bids for funding for such research projects his Department has not accepted during that period; and if he will make a statement. [205250]

Jonathan Shaw: The following projects have been funded by DEFRA in the last five years.

Project	From	To	Cost (£)
HH0817THB: The control of exotic bee diseases and their likely interactions with UK conditions	2001	2004	330,000
HH0819SHB: Fungal control of Varroa jacobsoni (destructor)	2002	2006	383,802
HH3126SHB: Evaluation of TaqMan real-time PCR for detection of Aethina tumida (Small Hive Beetle)	2005	2005	14,348
HH3223SHB: Minimisation of oxytetracycline levels in honey after antibiotic treatment	2003	2004	25,000
HH3234SHB: Optimisation of detection methods for Melissococcus plutonius (European foulbrood, EFB)	2005	2005	10,101
HH3235SHB: Honey bee virus detection and discrimination	2005	2005	25,233
HH3815SHB: A promotional publication summarising the DEFRA Bee Health Research and Development activity over 10 years	2004	2005	9,920
PH0410: The taxonomy of UK and exotic honey bee viruses: a molecular approach (PhD Fellowship)	2007	2010	81,248
PH0502: Assessing the effectiveness of the shook swarm method for controlling European Foul Brood	2006	2008	185,393
PH0503: Development of a monitoring system for the small hive beetle, Aethina tumida (Murray)	2006	2008	225,772
PN0936: The effects of endocrine disrupters on honeybee populations	2001	2004	86,148
PN0945: Assessing the impact of mixtures of pyrethroids and fungicides on honeybees	2001	2004	55,718
PS2322: Assessment of the risk posed to honeybees by systemic pesticides	2005	2007	46,104
VM02140: Investigation of the fate of veterinary drugs used in apiculture	2004	2007	180,589
VM02156: Investigation into the experimental protocols required to determine Maximum Residue Limits (MRLs) in honey: Preliminary study using organic acids as model compounds to propose ways in which withdrawal times might be calculated	2007	2010	287,083

We do not have full records of bids that were not funded in the last five years. With respect to the last two years, there was a bid for a three-year project to develop management strategies for small hive beetle which was not funded although a shorter project to develop a monitoring system for the small hive beetle is ongoing. There was also an outline proposal but no formal bid for a project to build upon previous DEFRA funded work to develop a biological control product for the varroa mite. This project is still being discussed; a decision has yet to be made about whether this work will be funded.

Bovine Tuberculosis

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent research he has commissioned into the relationship between tuberculosis in animals and human strains of the disease. [204955]

Jonathan Shaw: DEFRA has not commissioned any recent research into the relationship between bovine TB in animals and TB in humans. The risk of humans contracting Mycobacterium bovis (M. bovis) infection from cattle in Great Britain is considered low due to robust human health controls (cattle surveillance and slaughter of infected animals; controls on milk and meat; occupational health controls; and Government Departments and agencies working together to monitor the situation). The majority of cases of tuberculosis in humans are caused by a different organism, Mycobacterium tuberculosis.

At present, less than 1 per cent. of all confirmed cases of TB in humans are due to infection with M. bovis. In these cases, the Health Protection Agency carries out epidemiological investigations into the source and route of transmission of the infection. Most M. bovis infections identified in Britain in the present day have been picked up abroad or prior to the introduction of widespread pasteurisation of milk.

DEFRA monitors all cases of M. bovis in humans to assess the implications for animal health controls.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what evidence he has considered on the relationship between the size of herds and the incidence of bovine tuberculosis in cattle. [204956]

Jonathan Shaw: We have considered a range of evidence relating to risk factors which may increase the likelihood of TB in cattle herds. An association between increased herd size and an increased risk of TB herd breakdown, and persistence of infection, has been reported by several recent studies in the scientific literature. However, the relationship is not straightforward. Testing more animals is likely to result in an increased probability of obtaining a positive test result in the herd, and herd size may be a proxy for other management-related risk factors such as herd turnover rates and stocking density, farm enterprise factors, and risks from foodstuffs.

Carbon Emissions: Retail Trade

Colin Burgon: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will discuss with representatives of the retail sector the effect on energy use of the practice of high street stores leaving their doors open to attract customers. [205823]

Mr. Woolas: The Carbon Trust, which receives funding from DEFRA, runs the UK's main energy efficiency advice programme for business and the public sector, providing tailored advice to retailers about reducing their energy use including the implications of keeping shop doors open during cold weather. The Carbon Trust's publication aimed at retailers: "Retail—Energy management—the new profit centre for retail businesses" (CTV001) contains a wide range of advice to help retailers cut their energy costs and includes a section entitled "Open door policy?" This addresses the issue of heat loss caused by open doors, recommending that retailers keep external doors open only at busy times or install automatic or revolving doors or a draught lobby.

The Carbon Trust is also working with the British Retail Consortium (BRC) to support its new Climate Change initiative 'A Better Retailing Climate' which details the BRC's commitment to lowering emissions across the retail sector through a suite of initiatives, including reducing emissions from buildings by 15 per cent. by 2013.

Departmental Contracts

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what security checks are carried out on civilian contractors working in his Department's establishments. [205391]

Jonathan Shaw: All contractors who need unescorted access to DEFRA buildings, access to computer systems, information and other assets are subject to checks in accordance with the Cabinet Office Baseline Personnel Security Standard. Contractors complete a form and give proof of their identity. When identity documents have been checked and a legal right to work in this country has been established then random criminal records checks are made. Some contractors are subject to Counter Terrorism Checks and higher levels of security clearance.

Departmental Translation Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how much was spent by his Department on translation and interpretation services in 2007-08, broken down by language. [205184]

Jonathan Shaw: The translation section of the Department for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs commissioned freelance translations to the value of £31,957.59 on behalf of DEFRA and its executive agencies in the financial year 2007-08. The language breakdown was as follows (includes translation both from and into the foreign language):

Greek	60.68

Interpretations are commissioned on an ad hoc basis by individual DEFRA business units out of delegated budgets. Information on interpretations is not held centrally and could be compiled only at disproportionate cost.

Dogs: Electric Shock Equipment

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent research he has commissioned on the (a) effectiveness, (b) efficacy and (c) ethics of using electric shock collars on dogs. [204957]

Jonathan Shaw: We have recently commissioned a research project to assess the effect of electronic training aids on the welfare of dogs. The research is due to be completed in 2010.

We have also asked the Companion Animal Welfare Council, an advisory body on companion animal welfare matters, to undertake an independent study of available evidence on the use of these electronic training aids to complement our funded study.

Environment Agency: Finance

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what the Environment Agency's net receipts from contingency fees were in each of the last three years. [205465]

Mr. Woolas: The Environment Agency does not have contingency fees.

Farms

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what records his Department holds on the average cost of farmland in different parts of England. [204511]

Jonathan Shaw: Agricultural land sales transactions data for Government Office Regions (GOR) in England supplied by the Valuations Office Agency (VOA) is available to the end of 2004. For this dataset some county level information is available though this is dependent on the number of transactions in a given period. Subsequent to 2004, trends in land sales across GORs have been monitored through the VOA property market reports and RICS rural land market survey. Additionally, the Farm Business Survey (commissioned by DEFRA on an annual basis) records the value of land on farms in England as part of its measurement of farm assets.

Fisheries

Dr. Julian Lewis: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs (1) whether (a) UK and (b) other EU member states' fishing vessels are permitted to engage in pair-trawling in the six to 12 mile band of UK waters; and if he will make a statement; [204824]

(2) what assessment he has made of the effects of pair-trawling in UK waters on (a) bass and (b) dolphins; and what steps he plans to take to reduce adverse effects. [204825]

Jonathan Shaw: In 2004 we banned pelagic pair trawling for bass by UK vessels within 12 miles of the south west coast of England (within ICES area VIIe) as this fishery was shown to have relatively high levels of cetacean by-catch. Other bass fisheries, such as gillnetting and hand lining, and pair trawl fisheries targeting other species have not been affected.

The UK asked that the ban on pelagic pair trawling for bass be extended to the vessels of other member states, who are currently permitted to fish between six and 12 miles off the south west English coast (under Article 9 of Council Regulation EC No. 2371/2002), but this was turned down by the European Commission. We could therefore only take unilateral action for our own vessels out to 12 miles.

There is ongoing research funded by the Department and carried out by the Sea Mammal Research Unit to monitor by-catch in all relevant UK fishery sectors, including the bass pair trawl fishery, and to research by-catch mitigation measures in order to identify measures that are effective at deterring cetaceans over the long-term and that are safe and cost-effective for the industry. Further analysis of the effectiveness of the 12 mile ban of sea bass pair trawling will be undertaken as further data becomes available.

The scientific advice from the International Council for the Exploration of the Sea (ICES) in 2004, based on analytical assessments of UK inshore bass stocks, suggest that the bass stock is fished sustainably. Updated assessments have been carried out by the Centre for Environment, Fisheries and Aquaculture Science (CEFAS), in 2006 and 2008. These confirm the earlier assessment indicating that current levels of both bass landings and biomass are high.

The 2007 UK report to the European Commission on observed cetacean by-catch levels in certain fisheries, as required by Council Regulation (EC) 812/2004, includes estimates of common dolphin and harbour porpoise by-catch in the south-west for 2005 and 2006 in gillnet, tangle net and bass mid-water pair trawls. The UK is not due to report to the European Commission on 2006-07 observed by-catch levels until June. It is for each member state to monitor by-catch on their own vessels and submit their findings to the European Commission.

Fisheries: Fuels

Bill Wiggin: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to assist UK fishermen to meet rising fuel costs; what other measures to assist fishermen with fuel costs would be permissible under EU rules; and what benchmarking his Department has undertaken of UK assistance on fuel prices to fishermen against measures taken by other EU member states. [204779]

Jonathan Shaw: The emphasis of any assistance to the fishing industry should be on building a sustainable future. I am, therefore, considering what steps can be taken to help the industry adapt to the changing environment including, increased fuel costs, and am meeting with industry representatives to discuss this. Among the considerations will be the relative competitiveness of the fleet compared to other member states.

Some of these steps can be funded under the European Fisheries Fund; other aid can be granted up to the de minimis limit for state aid set out in Commission Regulation 875/2007.

Floods: EU Grants and Loans

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether state aid rules apply to monies dispensed from the European Solidarity Fund to address problems faced by farmers as a result of recent severe flooding. [205891]

Mr. Woolas: Monies received from The European Union Solidarity Fund (EUSF) are not subject to European Agricultural State Aid rules. EUSF funds are specifically to help member states meet the uninsurable costs to public bodies of dealing with natural disasters and are not for use in any sector-specific support measures that may threaten to distort the market and would therefore require state aid clearance.

Food

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will commission research on the effects of activities thought to contribute to anthropomorphic climate change, including overgrazing and deforestation, on trends in the levels of global food prices; and if he will make a statement. [204684]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department recognises the effects of climate change, and activities thought to contribute to climate change, across the range of its portfolio and research is ongoing in these areas.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will commission research on the effects of G8 agricultural subsidies on trends in global food prices; and if he will make a statement. [204685]

Jonathan Shaw: Trends in global food prices are analysed annually in the 'Agricultural Outlook' prepared jointly by the Food and Agriculture Organisation of the United Nations (FAO) and the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD). Changes in G8 policies have not been identified as major drivers of recent developments, with the exception of support for biofuel crops. There is already a substantial economic literature on the wider question of G8 agricultural support. This shows that such support tends to increase food output, reduce prices in the rest of the world, and increase the overall cost of food production by displacing production from low-cost to G8 countries.

Food: Waste Disposal

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what support is being provided by his Department to promote food waste collection for the commercial sector. [204501]

Joan Ruddock: The Government aim to reduce the amount of food waste created by businesses and consumers; and to encourage better management through environmentally friendly treatment of waste where prevention is not possible.

The Government funded Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) has a target to divert 100,000 tonnes of food waste from landfill by March 2008. Retailers agreed in the Courtauld Commitment One Year On event, in November 2006, to work with WRAP to help deliver this target. In recent months they have been joined by many significant food manufacturers. This work will provide the evidence base as to how post-consumer food waste can be diverted and the Government will be expecting retailers and manufacturers to help tackle the climate change impacts of food waste.

Food waste collections from commercial businesses were promoted by WRAP's Recycle at Work programme from 2006-08. WRAP commissioned four commercial food waste trials during this time; they ran from October 2006 to June 2007. WRAP commissioned independent evaluation of the trials between October 2007 and March 2008. The Executive Summary of the evaluation will be made available on the WRAP website shortly. WRAP's Good Practice Guidance on providing recycling services to businesses is also available from the WRAP website, providing guidance on setting up and marketing recycling services to Small or Medium Enterprises (SMEs).

WRAP advises local authorities on waste collection arrangements. Where appropriate, it advises them to consider opportunities for the co-collection of food waste from commercial premises with food waste from domestic properties, to help with the economics of household food waste collections.

DEFRA is working closely with the food industry to improve its environmental impact through the Food Industry Sustainability Strategy (FISS). The FISS targets a reduction in the food industry's own wastes of 15 to 20 per cent. by 2010.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many food waste trials he has (a) commissioned and (b) approved; and when the results of the trials are expected. [205015]

Joan Ruddock: The Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), with funding from DEFRA, has been running a programme of food waste collection trials involving 18 local authorities in England. Most of these trials have been operating since May 2007. Evaluation of the trials is under way and the results will be available in the summer.

Horses: Exports

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what recent assessment he has made of the animal welfare standards for live horses and ponies being exported from the UK. [205137]

Jonathan Shaw: There are continuous checks on the welfare of horses and ponies exported from the United Kingdom. There are fitness to travel checks carried out as part of export health certification and checks carried out at places of departure and ports and airports to ensure compliance with all the requirements of Council Regulation (EC) No. 1/2005 on the welfare of animals during transport.

Litter

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what research his Department has recently (a) commissioned and (b) evaluated relating to (i) litter and (ii) fly-tipping in England. [204656]

Joan Ruddock: My Department and the Environment Agency jointly commissioned ENCAMS in June 2007 to carry out a research project to explore the current perceptions among householders and tradespeople of the waste duty of care and the waste carrier registration regime. It specifically sought to understand:

- awareness of the waste carrier register/duty of care among tradespeople and the general public;
- triggers and barriers to registration on the part of tradespeople;
- the usefulness of the register to the general public;
- possible motivational messages/information to encourage tradespeople to register, and the public to use registered tradespeople.

ENCAMS delivered the results of this research in December 2007 and we will publish the results in due course. The results will inform any future DEFRA funded awareness raising work on fly-tipping, in particular, any campaign to support the new duty of care and waste carrier/broker registration regimes that is planned for adoption in April 2009.

ENCAMS was asked to look at what materials were collected alongside litter in public places and how they were dealt with and measured as part of the development of the 'Recycle on the Go' Voluntary Code of Practice, shortly to be launched by DEFRA. This was carried out between January and March 2007 and was funded through ENCAMS' DEFRA grant. It is not yet published but a summary is available.

The Annual Local Environmental Quality Survey of England measures littering (under different source types) and records incidences of fly-tipping and waste placed out. The latest report is 2006-07, published on both the DEFRA and ENCAMS websites. The detailed sources of fly-tipping and wastes placed out is collected but not published. It is available on request.

Pollution: Power Stations

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment his Department has made of the effects on (a) fish and (b) other marine creatures of thermal discharges from power plants to (i) rivers and (ii) coastal waters. [202082]

Jonathan Shaw: The Department obtains assessments of the potential effects of thermal discharges on fish and ecosystems at specific sites on an as-needs basis. These assessments are based on a variety of information, including knowledge of the thermal tolerances of fish and their ability to avoid unfavourable conditions, and the overall impacts on available habitat, much of which has been obtained from current and past research funded by DEFRA.

Recycling: Non-profit Making Associations

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what assessment he has made of the role of co-operative enterprises in recycling and waste minimisation. [205013]

Joan Ruddock: Our Waste Strategy, published in 2007, acknowledges the strengths which third sector organisations can bring to waste and recycling. We have encouraged the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP), which is partly funded by my Department, to bring forward a new programme to build their capacity.

Waste Disposal: Construction

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what steps he is taking to ensure that waste from projects on construction sites with an estimated cost of less than £300,000 is disposed of properly; and if he will make a statement. [204655]

Joan Ruddock: Site Waste Management Plans (SWMPs) are mandatory for all construction projects in England costing £300,000 or more.

In addition, implementation of a SWMP is a mandatory minimum requirement under the Department for Communities and Local Government's (CLG) Code for Sustainable Homes. From 1 May 2008, a mandatory rating against the Code is required for all new home build developments, regardless of cost.

Moreover, local authorities are empowered to make SWMPs mandatory within the conditions of their planning permission for any construction project.

Duty of care requirements and waste transfer controls apply to waste from all construction projects, regardless of cost. My Department will shortly be consulting on a review of the waste duty of care and waste carrier and broker registration regimes. The aim of this review is to reduce levels of waste crime by simplifying and modernising these regimes, making them easier to comply with and enforce while tackling low levels of awareness. A main target audience for this review will be tradespeople involved in construction projects of less than £300,000.

Waste Management: Private Finance Initiative

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs how many local authorities have received private finance initiative finance from his Department for waste schemes; how much has been paid over the last three years; and for what purposes. [205016]

Joan Ruddock: To date, 27 projects have been approved for private finance initiative (PFI) credits for sustainable waste management facilities. 21 have been proposed by individual authorities and six by partnerships of neighbouring authorities.

In most cases PFI credits are paid to authorities on an annuity basis, this means that credits are paid over the lifetime of the contract as a revenue payment to support the capital cost of the infrastructure being delivered.

Over the last three years, six of these projects have become eligible to claim credits, the amount they have claimed is:

Authority	2005-06	2006-07	2007-08	£ Total
Cornwall county council	0	1,266,785.84	3,378,095.57	4,644,881.41
Northumberland county council	0	0	3,009,129.62	3,009,129.62
Lancashire county council	0	0	6,558,455.34	6,558,455.34
Shropshire county council	0	0	1,459,009.28	1,459,009.28
Nottinghamshire county council	0	2,374,819.47	2,998,509.43	5,373,328.90
Central Berkshire district council[1]	0	870,630.54	2,981,611.44	3,852,241.98

[1] Payments made to Reading borough council

Other PFI projects that started claiming prior to April 2005 have also been in receipt of grant over the last three years. These figures are not available at this time.

The specific details on each project can be found on the DEFRA website.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

British Energy

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with UBS on the sale of British Energy. [204289]

Malcolm Wicks: UBS has been engaged by BERR to advise on the process of new nuclear build in the UK, including acting as financial adviser on the Government's strategy in relation to its stake in British Energy. It would not be appropriate for me to comment on the details of discussions.

Carbon Emissions: Buildings

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many projects the Low Carbon Buildings Programme funded in each year since 2006; and what the cost was of each project. [202998]

Malcolm Wicks: Since 2006, there have been 5,083 successfully completed installations funded through the Low Carbon Buildings Programme (LCBP). The breakdown by year is shown as follows.

	Phase 1	Phase 2
2006	805	—
2007	2,938	387

To provide a breakdown of these figures for each project could be obtained only at a disproportionate cost.

Companies: USA

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has made to the US in respect of attempts by US law enforcement authorities to undertake retrospective prosecutions of UK businesses and individuals. [205376]

Mr. Thomas: Officials have made representations when suitable opportunities arise, and will continue to do so.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what his policy is on the investigation by the European Commission into allegations of violation of the World Trade Organisation (WTO) obligation by the US in seeking to enforce laws against businesses and individuals for past activity undertaken within valid WTO commitments. [205377]

Mr. Thomas: The Government are aware that the Commission have agreed to investigate the TBR complaint by the gambling industry. We welcome the Commission examining the issues raised by the complaint in more detail and await their conclusions with interest.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has received from United Kingdom (a) businesses, (b) business organisations and (c) legal bodies on the extraterritorial application of US law to UK businesses and individuals. [205380]

Mr. Thomas: We are aware of the concerns of industry with regard to US extra-territorial legislation, which are raised by representatives of industry and their legal advisors on a regular basis.

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has made to the US administration in respect of the extraterritorial application of US law and the effect on UK businesses and individuals. [205381]

Mr. Thomas: The UK opposes the excessive use of extra-territorial legislation, and we regularly express our concerns when Washington embassy officials meet relevant US officials.

In addition, the UK has made two recent formal representations in a demarche to the State Department and in a letter from Sir Nigel Sheinwald to Secretary of State Rice concerning an Alien Tort Statute case being considered by the Supreme Court against companies dealing with South Africa in the apartheid era.

Departmental Translation Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was spent by his Department on translation and interpretation services in 2007-08, broken down by language. [205189]

Mr. Thomas: Expenditure by the Department on translation services in 2007-08 was £321,666. Of this total, £56,613 was for translations into English and £265,053 for translation into other languages. Information is not held centrally in a format to provide a detailed breakdown by individual languages and this could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Individual directorates make their own arrangements for purchase of interpretation services. Information on expenditure for such services is not available centrally and could be collected only at disproportionate cost.

Energy: EU Law

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform on how many occasions officials in his Department discussed the proposed labelling of heating systems in the energy-using products directive with representatives of the European Commission in each of the last two years. [205441]

Malcolm Wicks: BERR and DEFRA officials have been in regular contact with the Commission concerning the boilers and water heater proposals under the energy-using products directive. The latest engagement with the Commission includes:

EuP Consultation Forums 18 December 2007;

A bilateral meeting with the Commission on 31 January 2008;

EuP Consultation Forums 29 February 2008;

Conference call with Commission—24 April 2008; and

An informal meeting with Commission and other member states is planned for 22 May 2008.

In addition to the discussions with the Commission, BERR and DEFRA have continued to work closely with the relevant industry sectors and recently BERR hosted a full day workshop (chaired by DEFRA) with industry representatives in February.

Energy: Fees and Charges

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the average price of (a) gas and (b) electricity for UK households has been in each year since 1996. [205548]

Malcolm Wicks: Domestic retail prices for gas and electricity are published quarterly in section 2 of "Quarterly Energy Prices", the latest edition of which was published in March 2008 and is available online at http://www.berr.gov.uk.files/file45393.pdf. Table 2.2.1. on page 17 holds average electricity bills and table 2.3.1 on page 20 holds average gas bills. Both tables hold average bills back to 1990 and split by payment method.

Energy: Prices

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the expenditure made by each energy company on its social tariff in each of the last five years. [205207]

Malcolm Wicks: Detailed reporting of energy company social tariffs has been led by OFGEM in recent years with BERR reporting at an aggregate level. In August and October 2007, OFGEM reported on the range of voluntary social initiatives each of the six largest energy suppliers provide to assist their vulnerable customers.

Etimated figures for combined social spending on all voluntary initiatives (including social tariffs, rebates, trust funds, partnerships etc. but excluding differences in company fuel price levels) in 2006 by company are displayed in the following table:

Company	£ million Amount
British Gas	19.0
EDF Energy	5.6
nPower	4.0
Powergen	6.7
Scottish Power	2.8
Scottish and Southern Energy	3.2

Further detail on the six largest energy suppliers' expenditure on their social initiatives is available here:

http://www.ofgem.gov.uk/Sustainability/SocAction/Suppliers/CSR/Documentsl/CSRupdate_open_letter_23507.pdf

Accurate figures prior to 2006 at individual supplier level are not available. OFGEM published a report of supplier activity in June 2005 but no assessments were made at aggregate supplier level.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations his Department has received on the time taken for changes in the wholesale price of energy to be reflected in the prices paid by domestic customers; and if he will make a statement. [205208]

Malcolm Wicks: Timing of retail price increases or decreases are commercial decisions by the energy supply companies. The Government do not interfere in commercial pricing decisions in the energy supply markets, which are competitive markets.

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with energy companies on the practice of differential charging for payments made electronically, by direct debit and by cash; and if he will make a statement. [205211]

Malcolm Wicks: Ofgem is currently conducting a probe into the energy markets, which includes looking at tariff differentials to make sure that the different payment methods are fair and justified. It released initial findings at the Fuel Poverty summit in April, and is already taking action to ensure that energy suppliers provide clear information on their websites to ensure that customers can make informed choices about the different payment methods. Ofgem will report on its probe in September and consider then whether further action is required.

In respect of customers using pre-payment meters, the Government announced in the Budget that it is prepared to legislate with a view to reducing the differential between pre-payment and other forms of payment should Ofgem's probe reveal that pre-payment customers are suffering any disadvantage. However, in the first instance the Government will look to Ofgem and the energy suppliers to provide the solution.

Farepak: Compensation

Ms Katy Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what plans the Government has to provide compensation to those who lost savings as a result of the collapse of the Farepak Christmas savings club in 2006. [200373]

Mr. Thomas: The Government are entirely sympathetic to the plight of those who lost money in the Farepak collapse, and were strongly supportive of the commendable efforts of the Farepak Response Fund appeal, which raised £8 million from business and members of the public to help those affected.

For the future, the Government have taken steps to provide better protection and information for consumers. We have worked with the other hamper companies to put in place effective protection for customers' prepayments. The companies have responded by introducing new safeguards for consumers' money in the form of independently-controlled, ring-fenced trust accounts. These arrangements will be monitored by a new trade body, the Christmas Prepayments Association, under the terms of a new code of practice. We understand that the Association will be seeking approval of the code by the OFT under the terms of its consumer codes approval scheme. The Government have also given the Office of Fair Trading £1 million for a new awareness campaign so that consumers are better aware of their options for Christmas savings and are empowered to make decisions that are right for their own circumstances. However, the Government have no plans to provide any compensation in this case.

Fuel Poverty

Dr. Cable: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of (a) pensioner households and (b) other households which were living in fuel poverty in each year since 1996. [205547]

Malcolm Wicks: The most recent year for which numbers of households in fuel poverty are available is 2005. Various splits of the headline fuel poverty numbers for England are published in "Fuel Poverty 2005: detailed tables" available online at http://www.berr.gov.uk/files/file42705.pdf.

The following table shows the number of pensioner households living in fuel poverty since 2003, the first year for which estimates for pensioners were made.

Estimated number of fuel poor households (1,000s)

	2003	2004	2005
Pensioners	634	604	794
Non-pensioners	588	632	735
Total	1,222	1,236	1,529

Figures for 2006 will be available later this year.

Fuels: Prices

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what assessment he has made of the effect of increases in fuel prices on the cost of domestic heating. [204228]

Malcolm Wicks: Rising fuel costs put pressure on suppliers to raise prices to consumers. The average wholesale price for gas to be delivered in the next four quarters has doubled since early May 2007.

About 85 per cent. of English households use gas as their main heating fuel. Internal BERR analysis estimates that the wholesale cost of gas currently makes up about 70 to 75 per cent. of an average household gas bill. Therefore a permanent rise of 20 per cent. (for instance) in wholesale gas costs could be expected to result in an average increase of about 15 per cent. in charges to the consumer.

Rises in global fossil fuel costs will also impact households using heating oil, or electric heating.

Actual charges to consumers will vary depending on the purchasing and pricing strategies of an individual supplier over time.

Gambling: Internet

Peter Luff: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what representations he has made to the US administration in respect of its decision to withdraw from a World Trade Organisation commitment to provide access to the US online gambling market to non-US companies. [205375]

Mr. Thomas: The UK remained in close contact with the US Administration, the European Commission, and UK gambling interests throughout the negotiation of an agreed compensation package with the US.

A final compensation package was agreed, between the EC and the US, in December 2007.

Heating: Fuel Oil

Mark Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of households that use heating oil as the main means of heating their homes in (a) the UK and (b) each nation and region of the UK. [200269]

Mr. Watson: I have been asked to reply.

The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated April 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your recent question asking what estimate has been made of the number of households that use heating oil as the main means of heating their homes in (a) the UK and (b) each nation and region of the UK (200269).

Estimates for this response are based on data collected from the Expenditure and Food Survey, which is a sample survey covering approximately 7,000 households in the United Kingdom. The table below shows the estimated number of households who use heating oil for their central heating. Due to the small sample size for individual regions, an average for the years 2003/04 to 2005/06 has been provided to give reliable estimates of the use of heating oil in each nation and region of the United Kingdom.

Innovation in Services Project

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform when he plans to publish the Innovation in Services project report. [204291]

Malcolm Wicks: My right hon. Friend, the Secretary of State, expects to publish the Innovation in Services report soon. Interim findings from the project's analysis of innovation in and across service sectors are currently being reviewed and the report is being prepared.

Insurance: Elderly

Ben Chapman: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent discussions he has had with the insurance industry on provision of (a) insurance and (b) travel insurance to older people; whether he provides guidance to the industry on the subject; and what recent representations he has received on the subject. [204908]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

The Government meet regularly with representatives from the insurance industry. The Government published the consultation paper "A Framework for Fairness: Proposals for a Single Equality Bill for Great Britain" in June 2007 which looked at the case for extending the prohibition of age discrimination to the provision of goods, facilities and services, except where it can be objectively justified. The Government are currently considering responses to that consultation.

Low Carbon Buildings Programme

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent steps he has taken to increase take up of grants provided by the Low Carbon Buildings Programme; and if he will make a statement. [202954]

Malcolm Wicks: The following steps have been taken to encourage increased uptake of grants provided under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme.

The household stream of the programme has been extended to June 2010 for new applications or as long as funds are available, whichever is sooner. The extension to June 2010 gives business longer term certainty and is an excellent opportunity to encourage uptake in microgeneration technologies along with changes in planning requirements, which came into effect on 6 April 2008.

The Government are working with the Energy Saving Trust to promote the Low Carbon Buildings Programme household funding stream, raising awareness of the funds that remain available to successful applicants. To date, we have used both their advice network and market segmentation models to target those that are most likely to install microgeneration technologies and apply for grants.

Further details are available at:

www.lowcarbonbuildings.org.uk

The level of grant available in phase 2 has been increased to 50 per cent. for all technologies supported through the programme. We believe that raising the grant caps to 50 per cent. across all technologies will increase interest in the grants programme, although we will also be implementing a nationwide awareness raising campaign. We are working with Building Research Establishment, the programme manager for phase 2 of the LCBP, to deliver a series of regional events and a positive marketing programme to promote the programme to eligible organisations.

Further details are available at:

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he has taken since the re-launch of the Low Carbon Buildings Programme to increase grant takeup by private householders; and if he will make a statement. [202961]

Malcolm Wicks: The household stream of the programme has been extended to June 2010 for new applications or as long as funds are available, whichever is sooner. The extension to June 2010 gives business longer term certainty and is an excellent opportunity to encourage uptake in microgeneration technologies along with changes in planning requirements, which came into effect on 6 April 2008. Over the past month we have seen an increase in take up. In April we saw £313,374.40 committed to 293 householders.

The Government are continuing to work with the Energy Saving Trust to promote the Low Carbon Buildings Programme household funding stream, raising awareness of the funds that remain available to successful applicants. To date, we have used both their advice network and market segmentation models to target those that are most likely to install microgeneration technologies and apply for grants, and will be looking to continue with this approach going forward.

Gregory Barker: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much in grant funding under the Low Carbon Buildings Programme has been provided in each region. [202962]

Malcolm Wicks: Information on grant funding per region can be found on the Low Carbon Buildings Programme website at:

Low Carbon Buildings Programme: Finance

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how much was spent on administering the Low Carbon Buildings Programme in (a) 2006-07 and (b) 2007-08. [200271]

Malcolm Wicks: The amount spent on administering the Low Carbon Buildings Programme between April 2006 and March 2008 is shown in the following table:

	Amount (£)
2006-07	2,037,405
2007-08	453,831

Natural Gas

Sir Robert Smith: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform pursuant to the answer from the Secretary of State for Scotland of 23 April 2008, Official Report, column 2042W, on gas production, when the joint Government/industry taskforce (a) last met and (b) will next meet. [204478]

Malcolm Wicks: The West of Shetland Taskforce Steering Group, which I chair, last met on 21 February 2008 and expects to meet again in the next few months.

A specific meeting date has not yet been set as timing is dependent on further technical work being carried out by the taskforce workgroup to determine the optimal development and new gas infrastructure to unlock the potential of this region.

Nuclear Decommissioning Authority: Public Appointments

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what communications he has received from the Chief Executive of the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority on his future employment. [205251]

Malcolm Wicks: Dr. Roxburgh has been in touch with the Department concerning the speculation in The Observer newspaper about his future at the NDA. His concern, which we share, is that this speculation does not affect the work of the NDA and the completion of the Sellafield competition.

Nuclear Installations Inspectorate

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what progress has been made by HM Nuclear Installations Inspectorate in recruiting inspectors to undertake the generic design assessment of proposed new nuclear reactors; what arrangements exist to facilitate visa and security vetting of foreign candidates for these posts; and whether any difficulties relating to (a) visas and (b) vetting have been encountered during the recruitment process to date. [205231]

Malcolm Wicks: NII is making progress in recruiting new staff. This will allow it to transfer experienced inspectors into the teams undertaking the generic design assessments.

The first recruitment drive since the increase in salaries of NII inspectors was agreed with HM Treasury in late 2007, ended in February with about 160 job applications. Interviews have now been held and a number of offers of employment have been made. It is too soon to say how many new recruits will result from this campaign.

A second recruitment drive was launched on 11 April 2008.

Whether an applicant may require a visa to attend an interview for a job in the UK is unconnected with the specific job application and is a matter for decision by the UK Border Agency, or ultimately the Home Office. Only when a candidate has received a job offer are they subjected to vetting procedures appropriate for UK public bodies. Prospective NII inspectors will normally be required to obtain national security vetting clearance to the security check level and no difficulties have been experienced to date in the current recruitment campaign.

Radioactive Wastes: Waste Management

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (1) when he expects the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority to announce the successful bidder for the contract to manage nuclear waste at Sellafield; [205541]

(2) whether the decision of the Nuclear Decommissioning Authority on the preferred bidder to clean up the nuclear waste at Sellafield requires Government approval. [205542]

Malcolm Wicks [holding answer 14 May 2008]: The Nuclear Decommissioning Authority (NDA) is currently running a competition to select a new parent body organisation (PBO) for the Sellafield Site Licence Company, which through ownership will enhance Site Licence Company performance.

The announcement of a preferred bidder for the Sellafield PBO Competition is scheduled to take place in July 2008. Following the announcement of the preferred bidder, the NDA expects to complete contract finalisation over the summer period and plans to announce the contract award in October 2008. The decision will require Government approval.

Solar Power

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what estimate he has made of the number of solar panels installed on (a) domestic and (b) non-domestic properties in each of the last 10 years. [202372]

Malcolm Wicks: We commissioned a report on the potential for microgeneration in 2005, estimating that there were approximately 82,000 microgeneration installations in the UK. There are now estimated to be about 100,000 systems. We are not able to break this figure down by technology. However, since 2002 we have provided funding for 11,278 solar installations through our grant programmes, with the details shown in the following table.

Grant programme	Period	Technology	Number installed
Solar PV Major Demonstration	2002-07	Solar photovoltaic	1,829
Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 1	2006 to present	Solar photovoltaic	727
Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 2	2006 to present	Solar photovoltaic	127
Total			2,683
Clear Skies	2003-07	Solar thermal	5,799
Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 1	2006 to present	Solar thermal	2,774
Low Carbon Buildings Programme Phase 2	2006 to present	Solar thermal	22
Total			8,595

We have commissioned further research to provide up to date estimates, and this will be published in June 2008.

Supermarkets: Prices

Chris Ruane: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform whether he has made a recent assessment of whether supermarkets have engaged in price fixing of (a) cigarettes and (b) milk. [205209]

Mr. Thomas: Allegations of price fixing is an infringement under the 1998 Competition Act and is a matter for the Office of Fair Trading (OFT).

(a) Tobacco and Tobacco products

The OFT issued a statement of objections on 25 April alleging that certain tobacco manufacturers and retailers and eleven retailers have engaged in unlawful practices in relation to retail prices for tobacco products in the UK.

The statement of objections sets out the OFT's proposed findings against tobacco manufacturers Imperial Tobacco and Gallaher and eleven retailers-Asda, the Co-operative Group, First Quench, Morrisons, Safeway, Sainsbury, Shell, Somerfield, T&S Stores, Tesco and TM Retail. The OFT's investigation is currently ongoing.

(b) Milk and Dairy Products

The OFT issued a statement of objections on 20 September 2007, which found provisional evidence of collusion between certain large supermarkets (Asda, Morrisons, Safeway, Sainsbury's and Tesco) and dairy processors (Aria, Dairy Crest, Lactalis McLelland, The Cheese Company and Wiseman) on the retail prices of some dairy products. Some of these parties have now admitted involvement in anticompetitive practices and have agreed to pay individual penalties which combine to a maximum of over £116 million. The OFT are continuing their case against the remaining parties.

Tidal Power: River Severn

Mr. Harper: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the criteria are for the selection of companies undertaking feasibility studies for the Severn Tidal Power project. [204522]

Malcolm Wicks: To date, two major contracts have been awarded under the Severn Tidal Power feasibility study.

These are firstly to provide a managed service for a strategic environmental assessment (SEA) of proposals for tidal power development in the Severn estuary, and secondly to provide advice on finance and ownership issues in relation to delivering a project to generate tidal power from the Severn estuary. The contracts were awarded following a competitive tender process using Office for Government Commerce framework agreements.

Tenders for the SEA contract were assessed according to the value for money offered which was determined according to:

(a) technical merit i.e. demonstration that the requirements of the service are fully understood and that the approach offered by the supplier would meet the requirements;

(b) relevant experience i.e. demonstration that the supplier has undertaken such work successfully in the previous five years and that the supplier has a strong team with the required technical, financial and management expertise and capabilities; and

(c) overall price.

The panel also paid particular attention to the:

quality of management of the organisation;

degree of innovation, and independence of the contractor and ensuring that there is no conflict of interest.

Tenders for the contract to provide advice on finance and ownership issues were assessed according to:

(a) the level of understanding of the issues around tidal power development, UK electricity markets, corporate and public sector finance, and major infrastructure projects investment—in particular the experience and ability to advise on and create novel structures;

(b) the quality of the staff involved and their previous relevant experience;

(c) the quality of management of the organisation and its track record in having carried out similar work;

(d) innovative ideas, methodologies or activities that help to maximise the prospects for achieving the aims and objectives of the study efficiently and effectively;

(e) the independence of the contractor and ensuring that there is no conflict of interest; and

(f) cost and value for money.

INNOVATION, UNIVERSITIES AND SKILLS

Skills Pledge: Copeland

9. Mr. Jamie Reed: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many employers in Copeland have made the skills pledge. [205668]

Mr. Lammy: By March 2008, more than 2,500 employers in England had made the skills pledge, covering more than 3.7 million employees. A number of those employers employ people in the Copeland area, including Tesco, Ford Motor Company, Superdrug and BP. None of the employers who have made the pledge to date have registered their main address as being in the Copeland area; I would welcome the opportunity to work with the hon. Member for Copeland to encourage employers in his constituency to make the pledge.

Young People not in Education, Employment or Training

10. Philip Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what his most recent estimate is of the number of young people aged 16 or over not in education, employment or training. [205669]

Mr. Denham: In the UK, the proportion of 18 to 25-year-olds not engaged in full-time education or employment is down from 19.4. per cent. in 1997 to 18.1 per cent. today. There are 707,000 in England—that's 15 per cent. Of these, 243,000 are looking after a family or home. 85,000 own their own home outright, or are buying their own home. Those on out of work benefits are already subject to conditionality but, as we have already announced, new measures will be taken to ensure that the unemployed, and those on sickness benefits will be given extra help to find work.

18. Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the recent trends in the number of young people aged 16 and over not in education, employment or training. [205677]

Mr. Lammy: The responsibility for 16 to 17-year-olds is a matter for the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families and is a shared responsibility for 18-year-olds. The Government are tackling vigorously the important issue of young people not in education, employment or training.

The UK has a dynamic and flexible labour market with one of the highest employment rates in the G7. Youth unemployment has fallen since 1997 and the proportion of 18 to 24-year-olds not engaged in full-time education or employment is down to 18.1 per cent. in the three months ending March 2008 from 19.4 per cent. in 1997. We have seen an increase of 503,000 in the number of 18 to 24-year-olds in full-time education, a rise from 22.7 per cent. to 28.6 per cent.

Volunteers: Ealing, Acton and Shepherd's Bush

11. Mr. Slaughter: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government are taking to encourage the training and development of volunteers in Ealing, Acton and Shepherd's Bush. [205670]

Mr. Lammy: Since January this year, voluntary sector organisations have been able to access support through Train to Gain to upskill the volunteers working for them. Government investment in skills through Train to Gain will rise to over £1 billion by 2010-11. In addition, the Learning and Skills Council supports programmes for volunteers like the Torch Project at the Lyric Theatre, Hammersmith.

Foreign Students

12. Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to attract more foreign students to the UK. [205671]

Bill Rammell: The second phase of the Prime Minister's Initiative for International Education aims to secure and sustain the UK's position as a leader in international education. We are working with the British Council and a range of partners in the higher education and further education sectors to increase the number of international students studying in the UK and to support UK universities and colleges in developing collaborative partnerships with institutions overseas.

Further Education Colleges

13. Christine Russell: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills if he will make a statement on levels of capital funding for further education colleges. [205672]

Mr. Denham: £2.4 billion of capital investment has been made in the further education sector, including investment for information and learning technology (ILT) in the last 10 years, compared to ear marked expenditure of zero pounds in 1997.

A record further £2.3 billion will be invested over the next three years—enabling us to continue the 'once in a generation' opportunity we have to build world-class further education facilities so the sector can deliver world-class skills.

22. Mr. Kidney: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what the total capital expenditure was in further education colleges in England in 1997 and 2007; and what plans he has for future expenditure. [205682]

Bill Rammell: The total capital expenditure in further education colleges in England in the financial year 1997-98 was nil. In 2007-08, the LSC forecast outturn indicates that the total capital investment—including Information and Learning Technology—was £560 million.

In total across that period, this Government have invested a massive £2.4 billion and will be investing a record further £2.3 billion across the next three years.

24. Ann Coffey: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills, what recent assessment he has made of the performance of further education colleges; and if he will make a statement. [205684]

Bill Rammell: College success rates and inspection grades show strong improvement over recent years. With the LSC, Ofsted and others, we have now developed a wider suite of indicators to identify how the system is performing. These include learner and employer satisfaction rates, destination outcomes, attainment and financial performance measures. Over the Comprehensive Spending Review 2007 period, we are developing the Framework for Excellence which will assess individual providers' performance against existing measures as well as these indicators.

Scientific Research

14. David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent assessment he has made of the role of the research councils in promoting scientific research in the public sector. [205673]

Ian Pearson: The research councils are responsible for funding research in the higher education sector and in their own institutes. The councils are encouraged, wherever relevant, to work closely with other public sector bodies in delivering their research, but it is the responsibility of those other public bodies to determine their priorities and activities in research.

Postgraduate Students: Support

15. Mr. Holloway: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what assessment he has made of the adequacy of support available to postgraduate students who attended schools in areas of deprivation. [205674]

Bill Rammell: We have not made any specific assessment. However, research shows that people from disadvantaged areas who achieve first degrees are no less likely to stay on for postgraduate study.

The Government's student support is generally targeted at undergraduates, to widen access and provide the opportunity to study for a first degree. Students of the Post Graduate Certificate in Education are though eligible for means-tested support.

The research councils offer postgraduate awards; and career development loans are also available.

Teaching Software

16. Mr. Willis: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent discussions he has had with the games industry on software packages for the teaching of science, technology, engineering and mathematics in colleges and universities. [205675]

Ian Pearson: The UK Government keep in regular contact with the UK games industry, however no specific meetings or discussions have been held between Ministers and the games industry on software packages for the teaching of science, technology, engineering and mathematics in colleges and universities.

Construction Skills

17. Mr. Bellingham: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills when he next expects to meet representatives of further education colleges to discuss skills in the construction sector. [205676]

Bill Rammell: Ministerial colleagues and I regularly meet representatives of further education colleges, to discuss skills in all sectors, including construction. These meetings will continue in the future as will meetings with representatives from the construction industry.

Undergraduate Courses: Access

19. Mr. Robathan: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government are taking to improve access to undergraduate courses for those from deprived backgrounds; and if he will make a statement. [205679]

Mr. Denham: This Government are committed to ensuring that talented people from all backgrounds are able and willing to develop their potential through higher education. We are putting £48 million per year into the Aimhigher programme, have introduced an improved student support package, and launched a prospectus for university links with academies and trusts. In addition, the Aimhigher Associates scheme will see around 5,500 university students providing long-term individual support to more than 21,000 pupils in schools and colleges.

New University: Somerset

20. Mr. Heath: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what consideration he has given to the establishment of a new university in Somerset. [205680]

Mr. Denham: We have responded to the clear demand for local university provision by giving the chance for 20 towns or regions to develop new university centres or campuses by 2014. I am delighted by the interest and enthusiasm which this new "University Challenge" has generated. Any specific proposal in Somerset would of course be considered on its merits, and such proposals will be assessed by the Higher Education Funding Council for England.

Low-skilled adults

21. Mr. Hepburn: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps the Government have taken to improve advice and support for adults who are low-skilled. [205681]

Mr. Lammy: We are creating an adult advancement and careers service, to be fully operational from 2010-11, to provide universal, high quality information and advice on careers and skills. With targeted guidance for the low skilled and those who need it most and help that recognises the range of barriers to getting on in learning and work. There will be additional funding of at least £50 million from 2010-11 to support the service.

Apprenticeships

23. Mr. Devine: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps he is taking to raise the quality of apprenticeships. [205683]

Mr. Lammy: Our strategy to develop and expand apprenticeships to meet the nation's skills needs is outlined in 'World-class Apprenticeships'. We are committed to build an apprenticeship system that meets the needs of employers and which offers all suitably qualified young people a place on an apprenticeship if they wish. To this end we will be publishing a draft Apprenticeship Bill in July which will set out plans to further improve quality.

Adult Education: Grants

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much his Department plans to spend on adult learner grants for adults aged 25 years and over completing their first level three qualification in each of the next three years. [205540]

Bill Rammell: The Adult Learning Grant (ALG) has been available throughout England since September 2007 and during its pilot phase (from 2003) showed that it was successful at helping more individuals raise their skill levels through completing their training and gaining a qualification. It is intended to help low skilled individuals in work on low incomes achieve their first full Level 2 or first full Level 3 qualification. The grant offers up to £30 per week.

The Department has a budget of £32 million for ALG for each of the next three financial years (2008-09, 09-10 and 10-11), which will be allocated in line with applications from adults supported by ongoing marketing of the scheme. Since it began in 2003-04, over 43,000 learners have been helped by ALG. Evaluation of pilots has shown that 80 per cent.

of ALG funded learners study for a Level 3 qualification of which around 12 per cent. of learners were aged 25 and over.

Departmental Translation Services

Sandra Gidley: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much was spent by his Department on translation and interpretation services in 2007-08, broken down by language. [205181]

Mr. Lammy: The Department has made payments for translation services to the value of £11,094.25 during the financial year 2007-08. To investigate as to whether the cost was for actual translation and interpretation work rather than the additional publishing costs and to breakdown the total cost into language would be at disproportionate cost.

Further Education

Stephen Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what estimate he has made of the proportion of first-time Level 3 adult further education students who are aged between 19 and 25 years. [205531]

Bill Rammell: The information requested is not available. However, we do know that 40 per cent. of full level 3 adult learners in Further Education (excluding work based learning and train to gain) were aged 19-25.

Further Education: Capital Investment

Paddy Tipping: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how much funding for capital expenditure will be available to further education colleges during the current spending review period. [205678]

Bill Rammell: This Government will be investing a record £2.3 billion in the modernisation and renewal of the further education estate during the current CSR period—compared to ear-marked expenditure of zero pounds in 1997.

This builds on the £2.4 billion invested in the previous 10 years and will enable us to continue the 'once in a generation' opportunity we have to build world-class further education facilities so the sector can deliver world-class skills.

GCE A-Level

Mr. Willetts: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many students gained (a) an A level and (b) an AS level in (i) accounting, (ii) art and design, (iii) business studies, (iv) communication studies, (v) dance, (vi) design and technology, (vii) drama/theatre studies, (viii) film studies, (ix) health and social care, (x) home economics, (xi) information and communication technology, (xii) leisure studies, (xiii) media studies, (xiv) music technology, (xv) performance studies, (xvi) performing arts, (xvii) photography, (xviii) physical education, (xix) sports studies and (xx) travel and tourism in each of the last five years. [205772]

Jim Knight: I have been asked to reply.

The information has been placed in the House Library.

Office of Fair Trading: Complaints

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills how many complaints he has received on the Office of Fair Trading in relation to its work on the home maintenance, repairs and improvements sector. [203922]

Mr. Thomas: I have been asked to reply.

In the last year for which figures are available (2007) the Office of Fair Trading (including Consumer Direct) received 73,443 such complaints about home maintenance, repairs and improvements.

Research Councils: Finance

Adam Afriyie: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what steps his Department has taken to safeguard research council budgets against the effects of international currency fluctuations; and if he will make a statement. [204996]

Ian Pearson: I refer the hon. Member to the supplementary evidence provided in Memorandum 38 to the Select Committee on Innovation, Universities, Science and Skills following the oral evidence session on 20 February 2008, and subsequently published by the Committee.

Technology: Training

Mr. Hayes: To ask the Secretary of State for Innovation, Universities and Skills what recent progress has been made in developing vocational training in the fields of emerging technologies. [205325]

Bill Rammell: The FE reform programme which we have implemented since the FE White Paper 'Further Education: Raising Skills, Improving Life Chances published in March 2006' is transforming the Post 16 vocational system to one which is demand led. This will enable new and emerging industries to develop the skilled workforce they will need. We have instituted a process of vocational reform inviting sector skills councils, on behalf of employers, to undertake sector skills reviews to identify key vocational qualifications for the future of their sectors. World-class apprenticeships commit us to boost the range of apprenticeships and we would expect the new National Apprenticeship Service to identify the skills needs of business involved with emerging technologies and to work with sector skills bodies to develop appropriate frameworks. Train to Gain enables employers to support the development of the workforce. Foundation Degrees Forward, an independent body funded by HEFCE, supports the development and validation of high quality Foundation Degrees. They support employer engagement across higher education programmes generally and in relation to Foundation degrees specifically. To support FE reforms the Quality Improvement Agency have recently refocused the National Teaching and Learning Change Programme enabling it to respond to local and regional needs more flexibly. This will enable teachers and lecturers to identify new teaching subjects and develop the skills learners' needs.

In addition the Engineering and Physical Sciences Research Council (EPSRC) and Technology Strategy Board has issued a call to fund up to two new Innovation and Knowledge Centres (IKCs), each of up to £9.45 million support over five years. IKCs will promote the early commercialisation of world class research, by combining within a single integrated centre the best research with the best business development, market analysis and commercialisation skills and partnerships to accelerate its exploitation. For each centre provision has been made to support postgraduate training.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Afghanistan

Mr. Bone: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effects of the outcome of the NATO Bucharest Summit on UK policy on Afghanistan. [205053]

Meg Munn: The Bucharest summit was an important success for Afghanistan. Attendance of all the key players demonstrated a truly international and comprehensive approach in working towards our common goals in Afghanistan. At the summit, the UK, along with our allies and partners, reaffirmed our common determination to help the people and the elected government of Afghanistan.

The key areas of UK policy in Afghanistan, laid out by my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister in his 12 December 2007 statement to the House, were greater Afghan ownership, localisation and reconstruction. These are fully reflected in the Strategic Vision declaration made by contributing nations to the North Atlantic Treaty Organisation-led International Security Assistance Force (ISAF) in Afghanistan at the Bucharest summit, which sets out clearly ISAF's aims and objectives for Afghanistan. We also welcomed the increased troop contributions announced at Bucharest which addressed the issue of improving burden sharing, also a key priority for my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister.

Colombia: Human Rights

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what training on (a) human rights and (b) other issues the Government has provided to the High Mountain Battalion in Colombia in the last five years. [205028]

Meg Munn: UK assistance to Colombia focuses on counter-narcotics, human rights and international humanitarian law, and humanitarian de-mining. We do not disclose any aspect of our counter-narcotics assistance, and the parliamentary ombudsman has upheld this decision, as to do so would endanger the lives of those involved in this vital and dangerous work. However all assistance has human rights at its foundation, and is carefully monitored to ensure its integrity.

The Ministry of Defence do not provide training to whole units such as the "High Mountain Battalions", though some of their officers and soldiers may well have received human rights and de-mining training from either UK staff, or from Colombian staff who have received UK human rights training.

Departmental Data Protection

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many officials in his Department have been disciplined or dismissed for (a) breaches of data protection requirements and (b) inappropriate use of personal and sensitive data in each of the last three years for which figures are available. [205234]

Meg Munn: No officials in the Foreign and Commonwealth Office have been disciplined or dismissed for either breaches of data protection requirements or inappropriate use of personal and sensitive data in the last three years.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the (a) responsibilities are and (b) grade is of his Department's new head of digital engagement. [204821]

David Miliband: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) new head of digital engagement was appointed in March 2008. Their responsibilities are:

to develop and deliver a top-level FCO internet strategy through which the FCO will use its new web platform, and the web more broadly, to deliver foreign policy outcomes; and to commission and oversee the work of the FCO's e-media team.

The head of digital engagement is graded FCO D7 (home civil service grade 6).

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proportion of the budget for his Department's new website will be spent on the design of embassy and high commission websites. [204822]

David Miliband: Most of the templates and functionality of the embassy and high commission websites are shared with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) main site to maximise efficiencies across the sites. It is therefore not possible to extract the proportion of resources spent on the embassy and high commission websites—they are all part of the same FCO web platform. My answer to PQ 204823 sets out the total costs.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will provide a detailed breakdown of the budget for his Department's new departmental website. [204823]

David Miliband: The recent upgrade of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office (FCO) corporate website is part of a wider project to deliver a new web platform and improved web presence for the FCO over five years.

The work will provide a single technical platform for all the FCO websites (including the main FCO website, Arabic and Urdu versions of the FCO website, UKvisas website, the FCO Freedom of Information website, and 229 embassy, high commission and special mission sites in multiple languages) as well as new designs, content, functionality and a new hub and spoke model for delivering business support.

The project will complete in September 2008, by which time all of the FCO posts websites will have joined the new platform and will operate under the central domain fco.gov.uk.

The initial cost of £9.7 million for the web platform was set out in the answer given by the Parliamentary Under-Secretary of State my hon. Friend the Member for Sheffield Heeley (Meg Munn) on 30 January 2008, Official Report, column 398W. The project is on target to cost £19.2 million over five years. This includes running costs, for example hosting and support, and some staff salaries. The cost of the project to date is £9.2 million which breaks down as follows:

consultancy (procurement, legal and business change advice): £1.631 million; project management and support: £1.065 million; software, development and implementation (including design and roll-out): £6.115 million; and other (including training costs): £0.389 million.

The web is vital for the delivery of the FCO's departmental strategic objectives. More people, in the UK and overseas, have contact with the FCO through the web than through any other channel. The FCO is committed to using the web to deliver its policy goals as well as key services such as travel advice and visa information.

The project has followed the Office of Government Commerce Gateway Review process and is delivering on time and to budget.

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether a review was undertaken before the decision to approve funding for his Department's new website. [204899]

David Miliband: A comprehensive review of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office's (FCO) online activity was undertaken during the summer of 2005 by digital agency Rufas Leonard. This produced a web strategy which set the direction for the development of the FCO's web presence for the next five to seven years. This strategy underpinned the business case for the development of the FCO's new websites which was approved by the FCO's Investment Committee in January 2006. The project to redevelop the new websites has also been subject to the Office of Government Commerce Gateway Review Process and was rated green at both Gateway 3 and 4.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 29 February 2008, Official Report, column 2022W, on departmental manpower, how many of the employees under 18 years of age are receiving at least one day's training per week. [204935]

Meg Munn: Two of these employees are on three year engineering apprenticeships and have been receiving the equivalent of one day's training per week. The three year apprenticeship is considered to be all training, whether on-the-job working in various sections or at college. The third employee is on a fixed term contract and not on an apprentice scheme.

Departmental Official Residences

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs (1) under what type of tenure the Government owns 1 Carlton Gardens; [205406]

(2) what plans he has for the use of 1 Carlton Gardens in the next three years. [205408]

Meg Munn: We are currently in negotiation with The Crown Estate about the future of the lease on 1 Carlton Gardens.

Departmental Orders and Regulations

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many statutory instruments have been (a) made and (b) revoked by Ministers in his Department since 1997. [204767]

Meg Munn: 315 Statutory Instruments have been made on the part of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office since 1 January 1997 to the present day.

The information on how many statutory instruments have been revoked on the part of the Foreign and Commonwealth Office since 1 January 1997 can be provided only at disproportionate cost.

EU Presidency

Mr. Francois: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent (a) representations he has made to and (b) discussions he has had with (i) other EU member states and (ii) EU institutions on potential candidates for the proposed post of President of the European Council; and if he will make a statement. [204841]

Mr. Jim Murphy: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has regular contact with all of our EU partners and with the EU institutions on a variety of issues.

As set out in my letters of 22 April to the Chairs of the Commons European Scrutiny Committee and Lords EU Select Committee, technical level discussions to prepare for implementation have begun. While it is only sensible to ensure that the EU is ready to implement the treaty—if all countries have ratified—we have made it clear to and agreed with our EU partners that no final decisions can be taken until ratification is confirmed.

Discussions on the identity of the new full-time President of the European Council will take place at the appropriate time. This decision and others will, of course, depend on ratification of the treaty by all 27 member states.

France: State Visits

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost to the public purse was of the Prime Minister's joint press conference with the President of France held at the Emirates stadium on 27 March. [204928]

Mr. Jim Murphy: Costs specifically attributable to holding the joint press conference amounted to £8,561.16. There were additional costs associated with the hosting of the UK-France Summit.

Gaza: Fuels

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have had with the President of the Palestinian Authority about the reported blocking of fuel supplies to hospitals and clinics in the Gaza Strip by Hamas; and if he will make a statement. [205060]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary met Palestinian President Abbas on 18 December 2007. Our Consulate General in Jerusalem also maintains regular dialogue, with him and his office, about the humanitarian situation. My right hon. Friends the Prime Minister, the Foreign Secretary and the Secretary of State for International Development met Palestinian Prime Minister Fayyad when he visited this month and discussed Gaza among other issues. The UK supports all efforts to resume the normal operation of the Gaza crossing.

Mr. Amess: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions (a) he, (b) Ministers and (c) officials in his Department have had with Arab governments about the reported blocking of fuel supplies to hospitals and clinics in the Gaza Strip by Hamas; and if he will make a statement. [205061]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary co-hosted high level meetings, on 2 May in London, which involved discussions with Kuwait, Jordan, Egypt, the United Arab Emirates and Saudi Arabia as well as Foreign Ministers from outside the region. During the meetings the humanitarian effect of fuel shortages was discussed. Our embassies around the region also discuss these issues frequently with their host governments. The UK supports efforts to resume the normal operations of the Gaza crossing.

Iran: Nuclear Power

Mr. Hague: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether there are plans to publish the refreshed 6 June 2006 E3+3 proposals on Iran; and if he will make a statement. [204820]

David Miliband: We will be passing the refreshed E3+3 offer to the Iranian Government in confidence. We hope that they will study its contents carefully and respond in a timely manner. We have no plans to publish it before the Iranian Government has seen it.

Iraq: Administration of Justice

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to seek to extend extra-territorial jurisdiction to allow the British prosecuting authorities to prosecute alleged offences by contractors working for HM Government in Iraq. [205427]

Meg Munn [holding answer 14 May 2008]: Future policy options are under review. We believe that our current working relationships, and contracts with our contractors in Iraq, ensure that any cases of alleged crime or misconduct would be brought to our attention promptly, so that we could investigate. Where such misconduct is substantiated our procurement guidelines specify that we can terminate the contract. We expect the highest professional standards of those holding Government contracts.

On the broader issue of the regulation of the overseas operations of private military and security companies, registered in or operating from the UK, the then Foreign Secretary my right hon. Friend the Member for Blackburn (Jack Straw), requested a review by officials of the options. The review was completed in 2005 and considered ways forward including self-regulation, national regulation—based on export controls—and/or company licensing systems. We have also considered international regulation on the basis of common international values and norms. However, the review and subsequent analysis has also highlighted difficulties with regard to implementation or enforcement, with respect to each of the options. We have also considered the complex legal matter of extra-territorial jurisdiction. These issues have since been the subject of extensive Ministerial correspondence and official consultation. If it is decided that regulation is appropriate, the Government will put the proposals to public consultation.

Iraq: Politics and Government

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs with reference to the Answer of 24th May 2006, Official Report, column 1862W, on Iraq, what reports he has received since May 2006 on the activities of the Facilities Protection Service; and if he will make a statement. [201950]

Meg Munn: The Facilities Protection Service is an Iraqi internal security organisation, outside the remit of the UK forces operating in Iraq. The Iraqi Council of Ministers has recently passed a draft law, to the Council of Representatives, aimed at reforming the Facilities Protection Service and bringing all branches under the control of the Ministry of the Interior.

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent steps the Government have taken to improve the safety and security of Iraqi citizens in Iraq. [205297]

Meg Munn: UK forces have consistently taken firm action against rogue militias and criminal elements who seek to undermine or oppose progress in Iraq. We have so far trained over 20,000 army personnel and over 22,000 police officers. In addition, we put significant time and resources into improving the safety and security of Iraqi citizens and are now involved in training all companies of the Iraqi Army 14 Division.

The Government funded civilian project teams continue to mentor and develop key leaders in the Iraqi Police Service and Ministry of Interior. Our objective is to allow these leaders to develop the capacity to take control of their own security.

The UK is also working with the Government of Iraq in developing human rights legislation, including the setting up of a National Human Rights Commission. We continue to lobby the Government of Iraq at the highest level on the treatment of those in Iraqi detention to ensure that the rights of Iraqi citizens are upheld.

Kenya: Politics and Government

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent assessment he has made of (a) the political situation in Kenya and (b) progress in implementing the National Accord and Reconciliation Act 2008 in that country; and if he will make a statement. [204831]

Meg Munn: The UK, together with Kenya's other international partners, has welcomed the appointment, by President Kibaki on 17 April, of a Grand Coalition Government with Mr. Raila Odinga as the country's Prime Minister. This is an important step in implementing the National Accord and Reconciliation Act that came into force on 20 March. The UK has offered its strong support to the new Kenyan Government and looks forward to it making progress to achieve reconciliation and restore stability and prosperity through the full implementation of the programme of reforms set out under the National Accord agreed by Kenya's leaders on 28 February.

Maldives: Constitutions

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the government of the Maldives on establishing effective parliamentary process for the completion of the new constitution. [204958]

Meg Munn: It is essential that the new Constitution, in the final stages of scrutiny in the Special Majlis (constitutional assembly), enjoys the support of all the people of the Maldives. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, told Maldivian President Gayoom of the need to keep the democratic reform process, of which the new Constitution is a cornerstone, on track in July 2007. He reiterated this to Dr. Mohamad Asim, the Maldivian High Commissioner in March 2008.

Maldives: Elections

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs whether his Department will send (a) independent observers and (b) observers as part of an EU delegation to the Maldives, in advance of the elections expected in 2008. [204959]

Meg Munn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend the Minister for the Middle East (Kim Howells) gave to the hon. Member for West Suffolk (Mr. Spring), on 27 February 2008, Official Report, column 1704W.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the Maldives government on the distribution of media resources between political parties in advance of expected elections in 2008. [204960]

Meg Munn: We have made no specific representation on this issue. We are however working closely with the BBC, the Maldives Ministry of Information and the Maldives Media Association to promote media freedom and skills development including, objectivity and balance.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the government of the Maldives on establishing an independent election commission in advance of the expected elections in 2008. [204961]

Meg Munn: In a meeting with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in April, the Maldivian Foreign Minister, Abdulla Shahid, stated that an Interim Election Commission would be created within 30 days of the ratification of the new Constitution. He underlined that the deliberations of the Special Majlis (Constitutional Assembly) were nearly complete. Foreign Minister Shahid told us that the Commission would be responsible for all elections-related matters, and that all registered political parties would be able to nominate Commissioners.

Danny Alexander: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the government of the Maldives on charges against members of opposition parties in advance of expected elections in 2008. [204962]

Meg Munn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend the Minister for the Middle East (Dr. Howells) gave to the hon. Member for West Suffolk (Mr. Spring) on 27 February, Official Report, column 1705W.

Free, fair and credible elections are a crucial element of democratic reform in the Maldives. My noble Friend the Minister for Africa, Asia and the UN, the right hon. Lord Malloch-Brown, emphasised this point to Dr. Mohamad Asim, the Maldivian high commissioner in March. He also pointed out that the freedom of politicians and political parties to campaign and debate freely was a cornerstone of democracy.

Nuclear Non Proliferation Treaty

Mr. Dai Davies: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what proposals the Government put forward to the Preparatory Committee meeting for the Nuclear Non-proliferation Treaty Review Conference in 2010, held recently in Geneva; what responses were received from other national delegations at the preparatory meeting to those proposals; and if he will make a statement. [205230]

Meg Munn: The Government proposed initiatives to promote consensus around the Treaty's three pillars: non-proliferation; peaceful uses of nuclear energy; and disarmament. This included studies on the reduction and elimination of nuclear weapons and my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's conference on peaceful uses of nuclear energy to be held later this year. The UK also co-sponsored a paper by the US on civil nuclear energy and an EU paper on nuclear weapons free zones. These proposals were well received. Further details on these proposals can be found at:

http://www.un.org/NPT2010/SecondSession/documents.html.

Polisario Front

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent representations he has received from the Polisario Front. [204951]

Meg Munn: My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has received representations from consultants working on behalf of the Polisario. He reiterated the UK's concerns over the conflict in Western Sahara, and our hope that ongoing negotiations will achieve a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, which will provide for the self determination of the people of Western Sahara. In addition, officials from the Foreign and Commonwealth Office have received Polisario representatives for discussions on Western Sahara.

Smoking

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how many smoking shelters were built at each of his Department's London buildings in each of the last five years. [205042]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office has erected one smoking shelter in its London Estate, situated in the external courtyard of the Old Admiralty Building in 2003.

Somalia: Ethiopia

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what legal advice he has (a) commissioned and (b) received on the death of civilian workers on projects funded by the UK in Somalia resulting from interaction between the governments of Somalia and Ethiopia and UK-supported activities. [204947]

Meg Munn: No legal advice has been commissioned or received on this subject.

The majority of UK funding for Somalia is channelled through the UN Development Programme and other UN agencies. Any civilian staff working for these projects do so under UN terms and conditions of employment and follow the security advice given by the UN Department for Safety and Security.

Harry Cohen: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what political, diplomatic and military support (a) the UK and (b) the EU has provided to (i) Ethiopia in support of its role in Somalia, (ii) Ethiopia and (iii) Somalia in the last two years. [204948]

Meg Munn: Neither the UK nor the EU provide any political, diplomatic or military support for Ethiopia for its role in Somalia.

Both the UK and the EU maintain full diplomatic relations with Ethiopia. Neither the UK nor the EU provide any military support, but where suitable opportunities arise and we are satisfied that human rights concerns are being met, the UK remains interested in assisting Ethiopia to develop its internal security infrastructure.

Both the UK and the EU support the Transitional Federal Institutions of Somalia as established by the Transitional Federal Charter, including the Transitional Federal Government. The UK does not currently have formal diplomatic accreditation to Somalia, but we maintain a high level of contact with members of the Somali Government. Neither the UK nor the EU provide any military support to Somalia.

Somalia: Human Rights

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what representations he has made to the government of Ethiopia and the Transitional Federal Government in Somalia on their obligations to ensure that their armed forces comply with international humanitarian law; and if he will make a statement. [204829]

Meg Munn: We regularly raise the issue of compliance with international humanitarian law with both the Ethiopian Government and the Transitional Federal Government of Somalia, including at the highest level.

While Ethiopia's troops remain in Somalia, we urge them to use only appropriate force, adhere to international humanitarian law, respect human rights and to ensure that their forces should leave the country as soon as is practical without creating a security vacuum.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government is taking to monitor the human rights situation in Somalia; and if he will make a statement. [204830]

Meg Munn: In March 2008 we fully supported the UN Human Rights Council in renewing the mandate of their international expert for Somalia.

Through the UN Security Council (UNSC), we have also asked the UN to produce a comprehensive plan, and to build capacity to monitor and report on the human rights situation in Somalia.

To be effective and have a sustainable impact, measures to combat human rights abuses should be part of a broader approach to peace-building. Effective state-building is the only way to address human rights in the long-term. The UK is in the forefront of international efforts to re-build the Somali state through shaping UNSC policy and through our membership of the Contact Group for Somalia. We continually press for greater focus on human rights capacity in Somalia.

Somalia: Peacekeeping Operations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the capacity of the African Union force in Somalia to protect civilians caught up in the conflict; and if he will make a statement. [204827]

Meg Munn: The African Union (AU) force in Somalia has a mandate to carry out a limited number of specific tasks in Somalia. The force is mandated to deploy 8,000 troops. At the current force level of approximately 2,400 troops, the mission does not have sufficient capacity to carry out its full mandate.

Even so, the AU troops are doing what they can to aid the civilian population in Mogadishu, particularly in the areas of water provision and medical assistance. We are grateful to Uganda and Burundi for the efforts of their soldiers and their contribution to improving the situation in Somalia. We are working with the AU and international partners to increase the strength of the force.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he received of attacks on humanitarian aid workers along the Chadian border with Sudan in each of the last three months. [204836]

Meg Munn: With regret I confirm that Pascal Marlinge, an aid worker with Save the Children-UK, was shot and killed by armed men in eastern Chad on 1 May. Ramadan Djom, also of Save the Children-UK, was killed in the same region on 4 April. The border area between Chad and Sudan remains highly dangerous, with regular bandit activity throughout the region. The UK strongly condemns these senseless attacks on both individuals and organisations that are seeking to improve the welfare of those affected by regional conflict.

Uganda

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received on the re-population of Acholiland in northern Uganda; and if he will make a statement. [205018]

Meg Munn: The most recent report from the UN Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs, states that of the 1.1 million people in Internally Displaced Persons camps in the Acholi region of Uganda at the end of 2005, 9 per cent. have moved back to their villages of origin, with a further 32 per cent. in satellite sites, in transition to returning home. We are encouraged by this report and will continue to monitor the situation in northern Uganda closely.

Uganda: Armed Conflict

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what progress has been made in executing International Criminal Court warrants for the arrest of the leadership of the Lord's Resistance Army in Uganda; and if he will make a statement. [205017]

Meg Munn: Joseph Kony and the other Lord's Resistance Army indictees have so far refused to surrender to the International Criminal Court (ICC) and reports suggest they are not currently in Uganda.

The UK strongly supports the ICC. We also continue to follow the Juba peace talks closely, and hope that this process will provide the framework for peace in northern Uganda. We believe that justice is an essential part of sustainable peace. It is vital that those responsible for the terrible crimes committed during the conflict in northern Uganda are held to account. Resolution of the conflict in Uganda must be compatible with the Rome Statute.

USA: Human Rights

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the government of the United States on (a) human rights and (b) use of torture. [204328]

Meg Munn: The Foreign and Commonwealth Office maintains an ongoing dialogue on a range of human rights and international legal issues with the US government, including on the use of torture. As a member of the EU, the UK is also engaged in the regular EU/US dialogue on human rights.

Western Sahara: Politics and Government

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the status is of negotiations in Manhasset on the future of the Western Sahara; and if he will make a statement. [204952]

Meg Munn: UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1753, of 30 April 2007, called upon the parties to enter into negotiations under the auspices of the UN Secretary-General without preconditions and in good faith. The UN Secretary-General's Personal Envoy, Peter van Walsum, has brought the parties together for four rounds of negotiations, held in June and August 2007 and January and March 2008. The UK fully supports these negotiations, with a view to achieving a just, lasting and mutually acceptable political solution, which will provide for the self-determination of the people of Western Sahara. We have encouraged the parties to maintain their commitment to the negotiation process. UNSCR 1813 called on parties to continue these negotiations in a spirit of realism and compromise, and we hope a fifth round will be held soon.

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what discussions he has had with (a) France and (b) Spain on the future of the Western Sahara. [204953]

Meg Munn: The UK is a member of the Group of Friends of Western Sahara in the UN Security Council, along with France, Spain, the US and Russia. Consequently, the UK works closely with these two key European neighbours on the issue of Western Sahara in the UN.

Last month saw the UN Security Council adopt Resolution 1813, which extended the mandate of the UN Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara and called on the parties to continue negotiations under the auspices of the Secretary General. The UK, along with the others in the Group of Friends, worked hard in order to secure consensus in the Council.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to meet representatives of the Polisario Front to discuss the status of Western Sahara; and if he will make a statement. [205099]

Meg Munn: The Government maintain contact with representatives of the Polisario at official level, both in London and through our embassies overseas. My right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary has met with consultants working on behalf of the Polisario, where he reiterated the UK's support for the UN Secretary-General and his personal envoy to the Western Sahara, Peter van Walsum, and for the negotiation process currently under way under the auspices of the UN.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Academies

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families if he will bring academies into the purview of local schools committees. [204970]

Jim Knight: The Government encourage academies to work closely with local schools and their communities. However, the first priorities of an academy must be to concentrate on tackling the challenges they face in terms of performance and behaviour, and on meeting the needs of their pupils.

Many academies sit on their local school forums, but like other maintained schools are not compelled to do so; it is for the governing body of the school in each case to decide. Academy principals are also often part of their local secondary head groups—and in some cases have been the chair.

Academy Governing Bodies are bound by law to act in the best interest of the academy, its pupils and local community. They must set out their proposals for working with other schools and the wider community in their annual development plan.

All new academies will be required to be part of their local behaviour partnerships, and all open academies are already members or have indicated a willingness to work with their local behaviour partnerships.

Academies: Admissions

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 813W, on academies: admissions, if he will list each of the academies which fall in each category of selection; and if he will make a statement. [205314]

Jim Knight: In the case of over subscription:

The following academies can exercise selection by aptitude in their specialism:

The Business Academy, Bexley; The City Academy, Bristol; Capital City Academy, Brent; The Academy at Peckham, Southwark; City of London Academy, Southwark; Djanogly City Academy, Nottingham; Dixons City Academy, Bradford; Macmillan Academy, Middlesbrough; Haberdashers' Aske's Hatcham Academy, Lewisham; Haberdashers' Knights Academy, Lewisham; Harefield Academy, Hillingdon; The John Madejski Academy, Reading; Ashcroft Technology Academy, Wandsworth; William Hulme's Grammar School, Manchester; The Belvedere Academy, Liverpool; Harris City Academy, Crystal Palace, Croydon; John Cabot Academy, South Gloucestershire

The following Academies can exercise banding in line with ability range of applicants:

The Business Academy, Bexley; The Walsall City Academy, Walsall; Capital City Academy, Brent; The Academy at Peckham, Southwark; City of London Academy, Southwark; The West London Academy, Baling; Mossbourne Community Academy, Hackney; Dixons City Academy, Bradford; Macmillan Academy, Middlesbrough; Haberdashers' Aske's Hatcham Academy, Lewisham; Haberdashers' Knights Academy, Lewisham; Sandwell Academy, Sandwell; The Petchey Academy, Hackney; The Harris Bermondsey Academy, Southwark; David Young Community Academy, Leeds; Landau Forte College, Derby; North Liverpool City Academy, Liverpool; Harris Girls Academy East Dulwich, Southwark; Ashcroft Technology Academy, Wandsworth; William Hulme's Grammar School, Manchester; The Belvedere Academy, Liverpool; The Bridge Academy, Hackney; Leigh Technology Academy, Kent; The Thomas Deacon Academy, Peterborough; Harris City Academy, Crystal Palace, Croydon; Bacon's, A Church of England Sponsored Academy, Southwark.

And, the following Academies can exercise banding in line with ability range of pupils nationally:

Harris Academy Merton, Merton; The Harris Academy South Norwood, Croydon; John Cabot Academy, South Gloucestershire.

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether new academies will be allowed to select by banding with reference to the national ability range; and if he will make a statement. [205315]

Jim Knight: Academies must abide by the School Admissions Code, which allows for the banding of applicants with reference to (i) the ability of applicants for the school, (ii) the range of ability of children in the local area or (iii) the national ability range. Of the 83 open Academies, three currently have Funding Agreements which allow for banding with reference to the national ability range. Twenty-six others have Funding Agreements which allow for banding but all of these refer to the ability range of the applicants to the Academy. New Academies will be under the same obligations as existing Academies and other schools in this respect and will therefore be able to band with reference to the national ability range should they choose to.

Business: Education

Mr. Prisk: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families with reference to the answer of 6 June 2007 to the hon. Member for

Banbury, (Tony Baldry) Official Report, columns 625-26W, on business: education, (1) what factors have been taken into account in determining whether to proceed with a second round of Enterprise Summer School Pathfinders in 2008; [204635]

(2) what discussions officials in his Department have had on a second round of Enterprise Summer School Pathfinders to take place in 2008; [204633]

(3) what funding is available for a second round of Enterprise Summer School Pathfinders to take place in 2008; [204634]

(4) how many of the nine recommendations made following the evaluation of the School's Enterprise Education Network carried out by York Consultancy LLP in September 2007 have been (a) accepted and (b) implemented; [203910]

(5) what the cost was of the assessment of the Enterprise Summer School Pathfinders conducted by Oxford University in 2006; [203909]

(6) what the cost was of the evaluation of the School's Enterprise Education Network carried out by York Consultancy LLP in September 2007. [203911]

Jim Knight: The Department for Children, Schools and Families (DCSF) has been working with partners to develop a second pilot enterprise summer schools programme, within the 'Young Chambers' (YCs) initiative launched in 2007 as part of the enterprise education strategy. Partners in YCs are the British Chambers of Commerce, the Specialist Schools and Academies Trust (SSAT), the National Education Business Partnerships Network, and YCUK. The SSAT has invited all schools taking part in the Young Chamber programme to organise a 'summer enterprise workshop', offering support of £1,000 from allocated funds. The aim of the summer enterprise workshop is to give students a real experience of business—for example around entrepreneurship, setting up and running a business—using practical input from a local business or employer, and other relevant local partners. I am pleased to say that 25 schools have applied to date, and we hope that the number will rise to around 50.

We have taken account of the evaluation of the 2006 Young Enterprise summer schools, and the SSAT is sending a copy to all applicant schools to ensure that the positive lessons can be learned. That evaluation was commissioned by Young Enterprise and funded from within the allocation made to them for the summer schools. The evaluation of the Schools' Enterprise Education Network (SEEN) carried out by York Consultancy was commissioned by the SSAT and funded from within the allocation made to them for SEEN; the DCSF intends to issue an Invitation to Tender for the future management of SEEN, and in doing so will take account of the recommendations made. I shall write to the hon. Gentleman when I have details of the costs of the two evaluations.

Children: Armed Forces

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many support staff his Department employs specifically to help the children of service personnel. [205134]

Jim Knight: Information on the number of support staff employed specifically to help service children is not collected by this Department.

Support for service children is provided by Service Children's Education which is an agency of the Ministry of Defence.

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what progress has been made towards meeting the target of each full daycare setting being led by a graduate and those in the most disadvantaged areas being led by two graduates by 2015; and if he will make a statement. [205385]

Beverley Hughes: Over 1,000 people have been conferred with Early Years Professional Status. This number will continue to increase as the work of some candidates is resubmitted and reassessed, and as new candidates are assessed. Over 2,000 people are currently training towards Early Years Professional Status.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what assessment he has made of affordability of childcare for children under the age of five; and if he will make a statement. [205423]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 13 May 2008]: The childcare sufficiency assessments which all local authorities were required to complete by 31 March 2008 took account of the affordability of childcare, which is one of the factors which can be regarded as the 'benchmark' of sufficiency.

This Government recognise that childcare costs are a serious matter for some families in some areas, which is why we are doing more than ever before to make good quality childcare and early education accessible and affordable.

We are investing £3 billion per year to support free early education, so all three and four year olds, irrespective of the employment status of their parents, can benefit from 12.5 hours of free early years provision for 38 weeks per year. This increases to 15 hours by 2010 and will be delivered more flexibly to meet families' needs. In addition, we announced in the Children's Plan an additional £100 million to pilot a free entitlement for 20,000 of our most disadvantaged two year olds.

We provide substantial help (totalling over £3 million a day) through the tax credit system, in providing up to 80 per cent. of childcare costs. This helps nearly 450,000 families, with nearly 280,000 of these families being those with children under the age of five.

The budget increased the commitment to childcare by announcing additional pilots to support new approaches to childcare, building on good practice from the additional childcare support provided by the £33 million London Childcare Affordability Programme. In addition, the Government will also pilot new child development grants of 200 in 10 local authority areas, payable where parents take up their childcare places and have contact with their local Children's Centre.

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 687W, on children: day care, what estimate he has made of the (a) number and (b) proportion of staff working in nurseries who are unqualified foreign nationals. [205429]

Beverley Hughes: The information requested is not collected centrally.

The Childcare and Early Years Providers Survey collects information on staff qualifications that are relevant to working with children and young people. In 2006, the survey estimated that 10 per cent. of paid staff working in full day care settings in England held no qualifications. However, the survey does not collect information on the nationality of staff, therefore it is not possible to estimate the number or proportion of staff working in nurseries who were unqualified foreign nationals.

Class Sizes: Wirral

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what the pupil-teacher ratio was in (a) primary and (b) secondary schools in Wirral West constituency in the latest period for which figures are available. [205069]

Jim Knight: The following table provides the pupil:teacher ratio in local authority maintained primary and secondary schools in Wirral West constituency and England, January 2007 the latest information available by constituency.

Pupil:teacher[1] ratios in local authority maintained primary and secondary schools in Wirral West constituency and England, January 2007

	Wirral West	England
Primary	22.6	21.8
Secondary	14.9	16.5

[1] The PTR is calculated by dividing the total FTE number of pupils on roll in schools by the total FTE number of qualified teachers regularly employed in schools.

Home Education

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many children have been removed from the school register for home schooling in England since 2004; and what research has been carried out by his Department on the reasons why parents choose to home school their children. [204942]

Jim Knight: The requested information on the numbers of children who have been removed from the school register for home education is not collected centrally. In 2006 we commissioned a feasibility study from York Consulting to assess the viability of determining the prevalence of home education and to give information on why parents elect to home educate. A copy of the study's findings has been placed in the House of Commons Library.

Nurseries: Local Government Finance

David Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families which local authorities in (a) the East Midlands and (b) England have notified to his Department the single funding formula they propose to use to deliver the provision of free places at private, voluntary and independent nurseries from 2010; and what mechanisms are in place to monitor the progress of local authorities in developing the funding formula. [205639]

Beverley Hughes: I would not yet expect any local authorities to have published details of their funding formula.

We made clear in guidance that local authorities should present the findings of the cost analysis to their Schools Forum and publish the findings on the local authority website. The guidance can be found at www.everychildmatters.gov.uk/earlyyears/fundingreform

We are running a pilot project to work with six local authorities as they develop their single funding formula, and sharing the learning with other local authorities in the form of guidance and update reports. We have already produced the first of our progress reports, with the next update due to follow at the end of this month. We hope to produce a guidance document at the end of the summer.

Pre-School Education

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families for what reasons parents will be permitted to exempt their children from the early years foundation stage; and what assessment he has made of the effects of such exemptions on the delivery of early years education. [205421]

Beverley Hughes: It is our intention to allow settings to grant exemptions from the Early Years Foundation Stage (EYFS) learning and development requirements to individual children, where parents can show that the requirements are in conflict with their religious or philosophical beliefs. We anticipate that such exemptions will be needed in only exceptional circumstances, given the breadth and flexibility within the EYFS requirements. It is already the case that good providers of early learning and child care will tailor their provision to suit each individual child that they work with, including taking into account the views of parents, and we expect that they will continue to do so when the EYFS comes into force.

Pre-School Education: Teachers

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of students studying for the early years professional status secured local authority funding for (a) one, (b) two and (c) three years at the outset of their training. [205422]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 13 May 2008]: We do not hold information on LA funding to Early Years Professionals that came through the Transformation Fund or now does from the Graduate Leader Fund.

Information on the Transformation Fund or Graduate Leader Fund may be available direct from local authorities or Government Offices.

Schools: Finance

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what his latest estimate is of the average cost pressures for schools for (a) 2008-09, (b) 2009-10 and (c) 2010-11; and if he will make a statement. [205312]

Jim Knight: The minimum funding guarantee for schools (MFG), which has been set at 2.1 per cent. for 2008 to 2011, is based on an assessment of average cost pressures schools will face from a range of pay and non-pay pressures at national level over the next three years. A spreadsheet detailing the estimated cost pressures and an explanatory note can be downloaded from the School Funding section of the TeacherNet website, on the 'School Budget Setting 2008 to 2011' page at the following web address:

http://www.teachernet.gov.uk/schoolbudgets200811/

Schools: Governing Bodies

Mr. Swire: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether he plans to reform the school governors system. [205792]

Jim Knight: We set out our plans for making school governing bodies more effective in the Children's Plan. We believe that smaller, more highly skilled governing bodies, alongside improved governor training will provide more effective governance for schools. As a first step, a stakeholder working group has been established to consider reforming governance in this way.

Specialised Diplomas: Work Experience

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether employees of businesses offering work experience to Diploma students will be required to undergo Criminal Records Bureau checks; and if he will make a statement. [202578]

Jim Knight: Whether a Criminal Record Bureau (CRB) check is required of an employee of a business offering a work experience placement, either as part of current statutory work related learning at key stage 4 or as part of a diploma course from September 2008, depends on the nature of the placement, and an assessment of the risks involved. Risk assessments, and CRB checks where required, are frequently carried out by Education Business Partnerships on behalf of schools which have the duty to ensure this is done. There are no plans to carry out Criminal Record Bureau (CRB) checks on everyone a young person comes into contact with during a work experience placement including those which are part of diploma requirements. This is because looking after, training and supervising a young person during the course of their placement is not part of those employees' day to day role. CRB checks, where selectively required, have been carried out on employees of businesses offering work experience placement at KS4 for a number of years. The track record in respect of safeguarding young people during their work experience is first class, with no reported instances or difficulties.

Sure Start Programme: Expenditure

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how much and what proportion of the Sure Start budget was spent on (a) building new children's centres, (b) building new buildings for existing children's centres, (c) staff salaries, (d) training existing staff, (e) play equipment and (f) food and catering in each year since the Sure Start programme was established. [205091]

Beverley Hughes [holding answer 12 May 2008]: The Department does not collect disaggregated data for expenditure on the Sure Start programme in the format requested. Capital and revenue spending in each year since the Sure Start programme was established is provided in the following table.

	Capital		Revenue
	£ million	Percentage	£ million	Percentage
1999-2000	3.6	53	3.2	47
2000-01	1.3	4	32.8	96
2001-02	11.0	10	104.8	90
2002-03	82.8	32	174.3	68
2003-04	96.9	24	308.0	76
2004-05	159.7	30	371.2	70
2005-06	353.6	43	477.6	58
2006-07	236.1	28	603.8	72

Teachers: Pay

Mr. Laws: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families what proportion of teachers will receive pay increases of (a) less than 2.45 per cent., (b) 2.45 per cent. and (c) more than 2.45 per cent. from September; and if he will make a statement. [203478]

Jim Knight: My right hon. Friend the Secretary of State has proposed to accept the recommendations of the School Teachers' Review Body for a pay award of 2.45 per cent. for school teachers in England and Wales from 1 September 2008. This would mean that all teachers currently in service and who remain in service on 1 September 2008 would receive a minimum uplift of 2.45 per cent. About 40 per cent. of teachers progress to a higher point in any one year and these teachers would therefore receive additional increases.

Youth Referral Orders

Ms Keeble: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many young people have been the subject of youth referral orders, broken down by categories of offence. [203822]

Beverley Hughes: The tables showing the available information on numbers of referral orders issued and the types of offences for which these were made are placed in the House Libraries. The tables are taken from 'Sentencing statistics 2006, England and Wales' published by the Ministry of Justice.

BUSINESS, ENTERPRISE AND REGULATORY REFORM

Ethnic Minority Business Task Force

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what recent meetings he has held with the Ethnic Minority Business Task Force. [204292]

Mr. McFadden: My right hon. Friend the Member for East Ham (Mr. Timms) when Minister for Competitiveness and the Regions, attended the second meeting of the Ethnic Minority Business Task Force on 16 January 2008. Senior officials from my Department attended the third meeting of the Ethnic Minority Business Task Force on 10 April 2008.

In addition to the Task Force meetings, the Government have recently consulted with over 600 businesses and business leaders to develop a better understanding of the challenges of building an enterprise economy in preparation for the development of the Enterprise Strategy. As part of this my right hon. Friend the Secretary of State met with representatives from the Ethnic Minority Business Forum North West in Manchester on 18 October 2007 and my right hon. Friend the Member for East Ham (Mr. Timms) attended an event for ethnic minority businesses on 12 December 2007, hosted by the British Council in London.

London Airports

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many times his Department hired VIP facilities at (a) Heathrow, (b) Gatwick, (c) Luton and (d) Stansted airports in each month since May 2006; and what the expenditure on VIP facilities at each was in each of those months. [205143]

Mr. Thomas: Based on the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform's (BERR) records since May 2006, there were five official BERR bookings at a cost of £1,428.70.

A monthly breakdown of official usage is given as follows:

Bookings from May 2006 to March 2008

		Number of bookings	Total cost (£)
Heathrow	23 October 2007	1	539.25
	10 July 2006	1	539.25
Stansted	18 January 2008	1	100.00
	8 July 2007	2	250.20
Total			1,428.70

Post Offices: Finance

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform which local authorities in Gloucestershire made submissions to the recent restructuring review of post offices proposing funding one or more branches in their area. [205751]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, Managing Director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Post Offices: Halifax

Mrs. Riordan: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform how many post offices in Halifax were closed between 1979 and 1992. [206087]

Mr. McFadden: This is an operational matter for Post Office Ltd. (POL). I have therefore asked Alan Cook, managing director of POL, to reply direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

Postal Services: Competition

Mr. Gordon Prentice: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what steps he is taking to ensure fair competition in the provision of postal services. [204757]

Mr. McFadden: Under the Postal Services Act 2000, Parliament established Postcomm as the independent regulator for postal services. Postcomm's primary statutory duty is to ensure provision of a universal postal service. Subject to this, Postcomm will exercise its functions in the manner which it considers is best calculated to further the interests of users of postal services, wherever appropriate by promoting effective competition between postal operators.

Postcomm has wide-ranging powers to gather information and investigate complaints about anti-competitive behaviour in the mail market. A Memorandum of Understanding between Postcomm and the Office of Fair Trading ensures co-operation and co-ordination on cases of anti-competitive behaviour.

Royal Mail: Business

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform what the level was of business use of the Post Office/Royal Mail in (a) the most recent year for which figures are available and (b) the previous year to that period. [205782]

Mr. McFadden: These are operational matters for Post Office Ltd. and Royal Mail. I have therefore asked Adam Crozier, chief executive of Royal Mail, to reply on both issues direct to the hon. Member.

Copies of the letter will be placed in the Libraries of the House.

CHILDREN, SCHOOLS AND FAMILIES

Children: Day Care

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families pursuant to the answer of 8 May 2008, Official Report, columns 1136-7W, on Children: Day Care, how many and what proportion of nursery pupils travelled to and from nursery (a) by car, (b) by public transport, (c) on foot and (d) by bicycle in each year since records are available. [206094]

Beverley Hughes: Information on pupils' mode of travel to school was collected for the first time in spring 2007, and was compulsory only for those schools with an approved Travel Plan.

The available information was provided in my answer of 8 May 2008, Official Report, columns 1136-7W.

Updated information relating to spring 2008 is expected to be available by the end of June 2008.

Children: Disabled

Kerry McCarthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families whether the Aiming High for Disabled Children programme's core offer will include provision to increase assistance given by medical professionals in applying for aids, adaptations and benefits. [203690]

Ann Keen: I have been asked to reply.

The national Core Offer, which was published on 15 May 2008, is a national statement of what parents of disabled children can expect from public services. These expectations are based on the five areas of information, transparency, participation, feedback and assessment. The services, which are developed locally will vary according to the needs of the disabled child and what parents want.

Sure Start Programme: Voluntary Organisations

Mrs. Maria Miller: To ask the Secretary of State for Children, Schools and Families how many and what proportion of (a) local Sure Start centres and (b) children's centres are run by voluntary organisations. [206104]

Beverley Hughes: Local authorities working with their partners in children's trusts are responsible for the overall delivery of the Sure Start Children's Centres programme in England, building on the early Sure Start Local Programmes and other provision, including planning, securing value for money and ensuring overall quality in children's centres. We encourage them to involve voluntary, private and independent organisations both in managing children's centres and as service providers in order to harness the best of all sectors in delivering quality services for children. Reliable information on how many Sure Start Children's Centres are run by voluntary organisations is not available centrally. A survey of around 1,100 children's centres last year showed around 58 per cent. of child care provision in children's centres is provided by the private, voluntary and independent (PVI) sector and that 74 per cent. of children's centres are using voluntary organisations to deliver other services.

COMMUNITIES AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT

Council Tax: Valuation

Julia Goldsworthy: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government under what circumstances a revaluation of a home for the purposes of council tax may be triggered. [206051]

John Healey: Listing Officers of the Valuation Office Agency have a statutory responsibility to compile and maintain council tax valuation lists. They will look to review a list entry if information is brought to their attention to suggest that the banding is not correct. The most common instance is where a property which has been improved, is then sold, and the extent of the improvements is sufficient to move it into the next band. In such cases, it is only when the property is sold that any revision of council tax band is made.

Eco-Towns

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government if she will place in the Library a copy of the transcript of the telephone conference of 3 April 2008 between the Minister for Housing and Planning and hon. Members whose constituencies contain short-listed eco-town locations. [203460]

Caroline Flint: There is no transcript of the telephone conference of 3 April 2008 between myself and the hon. Members where constituencies contain short listed eco-town locations. However, I wrote to hon. Members where constituencies contain short-listed eco-town locations on 3 April 2008, setting out what I relayed during the conference call and provided some further background about the process for taking eco-towns forward. A copy of this letter has been placed in the Library of the House.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of housing in eco-towns is planned to be zero-carbon. [203461]

Caroline Flint: As we have set out in the consultation document, "Eco-towns—Living a greener future", the development as a whole, not just housing, should reach zero carbon standards.

Eco-Towns: Greenbelt

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government how many of the short-listed proposed eco-town locations contain green belt land; and what the percentage of green belt land each contains. [203462]

Caroline Flint: In terms of development on the green belt I refer the hon. Member to the answer given to the hon. Member for Brentwood and Ongar (Mr. Pickles) on 7 May, Official Report, column 1037W. All the shortlisted locations for eco-towns are subject to consultation and further assessment.

Eco-Towns: Low Incomes

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what percentage of housing in eco-towns she plans to be affordable. [203458]

Caroline Flint: As set out in the consultation document, "Eco-towns—Living a greener future", affordable housing should make up between 30 and 50 per cent. of the total housing.

Eco-Towns: Planning

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the new Planning Policy Statement on eco-towns will be location-specific. [202589]

Caroline Flint: Yes, the eco-towns policy statement will be place specific, and will be an important material consideration in the determination of any planning application for an eco-town, particularly where the development plan is silent or out of date.

Tony Baldry: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether planning guidance for eco-towns will be site-specific. [203459]

Caroline Flint: Yes, the eco-towns policy statement will be place specific, and will be an important material consideration in the determination of any planning application for an eco-town, particularly where the development plan is silent or out of date.

Mrs. Lait: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government whether the approach in the draft planning policy statement on eco-towns will follow the approach to national policy statements envisaged in the Planning Bill, with particular reference to local publicity, consultation and parliamentary scrutiny. [204672]

Caroline Flint: The draft eco-towns policy statement will not be a national policy statement for the purpose of the Planning Bill, and therefore will not be covered by the provisions on consultation set out in it. However I can assure you that we will be publicly consulting on the draft eco-towns policy statement, which we expect to publish in July.

Energy: EU Law

Lynne Jones: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government on how many occasions officials in her Department discussed the proposed labelling of heating systems in the energy-using products directive with representatives of the European Commission in each of the last two years. [205440]

Joan Ruddock: I have been asked to reply.

To date, my officials have held four discussions on this subject with representatives of the European Commission. These consisted of a bilateral on 31 January 2008, two energy-using products consultation forums on 18 December 2007 and 29 February 2008 and a conference call on 24 April 2007.

Additionally, an informal meeting with the European Commission and other member states has been arranged for 22 May.

Housing: Derelict Land

Greg Clark: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government pursuant to the answer of 6 May 2008, Official Report, column 740W, on Housing: Derelict Land, what proportion of new dwellings built in 2006 were built on previously residential land, broken down by (a) county and (b) local authority area, presenting the data in a manner consistent with that of her answer of 24 May 2007, Official Report, column 1524W, on brownfield development. [204749]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given on 6 May 2008, Official Report, columns 740-41W.

This information was taken from the Department's Land Use Change Statistics (LUCS). Because of the way that LUCS data are collected, the statistics are variable from year to year. At spatial scales below the regional level investigation has shown that annual figures are highly volatile and not robust. Information for local authorities and counties were therefore given as multi-year averages.

Local Authorities: Asylum

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what assessment her Department has made of the cost to local authorities arising from the Border and Immigration Agency's Case Resolution Programme. [204186]

Mr. Byrne: I have been asked to reply.

We have been working closely with local authorities to help mitigate impacts, including via a transitional costs fund. The financial support available will depend on the claims made by local authorities. Funding will be available for some items of expenditure incurred by local authorities on an agreed cohort of supported families cases processed by the agency. We cannot therefore accurately estimate the level of funding required.

Local Government: Pensions

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the cash value was of payments made by local authority employers, including secondary contributions, to the local government pension scheme in each year since 1996-97; [202601]

(2) what the estimated cost to employers of the local government pension scheme was in each financial year since 1996-97 in (a) actual terms and (b) excluding the 20 per cent. of costs which relate to non-local authority employers. [202583]

John Healey: The amount of contributions paid by English local authority employers in the local government pension scheme, excluding the 20 per cent. of costs which relate to non-local authority employers, for the period 1996-97 to 2006-07 is shown in the following table. These data relate to payments made under the scheme that ceased to have effect on 31 March 2008. Since then, contributions paid by employers and employees continue to be made under the new local government pension scheme which came into effect on 1 April 2008.

£ million

	Total cost	Total cost excluding estimated non-local authority employer costs of 20 per cent.
1996-97	1,322	1,058
1997-98	1,520	1,216
1998-99	1,788	1,430
1999-2000	1,972	1,578
2000-01	2,273	1,818
2001-02	2,617	2,094

2005-06	4,124	3,300
2006-07	4,626	3,701

These data represent the actual amount of contributions paid by employers participating in the scheme according to annual returns submitted to the Department by scheme administering authorities in England. The returns include all contributions paid by scheme employers.

Members: Correspondence

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government when she will reply to the representation of the hon. Member for Sittingbourne and Sheppey on behalf of his constituent Mr. Trevor Bailess on the Home Information Pack scheme. [206106]

Caroline Flint: I have now replied to my hon. Friend.

Regional Planning and Development

Mr. Randall: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) what the responsibilities of the Local Government Taskforce are; and when it was established; [205415]

(2) in what projects the Local Government Taskforce is currently involved; [205411]

(3) what funds the Local Government Taskforce received from the public purse in each year since it was established. [205412]

John Healey: The role of the Local Government Taskforce (LGTF), since its establishment in 2000, has been to embed good construction principles in local government and provide a link between local government and the construction sector. The LGTF has also taken the lead role in supporting delivery of the construction procurement strands of the Efficiency Review. Funding and priorities for 2008-09 are currently under discussion. Figures available to Communities and Local Government (CLG) on resource allocated by CLG and the Department for Business, Enterprise and Regulatory Reform (including their predecessor Departments) to the LGTF since 2003-04 are set out as follows.

Funding to LGTF 2003-08

	CLG funding (exc. VAT)	DTI/ BERR funding (exc. VAT)

Social Rented Housing: Foreigners

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many new (a) local authority social lettings and (b) registered social landlord lettings were made to foreign nationals from (i) EU member states and (ii) non-EU states in each year since 1997; [164359]

(2) how many foreign nationals obtained a tenancy of social housing without holding an existing social housing tenancy in each year since 1997. [164360]

Mr. Iain Wright: I would like to apologise for the delay in answering these questions.

Information on the number of foreign national households allocated social housing is collected in the Continuous Recording of Letting form (CORE). A question on nationality was first introduced to the form for the 2006-07 data collection period. CORE is collected on behalf of the Department for Communities and Local Government by St. Andrew's University. Historically CORE has only collected information from registered social landlords. An increasing number of local authorities are now providing information through this process as well, but there are still some gaps in the data.

In 2006-07 for registered social landlords, there were 1,769 new general needs lettings made to foreign nationals from European Economic Area (EEA) countries and 2,259 from non-EEA countries.

Adjusting for missing data from local authorities, we estimate there were around 7,000 general needs local authority lets to foreign nationals. It is not possible to estimate the split between EEA and non-EEA foreign nationals.

Overall, we estimate that around 6 per cent. (equivalent to around 11,000) new general needs lettings were made to foreign nationals in 2006-07. This estimate adjusts for missing local authority data, and includes lets made to nationals from EEA countries.

These estimates are the first to be made on the basis of a full year's information and are therefore the most robust information available.

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government (1) how many social lettings were allocated to (a) foreign nationals and (b) A8 nationals in each region in each year since 2004; [200999]

(2) how many (a) registered social landlord and (b) local authority social lettings were taken up by (i) non-British citizens and (ii) A8 nationals in each quarter since 1 April 2006; and what these figures were as a proportion of total lettings in each case. [201002]

Mr. Iain Wright: I refer the hon. Member to the answer given today (PQ 164359 and 164360).

Stamp Duties

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Communities and Local Government what estimate she has made of the average stamp duty paid by a first-time buyer in (a) Bexley, (b) England and (c) the United Kingdom in 2007-08. [204750]

Kitty Ussher: I have been asked to reply.

No estimate has been made of the stamp duty land tax paid by first-time buyers. There is no requirement for taxpayers to provide information to HMRC as to whether they are first-time buyers.

Departmental Accountancy

Mr. Hunt: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport when he expects to publish his Department's annual resource accounts for 2007-08. [206238]

Margaret Hodge: I expect the annual resource accounts for the Department for Culture, Media and Sport for 2007-08 will be laid before Parliament before the Summer Recess and published by the end of September.

Sports: Finance

Mr. Don Foster: To ask the Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport what the value of (a) awards and (b) payments made from the New Opportunities Fund for physical education and sport was in each year since it was set up. [205817]

Mr. Sutcliffe [holding answer 15 May 2008]: The figures in the following table reflect the total value of awards and payments made from the New Opportunities Fund (NOF) and its successor the Big Lottery Fund under the programmes listed in each year since NOF was set up. The figures given for 2007-08 are the latest currently available, but are not the complete figures for the year.

DEFENCE

Armoured Fighting Vehicles

Mr. Gerald Howarth: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence (1) when he expects the Piranha V future rapid effect system utility vehicle to come into service; and how many he plans to order; [205394]

(2) pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 8 May 2008, Official Report, columns 39-40WS, on the future rapid effect system utility vehicle design decision, what the next stage of the utility vehicle programme will be; when he expects that stage to be concluded; and how much it will cost; [205396]

(3) pursuant to the written ministerial statement of 8 May 2008, Official Report, columns 39-40WS, on the future rapid effect system military vehicle design decision, what the proposed package of work on risk reduction will consist of; when he expects this work to be completed; and how much it will cost. [205409]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The date by which the Utility Vehicle will enter service and how many will be ordered will be set at the time of the main investment decision. The next stage in the FRES utility vehicle programme will be the Demonstration Phase. Its duration and cost will be agreed at the time of the relevant investment decision.

Prior to the Demonstration Phase we will conduct a package of risk reduction work to further increase our confidence that the selected design is capable of delivering the required level of performance. In addition to addressing performance issues, the risk reduction work will also allow the designer to review aspects of their exploitation plans for future phases of the utility vehicle programme with regard to estimates of cost, risk and schedule. The duration and cost of this risk reduction work will be the subject of negotiations between the MOD and the vehicle designer.

Departmental Internet

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 23 April 2008, Official Report, column 1924W, on the departmental internet, from which networks write access to Wikipedia has been blocked; when the decision to block them was made; for what reasons it was made; and if he will place in the Library his Department's documentation of the decision. [202379]

Derek Twigg: We have blocked write access to Wikipedia via the MOD Enterprise Gateway Service (EGS). This covers MOD's basic level (Restricted/Unclassified) Wide Area Network, servicing the vast majority of MOD's office-based IT systems.

A number of minor systems can access the internet directly; these are either older systems, or those under local control which have specific business requirements which make them unsuitable for connection to the main Wide Area Network. Such systems will not be blocked from accessing Wikipedia.

More highly protected networks have never had internet access, and so cannot access Wikipedia.

The decision to block write access to Wikipedia via the EGS was taken on 30 November 2007 by staff of the Director General Information (DGInfo) and the Joint Security Co-ordination Centre (JSyCC). There was no compelling business reason to have the facility to update Wikipedia.

An exchange of emails at desk level documented the decision, and the method to be followed. I am withholding these e-mails as in order to safeguard national security, this information is not placed in the public domain.

Kosovo: Peacekeeping Operations

Dr. Fox: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence when he expects the technical arrangement between NATO Kosovo Force and the EU rule of law civilian mission to be finalised; and what assessment he has made of the effects on military and civilian operations in Kosovo of the time taken to secure finalisation. [202385]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: NATO and EU staffs have produced Technical Arrangement papers to facilitate coordination and support between the NATO Kosovo Force (KFOR) and the EU rule of law civilian mission (EULEX). It is envisaged that they will be signed into force by the Commander KFOR and the Head of EULEX once EULEX is ready to deploy.

There continues to be good co-operation between the two organisations on the ground in Kosovo.

Radioactive Materials: Transport

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2008, Official Report, column 484W, on Radioactive Materials: Transport, what plans he has to ensure that the refurbished truck cargo heavy duty trailers and newly purchased tractor heads are compliant with regulations on radiation hazard, with particular reference to the carrying of radiation hazard warning signs when loaded with special nuclear materials; and if he will make a statement. [205190]

Mr. Bob Ainsworth: The regulations governing the transport of radioactive material, including the requirements for radiation hazard warning signs, are the Carriage of Dangerous Goods and Transportable Pressure Vessel Regulations 2007. Provision exists within these for radioactive materials defined as instruments of war, or components thereof, to be exempt. Notwithstanding, arrangements have been put in place for the transportation of special nuclear material that are, so far as is reasonably practicable, at least as good as those required by legislation.

Hazard warning signs are generally intended to provide information to responding emergency services in the event of an incident. The Ministry of Defence police escorting convoys have this and more information to hand. All factors, including security, will be taken into account in determining whether hazard signs will appear on the replacement vehicles when carrying special nuclear material.

Veterans

Mr. Jim Cunningham: To ask the Secretary of State for Defence what steps he is taking to improve the assistance given to soldiers to prepare for life upon return from tours of duty in theatres of operation. [205289]

Derek Twigg [holding answer 15 May 2008]: Prior to deploying on operations soldiers receive welfare and personal briefings that are intended to assist them in coping with the demands of operational tours and the subsequent return from theatre. These briefings are supplemented by a booklet and a DVD.

At the end of an operational tour personnel leaving theatre will go through a 24-36 hours period of 'decompression', prior to return to their home base. This enables them to unwind physically and mentally and to talk to colleagues and superiors about their experiences. Personnel also attend mandatory briefings during this period, designed to help them manage the transition to normal life. On return to the home base, and prior to the mandatory post operational leave, soldiers go through a normalisation process. This lasts for up to five days and is a structured programme of briefings and activities to help the re-adjustment to non-operational service life in barracks. Access to specialised mental healthcare is available at every stage of the process, as is access to the Army's comprehensive range of welfare services.

For those leaving the operational theatre with illness or injuries it is often not practical for them to undergo decompression or normalisation. Those hospitalised at Selly Oak are visited at least daily by the Service Brigade Liaison Officers and the Defence Medical Welfare Staff. Arrangements are also made for their families to visit them as soon as possible to offer additional bedside comfort and support after their arrival in a UK hospital. They can also be counselled by Army welfare staff and, where appropriate, referred for more specialist treatment. For those who are evacuated from theatre to home sick leave the Army Sickness Absence Management process involves regular unit representative contact until individuals return to their units or are discharged from the Army. Where support requirements are identified before discharge an action plan is developed with the Veterans Welfare Service that ensures support continues for at least two years beyond discharge where necessary.

The Army has also recently implemented Trauma Risk Management (TRiM). This aims to identify at the earliest possible stage those who may have been affected by traumatic incidents so that appropriate counselling, or other forms of treatment, can be arranged for them.

DUCHY OF LANCASTER

Committee on the Grant of Honours Decorations and Medals

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many recommendations of the Committee on Honours, Decorations and Medals have been submitted for consideration in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement; [203477]

(2) how many consultations the Committee on Honours, Decorations and Medals has conducted in the last 12 months; who was consulted; and if he will make a statement; [203490]

(3) on how many occasions the Committee on Honours, Decorations and Medals has met in the last 12 months; what the venue for each of these meetings was; what the cost of each meeting was; and if he will make a statement; [203506]

(4) what the cost of (a) the Committee on Honours, Decorations and Medals and (b) its secretariat was in the last 10 years; and if he will make a statement; [203507]

(5) how many officials are engaged in the work of the Committee on Honours, Decorations and Medals; and if he will make a statement; [203508]

(6) if he will place in the Library a copy of the (a) agendas and (b) minutes of each meeting of the Committee on Honours, Decorations and Medals in the last 12 months; and if he will make a statement. [203509]

Edward Miliband: Secretariat support for the Committee on the Grant of Honours, Decorations and Medals is provided by the Ceremonial Secretariat based in the Cabinet Office. The cost of the secretariat is accounted for in the departmental report and accounts.

The committee is made up of the following members:

Cabinet Secretary and Head of the Home Civil Service (Chair)

Private Secretary to The Sovereign

Permanent Secretary, Prime Minister's Office

Permanent Secretary, Ministry of Defence

Defence Services Secretary

Permanent Secretary Foreign and Commonwealth Office

Permanent Secretary, Home Office

Secretary of the Central Chancery of the Orders of Knighthood

Ceremonial Officer of the Cabinet Office (Secretary).

All members of the committee have extensive careers in public administration and/or as members of the armed forces or the diplomatic service. As the posts are ex officio, members serve on the committee while they hold their current posts.

It is established practice not to disclose the details of internal discussion and advice.

Crime Prevention

James Brokenshire: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster (1) how many people responded to the Have Your Say exercise as part of the Crime and Communities Review; [203237]

(2) what responsibility his Department has in combating crime, disorder and anti-social behaviour; [203238]

(3) what the responsibilities and duties of Louise Casey are. [203239]

Edward Miliband: The Cabinet Office plays a number of roles in relation to combating crime, disorder and antisocial behaviour. This includes, providing secretariat support to Cabinet and Cabinet Committees relating to domestic affairs, cross-Government work to tackle social exclusion including some of the underlying causes of offending, and supporting third sector organisations. The Strategy Unit also works collaboratively with other Government Departments on a range of home affairs issues.

The Prime Minister commissioned Louise Casey to carry out a cross-departmental review to look at how local communities, the police, local criminal justice agencies and other local partners can best work together to reduce crime, raise community confidence, improve information to local people and lower the fear of crime. The review is also looking at what makes people get involved in tackling problems in their community. The review is based in the Cabinet Office because of its cross-departmental nature but is staffed jointly by Departments.

The Crime and Communities Review's call for evidence attracted 1,457 responses to the questionnaire. A further 606 community activists attended evidence gathering events held across the country. The review is due to report by June 2008.

Departmental Freedom of Information

David T.C. Davies: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster how many freedom of information requests made to his Department were (a) answered (i) within 20 days, (ii) within 40 days, (iii) within 60 days, (iv) after 60 days, (b) not answered and (c) answered citing an exemption in the Freedom of Information Act 2000 as a reason not to provide the requested information in each year since the Act came into force. [201735]

Edward Miliband: The Ministry of Justice has published two annual reports containing statistical information on freedom of information requests received by monitored bodies (including central Government Departments) in 2005 and 2006. These reports can be found at the following address:

http://www.dca.gov.uk/foi/reference/statisticsAndReports.htm

The 2007 annual report is currently being drafted for publication in June 2008. However, statistics on requests received in each quarter of 2007 have been published and can be found via the MOJ website:

http://www.justice.gov.uk/publications/freedomofinformationquarterly.htm

The Freedom of Information Act 2000 requires public bodies to respond to written requests within 20 working days of receipt, but allows additional time for the consideration of the public interest in disclosing the requested information.

The published reports provide statistics on the number of "non-routine" requests received during each period where: an initial response was provided within 20 working days; an initial response was given outside this time but a public interest test extension had been applied; an initial response was given outside this time and no public interest test extension was applied, and where no initial response had been given at the time the statistics were collected.

The 2006 annual report provides statistics on the duration of the public interest test extensions in that year. Corresponding statistics for 2007 will be available when the 2007 annual report is published.

Information requests where deadlines were extended beyond 40 days is not collected in the form requested; however the proportion of resolvable requests the Cabinet Office answered "in time" (i.e. meeting the deadline or with a permitted extension) in 2007 was 97 per cent.

For 2005 and 2006, the reports show the number of requests received by the Department which were withheld, either in full or in part, where an FOI exemption or EIR exception was applied. For 2007, the number of such requests was 152, based on aggregated quarterly statistics from 2007. Requests withheld solely under the exemption applicable to "information available by other means" are not included; statistics on these are not collected centrally because they are dealt with as routine business.

Immigration

Mr. Bone: To ask the Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster what estimate he has made of the number of immigrants arriving in (a) the UK and (b) Northamptonshire in 2008; and if he will make a statement. [201244]

Mr. Watson: The information requested falls within the responsibility of the UK Statistics Authority. I have asked the authority to reply.

Letter from Karen Dunnell, dated 16 May 2008:

As National Statistician, I have been asked to reply to your question about the number of immigrants arriving in (a) the UK and (b) Northamptonshire in 2008. (201244)

In 2006 an estimated 591,000 people arrived to live in the UK for at least a year. These are the latest available official estimates of Total International Migration.

International migration figures for local authorities are only calculated on a mid-year basis to form part of the mid-year population estimates. These show an estimated 7,000 people arriving to live in Northamptonshire for at least a year between mid-2005 and mid-2006.

ELECTORAL COMMISSION COMMITTEE

Elections: Standards

Helen Jones: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps are being taken to monitor the effectiveness and efficiency of returning officers. [205705]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that it is using its powers under the Electoral Administration Act 2006 to implement a performance standards framework for returning officers and electoral registration officers in Great Britain. The Commission will use the framework to provide an assessment of the performance of individual officers, and to identify areas where further support may be required to improve performance. The Commission will also collect and analyse financial information from returning officers to support its assessments of performance and efficiency.

Voting Methods: Standards

Helen Jones: To ask the hon. Member for Gosport, representing the Speaker's Committee on the Electoral Commission what steps are being taken to monitor the effectiveness of the delivery of (a) poll cards and (b) postal votes in each local authority area. [205706]

Peter Viggers: The Electoral Commission informs me that the responsibility for sending poll cards and postal votes to electors in each local authority area rests with the returning officer for that area. The Commission's guidance to returning officers provides information about the production and distribution of poll cards and the issue and distribution of postal votes.

The Commission has no powers to direct or challenge individual returning officers in relation to the exercise of their statutory duties. However, the Commission's performance standards framework will support an assessment of the performance of individual officers in relation to a number of key management standards.

ENVIRONMENT, FOOD AND RURAL AFFAIRS

Domestic Wastes: Waste Disposal

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department has undertaken research into the potential risk of lung damage and other allergic reactions from household waste storage and collection practices amongst (a) immuno-compromised patients and (b) people with fungi allergies. [204485]

Joan Ruddock: DEFRA published in 2007 a report by independent consultants that assessed the health impact of fortnightly residual collections of biodegradable waste. Part of the work assessed available evidence on health risks to members of the public from air-borne micro-organisms and air-borne biological material from household waste. They concluded that there is no evidence which indicates that fortnightly residual waste collection will result in an increase of these substances to levels in air which could pose any risks for members of the public. The research literature provides no evidence that fortnightly residual household waste collection will cause any significant health impacts for residents, or that any health impacts are likely to be significantly greater than those associated with weekly collections.

This is consistent with wider studies of the health effects of waste management, which indicate that waste management has at most a minor effect on health.

The research did not specifically assess risks to susceptible groups of people.

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what powers waste collection authorities have to enter (a) the curtilage of a property and (b) a property; under what circumstances such powers may be exercised; what powers such authorities have to inspect the contents of such domestic rubbish receptacles; and what penalty may be imposed upon householders who refuse entry to waste collection authority representatives by the authority. [204534]

Joan Ruddock: The Clean Neighbourhoods and Environment Act 2005 extended the powers of section 108 of the Environment Act 1995 to waste collection authorities in relation to their functions under Part II of the Environmental Protection Act 1990 (EPA).

Subject to at least seven days notice expiring, and either the consent of the occupant or a warrant under schedule 18 of the Environment Act, persons authorised by the Environment Agency or the enforcing authority (which could be a local authority waste officer) are entitled to enter property to examine and investigate possible waste offences.

This would most likely be where a nuisance was being caused to the neighbourhood, for example by not placing waste in any receptacle and allowing it to be spread beyond the curtilage of the property.

This is not a power designed to enable the inspection of household waste receptacles. Local authority powers under section 46 of the EPA cover how waste is presented for collection, not how waste is stored by householders. If a householder had breached a section 46 notice it would be clear to the authority when it collected the waste, so there would be no need to enter the property to gather such evidence.

Floods: Finance

Steve Webb: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what discussions he has had with the Environment Agency on the funding required to implement the final recommendations of Sir Michael Pitt's report on the 2007 floods; and if he will provide a breakdown by subheading of the estimated costs of implementing those recommendations. [205612]

Mr. Woolas: We have announced an initial provision of £34.5 million funding over the three years to 2010-11 which may be needed to implement the Pitt recommendations. We will determine how this should be spent when we see the final Pitt report and the priorities which it contains.

Litter

Mr. Roger Williams: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs whether his Department monitors the number of visitors to the Knowledge Bank on litter run by his Department and ENCAMS. [204657]

Joan Ruddock: The Department does not monitor the number of people who visit the ENCAMS website, or the number of people visiting the Knowledge Bank section on litter.

Plastic Bags

Mr. Spellar: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will convene a forum among representatives of supermarkets to discuss an industry-wide approach to reducing the use of plastic bags. [206067]

Joan Ruddock: A forum was convened on 7 May 2008 which included representatives from supermarkets, the British Retail Consortium, and others. Its aim was to discuss the reduction of single use carrier bags.

Recycling: Castle Point

Bob Spink: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what representations he has received from Castle Point Borough Council in relation to the Environment Agency's assessment of its recycling plan; and if he will make a statement. [204640]

Joan Ruddock: The Environment Agency has made no assessment of Castle Point borough council's (CPBC) recycling plan.

CPBC are involved with the Essex Waste Management Strategy which is co-ordinated by Essex county council. The Environment Agency was recently consulted on this, but has no separate plan for CPBC.

I have no record of any representations having been received by my Department from CPBC in respect of this matter.

Sewers

Dr. Starkey: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs what progress has been made on transferring ownership of private sewers to water companies since the consultation in 2004. [205874]

Mr. Woolas: The Government Response Paper published in October 2004 acknowledged that transfer of ownership to sewerage undertakers would result in far-reaching changes and that further work was needed to understand the implications. Since then DEFRA has undertaken this work, which has included further cost estimates, a stakeholder seminar and qualitative customer research. Details of this work can be found on the DEFRA website.

As a result, the Government announced in February 2007 their decision to transfer private sewers and lateral drains draining to the public sewerage system into water company ownership. We subsequently published a public consultation in July 2007 on implementation options for the proposed transfer. The consultation also posed questions on the scope of assets to be included in the transfer and ways in which the creation of new private sewers can be prevented.

A summary of responses was published in March 2008 and we are currently preparing proposals for implementation with the help of a steering group of key stakeholders. The work of the steering group will inform the decision on the timing of transfer and the drafting of regulations for implementation. We expect to be in a position to consult on these regulations later this year.

Waste Disposal

Mr. Drew: To ask the Secretary of State for Environment, Food and Rural Affairs if he will allocate resources to develop commingled waste collections. [205753]

Joan Ruddock: Local authorities, in consultation with residents, are best placed to decide on the appropriate recycling and waste collection services for their areas. My Department funds the Waste and Resources Action Programme (WRAP) to provide local authorities with advice on good practice.

FOREIGN AND COMMONWEALTH OFFICE

Burma: Sanctions

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the answer of 13 March 2008, Official Report, column 640W, on Burma: Sanctions, whether a date has been set for the presentation of the conclusions drawn from discussions between the UK and its EU partners on how best to target financial transactions owned or controlled by Burmese officials; and if he will make a statement. [205862]

Meg Munn: The UK has shared proposals for targeting financial transactions with the European Commission and EU member states. Discussions are continuing at a technical level in Brussels.

It is too early to say when these will be concluded.

Burma: United Nations

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when a UN Security Council Presidential Statement on Burma is expected following discussions by the UN Security Council on 24 April. [205807]

Meg Munn: On 2 May, immediately before the devastating cyclone hit Burma, the UN Security Council agreed a Presidential Statement relating to the Burmese regime's 10 May referendum. The Council reaffirmed its statements of 11 October and 15 November 2007 and called on the Burmese regime to establish the conditions and create an atmosphere conducive to an inclusive and credible political process.

Since the cyclone hit, we have focused on the imperative of getting humanitarian need to those who desperately need it.

The UK will continue to make the case for the Security Council to engage on the growing humanitarian situation in Burma.

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what steps the Government is taking to ensure that Burma is put on the UN Security Council's formal agenda; and if he will make a statement. [205808]

Meg Munn: We have made clear our belief that the UN Security Council should engage on the fast deteriorating situation in Burma as a matter of urgency. UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon has indicated his immense frustration at the way in which the Burmese government is restricting the international aid effect, and the Secretary-General should have the firm resolve of the Security Council behind him. The UK raised Burma in Security Council consultations on 12 May and continues to encourage members to place humanitarian relief on the formal agenda. We have also asked the UN Secretary-General to convene an Emergency Summit of world leaders to press for expanded delivery of aid as soon as possible. My right hon. Friend the Prime Minister discussed these issues with the UN Secretary-General on 13 May and my right hon. Friend the Prime Minister's Special Envoy, Michael Williams, traveled to New York on 14 May to continue this dialogue with the UN and Security Council partners. The UK Permanent Representative in New York continues to make our concerns clear.

Departmental Catering

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what the cost was of food and drink procured for working lunches attended by officials at which no external invitees were present in each of the last five years for which figures are available. [205519]

Meg Munn: This information is not held centrally and could be researched only at disproportionate cost.

Departmental Public Participation

Stewart Hosie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs how much his Department spent on (a) written consultations, (b) consultation roadshows and (c) stakeholder focus groups in each of the last three years. [205834]

Meg Munn: This information is not held centrally, as there is no dedicated account for expenditure on any of these activities. Individual budget holders would need to identify relevant expenditure to obtain a total for the Department, and this could be done only at disproportionate cost.

Kingston upon Hull

Mr. Pickles: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will place in the Library a copy of the itinerary of the visit of the Ambassador of the People's Republic of China, Mr. Zha Peixin, to Kingston-upon-Hull in April 2004. [205405]

Meg Munn: We do not have a copy of the itinerary for the visit of the Ambassador for the People's Republic of China, Mr. Zha Peixin. We would refer any specific questions regarding this visit to the Chinese Embassy.

Lebanon: Armed Conflict

Sarah Teather: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of the effect of the violence in Beirut on the surrounding region. [205778]

Meg Munn: The UK remains deeply concerned by the current violence in Lebanon. Such unrest is not only a threat to Lebanon but also to the stability of the wider region. We urge all sides to work urgently for a resolution to the crisis. We strongly support the Arab League mission, which arrived in Beirut on 14 May and are working for action at the UN Security Council to encourage a solution.

Maldives: Elections

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what plans he has to support media and election monitoring in the Maldives in the run up to multi-party elections; and if he will make a statement. [204679]

Meg Munn: I refer the hon. Member to the answer my hon. Friend the Minister for the Middle East gave to the hon. Member for West Suffolk (Mr. Spring) on 27 February 2008, Official Report, column 1704W.

We are working closely with the BBC, the Maldives Ministry of Information and the Maldives Media Association to promote media freedom and skills development.

Mr. Hancock: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what recent discussions he has had with the Government of the Maldives on the (a) establishment of (i) an election commission, (ii) a judicial commission and (iii) an anti-corruption commission ahead of the multi-party elections and (b) on the subsequent operation of such commissions. [204686]

Meg Munn: In a meeting with the Foreign and Commonwealth Office in April the Maldivian Foreign Minister, Abdulla Shahid, stated that an Interim Election Commission would be created within 30 days of the ratification of the new constitution. He underlined that the deliberations of the Special Majlis (Constitutional Assembly) were nearly complete. Foreign Minister Shahid told us that the Commission would be responsible for all elections-related matters and that all registered political parties would be able to nominate Commissioners.

We have had no specific discussions on other commissions, but in his statement to EU Parliamentarians and officials on 6 May, Ahmed Sareer, Chargé d'affaires at the Maldives Mission to the EU, confirmed that an Interim Judicial Service Commission and an Anti Corruption Commission would be created within 30 and 60 days respectively of the introduction of the new constitution.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Gerald Kaufman: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs when he will answer the letter of 31 March from the right hon. Member for Manchester, Gorton on Mrs. Brohi and Aftab Brohi. [205518]

David Miliband: I replied to my right hon. Friend on 7 May 2008.

Pakistan: Terrorism

Mr. Tyrie: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs pursuant to the Answer of 8 May 2008, Official Report, column 1105W, on Pakistan: Terrorism, (1) in how many of the six cases British consular access was (a) requested and (b) granted; [206054]

(2) in how many of the six cases the detainee complained of mistreatment. [206055]

Meg Munn: Of these six cases, two were mono British nationals and four were dual British/Pakistani nationals. We sought consular access to the two mono British nationals and were given full consular access in one case. We have also requested, but are yet to be given, consular access to one dual national on exceptional grounds in accordance with our published policy on the death penalty.

Of the six cases mentioned, four have alleged mistreatment whilst in Pakistani custody.

Somalia: Human Rights

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what reports he has received of extrajudicial executions allegedly committed in Somalia by Transitional Federal Government forces, Ethiopian forces and other armed groups; and if he will make a statement. [204828]

Meg Munn: On 6 May, Amnesty International published a report alleging extrajudicial killing by Transitional Federal Government forces, Ethiopian forces and other armed groups. The Ethiopian Government have categorically denied the claims.

We are very concerned about human rights abuses committed in Somalia. Where breaches of humanitarian law are proved, we will condemn them unreservedly and expect those responsible to be held to account.

We have supported the UN Human Rights Council in renewing the mandate of the international expert for Somalia and have asked the UN to produce a comprehensive plan, and to build capacity to monitor and report on the human rights situation there. To be effective and have a sustainable impact, measures to combat human rights abuses should be part of a broad approach to peace-building.

Sudan: Armed Conflict

Mr. Keith Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs what assessment he has made of responsibility for the recent attacks on villages, markets and populated areas in Umm Sidir, Ein Bassar and Shegeg Karo in north Darfur; and what representations he has made to the Sudanese Government about the attacks. [204832]

Meg Munn: We strongly condemn the recent aerial bombings by the Government of Sudan in north Darfur, which resulted in the deaths of a number of civilians. We told Government of Sudan representatives, at the Sudan Consortium of 5-7 May, that such actions were unacceptable and in direct violation of UN Security Council Resolution 1591. We will consider farther measures against any party that fails to respect their responsibility under international humanitarian law to protect civilians.

We have also strongly condemned the recent attack by the Justice and Equality Movement rebel group on Omdurman which, on 11 May, my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary described as a "shocking further escalation of violence in Sudan". We have reiterated the UN Secretary-General's call on 10 May for an immediate end to the fighting and for all parties to do everything they can to find a peaceful solution to the conflict.

Sudan: International Criminal Court

Mr. Lidington: To ask the Secretary of State for Foreign and Commonwealth Affairs if he will make it his policy to promote a United Nations Security Council resolution to respond to Sudan's failure to comply with warrants issued by the International Criminal Court; and if he will make a statement. [205214]

Meg Munn: The UK sponsored UN Security Council Resolution (UNSCR) 1593 of March 2005 referred the human rights situation in Darfur to the International Criminal Court (ICC). The UK fully supports the ICC and my right hon. Friend the Foreign Secretary raised the need for Sudan to comply with the ICC in his meeting with Sudanese Foreign Minister Deng Alor on 28 April.

The UK continues to press the Government of Sudan, at all levels, to comply with the ICC requirements. We have also raised Sudanese compliance with the ICC with partners, including in the UN Security Council, who have influence over the Government of Sudan.

HEALTH

Arthritis: Health Services

Dr. Richard Taylor: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he is taking to ensure that the particular continuing health and social care needs of people with arthritis are taken into account in (a) Lord Darzi's review of the NHS and (b) the World Class Commissioning initiative. [203934]

Ann Keen: The National Health Service Next Stage Review, Our NHS, our future, led by Lord Darzi, challenges frontline care professionals to examine the way services are organised locally against the best available evidence of what works and with the input of users. In order to make sure that the local review work covers the widest possible variety of specific conditions, it has been arranged in terms of eight broad generic pathways of care. Details can be found at www.ournhs.nhs.uk. Those pathways most relevant to arthritis include staying healthy and long-term conditions.

World-class commissioning is an ambitious initiative that is being rolled out across the entire NHS, with the purpose of strengthening the commissioning of health and wellbeing services across the board. The world class commissioning programme will improve health outcomes for people with arthritis just as it will improve outcomes for people with any health need or condition, through transforming the way that health and care services are commissioned.

Cancer: Health Services

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what (a) data and (b) other evidence were taken into account in formulating Improving Outcomes Guidance for head and neck cancer services. [205398]

Dawn Primarolo: The National Institute for Health and Clinical Excellence (NICE) published its Guidance on Cancer Services: Improving Outcomes in Head and Neck Cancers, in November 2004. The supporting research evidence for this guidance is available on NICE'S website at:

Dental Services: Young People

Sir Peter Soulsby: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many dental braces were provided for those under the age of 18 years in each of the last five years; and what proportion of the associated costs were funded by the NHS. [205873]

Ann Keen: Patients aged under 18 are exempted from national health service dental charges. If a dental brace is prescribed and fitted as part of an NHS course of treatment for a patient aged under 18, the full cost of that treatment is borne by the NHS.

Information is no longer collected on individual appliances, including dental braces provided as part of NHS treatment. Information is available for the years ending 31 March 2004, 2005 and 2006. The available information is provided in the following table. No information is collected on dental appliances or treatment provided outside the NHS.

Departmental Managers

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what regular meetings are held of and among his Department's national clinical directors. [205242]

Ann Keen: The national clinical directors meet as a group each month.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what role his Department's National Clinical Director for Service Reconfiguration is playing in Lord Darzi's review of the NHS in England. [205243]

Ann Keen: All of the national clinical directors have been involved in the review, commensurate with their roles as national clinical leaders in their particular fields. For example, they have been available to discuss with the local clinical pathway groups in each national health service region the evidence base in their particular areas of expertise. In his role as National Clinical Director for Emergency Access and National Clinical Director for Service Design, Professor Sir George Alberti has advised on clinical quality and safety and clear patient pathways.

Doctors: Working Hours

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health at what meetings (a) Ministers and (b) officials have discussed the Working Time Directive with (i) EU officials, (ii) Commission members, (iii) officials from member states and (iv) Ministers from member states in the last 12 months. [205824]

Ann Keen [holding answer 15 May 2008]: Ministers and officials have been regular contact with a wide range of European Union and Commission officials on this dossier in the last 12 months.

The Government will continue to try to secure an acceptable agreement with member states and the European Commission on the European Working Time Directive.

I refer the hon. Member to the answers given on 9 May 2008, Official Report, column 1258W and on 13 May 2008, Official Report, column 1544W.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 9 May 2008, Official Report, column 1258W, on Doctors: Working hours, if he will publish the dossier to which the answer refers. [205825]

Ann Keen [holding answer 15 May 2008]: The independent research on the impact of the European Working Time Directive on medical training by Sheffield university will be published in summer 2008.

Mr. Stephen O'Brien: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to the answer of 30 April 2007, Official Report, column 1514W, on the NHS: Working Hours, which other member states are seeking changes to the European Working Time Directive. [205919]

Ann Keen [holding answer 15 May 2008]: There is consensus among member states regarding changes needed to the European Working Time Directive to address the SiMAP and Jaeger issues.

Foetal Tissue: Blood

Tim Loughton: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) how many units collected by the NHS Cord Blood Bank were (a) suitable for and (b) used for transplant purposes in each year since 2005; [205557]

(2) how many units the NHS Cord Blood Bank collected in each year since 2005. [205559]

Dawn Primarolo: The NHS Cord Blood Bank collected 2,543 samples in 2004-05, 2,056 in 2005-06, 2,232 in 2006-07 and 2,632 in 2007-08. This has provided 5,569 suitable samples of which 129 have been issued.

General Practitioners: Finance

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health pursuant to his announcement on 5 May 2008, that 12 new general practitioner practices will be provided in under-doctored areas, whether the allocation of funding to these new practices from the Access Fund will affect earlier allocations from the fund. [205307]

[205428]

Ann Keen: I refer the hon. Member to the written answer I gave her on 7 May, Official Report, column 1017W.

Heart Diseases: Waiting Lists

Clive Efford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the average waiting time for cardiac operations was in (a) England, (b) London and (c) Greenwich in (i) 1997 and (ii) the last year for which figures are available. [205342]

Hospital Wards: Gender

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps he plans to take to eliminate mixed-sex accommodation in the NHS. [205266]

Ann Keen: "The NHS in England: The Operating Framework for 2008-09", requires primary care trusts to review their current situation and agree, publish and implement stretching local plans for improvement in delivering single sex accommodation, with identified timescales and monitoring mechanisms. The Framework specifically requires that patient survey results, where available, be used as the monitoring mechanism. Copies of the Framework are available in the Library.

Hospitals: Cleaning Services

Stephen Hesford: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what hospital inspections have taken place in Merseyside to ensure compliance with the hygiene code since 2006; on what dates such inspections were conducted; and if he will make a statement. [204937]

Ann Keen: The information requested is not held by the Department.

Hospitals: Infectious Diseases

Mr. Allen: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what steps are being taken to implement the Rapid Review Panel recommendations on healthcare technologies capable of reducing healthcare-acquired infection into clinical practice at trust level; what budget has been allocated for this purpose; and how uptake of such technologies will be monitored. [204116]

Ann Keen: A wide range of new programmes is being implemented to support the Rapid Review Panel as a consequence of the Healthcare Associated Infection Technology Innovation Programme launched in the Clean, safe care strategy (January 2008). Copies of the strategy are available in the Library. Technologies with a Rapid Review Panel recommendation 1 are being placed in showcase hospitals around the country for periods up to six months for the purpose of evaluating in-use features and providing feedback to the national health service in the form of ready made adoption business cases. Such technologies are also subject to an accelerated placement in the NHS supply chain catalogue.

The budget for the first phase is still being finalised as discussions with suppliers are ongoing but indicative costs for the purchase of technologies are estimated to be £1.4 million and the cost of providing local NHS expertise to manage the projects at the hospitals is £700,000 for a 12 month period.

Uptake will be reviewed through information provided by the NHS supply chain where this is appropriate. Plans are also being developed to provide support to technologies that have Rapid Review Panel 2 and 3 recommendations.

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health how many product assessments the Rapid Review Panel has undertaken since December 2003; how many assessed products were recommended to his Department for use (a) in the NHS and (b) by the NHS Purchasing and Supplies Agency; and how many products in use by the NHS were recommended by the panel. [205204]

Dawn Primarolo: The Rapid Review Panel (RRP) has undertaken 207 assessments since its first meeting.

Seven products have demonstrated sufficient basic research and development, validation and recent in use evaluations to enable the RRP to make a recommendation to the Department that the product should be made available to national health service bodies. This is a recommendation one.

Of the seven products given a recommendation one, six products have been made available to the NHS by the NHS Purchasing and Supply Agency via the NHS Supply Chain and are contained in their product supply catalogue.

The Department does not have full information on the use of these three recommendation one products as infection control products do not have to be purchased through NHS Supply Chain. NHS trusts are free to choose which products to purchase and will maintain their own records.

The NHS Purchasing and Supplies Agency does not recommend particular products.

Oral Cancer: East of England

Mr. Lansley: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what resources he plans to allocate to the East of England region to provide training for dentists in detecting the early signs of oral cancers in the next three years; [205399]

(2) what in-service training in the detection of oral cancers for dentists in the East of England region his Department is funding in 2008-09. [205400]

Ann Keen: Postgraduate dental deans determine priorities for the continuing education and training of dentists within block allocations made by the Department. However, as the diagnosis of oral cancer is included in the curriculum for the basic training of dental undergraduates in accordance with the 'First Five Years' published by the General Dental Council, specific courses on detection and diagnosis are not routinely included in postgraduate training programmes. However, we understand it is the policy of the postgraduate dental deanery for the east of England to include and update training in the detection of oral cancer in relevant training programmes for groups of dentists like vocational dental trainees. The deanery also makes available copies of the distance learning programme 'Early Detection and Prevention of Oral Cancer' funded by the Department and published in 2007.

Organs: Donors

Mike Penning: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what estimate he has made of the number of viable human organs available under the NHS Organ Donor Register that were not used for a transplant operation in each year since 1997. [204475]

Ann Keen: The following table provides the number of viable human organs procured by organ, that were not used for a transplant operation, in each year since 1997. This includes those organs not used for administrative or recipient reasons. It does not include those organs considered not viable for reasons of the donor or the organ itself.

Ovarian Cancer: Screening

Ms Hewitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health what the Government's policy is on detection of and screening for ovarian cancer; and what the criteria are for deciding when to start screenings. [205298]

Ann Keen: The Government will introduce ovarian cancer screening as and when research demonstrates that screening saves lives and is cost-effective. The UK National Screening Committee is advising us on this issue and we are keeping it under review.

A research study, the UK Collaborative Trial of Ovarian Cancer Screening, jointly funded by the Department, the Medical Research Council and Cancer Research UK, is under way looking at two possible techniques for screening for ovarian cancer and is due to report in 2010, with full results not expected before 2012.

Ms Hewitt: To ask the Secretary of State for Health (1) what support is available for people with spinal cord injuries and their families; [205299]

(2) what steps are being taken to improve the Spinal Cord Injury Service. [205300]

Ann Keen: Those with spinal injuries are able to access the full range of health and social care, including specialised treatment and rehabilitation services in a dedicated spinal injury unit where appropriate.

We are not aware of any specific steps being taken to improve services for those with spinal cord injuries.

Mr. Byrne: This information cannot be disclosed as this could provide information of value to those seeking to circumvent immigration controls, thereby prejudicing the prevention and detection of immigration offences.

Justine Greening: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what discussions her Department has had with the Department for Communities and Local Government on costs to local authorities arising from the Border and Immigration Agency's Case Resolution Programme. [204185]

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department from which high-risk countries travellers are subject to compulsory watch-list checks under the e-Borders programme. [203942]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 7 May 2008]: E-Borders currently receives data on 30 million passengers' movements per annum from 102 carriers serving 182 non-UK departure points. We cannot disclose greater detail of these routes as it could potentially prejudice our ability to maintain the integrity of the control.

Departmental Energy

Mr. Redwood: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what steps her Department has taken to reduce its energy consumption in the last 12 months; and what her Department's expenditure on energy was in (a) the most recent 12 month period for which figures are available and (b) the immediately preceding 12 months. [201740]

Mr. Byrne: Over the last 12 months the Home Office has reduced energy consumption in our London headquarters by shortening the operating hours of its cooling and heating plant and shortening the switch on periods of the motion detector lighting. Across the UK Borders Agency estate low voltage lighting has replaced less efficient halogen lighting and modifications to fans and pumps to reduce the electrical load have been made.

The table provides figures on energy expenditure on the Home Office estate (excluding the public sector prisons estate now part of the Ministry of Justice) between 2005-06 and 2006-07, the latest years for which data is available. The increase in costs from 2005-06 to 2006-07 is the product of a lower level of consumption and a higher cost of energy. which data is available. The increase in costs from 2005-06 to 2006-07 is the product of a lower level of consumption and a higher cost of energy.

	Total energy spend £ (includes gas, electricity, oil)

2005-06	7,187,353

Mr. Byrne: Figures relating to the revenue generated by each of the 0845 and 0870 numbers used for customer inquiry lines by the Home Office are not held centrally. As such it is not possible to answer this question within the time and cost limits of the PQ process.

Entry Clearances

John Bercow: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what plans her Department has to update the training programmes for staff assessing visa applications. [204278]

Mr. Byrne: Training programmes for entry clearance officers and managers are kept under constant review. The structure and content are regularly updated to reflect any changes in immigration legislation or policy.

Foreigners

Mr. Evans: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department what percentage of foreign nationals were counted (a) in and (b) out of the UK under the border and immigration system in (i) 2006 and (ii) 2007. [203606]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 6 May 2008]: During 2007, the e-Borders system received data from over 500 high risk routes, with annualised passenger figures of greater than 35 million, of which 15.4 million (44 per cent.) were foreign nationals (defined as non EEA nationals.)

Data extrapolations for 2006 are currently not available in this format.

Frontiers: Security

Mr. Paterson: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department (1) what discussions her Department has had with the Irish Government on the introduction of the e-Borders system in Great Britain; and what the outcome of those discussions was; [168404]

(2) what account has been taken of the implications of co-operation with the Government of the Republic of Ireland for the functioning of an E-borders system around Great Britain; and what the likely effects are of such a system on the common travel area. [168437]

Mr. Byrne: We continue to work closely with the Government of the Republic of Ireland on operational, policy and legislative issues, including on the implementation of the e-Borders programme which is a key part of the Government's plans for securing our borders.

As outlined in our 'Securing the UK Border' strategy, March 2007, we are, in collaboration with the Irish government, reviewing the rules and operation of the CTA (common travel area) to explore how mutual border security can be strengthened. The results of that review will be announced in due course.

There is provision in the e-Borders contract for the supplier to provide data on passengers travelling from the Republic of Ireland to the UK although no decision has been made on how it will be captured because of the nature of CTA.

Immigration: Housing

Mr. Clappison: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department pursuant to the answer of 17 March 2008, Official Report, column 806W, on Immigration: Housing, how many private sector providers have transferred existing properties to the private rented market; how many such units have been transferred; and what incentives have been offered to such private sector providers. [196266]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 25 March 2008]: The issue of whether a private sector provider has transferred existing properties to the private rented market, and the number of these, is a commercial matter for the provider concerned. The UK Border Agency has provided no incentives for providers to do this, although we have encouraged our private sector providers to co-operate with the programme, principally by allowing existing properties to transfer to the private rented market.

Members: Correspondence

Sir Michael Spicer: To ask the Secretary of State for the Home Department when the Border and Immigration Agency will reply to the letter from the hon. Member for West Worcestershire, dated 28 March, reference B12293/8. [203827]

Mr. Byrne [holding answer 7 May 2008]: I wrote to the hon. Member on 24 April 2008.

INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Burma: Storms

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many times he has met the Foreign Secretary to discuss the Government's emergency relief aid response to Burma following Cyclone Nargis; and if he will make a statement. [206333]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Foreign Secretary and I are in regular contact to discuss the crisis in Burma following Cyclone Nargis.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development which sections within his Department are responsible for co-ordinating the Government's emergency relief aid response to Burma following Cyclone Nargis; and if he will make a statement. [206334]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development's (DFID) Conflict, Humanitarian and Security Department is responsible for co-ordinating the UK's emergency relief response to Burma following Cyclone Nargis.

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development what information his Department holds on the countries and organisations that supplied one aircraft or more carrying emergency relief aid to Burma in the first 10 days following Cyclone Nargis; and if he will make a statement. [206348]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The United Nations World Food Programme (WFP) is co-ordinating air relief efforts. According to WFP, as of 12 May, 35 flights carrying emergency relief had arrived in Burma since the cyclone hit. Since then the rate of arrival has been increasing: there were 23 flights scheduled for 14 May. The Department for International Development (DFID) does not hold full information on the countries and organisations which supplied these aircraft.

Departmental Domestic Visits

David Simpson: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development on how many occasions he visited (a) Scotland, (b) Wales and (c) Northern Ireland in an official capacity in the last 12 months. [204392]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: In the last 12 months, Ministers in this Department have visited (a) Scotland once and (b) Wales once in their official capacities. No visits have been made to Northern Ireland during this period. All ministerial travel is undertaken in accordance with the Ministerial Code.

I also travel frequently to and from Scotland in my capacity as MP for Paisley and Renfrewshire South. On a number of these occasions I have undertaken visits to DFID's office in East Kilbride.

Departmental Orders and Regulations

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development how many statutory instruments have been (a) made and (b) revoked by Ministers in his Department since 1997. [204764]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: The Department for International Development has made 14 general statutory instruments since 1997, none of which has been revoked.

The information has been provided by the Office of Public Sector Information (OPSI).

Disaster Relief

Mr. Davey: To ask the Secretary of State for International Development to which natural disasters the Government has responded with the supply of emergency relief aid in the last 10 years; how much aid was supplied in each case in terms of (a) weight and (b) value; and if he will make a statement. [206335]

Mr. Douglas Alexander: My Department is unable to answer this question because of the disproportionate cost this would incur.

JUSTICE

Bail Accommodation and Support Service: Voluntary Organisations

Andrew Mackinlay: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) whether he plans to involve the voluntary sector in the provision of bail accommodation in England and Wales; [205344]

(2) what the average size is of each hostel provided by ClearSprings for the accommodation of bailees in England and Wales; [205345]

(3) how many bail units have been opened by ClearSprings in England and Wales since the contract was made with them; [205347]

(4) for how long the contract with ClearSprings to provide bail accommodation lasts; [205348]

(5) when the contract to provide bail accommodation in England and Wales was awarded to ClearSprings; [205350]

(6) when (a) the police and (b) the Probation Service were informed of the (i) location and (ii) opening date of each of the new bail hostels operated by ClearSprings; and if he will make a statement. [205357]

Mr. Straw: The range of support services provided by ClearSprings Management Ltd. includes referral in some cases to relevant voluntary sector organisations to ensure appropriate support for service users. Voluntary sector organisations were free to bid for the Bail Accommodation and Support Service and some did so. Voluntary sector organisations are involved in providing housing advice to prisoners including those who may be bailed.

ClearSprings does not provide hostels. The service provides rented housing for those on bail and for offenders released from prison on Home Detention Curfew, with a maximum of five sharing. The average is between three and four bedrooms.

167 houses have been made available. A small number have been withdrawn and at 2 May there were 157 houses available to the service.

The contract with ClearSprings is for three years with options for two one-year extensions.

The contract was awarded on 18 June 2007 and announced to Parliament.

It is a duty of the contract for ClearSpings to consult the police, probation service and local authority. It is not possible to provide details of consultation for all 157 properties.

Criminal Justice Act 1988

James Brokenshire: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many people were (a) prosecuted and (b) convicted for an offence under section 139A of the Criminal Justice Act 1996 in each of the last 10 years; and on how many occasions the maximum sentence of two years imprisonment was imposed; [205373]

(2) how many people were (a) prosecuted and (b) convicted for an offence under (i) section 141A of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 and (ii) section 1 of the Knives Act 1997 in each of the last 10 years. [205374]

Mr. Straw: Data showing the number of people proceeded against and convicted of offences under sections 139, 139A, 141 and 141A of the Criminal Justice Act 1988 and section 1 of the Knives Act 1997 are in the table below. The number of people who received the maximum two year sentence under sections 139 and 139A(1) and the maximum four year sentence for section 139A(2) is also shown in the following table.

The statistics relate to persons for whom these offences were the principal offence for which they were dealt with. When a defendant has been found guilty of two or more offences the principal offence is the offence for which the heaviest penalty is imposed. Where the same disposal is imposed for two or more offences, the offence selected is the offence for which the statutory maximum penalty is the most severe.

[1] Following investigations, data from 1999 to 2004 for the offence "having an article with blade or point on school premises" for West Mercia PFA are deemed to have been coded incorrectly. These data are now included within the offence "Having an article with blade or point in a public place".
[2] Staffordshire Police Force were only able to submit sample data for persons proceeded against and convicted in the magistrates' courts for the year 2000. Although sufficient to estimate higher orders of data, these data are not robust enough at a detailed level and have been excluded from the table.
[3] These data are on the principal offence basis.
[4] Every effort is made to ensure that the figures presented are accurate and complete. However, it is important to note that these data have been extracted from large administrative data systems generated by the courts and police forces. As a consequence, care should be taken to ensure data collection processes and their inevitable limitations are taken into account when those data are used.
[5] The number of people found guilty in a particular year may exceed those proceeded against, as it may be the case that the proceedings in the magistrates' court took place in the preceding year and they were found guilty at the Crown Court in the following year, or the defendants was found guilty for a different offence to the original offence proceeded against.
[6] Includes "Having an article with blade or point in a public place."
[7] Includes "Having a blade or point on school premises" and "Possession of offensive weapons on school premises without lawful authority or reasonable excuse".
[8] Includes "Unlawful marketing of knives - Selling or hiring"; "Unlawful marketing of knives—Offers or exposes to sell or hire" and "Unlawful marketing of knives—has in possession for purpose of sale or hire".
[9] includes "Manufacture, importation and sale of certain offensive weapons".
[10] includes "Selling to a person under 18 a knife, knife blade, razor blade, axe or any other article which has a blade, that is sharply pointed and which is made or adapted for use for causing injury to the person".
[11] The maximum sentence for "Possession of offensive weapons on school premises without lawful authority or reasonable excuse" Section 139A(2) and 5(b) of the Criminal Justice Act 1988, is four years. The two instances(in 1997 and 1999) in the above table are where a four year sentence has been given.

Departmental Manpower

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice pursuant to the answer of 28 February 2008, Official Report, columns 1921-22W, on departmental manpower, how many of the employees under 18 years of age are receiving at least one day's training per week. [204934]

Bridget Prentice: The Ministry of Justice encourages learning and development opportunities for all staff regardless of age. In line with the Employment Equality (Age) Regulations 2006 there is no specific age-related training for staff under the age of 18. All staff receive training to support them in undertaking their day to day duties as well as having access to classroom based courses and alternative learning and development solutions as required.

Prison Service: Recruitment

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what plans the Government have to increase levels of recruitment of prison officers. [205535]

Mr. Hanson: Action has been taken recently to respond to the substantial increase in demand for prison officers, generated in particular by the National Offender Management Service's prison capacity building programme. A national prison officer recruitment campaign started on 7 January. It employed a major national advertising campaign, aimed at attracting a much wider range of applicants than had been achieved previously. It also created a new recruitment process, which reducing the time between application and appointment, introduced online application and sifting; and enabled more comprehensive information to be generated, on which to base selection decisions. Over 41,000 applications have been received to date.

Prison Service: Safety

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government are taking to ensure the safety of prison staff. [205533]

Mr. Hanson: HM Prison Service has an overarching health and safety policy statement, signed by Phil Wheatley, Deputy General of the National Offender Management Service, with other topic specific policy/ guidance (e.g. risk assessment, moving and handling) issued in support of this. Each prison governor is responsible for ensuring a system is in place within their prison for effectively managing health and safety, which includes a comprehensive health and safety policy, which complies with the requirements of the Health and Safety at Work Act etc. 1974 to ensure the health and safety of staff and others who may be affected by the Service's activities.

Health and safety is a management activity undertaken by all staff. The same health and safety policy and guidance applies to the private sector prisons.

Prison Service: Sick Leave

Chris Huhne: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) (a) how many working days were lost to sickness, (b) what the average number of working days per staff member lost to sickness was and (c) what percentage of days lost to sickness was attributed to stress-related conditions for (i) HM Prison Service staff and (ii) other departmental staff in each of the last five years; [195018]

(2) when he plans to answer question 195018 on staff sickness, tabled on 13 March 2008. [206480]

Mr. Hanson: I replied to the hon. Member for Eastleigh's question on 26 March 2008. Unfortunately it appears that it was not included in the Official Report that day. The answer to the original question is as follows.

The information is in the following tables and is derived from the Cabinet Office published report on sickness absence. There is no clear medical definition of stress and figures for the Ministry of Justice include all conditions relating to mental and behavioural disorders, a proportion of which will have a stress element. Information for the Office of Criminal Justice Reform and National Offender Management Service, which now forms part of the Ministry of Justice, is being provided in a separate Home Office response.

The report included an analysis of the days lost due to sickness absence for each Department by reasons for absence. The following table sets out the figures for 2006-07 for the constituent parts of this Department, which were in place prior to the creation of the Ministry of Justice in May 2007. Information on the reasons for sickness absence prior to 2006-07 for the former Department for Constitutional Affairs is not readily available.

Prison Service: Working Conditions

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government are taking to improve conditions of work for prison staff. [205536]

Mr. Hanson: Workforce modernisation formed a recommendation in Lord Carter's report 'Securing the Future.' The Workforce Modernisation Programme was formed to focus on developing new pay and grading for all staff working in National Offender Management Service and new workforce structures for all staff working in prison. New pay and grading structures will be underpinned by the new Job Evaluation System to ensure that pay and reward is fair across our different staffing groups. However, development of the different projects shaping aspects of the programme are in their early stages and no decisions have been made on whether changes to terms and conditions will be required.

Prisoners: Suicide

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice (1) how many women committed suicide while in prison and (a) on and (b) not on suicide watch in each of the last 10 years; [205525]

(2) how many men aged 18 to 25 years committed suicide while in prison and (a) on and (b) not on suicide watch in each of the last 10 years; [205526]

(3) how many men committed suicide while in prison and (a) on and (b) not on suicide watch in each of the last 10 years; [205527]

(4) how many people committed suicide in prison while (a) on and (b) not on suicide watch in each of the last 10 years; [205560]

(5) how many people committed suicide in custody in each of the last 10 years; [205561]

(6) how many women aged 18 to 25 years committed suicide while in prison and (a) on and (b) not on suicide watch in each of the last 10 years. [205564]

Mr. Hanson: The term 'suicide watch' is not employed in National Offender Management Service (NOMS).

However, any prisoner identified as at risk of suicide or self-harm will be cared for using the Assessment, Care in Custody and Teamwork (ACCT) procedures. ACCT is the prisoner-centred flexible care-planning system introduced across the prisons estate in partnership with the Department of health during 2005-07 to replace the old F2052SH system. All at-risk prisoners are subject to a minimum required frequency of staff supervision (conversations and observations) set by an individual case review. Such frequency can vary widely between different at-risk prisoners depending on the level of risk and the needs of the distressed individual.

The following tables provide a response to the questions based on the use of ACCT or F2052SH at-risk care plans.

[1] NOMS definition of prisoner self-inflicted deaths is broader than the legal definition of suicide and includes all deaths where it appears that a prisoner has acted specifically to take their own life. This inclusive approach is used in part because inquest verdicts are often not available for some years after a death (some 20 per cent. of these deaths will not receive a suicide or open verdict at inquest). Annual numbers may change slightly from time to time as inquest verdicts and other information become available.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice how many people from Leicester committed suicide while in prison and (a) on and (b) not on suicide watch in each of the last 10 years. [205562]

Mr. Hanson: The location of where prisoners originate from is not recorded centrally. To verify home address information (which would not necessarily reflect where the prisoner was from and in some cases would be 'no fixed abode') would involve contacting each individual prison and could be provided only at disproportionate cost.

Keith Vaz: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what procedures are in place to prevent suicide in prisons. [205563]

Mr. Hanson: The National Offender Management Service has a prisoner suicide prevention strategy that seeks to reduce the distress of all who live and work in prisons. This encompasses a wide spectrum of prison and Department of Health work around such issues as mental health, drugs, resettlement, leadership and training.

A revised strategy was published in October 2007. This builds on several years of learning from the experiences of prisoners, staff, investigators, inspectors and others, and aims to embed improved suicide prevention and self-harm management methods of working in all areas of prison life. The strategy further develops cross-agency information flows, and reflects long-standing areas of safer custody work such as Listener and Insider peer supporters, local Suicide Prevention Co-ordinators and working with outside organisations.

It also incorporates Assessment, Care in Custody and Teamwork (ACCT), the care-planning system for prisoners at-risk of suicide or self-harm, introduced across the prisons estate in partnership with the Department of Health during 2005-07. The key benefits of ACCT include a faster first response, engagement with the prisoner, and the provision of flexible, individual and accountable care. It is supported by improved staff training in assessing and understanding at-risk prisoners.

Prisons: Overcrowding

Lyn Brown: To ask the Secretary of State for Justice what steps the Government are taking to reduce overcrowding in prisons. [205537]

Mr. Straw: In December 2007 the Government announced their response to Lord Carter of Coles' report on prisons, including measures to both increase the supply of prison places and reduce the demand for them.

The Government are committed to increasing prison capacity by providing an additional 10,500 places, on top of their previously announced 9,500 place building programme, with the aim of achieving overall capacity of 96,000 places by 2014.

The Criminal Justice and Immigration Act will give effect to measures recommended by Lord Carter to reduce the demand for prison places. These will start to have an impact later this year.

The measures we are taking will ease the pressure on the prison estate. No prison will be expected to operate at a level of crowding beyond that agreed by the Prison Service area manager (or the Regional Offender Manager, in the case of a contracted prison).

Dr. Murrison: To ask the Prime Minister who the members are of the Committee on Honours, Decorations and Medals; to what role each was appointed; what relevant experience each has; how long each has served on the Committee; for what period the appointment of each runs; and if he will make a statement. [203505]

It is established practice not to disclose the details of internal discussion and advice.

Derek Wyatt: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) UK registered and (b) non-UK registered vehicles have been check-weighed since 2003. [206046]

Jim Fitzpatrick: Since 2003, the Vehicle and Operator Services Agency (VOSA) has check-weighed 169,848 UK-registered vehicles and 42,907 non-UK registered vehicles.

These figures can be broken down into the following:

Railways: Alcoholic Drinks

Mr. Evennett: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will assess the merits of amending the national conditions of carriage for train operating companies to ban the drinking from, and carrying of, open containers of alcohol by passengers. [204944]

Mr. Tom Harris: Train companies can already ban alcohol from trains using their powers under the railway byelaws. The byelaws also permit train companies and the police to remove disorderly passengers from trains and stations as well as prosecute for antisocial behaviour.

Railways: Franchises

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport if she will set out in tabular form the payments expected to be (a) made to and (b) received from each train operating company for each year of its franchise from 1997 to 2015, giving the total net cost to the public purse of all franchises for each in this period. [206172]

Mr. Tom Harris: This information is available from a number of sources, including the Strategic Rail Authority's historic annual report and accounts; the Department for Transport's website at www.dft.gsi.gov.uk: and National Rail Trends, the figures for which can be found on the Office of Rail Regulation (ORR) website at:

http://www.rail-reg.gov.uk/server/show/nav.1528

I will arrange for composite tables to be prepared and place copies in the Library of the House.

Roads: Accidents

Norman Baker: To ask the Secretary of State for Transport how many (a) personal injury accidents and (b) personal injury accidents involving at least one heavy goods vehicle there were on each motorway in each year since 1997. [205106]

Mr. Tom Harris: The total number of road traffic accidents that have resulted in personal injury (PIAs) and the number involving at least one heavy goods vehicle (HGV), (that is, a vehicle over 3.5 tonnes gross weight), in each year since 1997, are listed in the following tables. The statistics include all motorways that are the responsibility of the Highways Agency.

TREASURY

Child Benefit

Andrew Selous: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the longest period of time between the receipt of an application for child benefit and the determination of that application has been in 2008 to date; and if he will make a statement. [206099]

Jane Kennedy: The information requested is available only at a disproportionate cost.

However, in the year 2007-08 almost 65 per cent. of claims were decided within five working days and 94 per cent. were decided within 36 working days.

Council Tax: Valuation

Mr. Todd: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer pursuant to the answer of 6 May 2008, Official Report, columns 817-8W, on Council Tax: Valuation, whether a statutory gateway will be introduced. [205523]

Jane Kennedy: Statutory gateways exist in so far as they are provided by Commissioners for Revenue and Customs Act 2005 and other legislative provisions. This Department has no current plans to introduce further gateways.

Income Tax: Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the change in tax revenues which would occur if incomes at £100,000 or above were taxed at a marginal rate of 50 per cent. in 2008-09. [205252]

Jane Kennedy: The estimate of extra revenue if incomes at £100,000 or above were charged at 50 per cent. would be around £7.9 billion for 2008-09. This figure excludes any estimate of behavioural response which could be significant given the scale of the change.

This estimate is based on the 2005-06 Survey of Personal Incomes projected forward using Budget 2008 assumptions and includes changes announced in Budget 2007.

Mr. Willis: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer whether his proposals to compensate those who lost out as a result of the abolition of the 10p tax rate will extend to people over the age of 65 years; and if he will make a statement. [206287]

Jane Kennedy: In Budget 2007, the Government announced an increase the age-related allowances for taxpayers aged 65 or over of £1,180 above indexation from April 2008. This is worth £236 a year to people benefiting in full from the age-related allowances, greater than the £232 a year maximum loss from the withdrawal of the 10p rate.

Liam Byrne

Mr. Gauke: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the ministerial responsibilities of the hon. Member for Birmingham, Hodge Hill are within his Department. [204504]

Mr. Darling: My hon. Friend the Member for Birmingham, Hodge Hill (Mr. Byrne) is the Minister of State for Borders and Immigration (Home Office) and Minister of State with responsibility for revenue protection at the border (HM Treasury).

As a Treasury Minister my hon. Friend is responsible for the operational delivery of the UK Border Agency's (UKBA) revenue protection functions, delivery of targets covering revenue protection and the examination of goods at the frontier. my hon. Friend works closely with his Treasury ministerial colleagues to shape effective operational policy, based on the UKBA's experience of implementation.

Northern Rock

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer (1) what progress has been made in appointing a valuer as laid down in the draft Northern Rock plc Compensation Scheme Order 2008; [205538]

(2) when he will appoint a valuer as laid down in the draft Northern Rock plc Compensation Scheme Order 2008. [205539]

Kitty Ussher: The position of independent valuer to assess any compensation for those affected by the transfer of Northern Rock into public ownership will be advertised shortly.

Mr. Philip Hammond: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer with reference to the statement by the Exchequer Secretary to the Treasury in the Delegated Legislation Committee on the draft Northern Rock plc Compensation Scheme Order on 11 March 2008, Official Report, column 7, what timetable has been set for the completion of the valuation of Northern Rock. [205614]

Kitty Ussher: We will of course wish to ensure that the valuer is suitably qualified and resourced to undertake his assessment of the amount of any compensation effectively and expeditiously. The valuer must, however, be independent and so the Government cannot prescribe a timetable.

Real Estate Investment Trusts

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what companies have formed real estate investment trusts under the provisions of the Finance Act 2006. [206198]

Kitty Ussher: There are now 19 Real Estate Investment Trusts. The names of the companies are not disclosed as to do so would breach taxpayer confidentiality: it is not HMRC's practice to disclose information relating to the tax status of individual taxpayers.

Real Estate Investment Trusts: Fees and Charges

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what initial fees have been collected from companies forming real estate investment trusts under the provisions of the Finance Act 2006. [206197]

Kitty Ussher: HMRC does not publish information relating to tax paid by individual taxpayers. Given the small number of companies involved, disclosure of information relating to the entry charge paid so far by Real Estate Investment Trusts would be likely to result in a breach of taxpayer confidentiality.

Revenue and Customs: Secondment

Andrew Selous: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what access HM Revenue and Customs staff seconded to the Child Support Agency have to HM Revenue and Customs data systems while on secondment; and if he will make a statement. [206097]

Jane Kennedy: None.

Tax Allowances

Mr. Austin Mitchell: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer if he will estimate the cost to the public purse of raising the personal taxation allowance in (a) 2009-10 and (b) 2010-11 by (i) 10 per cent. and (ii) 20 per cent. [205253]

Jane Kennedy: The cost of increasing all income tax personal allowances by 10 per cent. is regularly published, with latest estimates available in Table 1.6 "Direct effects of illustrative tax changes" on the HM Revenue and Customs' website:

http://www.hmrc.gov.uk/stats/tax_expenditures/menu.htm

Tax Rates and Bands

Mr. Hoban: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what the basis is for the rate of increase for each of the taxes and allowances which are uprated on an annual basis. [205513]

Jane Kennedy: The basis for the annual uprating of taxes and allowances is set out in paragraph A.2.5 (page 131) of the Budget 2008 publication (HC 388).

Welfare Tax Credits: Mentally Ill

Dr. Cable: To ask the Chancellor of the Exchequer what steps his Department is taking to support people with mental health problems who are on low incomes to gain access to affordable credit; and if he will make a statement. [205359]

Kitty Ussher: The Government have a range of programmes to provide assistance to those with mental health problems, including outreach services, and is developing a National Strategy for Mental Health and Work to improve the employment chances of those with a mental health condition. In addition, many people on low incomes, and particularly those from vulnerable groups, are unable to access sources of affordable credit that meet their needs. The Government are therefore committed to increasing the supply of affordable credit from credit unions and has allocated £80 million over five years (2006-11) as a Growth Fund to support credit unions and other third sector lenders. Funded organisations have provided more than 70,000 loans to financially excluded customers, including those from vulnerable groups, since 2006. In addition, "Financial inclusion: an action plan for 2008-11", published in December 2007, announced a commitment from the high street banks to support third sector affordable credit, including actions to develop new provision in 25 high priority areas.
